"This handbook offers a novelty in close photographs of hands actually busy with the main technical processes. It is a procedure that saves much verbal description, and the cuts are attractive in themselves. The tools and implements of the two crafts are also photographically reproduced. As an example to the beginner numerous prints in excellent collotype reproductions are offered with brief comment on their technique. One follows all the stages of wood engraving in one of her own best blocks, and in one of Eric Gill's, while the effect of overinking and underinking is illustrated in a similar fashion." "This corrected and amplified translation of von Seidlitz's standard work on Japanese prints appeals both to the collector and the general student of art." Nation

"The book is for the collector principally, with its aids to the identification of signatures, and lists of volumes illustrated by various Japanese artists. The general reader will take more interest in the illustrations, which are numerous." Spectator

A. F. Priestley's "How to know Japanese colour prints" (1927 Doubleday, Page o.p. 1933) published at $5, is a good general introduction

Sprague, Curtiss
* How to make linoleum blocks. 1928 Bridgman $1 761
1 Linoleum block printing 28-4915

A practical, non-technical book of instructions for beginners. The text deals chiefly with tools, technique and practical uses, but with a brief chapter on design and the inclusion of twenty plates showing examples of good work, the artistic side is not neglected

E. H. Hubbard's "Simple colour block print making from linoleum blocks" (1930 Forest press 5s) is another small book in which the methods are especially well shown by photographs. An abridgement of the author's "Colour block print making from linoleum blocks"

Another useful work which stresses the artis- and educational value of this art is Claude ght's "Lino-cuts" (1928 Dodd $3; Lane 10s). It is handsomely illustrated both in color d in black and white with examples of the work of the author and others. "Linoleum block printing" by E. W. Watson (1929 Bradley $3) and "Linoleum block printing" by C. W. Smith (1925 The author $3) are two books of practical instruction for student and artist in the technique of this art

763 LITHOGRAPHY

A. S. Hartrick's "Lithography as a fine art" (1932 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d) is another good book in which the various processes are described

767 ETCHING

Two authoritative well illustrated works on etching in special countries are: James Laver's "History of British and American etching" (1929 Benn 63s); and F. L. Leipnik's "A history of French etching from the sixteenth century to the present day (1924 Lane 42s)

1 Moving pictures, Talking 2 Television 29-17200

"An astoundingly exhaustive textbook on audibility in the cinema which, at the same time, supplies an unintentional but valuable critical commentary on the amazing dramatic form that centers in Hollywood. It cannot be said too strongly that the book is as complete and intelligent a survey of the historical and technical phases of the film industry as one could well hope for. It is invaluable for one interested in the technique of the film business, and its discussion of the matter of television is an exceptionally skillful and restrained contemplation of a naturally fascinating subject." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Recording sound for motion pictures" (1931 McGraw $5; 25s) edited by Lester Cowan for the Academy of motion picture arts and sciences, consists of authoritative chapters by 24 motion picture experts

A popular presentation of the history of the "talkie" is to be found in Fitzhugh Green's "Film finds its tongue" (1929 Putnam $2.50; 10s 6d). This deals more with personalities, managers, directors, movie stars, but also contains explanations of the technique of taking and reproducing. Illustrated with photographs, chiefly portraits

Ramsaye, Terry
Million and one nights; a history of the motion picture. 2v 1926 Simon & Schuster o.p. 1933 778

1 Moving pictures 2 Chronophotography 26-19459

"The value of this work lies in the fact that is the first complete source book on the motion picture." Providence

"Comprehensive in content, profuse in illustration, detailed in documentation. . .Naturally, the emphasis is chiefly on patents, trade wars, production costs, and picture finance; the film in relation to art and national psychology gets scant attention, nor is the influence of German technical skill and direction adequately presented. These subjects are more or less excluded from the author's main purpose, however, which has been to compile an historical record, filled with facts and figures." Dial

The editions published 1910, 1912 and 1916 had title: "Motion picture handbook." Enlarged for each edition

Volume 1 contains general directions for film managers and projectionists, volume 2 is on projection equipment. Volume 3, published in 1930, is on sound recording, reproduction and projection

A much briefer book is "Projecting sound pictures" by Aaron Nadell (1931 McGraw $2.50; 15s). It is a practical textbook for projectionists and managers

Rotha, Paul

1 Moving pictures [31-26539]

"This is an intelligent and entertaining survey of the cinema in Europe and the United States. The author, a 'film-fan' of long standing, affects the breathless and rather jocular style which is the fashion among enthusiasts of the cinema, but he has a better sense of proportion than most of his kind. . . Mr. Rotha keeps his head for most of the time, commenting on the development of the film and debating the merits of various types of 'filmic' art with liveliness and discrimination. . . The Russian and German sections are excellent summaries and contain the most interesting part of the story." Times (London) lit. sup.

Music scores are not included in this catalog as they present a special problem and demand separate treatment

L. R. McColvin's "Music in public libraries" (1924 Grafton & co. 7s 6d) is a useful English guide which will interest librarians who are building up music collections. In addition to select lists of music, it contains chapters on selection, purchase, cataloging, classification, and binding. "Care and treatment of music in a library" edited by Ruth Wallace, a useful little manual of rules for cataloging music scores, is listed in class 025.3

The National bureau for the advancement of music publishes useful pamphlets most of which are obtainable free or at small cost. Some of the titles are: Music at Christmas (7c), Stories of the Easter carols (5c), Young people in church music (3c). The publishers will send a list of the publications free on request

Dent, Edward Joseph
Terpander; or, Music and the future. (To-day and to-morrow ser.) 1927 Dutton $1; Routledge 2s 6d 780

1 Music—Philosophy and esthetics 27-26369

A good but erudite little book

"To have compressed within so small a space so much of history and aesthetics is a most remarkable feat of concision. Mr Dent gives us a history of music from its earliest known beginnings to the present day, without omitting any of the essential facts, and thereby puts into its proper perspective the comparatively short period from which is drawn the music with which we are familiar." Saturday rev.

Dickinson, Edward
Education of a music lover. 1911 Scribner $2 780

1 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 2 Music—Study and teaching 11-6477

"A book for those who study or teach the art of listening." Subtitle

"The essays which compose the volume have been previously published in the 'Musician.' They deal with a variety of phases of knowledge necessary to the proper appreciation of music, namely, 'The problem of form,' 'Beauty of harmony,' 'Technique of the singer,' 'Expression,' 'History and biography,' and 'The new musical education.' Professor Dickinson advises the systematic cultivation in our schools of the esthetic taste for good music." Review of reviews

The author's "Spirit of music; how to find it and how to share it" (1925 Scribner $2) is another valuable contribution to musical appreciation

Appreciation of music. 5v 1907-1921 Gray ea $2; Novello 780

1 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation

A series of volumes which furnish to the listener a simple and practical guide to musical appreciation

Volume 1, "Appreciation of music" by T. W Surette and D. G. Mason (1907) is an account of the evolution of musical art from the primitive folk-song up to the symphony of Beethoven. The steps of this development are illustrated by short examples in the text and a "Supplementary volume of musical illustrations" (1907 Gray $1)

Volume 2, "Great modern composers" by Mason (1916) takes up the study at the death of Beethoven and carries it through the most important romantic composers and composers of program music down to the present day. Biographical sections were prepared by M. L. Mason

Volume 3, "Short studies of great masterpieces" by Mason (1918) analyzes 12 compositions by 11 modern composers. This is not for the neophyte

Volume 4, "Music as a humanity, and other essays" by Mason (1921) contains essays reprinted from various magazines

Volume 5, "Guide to music for beginners and others" by Mason (1919) is an exposition of the fundamentals of music—rhythm, phrase, key, etc.—from the standpoint of the appreciative listener who has no technical knowledge of music. It has been published also under titles: "Child's guide to music" and "Student's guide to music"

Newman, Ernest

Musical critic's holiday. 1925 Knopf $1 780

1 Music—Philosophy and esthetics 2 Music—Hist. & crit. 3 Criticism 25-9386

"The well-known musical critic of the Sunday Times (London) describes in a novel way a critic's discovery of how the musical innovators of various periods were treated by contemporary critics." Brooklyn

"Mr Newman has made out a strong case—not a conclusive one, because we do not really hear the other side—for his contention that the great men in music were always recognized by contemporary critics of repute. He shows this, with varying degrees of probability, to have been true of Monteverde, Gesualdo, Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Wagner and Wolf." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Musical motley" by the same author (1925 Knopf $1; Lane 7s 6d) is a volume of short essays of musical criticism, in which he shrewdly and humorously puts the classics in their place. First published in 1919 by Dodd

Music of the past; tr. from the French by W. A. Bradley. 1924 Knopf $2.50 780.4

1 Music—Addresses, essays, lectures 2 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 25-2076

Written in charming style by a celebrated Polish pianist and harpsichordist. Her enthusiasm and knowledge of musical history give these papers unusual authority, but make them more valuable for readers with some background than for beginners

"The author gives much information of interest on the personalities of composers, interpretations of their compositions and other notes and comments on 17th and 18th century music. Most interesting perhaps is her viewpoint in deploring so-called progress." Chicago

MacDowell, Edward Alexander

Critical and historical essays; ed. by W. J. Baltzell. 1912 Schmidt $2 780.4

1 Music—Addresses, essays, lectures 12-8964

Lectures delivered at Columbia university

"Gives a clear and vivid view of the evolution and the history of music in their main outlines. . . Besides much that is almost inevitably conventional in the discussion of ancient, mediaeval, and modern music, of scales, counterpoint, folksongs, troubadours, sonatas, operas, and so on, there is also a good deal of the precious individuality of MacDowell's mind." "Eight essays by a well known American composer and music critic, several of which have appeared in 'American Mercury,' 'Harper's,' and other periodicals. They deal entertainingly with the problems of present-day music. The essays are followed by papers on general topics, particularly rhythm, with five on Beethoven." Bkl.

"The manner of Mr. Mason's writing is always vivacious and entertaining; he has a beautiful soundness and sanity, and his direction is always away from the obvious and literal, towards spontaneity and spirit. Whether or not one stands shoulder to shoulder with him in so sweeping a denunciation of the modernists, at least one must acknowledge the book as fascinating reading." Boston Transcript

Bauer, Marion

Twentieth century music; how it developed, how to listen to it. 1933 Putnam $3 780.9

1 Music—Hist. & crit. 2 Musicians

"This book . . . possesses genuine value through its painstaking investigation of the peculiarities of contemporary music, such as polytonality and jazz. Miss Bauer even devotes a chapter to 'The New Esthetic,' in which she takes up such matters as the effect of the war, the machine, radio, etc. . . . In the last analysis she believes 'the writing on the wall points to a new romanticism, a renaissance of beauty and simplicity—but a romanticism composed of the new materials.' There are chapters devoted to such important personalities as the late Alexander Scriabin, Jean Sibelius, Igor Stravinsky and Arnold Schoenberg, and even lesser composers of all countries are accorded detailed consideration." ‡ Our American music; three hundred years of it. 1931 Crowell $6 780.9

1 Music—Hist. & crit. 31-26698

"This survey of 300 years of music in America will fill a useful place in libraries. Beginning with New England psalmody, it traces the development of music, in folk song, national air, the concert stage and musical composition, to the present day. Has a section devoted to biographical sketches of contemporary composers and is well indexed for use." Wis. bul.

Bibliography: p644-69

The author's "Program outline of American music" (1931 Crowell pa 35c) is based on his "Our American music" and gives an outline, list of suggested music, and questions and topics for eight meetings

1 Beethoven, Ludwig van 2 Music—Hist. & crit. 30-25803

First edition 1904. A bibliography has been added and an introduction giving modern opinions on the personality of Beethoven. Contents: Periods of musical history; Palestrina and the music of mysticism; Modern spirit; Principles of pure music; Haydn; Mozart; Beethoven

"Dr Mason, who sent out his 'From Grieg to Brahms' two years ago, has now rendered the musical world another distinct service. It has been said of Dr Daniel Gregory Mason that he often 'expresses what one has felt, but never quite formulated.'" Book rev. digest

Tune in, America. 1931 Knopf $2 780.9

1 Music—Hist. & crit. 31-28329

"Mr. Mason feels it is time America ceased being a passive listener to music and began to take an active part in it. He discusses the influence, good and bad, of the phonograph, movietone, and radio, and of such institutions as school and college choruses, orchestras, and bands, as well as the part an intelligent audience may have in forming public taste. Interesting and stimulating. A part of the material has appeared in various periodicals." Bkl.

Osgood, Henry Osborne

So this is jazz. 1926 Little $3 780.9

1 Jazz music 27-26029

"For its erudition and thoroughness, and for its entertaining style, with touches of humor, this work is praiseworthy. It traces the history of jazz from its beginnings to the present, as well as giving interesting biographical material on some popular composers: Whiteman, Lopez, Berlin, Lewis, Conrey and others." Providence

"In addition to photographic portraits, the volume is illustrated with excerpts from scores the author considers especially significant. The analysis of these scores is clever, but it is far above the heads of readers who have no technical musical knowledge." Sat. rev. of lit.

Another book, of less permanent value, perhaps, is "Jazz" by Paul Whiteman and M. M. McBride (1926 Sears o.p. 1933) a readable account of Mr Whiteman's career and the history and development of jazz music

First edition appeared in 1893 under title: "The art of music." Has been frequently reprinted. In this edition a survey, 1893-1929, and two chapters "The question of key," and "Chaos or criticism," have been added by the editor

This is not a chronological account of the lives of musicians, but a history of the development of musical form and expression from the most primitive to modern tendencies. Biographical details are omitted, although the latter part of the book is largely concerned with the contributions of the great musicians to musical progress

"Eliminating jazz by defining it as entertainment, not music, Mr Rosenfeld finds the chief characteristic of modern music to be an experimental and revolutionary attitude, as an expression of mass rather than the individual. Most American composers, the author finds, are of foreign origin: and the only three who are American in a strict sense are Roger Sessions, Carl Ruggles and Roy Harris. Mr Rosenfeld does not rank very highly two of America's best-known composers, Gershwin and Deems Taylor." Book rev. digest

First edition 1928. Revised in the light of later information, and some errors in fact corrected. Bibliography: pref. p15-19

"In his life of Bach Dr. Terry has refrained from attempting an appreciation of the composer's music and has kept strictly to a 'record of Bach's career.' But that career, pieced together with the aid of every available scrap of material, becomes in Dr. Terry's hands an extraordinarily vivid and human tale. Dr. Terry, naturally, utilized what discoveries have been made by Bach investigators since Spitta. It is the result of his own researches, however, that has enabled him to bring out more clearly the contour of Bach's life and throw new light on Bach's family and ancestors." Sat. rev. of lit.

The author's "Bach; the historical approach" (1930 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d) consists of five popular lectures on Bach's character and work

"Johann Sebastian Bach; his work and influence on the music of Germany," by J. A. P. Spitta (3v 1899 Gray $21) is the standard work, valuable especially for reference use. J. N. Forkel's "Johann Sebastian Bach; his life, art, and work" (1920 Harcourt o.p. 1933) is a translation of the first biography of Bach, published in 1802. An abridgment of the author's two-volume work, "Beethoven, the man who freed music." It "omits much scientific discussion, and emerges as a dramatic story of the Master's life and work, of interest to the layman, though remaining technically exact." Preface

The author's "Beethoven, the man who freed music" (2v 1929 Doubleday, Doran o.p. 1933) is a well illustrated and readable study of Beethoven's life and music. The stories about the composer made familiar by Thayer are retold, and there is a critical analysis of his most important musical compositions

Specht, Richard. Beethoven as he lived; tr. by Alfred Kalisch. 1933 Smith, H. $3; Macmillan 15s 780.92

"In a series of sketches this biography shows Beethoven as he lived and moved among his friends, and his music in the course of its composition. Beethoven's moods and eccentricities are described with dramatic effect, but the attitude of the writer is one of devotion." Book rev. digest

"In spite of some inaccuracies of detail, and certain exaggerations, this book has much to contribute to an understanding of the character and music of Beethoven. The translation by Alfred Kalisch is excellent and conveys the poetic quality of the text." Sat. rev. of lit.

Berlioz, Hector Louis

32-31719

"Ernest Newman has supplemented the self-portrait of the great French composer given in his Mémoires, filling in and completing the story, and thoroly revising the English translation of 1884." Book rev. digest

"The memoirs extend from the composer's birth in 1803 to 1865, four years before his death, and include his studies in Italy and his concert tours in Germany, Russia, Austria, Hungary, and England. No more fascinating commentary on the musical life of the time can be imagined than these frank records of the opinions of the French romantic composer, who suffered from misunderstanding and hostility in Paris and was obliged to support himself by musical journalism. Yet, in spite of the frequent bitter outbursts, there is a vein of good humor running through the memoirs." Boston

"Life of Hector Berlioz as written in his letters and memoirs; tr. from the French" (1903 Dutton 70c, lib binding $1), in Everymans library, is a revelation of the spiritual experiences of one who was an outstanding representative of French romanticism

Brahms, Johannes

Niemann, Walter. Brahms; tr. by C. A. Phillips. 1929 Knopf $2.50; 18s 780.92

29-25904

About half the volume is devoted to the life of Brahms and half to criticism of his music. Appendices give a list of his works by opus number, a bibliography of German works on Brahms, and one of English works

"Originally published in German in 1920. The author in the Preface mentions three characteristics of his work: a critical attitude toward the art of Brahms, a critical review of biographical material, and stress laid on the Low German element (in contrast to southern and central) in Brahms as man and as artist." Boston

33-35393

"Mr. Schauffler's method has been to ransack systematically and with great thoroughness the biographies, the personal reminiscences, the essays and studies, the eighteen volumes of Brahms's correspondence; to collect every story, anecdote, allusion that appears in print and to arrange them in some kind of order and detail and to present the mass as a kind of mosaic portrait. . . The book brushes few new lines into the portrait of the man already existing. It may deepen and systematize what have already been known." N.Y. Times

30-27072

"It comes near to being the ideal biography of a musician, by a man who not only had the advantage of acquaintance with the master during his last years, but who knows well from a ripe experience how to temper enthusiasms with sound literary judgment." Nation and Athenaeum

"Brahms" by W. D. Murdoch (1933 Sears $4; Rich 15s) is a biography with an analytical study of his complete pianoforte works and E. M. Lee's "Brahms, the man and his music" (1916 Low 2s 6d) a briefer treatment which is a good introduction

Busoni, Ferruccio Benvenuto

Dent, E. J. Ferruccio Busoni; a biography. 1933 Oxford $5.75; 21s 780.92

33-19375

The author's aim has not been to give any detailed analysis or criticism of Busoni's compositions, nor any elaborate discussion of his piano playing, but to tell the story of Busoni's career and to present his many-sided personality

"The story is simply told, and generally with a scrupulous restraint in the matter of personal comment." Times (London) lit. sup.

Calvé, Emma

My life; tr. by Rosamond Gilder. 1922 Appleton-Century $4; 15s 780.92

1 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 22-20645

"Madame Calvé's story records an artistic career which carried her to all the great opera houses of the world from Mexico to India. Her narrative is full of anecdotes and allusions to the great singers with whom she has been associated, tho she does little more than mention them. Most of the book is filled with her own lively personality and her own triumphs." Book rev. digest

Caruso, Enrico

Caruso, Mrs D. B., and Goddard, Mrs T. B. Wings of song; the story of Caruso. 1928 Minton $3.50 780.92

28-8737

"In collaboration with her sister, Mrs Caruso has written of meeting Caruso, of her father's opposition to their engagement, and of her marriage and life with the famous tenor in America and in Italy. Her story throws into relief intimate and engaging aspects of Caruso as family man and friend." Book rev. digest

"It is an affectionate book, written with a good deal of simplicity and charm." Spectator

"Enthusiastic biographical sketch giving a description of Debussy's personality, an account of his compositions and his work as writer and critic." A. L. A. 1911

F. H. Shera's "Debussy and Ravel" (1925 Oxford 50c; 1s 6d) is an introduction to the works of these two exponents of the French modernist school of music

Vallas, Léon. Theories of Claude Debussy, musicien français; tr. from the French by Maire O'Brien. 1929 Oxford $2.50; 6s 6d 780.92

29-26883

"M. Vallas has carefully searched all Debussy's contributions to the Press, both articles and interviews, has extracted from them whatever he believes reveals some aspect of the musician's mind, and added a commentary of his own." Times (London) lit. sup.

"M. Vallas's book is useful because he gives not the articles themselves, but an exposition of the most important views and criticisms contained in them." Nation and Athenaeum

Contains illustrations and facsimiles

The author's "Claude Debussy: his life and works; tr. from the French by Maire and Grace O'Brien" (1933 Oxford $5.75; 21s) is a scholarly work on the composer and his times, heavily documented with the opinions of contemporaries

Draper, Mrs Muriel Gurdon (Sanders)

Music at midnight. 1929 Harper $4; Heinemann 15s 780.92

1 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 29-3436

"Interesting reminiscences of an ideal hostess, the center of an artistic circle including such celebrities as Henry James, Chaliapin, Stravinsky, Norman Douglas, and John Sargent. Gives intimate glimpses of a group of music lovers and artists who took no count of time so long as there was music, and after the arduous taxing of a public concert came to the Draper home night after night and made music not only 'at midnight' but far into the dawn as well, to the intense indignation of the less artistic neighbors. Well written with a spice of humor. Would be a good book for club reviews." Wis. bul.

Dvořák, Anton

29-10647

"This book is a useful and interesting addition to one's musical library. There is very little which has been published in English on Dvorak, and therefore Professor Hoffmeister's volume, half of which is biographical and half is critical, is welcome . . . Professor Hoffmeister's analysis and criticism of Dvorak's music is intelligent." Nation and Athenaeum

Trend, J. B. Manual de Falla and Spanish music. 1929 Knopf $2.50; Allen, G. 8s 6d 780.92

29-25903

"An interpretative study of the work of one of Spain's foremost living composers. The book contains many musical excerpts and a survey of Spanish music." Book rev. digest

"We welcome a critical study of Falla's work by a close personal friend of the composer. Mr. Trend is not led aside from his argument by the temptation which must have been great in this case, of chronicling anecdotes; indeed, the biographical matter is very short indeed. The author's aim has been to make as clear as possible the personal significance of Falla's work—quite apart from its national significance." Saturday rev.

Finck, Henry Theophilus

My adventures in the golden age of music. 1926 Funk $5 780.92

1 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 27-825

"For forty-three years Mr. Finck was critic of music for the New York Evening Post. In this capacity he met and won as friends many of the artists whom he vigorously championed in his column, or in some cases as vigorously lampooned. Included among these friends are most of the names famous in the musical world of the last fifty years, and Mr. Finck's recollections of them are extremely interesting." Book rev. digest

Foster, Stephen Collins

* Howard, John Tasker. Stephen Foster, America's troubadour. 1934 Crowell $3.50 780.92

34-1888

"Stephen C. Foster, composer of Old Folks at Home, Old Black Joe and many more songs, most of them written for negro minstrels, was born in Pittsburgh in 1826 and died in Bellevue Hospital, New York, in 1864. Mr Howard's biography is full, comprehensive and factual, based on family letters and documents, many of them incorporated in his text. Chronology. Bibliography. Index." Book rev. digest

"While the important thing, of course, is that he has made possible for the first time a full understanding of this lovable and pathetic personality who created the music that even yet lies closest to the heart of the American people, he has also made no small contribution to the social history of the country before and during the Civil war." Christian century

A much briefer account is H. V. Milligan's "Stephen Collins Foster; a biography of America's folk-song composer" (1920 Schirmer $2.50) The information has been carefully authenticated and the book gives an interesting picture of American pioneer life

Reprint of a book first published in 1916 and formerly carried by Holt

The first half gives a brief sketch of his life. The second half of the book discusses his technique. A list of his works and a bibliography is included

"M. Rolland's view of Händel has been largely anticipated by the excellent English biography of Mr R. A. Streatfeild (1909 Methuen 10s 6d), to which M. Rolland acknowledges his indebtedness at many points. In only one department of Händel's work, and that a comparatively small one—his music for instruments without voices—is M. Rolland's study at all closer and more detailed." Times (London) lit. sup.

Herbert, Victor

Kaye, Joseph. Victor Herbert; the biography of America's greatest composer of romantic music. 1931 Watt, G. Howard $3 780.92

32-4917

"Vivaciously and with a wealth of anecdote Mr. Kaye gives us the story of this extraordinary life, and at the same time he evokes a period. While it is thoroughly sympathetic and even enthusiastic in its attitude toward the qualities that made Herbert a great figure, it does not gloss over what would usually be regarded as foibles." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Leschetizky, Theodor

Newcomb, Ethel. Leschetizky as I knew him. 1921 Appleton o.p. 1933 780.92

21-19850

"Charmingly reminiscent account of the personal life of the great piano teacher, written by one of his pupils. While not a biography in the sense of the chronological completeness, the book adds much to our understanding of Leschetizky's generous and spiritual nature, the quality of his great gift, and his untiring sympathy and helpfulness toward his pupils." Wis. bul.

Lind, Jennie

31-28224

"A penetrating, satisfactory study of the 'Swedish nightingale' as artist and woman. With religion and love of home and children dominating her art, her biographer shows how easy it was for her to abandon her career at its height." Pittsburgh

"The author does his task responsibly, and is the more to be commended because he does not pretend to have found any magic key to a true spiritual interpretation. He also discusses stage careers in general . . . The wide variety of his references is also a point of merit, since it helps to vitalize the picture of Jenny Lind in relation to her age." Springfield Republican

Liszt, Franz

‡ Huneker, J. G. Franz Liszt. 1911 Scribner $2.50 780.92

11-26220

"Certain aspects of Liszt's life and art are studied without strict adherence to chronological sequence. The result, though it falls short of the author's original plan for an exhaustive biography, is admirable and the book gives a vivid impression of this many-sided musical genius, his career and the adulation which he received." Pittsburgh

Pourtalès, Guy de, comte. Franz Liszt (L'homme d'amour); tr. from the French by E. S. Brooks. 1926 Holt $2.50; Butterworth, T. 10s 6d 780.92

26-10959

"This glamorous and emotional record of the famed composer's life will engross musicians, although they may still prefer Huneker's cooler, less biased analysis of Liszt's art and character. As a poignant study of a great-hearted man it will equally charm unmusical readers to whom the name of Liszt means only the pianistic thunder-and-lightning of the Hungarian rhapsodies." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Arthur Hervey's "Franz Liszt and his music" (1911 Lane 4s 6d) is an enthusiastic brief biography devoted mainly to an analysis of his works. It contains a bibliography of his chief compositions and works about him

Mozart, Wolfgang Amadeus

* Davenport, Mrs Marcia. Mozart. 1932 Scribner $3.50; Heinemann 12s 6d 780.92

32-6997

"Marcia Davenport concludes the foreword to her life of Mozart with the statement that she has written 'neither a romance nor a textbook.' In this she is right. Hers is a carefully 'documented' account of one of the most extraordinary and most persistently misrepresented personalities of genius; she has accomplished her difficult and delicate task without the obligatory array of footnotes, and without allowing her keen and sympathetic imagination to get out of hand. It is the 'new biography' applied to a subject eminently calling for just such a treatment." Sat. rev. of lit.

Musorgskiĭ, Modest Petrovich

Riesemann, Oskar von. Moussorgsky; tr. from the German by Paul England. 1929 Knopf $3.75 780.92

29-1924

"This study by a competent German critic, the first adequate life of the composer of 'Boris Godounov' to appear in English, while emphasizing the biographical element, reviews all the great Russian's compositions. A chapter is given to his comparatively little known songs and another to the history of Moussorgsky's works after his death, especially the revision and orchestration of his compositions by Rimsky-Korsakov." Book rev. digest

"This very competent volume will be indispensable to all those who have felt the magic of Moussorgsky's genius and wish to penetrate a little further into the recesses of his music. To others the book will prove a fascinating introduction to one of the giants of musical history." N.Y. Times

M. D. Calvocoressi's "Musorgsky; the Russian musical nationalist" (1919 Routledge 4s 6d) is a brief life translated from the Russian with a critical study of his compositions

"Both before and since the death of Giacomo Puccini several biographies of him had been written. Now, ten years after his death, Richard Specht, a German with experience and competence in the writing of the lives of musicians, puts forth this book of mingled biography and criticism. . . It is candid and open-minded; thoroughly sympathetic and appreciative of the personal and national characteristics of Puccini's art. . . It is written with a warm appreciation, though it is by no means a work of blind partisanship, and will deeply interest the many who have Puccini's operas near their hearts." N.Y. Times

Purcell, Henry

Dupré, Henri. Purcell; tr. from the French by C. A. Phillips and Agnes Bedford. 1928 Knopf $2.50 780.92

28-28521

A critical biography by a Frenchman of an English musical composer whose work is one of the chief treasures of English music. The opening chapter is an interesting account of the music of the Restoration age, as background for the study of Purcell's works

"We are glad that a Frenchman wrote this book, for he has brought to his difficult and complex task the incomparable Gallic faculty for clarity, concision and sensibility combined with logic. The volume is short . . . and its contents may be easily appreciated and absorbed." Bookman

Publisher announces a new edition in preparation, 1934

"A welcome and important addition to the relatively small list of musical autobiographies in English. It is invaluable to the student and the specialist. . . . As for the non-specializing music-lover, the lay reader, he will find much to engross him in Rimsky's uncommonly frank and veracious narrative. Through its pages walk Tchaikovsky, and Borodin, Cui and Balakireff, and Moussorgsky, Rubinstein, Glazunoff, Ippolitoff-Ivanoff—even the younger Chaliapin." N.Y. Tribune

Schönberg, Arnold

Wellesz, Egon. Arnold Schönberg; tr. by W. H. Kerridge. (Dent's international lib. of books on music) 1925 Dutton $2.25; Dent 6s 780.92

25-27478

A study of the works of Schönberg, including some biography, based on an earlier work of the author published in 1921

"An interpretation of the great Viennese innovator by one of his pupils, which should contribute to making his music better known." Chicago

Schubert, Franz Peter

* Bie, Oskar. Schubert, the man; tr. by J. S. Untermeyer. 1928 Dodd $3 780.92

28-29516

"This biography, one of the fruits of the Schubert centennial in America, is both a sketch of his life and a study of his musical works." Book rev. digest

"The author's biographical method is somewhat inconsecutive and ejaculatory; he modestly disclaims his orginality. Students of music will find his critical chapters of decided value, and the choice of this work as the official biography of the Schubert centennial is justified on that score." Dial

5-34686

An interesting and useful volume of 280 pages on this composer

Bibliography, p229-238

W. N. Flower's "Franz Schubert" (1928 Stokes $5; Cassell 15s), on the musician and his circle, contains much new material from diaries and letters

Schumann, Robert Alexander

Basch, Victor. Schumann, a life of suffering; tr. from the French by C. A. Phillips. 1931 Knopf $3.50 780.92

31-28019

"M. Basch does not try to retrace the inner developments of Schumann, nor is he greatly concerned with the composer's works. He merely recounts the outward circumstances in the life of one who, to the author, was the 'interpreter of moral suffering and palpitating emotion, of aspirations towards an Infinite full of mystery, and descents into unfathomable abysses.' The style remains French, even in the English translation." Sat. rev. of lit.

"In spite of excess of emphasis Mr. Basch has written an engrossing book. It is straight biography, without sacrifice to hysteria, novelization or arbitrary selection. The story is told with vivacity and color and with a due attention to suspense." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Bedford, Herbert. Robert Schumann, his life and work. (Masters of music) 1925 Routledge 3s 6d 780.92

Formerly carried also by Harper

"Beginning with a sketch of the romantic movement of which Schumann was one of the chief exponents the author follows the development of Schumann's life and genius, with a chapter on his methods and technique and a list of his works." Book rev. digest

"Covers more or less familiar ground adequately without making pretensions to either literary or aesthetic subtleties." Times [London] lit. sup.

Niecks, Frederick. Robert Schumann; ed. by Christina Niecks. (Dent's international lib. of books on music) [1925] Dutton $3.65; Dent 10s 6d 780.92

25-27459

"A book, which, if not so full as originally planned, nevertheless covers the whole of the biographical field, and covers it more fully, and more generally interestingly, than any other work in our language that we know. Professor Niecks gives us abundant details of every period of Schumann's career; but had be been able personally to complete the book, he would no doubt have modified the considerable discursiveness and disproportion, which at times rather worry the reader—who cannot, however, fail to realize all through a fine and sensitive enthusiasm for Schumann and everything about him, and none the less fine and sensitive for being always soberly expressed." Times [London] lit. sup.

Schumann's "Letters; selected and ed. by Dr Karl Storck" (1907 Murray, J. 10s 6d) are readable and interesting especially to students of music

Schumann-Heink, Mme Ernestine

Lawton, Mary. Schumann-Heink, the last of the Titans. 1928 Macmillan $2.50 780.92

28-29518

"In setting down Madame Schumann-Heink's reminiscences of her musical career with its early struggles and later successes, the editor has captured not only the great singer's informality and idioms in conversation but also the charm of her buoyant, warm and generous personality. Portraits in halftone." N.Y. libraries

Sibelius, Jean

Gray, Cecil. Sibelius. 1931 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 780.92

32-11440

"An excellent presentation of the composer, the quality of his genius, and his work. The author contends that even the musical world is not conversant with his most characteristic compositions." Pittsburgh

Complete list of works: p206-24

Skrîabin, Aleksandr Nikolaevich

Hull, A. E. Great Russian tone-poet Scriabin. (Lib. of music and musicians) 1916 Routledge 4s 6d 780.92

17-11131

Formerly carried also by Dutton

"Interesting and helpful analyses of his works, illustrated by thematic notation, disquisition on his musical theories and an account of the man himself. The author contends that 'Scriabin has brought about a complete renewal of the hearing faculty which will fertilize not only one field, but the whole of the musical art.'" Bkl.

A. J. Swan's "Scriabin" (1923 Lane 6s) is another good book which contains a list of the published works of Scriabin

Sousa, John Philip

Marching along; recollections of men, women and music. 1928 Hale $3 780.92

1 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 28-12968

"Characterized by gay humor and naive frankness, this stirring autobiography of 'the March King,' John Philip Sousa, makes pleasant reading. He tells of his boyhood in Washington, his early musical career, his appointment during President Hayes' administration to the leadership of the U. S. Marine Band, and his work as composer. There are some delightful glimpses of his famous friends. A list of Sousa's musical compositions is appended. Numerous illustrations." Cleveland

Ewen, David. Wine, women & waltz; a romantic biography of Johann Strauss, son and father. 1933 Sears $3 780.92

33-35398

"The two Strausses lived almost constantly in a glare of popularity, and at times in the frenzy of musical composition. The writer touches on all of this with a light hand, but gives it a dramatic appeal which more serious biographies might lack. The book, whether or not studiously accurate, has all the romance of the Strauss waltzes and is entertaining." Springfield Republican

Ewen, David. Wine, women & waltz. See entry under Strauss, Johann, 1804-1849, class 780.92

Strauss, Richard

Newman, Ernest. Richard Strauss. (Living masters of music) 1908 Lane 3s 6d 780.92

8-30389

"One of the best discussions of the career and work of Strauss that this much-discussed musician has evoked." N.Y. Times

H. T. Finck's "Richard Strauss, the man and his works" (1917 Little o.p. 1933) gives an interesting sketch of Strauss' life but devotes the larger part of the book to discussions of his works

Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour

Sullivan, Herbert, and Flower, W. N. Sir Arthur Sullivan; his life, letters & diaries; with an introduction by Arnold Bennett. 1927 Cassell 21s 780.92

1 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 27-24103

Formerly carried also by Doran

Based on the principal Sullivan archives, including a private diary and much correspondence, which are in the possession of Herbert Sullivan, the composer's nephew. There is a list of the composer's works, as complete as possible, and a bibliography

"A wealth of incident and psychological analysis illuminates the events of Sullivan's cloister days, his friendships with Carlyle, Tennyson and other great men of the day; and how he came finally to break with Gilbert, his lifelong partner-librettist." Providence

Tchaikovski, Peter Ilyich

Tchaikovski, Modeste. Life and letters of Peter Ilich Tchaikovsky; ed. from the Russian by Rosa Newmarch. 1905 Dodd $6 780.92

5-40982

"Though appealing primarily to the musical reader, this huge volume is not only intensely interesting as the revelation of a remarkable personality, but its pages are charged with romantic interest of that strange quality peculiar to the works of the great Russian novelists. The central and governing episode of Tschaikovsky's life—his relations with the generous, eccentric widow who came to his rescue at the nadir of his fortunes and gave him a free life, relieved from the anxiety of the uncongenial drudging—is perhaps the most extraordinary incident in the entire annals of artistic patronage." Pittsburgh

Alphabetical index of Tchaikovski's works, p779-82

Thomas, Theodore

Russell, C. E. American orchestra and Theodore Thomas. 1927 Doubleday. Page o.p. 1933 780.92

1 Orchestra and orchestral music 27-25803

Awarded the Pulitzer prize in biography for 1927

"His book is so comprehensive, so widely ranging and presents so illuminating a study, albeit a wholly sympathetic one, of Theodore Thomas's personality, gifts, labors and achievements that those who are interested in the musical development of this country and the story of the orchestra will find it valuable, interesting and very suggestive." N.Y. Times

"Memoirs of Theodore Thomas" (1911 Moffat o.p. 1933) by Mrs R. F. Thomas, the widow of the conductor, is an earlier biography, rich in anecdotes, on which Mr Russell drew for some of his material

Verdi, Giuseppe

Bonavia, Ferruccio. Verdi. 1930 Oxford $3; 7s 6d 780.92

30-31881

"Mr. Bonavia, with the 'Copialettere' beside him, has set himself to display Verdi's character largely through his own comments on his several occupations. They refer to matters as wide apart as the production of his operas and the exercise of his horses. . . Mr. Bonavia, intense admirer of Verdi though he is, is by no means a lenient critic towards the faults of the earlier operas; but his honesty and his insight show us more of the stature of the man than any author writing in the English language has yet shown." Times (London) lit. sup.

Toye, Francis. Giuseppe Verdi; his life and works. 1931 Knopf $3.75; Heinemann 21s 780.92

31-22281

"Mr. Francis Toye, well known as a music critic . . . has done his task exceedingly well, and this book is likely to remain the standard work on Verdi in English for a long time." New statesman and Nation

"The author has brought to his book not only infinite patience in fruitful research, but the sort of affectionate veneration which is necessary to instil real life into any biographical study. The book is not a 'brilliant performance,' is not bedecked with purple patches calculated to hide a substratum of dulness, it is not colored by prejudice. It is an honest account of the life and works of one of the most honest artists that ever lived, a man to whom pose—personal or artistic—was impossible." Sat. rev. of lit.

Wagner, Richard

My life. 2v in 1 1911 Dodd $5 780.92

11-16280

"An exceedingly frank autobiography which covers Wagner's life to 1864 only, thus containing nothing concerning his last nineteen and most famous years." Pratt quarterly

Two collections of letters which supplement the autobiography are "Letters of Richard Wagner, selected and ed. by Wilhelm Altmann; tr. from the German by M. M. Bozman" (2v 1927 Dutton $7; Dent 21s) and "Richard Wagner to Mathilde Wesendonck"; translated by W. A. Ellis (1905 Scribner o.p. 1933) "The world is indebted to Mathilde Wesendonck for two great achievements—she inspired the composition of 'Tristan and Isolde' . . . This remarkable collection of letters . . . is another fruit of their relationship." Times [London] lit. sup.

Henderson, W. J. Richard Wagner; his life and his dramas. 2d ed rev 1923 Putnam $4; 12s 6d 780.92

"Emendations have been made where demanded by newly acquired facts or the conclusions of recent scholarship on such items, for example, as the connection of Saemund the Wise with the Eddas. The appendix dealing with Wagner's conception of the ballet has been rewritten because since the publication of the book the ballet itself has undergone a radical reformation." Preface to 2d edition

"The purpose of this book is to supply Wagner lovers with a single work which shall meet all their needs. The author has told the story of Wagner's life, explained his artistic aims, given the history of each of his great works." Preface

* Newman, Ernest. Wagner as man and artist. [2d ed] 1924 Knopf $5; Lane 12s 6d 780.92

24-30743

"In the ten years that have elapsed since the publication of the first edition of this work a number of new letters and other documents relating to Wagner have become available. The text of the book has therefore been not only expanded but drastically revised at various points." Preface to 2d edition

"The writing is clear and easy, and the literary touch sure." Saturday rev.

A scholarly biography by the same author. "Life of Richard Wagner, 1813-1848" (v 1 1933 Knopf $5; Cassell 25s) to be completed in 3 volumes, is in process. Well written and rich in new material

781 THEORY AND TECHNIQUE OF MUSIC

Two good books for serious students are: H. L. F. von Helmhotz's "On the sensations of tone as a physiological basis for the theory of music" translated by A. J. Ellis (4th ed 1913 Longmans $10; 30s) and F. W. Robinson's "Aural harmony" (2v 1918-1923 Schirmer ea $3) "Rhythm in music" by G. A. Wedge (1927 Schirmer $1.50) is a good practical textbook for students

Chadwick, George Whitefield

Harmony. rev ed 1922 Wood, B. F. $2.50 781

1 Harmony 22-19687

A standard text book first published 1897. Presupposes a rudimentary knowledge of intervals, scales and chords, and aims at giving the student a "working vocabulary of chords for the harmonizing of melodies in the order of their practical value and harmonic importance." In this edition new material has been added in the form of an appendix of 24 pages

Dickey, Frances M., and French, Eilene

Melody writing and ear training; a practical course in elementary theory. (Music students lib.) 1926 Ditson $1.50; Boosey 781

1 Melody 2 Ear training 26-15197

Intended to serve as an approach to the study of harmony through the hearing and analysis of musical illustrations. The appeal is to the ear first, and then expression through the voice, keyboard and writing follows. The authors were, 1926, instructors in music in the University of Washington

Two other good books on the subject are Percy Goetschius's "Exercises in melody-writing" (5th ed 1923 Schirmer $1.50) and R. F. Smith's "Elementary music theory" (1930 Ditson $1.50) The latter covers a year's work in the fundamentals of music for public schools

Foote, Arthur William, and Spalding, Walter Raymond

* Modern harmony in its theory and practice. rev ed 1924 Schmidt $1.50 781

1 Harmony 25-1019

A widely used text book, first published in 1905

"A model of clearness and utility." Nation

Gehrkens, Karl Wilson

Revised music notation and terminology. 1930 Laidlaw $1.60 781

1 Musical notation 2 Music—Dictionaries 14-2829

Practically the same as the 1914 edition entitled "Music notation and terminology." Libraries that have the old edition will not need to buy this

In this book "one may see how the symbols of music developed and were applied, and how they may be read to increase the understanding, even of a layman, of written music. A quantity of information that appeals to others than technical musicians." Educ. rev.

Goetschius, Percy

Material used in musical composition; a system of harmony. new ed 1913 Schirmer $2.50 781

1 Harmony 13-12285

"First issued in 1882, in Stuttgart. . . In completely remodeled form it was published by Mr Schirmer in America [in 1889]. In 1895 it was again partially revised. For the present edition it has been again thoroughly revised, rearranged and re-written." Preface

Intended for the more advanced student who has completed an elementary course in harmony. The method of harmony presented here is based upon the method of Dr Immanuel Faisst, who contributes a preface

Theory and practice of tone-relations. 1917 Schirmer $1.50 781

1 Harmony 0-2236

A completely rewritten and slightly enlarged version of a standard work first issued in 1892

"An elementary course of harmony with emphasis upon the element of melody." Subtitle

Another book for the beginner by the same author is "Exercises in elementary counterpoint" (1910 Schirmer $1.50)

Heacox, Arthur Edward

Harmony for ear, eye, and keyboard (first year). (Music students lib.) 1922 Ditson $1.50; Boosey 781

1 Harmony 2 Ear training (23-3060)

Ear-training outline in each lesson by Gladys Ferry Moore

"The aim of this little book is to provide, in lesson form, attractive material for the first year of harmony study in high school or college." Preface

Project lessons in orchestration. (Music students lib.) 1928 Ditson $1.50 781

1 Instrumentation and orchestration 2 Project method in teaching 28-24376

"The central idea of this book is to provide a series of interesting 'lesson-problems' in orchestration, arranged in groups according to the subject in hand, with each group leading to its own logical 'project' of the students choice." Preface

"The directions are simple and historical data and controversial matters have been avoided as far as possible." Bkl

Jaques-Dalcroze, Émile

1 Music—Study and teaching 2 Musical meter and rhythm 3 Gymnastics 4 Dancing [31-26060]

"A collection of articles on eurhythmics and its use in musical education and in the dramatic arts." Pittsburgh

The author's "Rhythm, music and education" (1921 Putnam $3.50) is a collection of essays dealing with his system of eurhythmics

The Jaques-Dalcroze method of eurhythmics: rhythmic movement. 2v 1920-21 Gray v1 pa $2.50, v2 pa $3.50 781

1 Musical meter and rhythm 2 Gymnastics 3 Dancing (22-9557)

Written for the use of pupils at the Institut Jaques-Dalcroze and elsewhere taking courses in eurhythmics, a system of coordinating music and bodily movement. Contains exercises with music

Kitson, Charles Herbert

Counterpoint for beginners. 1926 Oxford $1.50; 4s 6d 781

1 Counterpoint 33-27235

"The author, who is [1933] Professor of Music at the University of Dublin, presents his subject in a manner suited to the beginner. It is made especially clear through the use of copious notation examples. A valuable addition to the student's library, which should help the young composer to avoid many pitfalls." Etude

Sir J. F. Bridge's "Counterpoint" (Ditson $1.25; Novello) in the Music students library, is a valuable little primer which tho old is still useful

* Rudiments of music. 1927 Oxford 85c; 2s 6d 781

1 Music—Theory 33-35402

A brief but useful exposition of the elements of musical theory. The subjects dealt with are: pitch of sounds, clefs and staves; notes and rests, and their relative duration; modes; major and minor scales, keys; intervals, the chromatic and whole-tone scales; time and the grouping of notes, rests, and bars; phrasing; signs and abbreviations; ornaments; common terms in reference to harmony and counterpoint

Lange, Arthur

Arranging for the modern dance orchestra. 1926 Robbins music corp. $5 781

1 Instrumentation and orchestration 2 Jazz music 26-14085

"Aims to aid the ambitious orchestra player who has practical knowledge of musical science by giving him a little of the theory. The subject is fully and clearly discussed." Cleveland

Another recommended book is Frank Skinner's "Simplified methods for modern arranging" (1928 Bibo-Lang pa $1.50) a course in chord construction, simple harmonization, transposition, etc., applicable to arranging for a dance orchestra

Miller, Horace Alden

New harmonic devices; a treatise on modern harmonic problems. (Music students lib.) 1930 Ditson $2 781

1 Harmony 2 Tonality 31-1599

Music in text

"Intended as an aid for advanced students who may wish to acquire facility in writing in a modern style." Preface

Henry Cowell's "New musical resources" (1930 Knopf $2.50; Allen, G. 8s 6d) is a discussion of modernistic theories of tone combination, rhythm and chord formation

Parkhurst, Winthrop

Anatomy of music. 1930 Knopf $2.50 781

1 Music—Theory 2 Music—Manuals, text-books, etc. 30-7204

"The fundamentals of musical theory are clearly and effectively developed for the layman with no previous knowledge of music. The book is illustrated with many examples." Providence

Patterson, Frank

Practical instrumentation for school, popular, and symphony orchestras. 1923 Schirmer $1.50 781

1 Instrumentation and orchestration 26-11557

Originally printed in the Musical courier between January and June, 1923

Compares popular and serious instrumentation, and illustrates their relationship and differences by examples. Gives a great deal of time to orchestral line-arrangement as distinguished from orchestral color-arrangement. Only such details of instrumental technic as may frequently be found in printed arrangements are discussed

Prout, Ebenezer

Counterpoint, strict and free. 1899 Schuberth $3.75 781

1 Counterpoint

A standard textbook

Harmony; its theory and practice. [new ed] 1903 Boston music co. $3; Augener 7s 6d 781

1 Harmony [4-7720]

A notable book by an eminent English composer, first published in 1889

Two other books by this author which are equally useful and authoritative are: "Musical form" (1893 Schuberth $3.75) and "Fugue" (1891 Schuberth $3.75)

Richardson, Alfred Madeley

Helps to fugue writing. 1930 Gray $1.50 781

1 Fugue 2 Bach, Johann Sebastian. Das wohltemperirte clavier 30-7202

Deals only with the fugue form as illustrated in Bach's 'Das Wohltemperirte klavier.' "The present volume . . . takes the concrete examples contained in the greatest collection of Fugues ever written, and from them deduces rules and guides to lead the way to successful Fugue writing. It assumes that what Bach does must be right; what Bach does not do need not be insisted upon as essential." Foreword

Rimskiĭ-Korsakov, Nikolaĭ Andreevich

Practical manual of harmony; tr. by Joseph Achron. 1930 Fischer, Carl $2.50 781

1 Harmony 30-19072

"This book on the harmonization of melodies and the rules of modulation has long been considered in Europe a standard manual by an authority. The exercises are graded in the order of difficulty, and, as far as practicable, are arranged for self-instruction. This first English edition is a translation of the twelfth Russian edition which was revised and completed by Professors Joseph Withol and Maximilian Steinberg." Bkl.

Strube, Gustav

Theory and use of chords; a text-book of harmony. (Music students lib.) 1928 Ditson $1.75 781

1 Harmony 28-13833

A concise treatise on harmony intended for the use of conservatory pupils, but also possible for self-study. The author, believing that "harmony analyzed by the head and the eye, rather than by the heart and the ear is not a desirable artistic or musical aim," has employed examples of real musical value and has emphasized essential features rather than detailed theoretical explanation. Adapted from Preface

Where additional material is needed, a useful textbook will be found in the "Manual of harmonic technic based on the practice of J. S. Bach" by D. N. Tweedy (1928 Ditson $3)

Tapper, Thomas

First year harmony. augmented and rev ed 1930 Schmidt $1.25 781

1 Harmony 30-9341

First edition 1908. Now enlarged by 20 pages

"A series of lessons in tone by which students and amateurs may learn the more usual harmonic and melodic progressions, and the laws underlying them." Preface

A good text book, which is continued by his "Second year harmony" (rev and enl ed 1932 Schmidt $1.25)

Other practical manuals by the same author are: "First year counterpoint" (1913 Schmidt $1.25); "First year melody writing" (1911 Schmidt $1); "First year musical theory" (1912 Schmidt $1)

Wedge, George A.

Ear-training and sight-singing applied to elementary musical theory. 1921 Schirmer $2.50 781

1 Music—Manuals, text-books, etc. 2 Ear training 3 Sight singing 22-1954

"A practical and coördinated course for schools and private study." Subtitle

Wedge, George A.—Continued

"The purpose of this book is to present the elements of music in a direct and concise manner. . .Each step is presented in three ways: First, exercises to be written; second, exercises for dictation to be used in ear-training; third, exercises for sight-reading." Preface

Keyboard harmony. 1924 Schirmer $2.50 781

1 Harmony 24-29404

"A practical application of music theory, including the study of melody harmonization, broken chords and arpeggios, modulation and improvisation." Subtitle

Lessons to be used for classroom work with pupils of piano in the study of harmony and its application

Williams, Charles Francis Abdy

Story of notation. (Music story ser.) 1903 Scribner $2.25; Reeves 781

1 Musical notation 3-31469

"Mr Williams takes up, one by one, the various systems which, from the fifth century B.C., if not earlier, have contributed something to our present notation. The details were. . .inaccessible, most of them, to English readers; and he has been remarkably successful in explaining them, in spite of the appalling intricacy of some of the number." Nation

781.63 Conducting

Allen, J. Worth

Orchestra director's manual. 1927 Fischer, Carl $1 781.63

1 Conducting (Music) 2 Orchestra and orchestral music 28-16505

"Describes the possibilities and limitations of the instruments of an orchestra. Outlines the organization of a school, church or community orchestra and offers practical suggestions useful to the leader with little experience." Bkl

Essentials in conducting. (Music students lib.) 1919 Ditson $1.75; Boosey 781.63

1 Conducting (Music) 19-9028

"Intended especially for amateurs. After discussing the general principles, special problems are considered, such as conducting a community chorus, an orchestra, a church choir, etc." Pittsburgh

Two other good inexpensive books on conducting are: Will Earhart's "Eloquent baton" (1931 Witmark $1.50) a practical manual illustrated with diagrams; and A. F. Stoessel's "Technic of the baton" ([new ed] 1928 Fischer, Carl $1.50)

782 Dramatic music

In libraries where there is a musical interest M. S. Mackinlay's "Origin & development of light opera" (1927 Hutchinson 21s) will be useful

Annesley, Charles, pseud.

1 Opera—Stories, plots, etc. 27-14231

Gives the plots of about 275 operas, with some critical and biographical remarks and dates. The 1927 edition brings the material up to date to include even such recent works as "Turandot," "La cena del beffe" and "The king's henchman." The book is printed on thin paper and there are no illustrations

Beach, Frank Ambrose

Preparation and presentation of the operetta. 1930 Ditson $2 782

1 Operetta 2 Amateur theatricals 3 College and school drama 30-14505

"A very practical little book of information for the director of an operetta and for all those who may be taking part therein. Mr. Beach, who has had many years of experience as an amateur producer, takes up the plan of organization, the choice of an operetta, the selection and training of the chorus, dramatic action, scenery, properties, costumes and stage settings." Godwin, A. H.

Gilbert & Sullivan. 1926 Dutton $2.10; Dent 6s 782

1 Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck 2 Sullivan, Sir Arthur Seymour 27-26250

"The author analyses the famous operatic partnership and appraises the gifts brought by each of the partners to this unusually felicitous collaboration. He gives the gist of the 13 operas composed by Gilbert and Sullivan, gives the history of the operas and explains the topical allusions sprinkled through them, and selects his own choice of the six best airs and the six best lyrics." Book rev. digest

"Mr Godwin has a lot to teach us, for he has most thoroughly analysed the dramatist, the musician, and their works, going from one to the other with constructive persistence." Spectator

Other good books on Gilbert and Sullivan and their operas are: S. J. A. Fitz-Gerald's "Story of the Savoy opera in Gilbert and Sullivan days" (Paul, S. 5s) a detailed account of the origin of the operas, and their productions, with lists of the original casts; "Gilbert, Sullivan and D'Oyly Carte; reminiscences of the Savoy and the Savoyard" by François Cellier and Cunningham Bridgeman (2d ed 1927 Pitman $6; 21s) personal reminiscences with interesting anecdotes; T. F. Dunhill's "Sullivan's comic operas, a critical appreciation" (1928 Oxford $3; Arnold, E. & co. 10s 6d) gives an estimate of the musical importance of the operas with an analysis of each; and Isaac Goldberg's "Story of Gilbert and Sullivan" (1928 Simon & Schuster o.p. 1933) a comprehensive American study

A. E. F. Dickinson's "Musical design of The ring" (1926 Oxford pa 50c) is an inexpensive handbook for listeners

Martens, Frederick Herman
Thousand and one nights of opera. 1926 Appleton-Century $3.50; 10s 6d 782
1 Opera—Stories, plots, etc. 26-4932
"Tells the plots and 'places' the music of some 1550 operas and ballets." Foreword
"Handbook of opera synopses which differs from previous compilations in two respects. It includes a much larger number of operas and it groups these by themes so that the reader can find not only the plot of some one particular opera, but also accounts of others dealing with the same story. Some of the outlines are very brief, as was perhaps inevitable in view of the large number included." I. G. Mudge in Library journal
J. W. McSpadden's "Opera synopses" (4th ed 1927 Crowell $2.50; Harrap 5s) is a handy volume with brief resumés of 152 opera plots. The new edition adds "Turandot," "King's henchman," and 6 Gilbert and Sullivan operas. E. B. Ordway's "Opera book" (rev and enl 1917 Burt $2) is an older book which gives summaries of 110 operas, act by act, and is a useful guide to the pronunciation of proper names. First edition published 1915, revised 1917

Contents: v 1 Richard Wagner; v2 Mozart to Thomas; v3 Verdi to Puccini
The author tells the story of each opera combined with a descriptive analysis of the music. He writes for the ordinary music-lover who has neither time nor opportunity nor aptitude to study scores and musical history and biography for himself. The "story" comprises not only the plot, but also something of its origin and the circumstances surrounding the composition and presentation of the opera. In spite of drawbacks, this book is a full and useful guide. Adapted from Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)
A set in four volumes, which includes a musical supplement of overtures arranged for the piano by Sir Landon Ronald not in the American edition, is published in England by Newnes at 55s the set

784 VOCAL MUSIC

Collections of songs with accompaniments but with no descriptive text are not included here. For a list of such collections carefully selected with the aid of cooperating libraries, see the "Song index" edited by M. E. Sears listed below. For the convenience of small libraries, 80 of the 281 collections indexed in it are starred for first purchase

A useful bibliography of American folk songs is "The folk music of the Western hemisphere; a list of references in the New York public library" compiled by Julius Mattfeld (1925 N.Y. public lib. o.p. 1933)

Libraries having a special interest in music will find use for Richard Capell's "Schubert's songs" (1929 Dutton $6; Benn 15s) a compendium of information on the sources and meaning of Schubert's songs

Brown, Irving Henry

Deep song; adventures with gypsy songs and singers in Andalusia and other lands. 1929 Harper $3.50 784

1 Gipsy music 2 Folk songs 3 Gipsy poetry 4 Gipsies 29-7609

"Irving Brown has followed the Romani patteran in many lands. He has learned the Romani language, and has listened to the gipsy song, welling up from the heart of the nomad. His book is an interpretation of singer and song, with at the close, a brief list of the greatest living gipsy singers, and translations of their songs. Illustrated in sepia from photographs." Book rev. digest

" 'Deep Song' tickles the springtime imagination. It is a personal book too, but far from the flashy journalism of the ordinary travel book. Aside from being a sparkling Gypsy odyssey, it is an important contribution to folk song literature . . . For poets, travelers, singers, philologists, folkloreists and so forth, 'Deep Song' will be abundantly useful." Survey

Browne, C. A.

1 National songs, American 31-10497

"This book telling the stories of such popular songs as Yankee Doodle, Star Spangled Banner, and Dixie, was published in 1919. To the present edition three new chapters have been added, covering Home sweet home, Old folks at home and America the beautiful. Other chapters have been revised. Useful for reference." Wis. bul.

For complete historical information on our principal patriotic songs, the most authoritative work is O. G. T. Sonneck's "Report on 'The Star-spangled banner,' 'Hail, Columbia,' 'America,' 'Yankee Doodle'" (1909 Supt. of doc. 85c)

Chaffin, Lucien Gates

Song-writing and song-making; a book of advice for the amateur composer. 1923 Schirmer $2 784

1 Folk songs 2 American ballads and songs 25-4180

Many libraries prefer to class this with folk-lore in 398

"Very little music is included in this valuable and interesting anthology. Dr Cox's notes of incidents connected with the gathering of the songs provide an added interest." Chicago

Densmore, Frances

* American Indians and their music. 1926 Womans press $2 784

1 Indians of North America—Music 2 Indians of North America—Soc. life & cust. 27-1524

"Because of the rarity of really authoritative books on the American Indian and his music, this work by Miss Densmore, a member of the Smithsonian institute staff, who has spent years among the Indians obtaining phonograph records of their songs and music, and studying their customs, is a valuable one. Besides treating the customs and ceremonies of these people thoroughly, the author gives the. . .music of eight Indian songs." Providence

Finger, Charles Joseph

1 Ballads 2 Ballads, American 3 Folk songs 27-22438

" 'Frontier ballads' is Mr Finger's own collection of favorite songs. He gives both the song and the circumstances under which he heard it. The collection includes cowboy songs, sea chanties and other ancient ballads. In each case, as much of the music is given as is necessary for the reader to pick up the refrain." Providence

Geller, James J.

* Famous songs and their stories. 1931 Macaulay $3 784

1 Songs, English 31-22278

"The song hits of four decades, beginning with the 70s, make up this collection. Both words and music are given, with a page or two of text telling the history of the song and something about the composer. Includes such old favorites as Silver threads among the gold, White wings, After the ball, and In the baggage coach ahead." Bkl.

"A fascinating book. It fascinates those who know all of the songs whose words, music and history are contained between the book's covers; and it will fascinate those who know only a few of these remembered songs . . . Mr. Geller has done a remarkable job of condensation, and the information he gives about each song is accurate." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Two very useful books dealing with the stories of songs, both out of print, 1933, are S. J. A. Fitz-Gerald's "Stories of famous songs" (1901 Lippincott) and Gustav Kobbé's "Famous American songs" (1906 Crowell)

Krehbiel, Henry Edward

Afro-American folksongs; a study in racial and national music. 1914 Schirmer $2 784

1 Negro songs 14-1130

A scholarly study with many illustrative examples of the songs

"It would seem that this book, while it is the first competent treatment of the subject from the point of view of the folklorist, as well as of the thorough musician, would also remain the final and authoritative treatment of it." N.Y. Times

More special in interest is Mrs Natalie Curtis Burlin's "Songs and tales from the dark continent; recorded from the singing and sayings of C. Kamba Simango and Madikane Cele" (1930 Schirmer $4) "On the trail of negro folksongs" by Dorothy Scarborough and O. L. Gulledge (1925 Harvard univ. press $3.50) is an extensive collection of negro folk songs arranged by groups such as dance songs, ballads, lullabies, and work songs

Marks, Edward Bennet

They all sang, from Tony Pastor to Rudy Vallee. 1934 Viking press $3.50 784

1 Songs 2 Vaudeville 34-4697

"A prominent music publisher . . . describes how he put his songs across from the days when he 'plugged' them by personal persuasion in the saloons and beer halls of the nineties to the time when the war, the phonograph, and the radio created new, urgent problems for the music trade. His book is lavish with wistful reminiscences of the old minstrel shows. . . The book is badly written, jumbled, scrappy, but the material is so enthralling that it carries its own weight and Mr. Marks' gusto is unfailing. Specialists in New York, the nineties, and popular music will welcome it with cheers, and almost anyone else ought to find it grand reading. [Illustrated]" Forum

Odum, Howard Washington, and Johnson, Guy Benton

Negro and his songs; a study of typical negro songs in the South. 1925 Univ. of N.C. press $3; Oxford 13s 6d 784

1 Negro songs 25-13744

"This volume offers a fine study of the race, for the negro has set to music every racial crisis, and embodied his history and progress in song." Chicago

"More than most folksongs, the improvisations of the Negro are founded on the melodies and harmonies of which they are but an accompaniment, an accompaniment which, taken by itself, does small justice to the talents of the colored people who have made them up. Mr Odum and Mr Johnson have collected the whole or scraps of hundreds of songs, some old, some new; religious songs, 'social' songs, work songs." New republic

Another volume by the same authors is "Negro workaday songs" (1926 Univ. of N.C. press $3; Oxford 10s 6d). In both collections the approach is from the sociological viewpoint

Sandburg, Carl

1 American ballads and songs 2 Ballads, American 3 Folk-songs 27-2029

Words and airs of a large number of American popular songs from 1755 to the present

"The accompanying text of Dr. Spaeth is informative and jolly. He includes directions for the singer and he cites the best practices of such well-informed interpreters as Franklin P. Adams. His footnotes explain obscure references and sometimes serve as vehicles for his own merriment, which occaionally runs close to cruelty. There are illustrations derived from old song covers and from illustrated slides, and the whole affair is something that will provide a good time for all." St Louis

The author's "Weep some more, my lady" (1927 Doubleday, Doran $4) and "They still sing of love" (1929 Liveright $2.50) are two other collections of the same sort

* Caruso's method of voice production. 1922 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d 784.9

1 Singing and voice culture 2 Caruso, Enrico 22-9552

"That Caruso's marvelous singing was due less to the perfection of his vocal organs than to his qualifications for the natural placement of his voice is the author's contention and point of departure. Another contention is that the art of good singing is at present fast deteriorating. The aim of the book is, accordingly, to lay down the new scientific principles of the mechanism of voice production with suggestions for a thorough reconstruction of voice culture. The author. . .was Caruso's medical as well as vocal adviser. Among the illustrations are many anatomical plates both in color and in black and white and X-ray photographs showing the position of the organs in vowel production, also facsimile letters, by Caruso and others, endorsing the author's methods. A set of vocal exercises is given." Book rev. digest

1 Voice 2 Sound 3 Singing and voice culture 4 Music—Study and teaching 32-30377

"The first section is an explanation of acoustic principles on which the laws of singing technique are based. This is followed by physiology of the vocal organs, vocal methods, suggestions for voice training, and several chapters on musical interpretation. Will be used by experienced teachers rather than by students." Bkl.

"Voice, its production and reproduction" by Douglas Stanley and J. P. Maxfield (1933 Pitman $2.50; 10s 6d) is a more technical treatment linking recent advances in the knowledge of acoustics to voice training and reproduction. It is not as full as "Science of voice" on the anatomical and musical sides of the subject

Voorhees, Irving Wilson

Hygiene of the voice. 1923 Macmillan $2.50; 12s 6d 784.9

1 Voice 2 Singing and voice culture 23-12422

Written by a well-known voice physician, who has contributed articles on the subject to many musical and medical journals

"Part 1 is for the general reader, teacher or pupil, who is not trained medically. . .Part 2 is more difficult for the general reader, and is intended to serve physicians, or those with some knowledge of anatomy, physiology, pathology, etc." Foreword

Re-written versions of radio talks by the musical critic of the New York Times which accompanied the broadcasts of the Sunday afternoon concerts of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra during the season of 1930-1931

"Edited and markedly improved, these make up a book which fills a very useful niche. Succinct and well realized descriptions of mostly familiar musical works are written in lucid and readable English, entirely free from pedantries or verbal affectations and containing no statements designed to shock the reader into an awed sense of the writer's profound erudition. They are, rather, meant to stimulate popular interest in the composers and the subject matter of the works with which they deal." Outlook

Goepp, Philip Henry

Symphonies and their meaning; [1st]-3d ser. 3v 1898-1913 Lippincott ea $3; ea 12s 6d 785

1 Symphony

After a chapter on the development of the symphony, the first series presents detailed critical analyses of symphonies of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn and Brahms

The second series continues with other symphonies of Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann, Mendelssohn and Brahms, and symphonies of Raff, Liszt, Tschaikowsky, Strauss, Berlioz, Gade, Goetz, Gilchrist and Goldmark

The third series treats of modern symphonies, by Berlioz, Liszt, Saint-Saëns, César Franck, D'Indy, Tschaikowsky, Balakirew, Rimsky-Korsackow, Rachmaninow, Sibelius, Smetana, Dvořák, Bruckner, Wolff, Mahler, Strauss, Sgambati, Martucci, Elgar, Henry Hadley, Gustav Strube, Chadwick and Loeffler. There is also a chapter on the symphony during the 19th century

The treatment is not technical, but some knowledge of music is presupposed

Felix Weingartner's "Symphony since Beethoven; tr. by M. B. Dutton" (1904 Ditson $2) is a good very brief essay on the chief works of Haydn, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Brahms, Bruckner, Tschaikowsky, Berlioz, Liszt, Strauss, Mahler and others which compares them with Beethoven

Well indexed

Gulick, Luther Halsey
Philosophy of play. 1920 Scribner $1.60 790
1 Play 20-4701
"In making the study of play his life work the author has come to the conclusion that it affords the best and most profitable way of studying humankind itself; that the individual reveals himself more completely in play than in any other way; that play has a greater shaping power over the character and nature of man than any other activity; and that a people also most truly reveals itself in the character of its pleasures." Book rev. digest
"With this book Dr Gulick has made a real contribution which will enrich all who read it. It should be in the hands not only of all who are interested in recreational activities, but of fathers, mothers and educators as well." Survey

This book contains more material on outdoor life and games than does the author's "Games and game leadership"

C. A. Graeffe and P. W. Kearney's "255 games to play" (1929 Clode $2) is a varied collection of indoor and outdoor games, stunts, and suggestions for parties

Staley, Seward Charle
* Games, contests and relays. 1924 Barnes, A. S. $2 790
1 Games 2 Sports 24-22959
"All the more important mass physical recreational activities requiring 'a low degree of organization,' are presented in this volume. The games are arranged for groups in chapters according to grade and special sections are devoted to relay races and combative contests, mass and individual. The result of research both here and abroad, and of actual experience in application." N.Y. state lib.

"A chapter on the pedagogy of games works out the ways of assigning and training leaders among the players, of training in, of stopping the play before it becomes boresome, and of a large assortment of considerations which have been found to make play produce the effects for which it is recommended." Educ. rev.

"Directions for productions, costumes, and make-up, with complete minstrel shows, including stage directions, jokes and miscellaneous material." Bkl.

H. P. Powell's "World's best book of minstrelsy" (1926 Penn $2) another useful book, contains more material, but the dialog is not quite so fresh

Paskman, Dailey, and Spaeth, Sigmund Gottfried
"Gentlemen, be seated!" a parade of the old-time minstrels. 1928 Doubleday, Doran $4 791.1

1 Negro minstrels

"There is a sketch of black face minstrelsy in America, many specimens of the minstrels' dialogue and jokes, the words and music of some of their songs, and a complete specimen minstrel show. The illuminating illustrations are from photographs, prints and drawings." Cleveland

"Although it is by no means a formal or a comprehensive historical account of the inception and progress of negro minstrelsy, much more of a picturesque nature may be gained from the pages of 'Gentlemen be seated' than if it were. Its very title is in no small degree a triumph." Boston Transcript

Wittke, Carl
Tambo and bones; a history of the American minstrel stage. 1930 Duke univ. press $2.50; Cambridge univ. press 11s 6d 791.1

1 Negro minstrels 31-2026

"Any reader who shares the author's affectionate memories of 'the burnt cork semicircle' will enjoy this little book. The last chapter gives brief biographies of famous minstrels." Pittsburgh

"In 'Tambo and Bones' we have a thorough piece of research and a comprehensive survey made in a field that has heretofore been rather inadequately worked. The subject of the book is worthy of the scholarly care that Mr. Wittke has devoted to it." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* Big cage. 1933 Appleton-Century $3.50; 15s 791.3

1 Animals—Training 2 Animals—Habits and behavior 3 Animals—Stories 4 Lions 5 Tigers 33-8117

"Clyde Beatty, one of the foremost American practitioners of the art of animal training, recounts his experiences and explains his technique in handling lions and tigers. Over fifty photographs are grouped at the end of the book, showing the author and his pupils in action." Book rev. digest

Cooper, Courtney Ryley
Lions 'n' tigers 'n' everything. 1924 Little $2 791.3

1 Circus 2 Animals—Stories 24-21690

"Care and training, ways and whims of menagerie animals entertainingly described for old and young by a circus man. Illustrated from photographs." N.Y. state lib.

Another popular and interesting account of circus life is the author's "Under the big top" (1923 Little $2). It is filled with anecdotes of circus people and the circus business as well as of the menagerie

Some of the most interesting material on circuses is to be found in biographies such as E. H. Bostock's "Menageries, circuses and theatres" (1928 Stokes o.p. 1933) Gil Robinson's "Old wagon show days" (1925 Brockwell pub. co. $2.50) George Sanger's "Seventy years a showman" (1926 Dutton $1; Dent 1s 6d) and in biographies of P. T. Barnum (class 92)

1 Circus 2 Animals—Training 31-33010

"The glamour of the circus world, affection for animals and liking for the performers have made the author a frequent and observant guest of traveling circuses, and he gives here a splendid picture of 20 typical days on the road. How the performers live, work and play, how the animals are trained, and all the details of setting up the tents and of departure after the evening show, are described with loving artistry. Excellent photographs by Hedda Walther." N.Y. libraries

Hacker, Fred A., and Eames, Prescott W.
* How to put on an amateur circus. 1923 Denison $1.75 791.3

For producing a burlesque circus. There are drawings and directions for constructing animals and paraphernalia in the simplest and most inexpensive way, as well as chapters on division of labor, make-up, parades, clowning, details of typical acts, advertising and finances, and programs

May, Earl Chapin
Circus from Rome to Ringling. 1932 Duffield $3 791.3

1 Circus 32-9230

"An ample, comprehensive volume, perhaps the first to give the complete story of the circus, as it has developed in this country from its European stem, with accuracy and sufficient detail. It is written in lively, entertaining style, as one would expect from the pen of a man who has held the job of interesting the public in circus attractions. It is crammed with anecdotes, and the circus slang in which the author frequently indulges is picturesque." N.Y. Times

791.5 Miniature theatres

Max von Boehn's "Dolls and puppets; tr. by Josephine Nicoll" (1932 McKay $7.50; Harrap 30s) is a comprehensive work giving the history of both dolls and puppets from prehistoric times. The 30 colored plates and the 463 illustrations are a valuable feature

Ackley, Mrs Edith Flack
Marionettes; easy to make! fun to use! 1929 Stokes $2.50 791.5

1 Puppet plays 29-18474

" 'Marionettes' is distinctive in that the puppets she describes are made of cloth. Mrs. Ackley has tucked paper patterns of the dolls in a pocket inside the book's back cover and gives many drawings and diagrams, also suggestions for marionette programs and five simple plays with good directions for giving performances. The author has used marionettes considerably in camp work, and the cloth variety has proved easy for girls to make and fun for both boys and girls to use." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Bufano, Remo
Be a puppet showman. 1933 Appleton-Century $2.50; 12s 6d 791.5

1 Puppet plays 33-8096

"After years of experience as a maker of marionettes and as a producer of puppet shows, the author has written this book for young readers, which explains the construction and working of both the marionettes and the theater in which to produce the plays. There is also an historical sketch of puppets in many lands. Diagrams and illustrations make the work easily understood by the amateur." Book rev. digest

Madge Anderson's "Heroes of the puppet stage" (1923 Harcourt $3) contains a more extended history of the development of puppet shows as well as giving instructions for making and working puppets. Another history of marionettes in all ages and countries is found in Mrs. H. H. Joseph's "Book of marionettes" (2d ed rev 1929 Viking press $3.75; Allen, G. 16s)

1 Sarg, Tony 2 Puppet plays 21-21629

Published in England under title: Marionettes and how to make them

"This little book tells about Mr Sarg's experiences with marionettes since he first experimented with them in his London studio. Text and illustrations by Mr Sarg himself, show how the puppets are made and manipulated and how the stage looks behind the scenes. A chapter is devoted to puppet play in history. The book, which is designed especially for children, gives complete instructions for putting on shows at home, for making and lighting the tiny stage and managing the scenery. Two fairy plays by Anne Stoddard, written especially for home-made marionettes are included." Book rev. digest

Mills, Mrs Winifred H., and Dunn, Mrs Louise M.

Marionettes, masks and shadows. 1927 Doubleday, Doran $3.50 791.5

1 Puppet plays 2 Masks (Plays) 3 Costume 4 Shadow pantomimes and plays 28-594

"Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Dunn, workers of wide experience, who have handled marionettes as an educational vehicle with great success in Cleveland, have given us a comprehensive book on marionette design and production, which is so explicit as to be both useful, and entertaining to the youthful mind. Infinited care has come into the making of this book. The photographs and the black and white drawings are charming." Theatre arts monthly

* The theatre, three thousand years of drama, acting and stagecraft. 1929 Longmans $5; 21s 792

29-22263

"Unique survey which gathers up all phases of the theater and carries them down through the ages, showing the changes that came with changing conditions of life. The author wrote the Roman chapter in Rome, that of the Renaissance in Florence and so on, and he feels that his 'chief original contributions as historian are a broadened view by virtue of direct contact with old theaters and local customs, and a sense of the essential oneness of stage history in all lands.' Illustrations and sketches in profusion. Bibliography, index." N.Y. libraries

Craig, Edward Gordon

On the art of the theatre. 1911 Heinemann 10s 6d 792

1 Theater 12-22064

Formerly carried also by Dodd

"This book will fascinate all who take seriously the art of the playhouse, for all such will recognize in it an idealist with startling ideas and a worker of practical experiences, who yet continually flashes forth paradoxes that make one's imagination go ballooning into the future. The author will not, or cannot, carry through his theories so as to show us how his views apply: he starts an idea, then is off for another, leaving the reader dazed and breathless, to catch up and try again. The style is that of the impressionist, intensely personal, intimate, colloquial." R. Burton in Bellman

"He would have us throw aside what we have been taught to look upon as the inevitable supports of the art, and then plunge us into a land of mists and shadows . . . His ardour and sincerity are undoubted, his ideas are interesting if puzzling, but it is only in his beautiful designs that he makes his intentions wholly clear and entirely avoids affectation." Athenaeum

Crawford, Mary Caroline

Romance of the American theatre. (new ed) 1925 Little $4.50 792

1 Theater—U.S. 25-24494

"New edition of book published in 1913. Over 100 pages added. Additions include careers of famous old theatrical managers, history of negro minstrelsy, and the development of the 'Yankee type.'" Wis. bul.

"Not a general history of the growth of the theatre. Various actors are studied, and the influences and tendencies which moulded the American stage are treated. Many amusing anecdotes, interesting extracts from contemporary sources, and portraits are included." St Louis

W. P. Eaton in "Actor's heritage" (1924 Little $4) has written interesting chapters from the early theatrical history of England and America, accurate in information but not chronological in sequence

Dramatic index for 1909-1932; ed by F. W. Faxon. 1910-33 Faxon ea $7.50 792

(10-11556)

"Issued separately, and also as part 2 of the 'Annual magazine subject index,' 1909-25. Contains the cumulation of the 'Dramatic index' published in the quarterly numbers of the 'Bulletin of bibliography.'

"Issues for 1912-16, 1919-25 have appendix, 'Dramatic books and plays (in English) published during 1912-16, 1919-25.'

"An annual subject index to all articles about the drama, the theater, actors and actresses, playwrights, librettists, managers, etc., to all synopses of plays, and to all stage and dramatic portraits, scenes from plays and other theatrical illustrations contained in about 200 English and American periodicals, and to texts of plays whether published in book or magazine form. . . . A very useful index, necessary in any library which makes much use of dramatic material. Kept to date by the quarterly indexes in the 'Bulletin of bibliography.'" Mudge

Art of theatre-going. 1927 Houghton $3; Benn 6s 792

1 Theater 27-20949

Published in England under the title: "Gentle art of theatre-going"

"It is Mr Drinkwater's strong belief in the theatre and his own experience of its actual working which give his book its value. The book is a single essay divided by many headings, all of them, except for a provocative digression on the cinema, dealing with the play, the playwright, the actor, the producer, the manager, the play-goer, the reader of the printed play, or, last and least, the critic. . .He ends with a summary in the form of a Credo." * Drama. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 1927 Holt $1.25, students ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d 792

1 Drama 2 Theater 27-3741

"This little book in the Home university library series is a brief study of the origins of dramatic art, of the respective parts played by dramatist, actor, producer and audience and of the development of the playhouse and stage scenery." Book rev. digest

"An excellent digest of obvious facts under convenient headings." B. Dobrée in Nation and Athenaeum

Flickinger, Roy Caston

Greek theater and its drama. 3d ed 1926 Univ. of Chicago press $5 792

1 Greek drama 2 Theater—Greece 26-19090

First published 1918. A section of corrections and additions is added to each new edition while the first 337 pages remain the same

"Professor Flickinger has a thorough grasp of his material. Sound scholarship and keen judgment permeate the whole book. The style is clear and direct. The book is a large and unique contribution to the study of the Greek drama and theater and will add distinction to American scholarship." Classical journal

Another scholarly work on the Greek theater is A. E. Haigh's "Attic theatre" (3d ed 1907 Oxford $4.75; 14s) a description of the stage and theater of the Athenians

Hornblow, Arthur

History of the theatre in America. 2v 1919 Lippincott $10; 42s 792

"A complete chronological narrative, including 190 illustrations. Author [was formerly] editor of the Theatre magazine." Brooklyn

"To tell the whole story in the compass of two volumes of about 350 pages each, Mr Hornblow has of course been forced to make his annals of the American theatre chronologically disproportionate. Its first chapters are practically complete, but as he progresses onward through the years the spread of the drama throughout the country compels him to record and discuss only its most significant features. His first volume carries the history almost to the year 1850, and all that has happened since must therefore be compressed into the pages of the second." Boston Transcript

Macgowan, Kenneth

* Footlights across America, towards a national theater. 1929 Harcourt $3.75 792

1 Theater—U. S. 2 Theater—Little theater movement 3 Theaters 4 Drama in education 29-28817

"An admirable survey of the Little theater movement in the United States. Offers a wealth of historical and statistical information about the various theater groups and their plays and is filled with suggestions and encouragement for beginners. For any library where there is active interest in drama." Wis. bul.

"The American stage" by O. S. Coad and E. Mims in the "Pageant of America" series v14 (listed in class 973) is a readable book on the development of dramatic art in America

Sayler, Oliver Martin

Our American theatre. 1923 Brentano's o.p. 1933 792

1 Theater—U.S. 23-18298

"Stimulating discussion of matters pertaining to the theater beginning with 1908. Considers dramatists and producers and the various producing organizations such as the Provincetown players, the Theater guild, etc., which have been active since that date." Pratt quarterly

Russian theatre. [2d ed] 1922 Brentano's o.p. 1933 792

1 Theater—Russia 22-23090

The first edition was published in 1920 under the title "Russian theatre under the revolution." Three chapters have been added to cover the progress of the Russian theatre up to 1922, including an account of Russian troupes in America

"The author combines enthusiasm with sobriety and tempered judgment. He gives us both direct picture and critical comment; the book is a piece of experience and a piece of history." Ludwig Lewisohn in Nation

Another book by the same author is "Inside the Moscow art theatre" (1925 Brentano's o.p. 1933) an attractive account of the organization, personnel and repertoire of this famous dramatic company

Seldes, Gilbert Vivian

Seven lively arts. 1924 Harper $4 792

1 Theater—U.S. 2 Moving pictures 3 Music—Hist. & crit. 4 American wit and humor 5 American wit and humor, Pictorial 6 Dancing 7 Journalism 8 Circus 24-9374

"Mr Seldes, former editor of the 'Dial,' has always been a disciple of the present age. Believing that what he terms the 'lively arts' are the true expressions of the American people, he discusses their virtues and potentialities. Such subjects as Charlie Chaplin, Al Jolson, Fannie Brice, jazz and its composers, the modern stage and cartoons of the day come in for his respect. He wants the people to acknowledge that which appeals to them and not assume a false air of intellectual superiority." Book rev. digest

Skinner, Richard Dana

Our changing theatre. 1931 Dial press $3 792

1 Drama—Hist. & crit. 2 American drama—Hist. & crit. 3 Theater—U. S. 31-34688

"Mr Skinner, who is dramatic editor of The Commonweal, surveys the Broadway plays of the last few years, judging them by standards which are not only high but distinctly his own. His interesting grouping of the plays he analyzes gives unity to his reviews." Book rev. digest

Stevens, Thomas Wood

The theatre from Athens to Broadway. 1932 Appleton-Century $2.50; 12s 6d 792

1 Theater—Hist. 32-1333

"In a very compact, but complete history of the theatre, Mr. Stevens discusses the relation of drama and the theatre and their influence on each other from the Greek to the present time. The closing chapters on outstanding contemporary producers, and the place of talking pictures in present day art are of particular interest." Wis. bul.

Two other reliable books on the history of the theater, both comprehensive in scope are: Hughes, Glenn. Story of the theatre; a short history of theatrical art from its beginnings to the present day. 1928 French $3; Benn 21s. It is not a history of the drama, but of the stage, its buildings, managers, actors, and traditions in Europe, America and the Orient Nicoll, Allardyce. Development of the theater; a study of theatrical art from the beginnings to the present day. 1927 Harcourt $10; Harrap 42s Somewhat less comprehensive than the Hughes, but the illustrations are more numerous and less familiar

‡ Shakespeare's theater. 1916 Macmillan $3; 15s 792

1 Shakespeare, William—Stage history 2 Theater—England 16-7215

"The author's aim has been to bring together in one volume all that is known about the theater in Shakespeare's time. The work contains about thirty illustrations and sixteen pages of bibliographical notes." Cleveland

"It seems to us that Professor Thorndike has given us the truest picture we have of the conditions under which Shakespeare and his fellows composed their plays, of the characteristics, of the histrionic art of the age and of the distinctive qualities and outlook of the audiences they addressed." Nation

Young, Stark

The theater. (Doran's modern readers' bookshelf) 1927 Doran o.p. 1933 792

1 Theater 27-20847

A statement of "the fundamentals behind each of the theatre's arts. . .It carries the reader from the playwright to the designer, the actor and even to the audience, and explains the function of each." Theatre arts monthly

"His approach is that of the learned esthete who believes he has found a formula for the perfect theatre." N.Y. Times

The author's "Theatre practice" (1926 Scribner $1.80) contains nine essays most of them selected from his "Flower in drama" (1923) and "Glamour" (1925)

792P PLAY PRODUCTION. THEATER PRACTICE

For the sake of convenience, books on theater practice and stage production for amateurs have been classed in a list separate from the theoretical and historical works on the theater, which are classed in 792. Some libraries may prefer to class some of this material elsewhere, as scene-painting in 741; amateur theatricals in 793. For books on stage costuming alone see class 391. For lists of plays see class 822 Bibl.

"Theatre; essays on the arts of the theatre" edited by E. J. R. Isaacs (1927 Little $4.50) is an attractive, well illustrated volume containing a collection of articles by such authorities as George Pierce Baker, Kenneth Macgowan, Stark Young, and others. The essays cover such subjects as actor, playwright, costume, architecture, etc.

Andrews, Harry Lee, and Weirick, Bruce

* Acting and play production; a manual for classes, dramatic clubs, and little theatres. 1925 Longmans $2.25; 10s 6d 792P

1 Amateur theatricals 2 Acting 25-4061

"Beginning with the technic of acting, the gesture, movement, and development of the voice, this 'working manual' goes on to the study of the rôle, to the choice, coaching and staging of the play. Contains exercises for practice, lists of plays, costumes, and other information of value to the amateur actor and director. Photographic illustrations." N.Y. state lib.

Baird, John Foster

* Make-up; a manual for the use of actors, amateur and professional. 1930 French $1.50 792P

1 Make-up, Theatrical 30-9221

"A practical book on the process of make-up, clearly described and illustrated with drawings. Particularly useful are the directions for character make-up for nationalities and for movie work. There is also a directory of manufacturers of materials." Ontario library review

Another practical guide, designed especially for amateur actors, is C. S. Parsons' "Guide to theatrical make-up" (1932 Pitman $1.50; 5s)

Bosworth, Halliam

Technique in dramatic art. 1926 Macmillan $2.60; 13s 792P

1 Acting 26-15004

"A delineation of the art of acting by means of its underlying principles and scientific laws. With technical instruction in the art of play production and public speaking." Subtitle

"The author of this valuable handbook has long been connected with the professional stage and offers first-hand information which will undoubtedly be much sought after by all who have anything to do with play acting or production." Boston Transcript

Browne, Van Dyke

Secrets of scene painting and stage effects. 1913 Dutton $1.85; Routledge 5s 792P

1 Theaters—Stage-setting and scenery A13-2580

A concise guide for amateurs. It gives suggestions for the design, construction and handling of stage scenery, and describes simple mechanisms for producing such important stage effects as hoof-beats, thunder, rain, snow, wind, and waves

Another guide for the beginner is André Smith's "The scenewright; the making of stage models and settings" (1926 Macmillan $2; 10s) containing directions for making both indoor and outdoor models and for constructing and painting the settings from such models and drawings. For the more experienced worker who has a practical knowledge of decorative painting, F. H. Atkinson's "Scene painting and bulletin art" (1927 Drake, F. J. $4) is valuable for the technical side of both scene and sign painting

Campbell, Wayne

* Amateur acting and play production. 1931 Macmillan $3.50; 18s 792P

1 Amateur theatricals 31-5331

"A comprehensive and practical handbook of stagecraft in all its phases. Included in the volume are five one-act plays." Ontario library review

"The author evidently knows his job thoroughly and has the gift of presenting advice and instruction in a fresh way. At the end of each chapter is a series of exercises of an unusual and surprisingly practical turn, many of which are very ingeniously adapted to the needs of the beginner or the aspirant who has had no training." Times (London) lit. sup

Chalmers, Helena

Art of make-up. 1930 Appleton-Century $2; 6s 792P

1 Make-up, Theatrical 2 Beauty, Personal 30-22971

First published 1925. In the 1930 edition minor changes have been made and an index has been added

"This handbook by the instructor in make-up at the American academy of dramatic art and at Columbia university describes make-up for the stage, the screen, and the street, for the blonde and the brunette, and for the man as well as the woman in the representation of several of the more familiar stage types from the English butler to the Japanese lady, and the haughty society dame to the American Indian and the hobo." Book rev. digest

"Miss Chalmers treats her material in the simplest and most useful, if not always the most creative, way, and her book should be at the right hand of every little theatre worker, as well as the beginner in the professional theater." Theatre arts monthly

Modern acting. 1930 Appleton-Century $2; 6s 792P

1 Acting 30-9779

"A handbook for the amateur whose ambition is a professional dramatic career. The author offers practical advice on things an untrained beginner should know, as well as on the physical requirements for acting, and gives directions for make-up, costume, etc. There is a chapter also on radio broadcasting." Book rev. digest

"This is a fair example of the sort of hand book on acting and stage manners which seems to be growing more and more popular. It contains much that is sound and useful, though the general point of view has its limitations." Times (London) lit. sup.

Cheney, Sheldon

Art theatre. rev and enl ed 1925 Knopf $1 792P

1 Theater—Little theater movement 25-24137

"What has been added in this enlarged edition, besides fifteen new illustrations, is, of course, chiefly the story of the Theater guild, the Actors' theater, and the later years of the Provincetown players and the Neighborhood playhouse." Preface

"Well-balanced, inspiring presentation of the ideals and definite artistic and business problems which must be met to make the little theater a real art theater with a future." N.Y. state lib.

Clark, Barrett Harper

* How to produce amateur plays; a practical manual. [new ed rev and enl] 1925 Little $2; Harrap 3s 6d 792P

1 Amateur theatricals 25-20432

First published in 1917. In 1922, a new edition brought the play lists up to date. Two years later, the book was rewritten for publication in England. The present edition is revised and rewritten from the English edition.

"Covers all questions which have to do with play production: how to choose the play, how to conduct rehearsals, how to set the stage and how to make the scenery. Illustrations elucidate the text." Pittsburgh

Collins, Lillian Foster

* Little theatre in school. 1930 Dodd $2.50 792P

1 Drama in education 2 Amateur theatricals 3 College and school drama 30-26893

"Written by a junior high school teacher in Cleveland, who has actually contrived, it would appear, to make the more or less regular production of plays an accepted part of the curriculum. Unfortunately her book doesn't tell how she did it! . . . Miss Collins has much practical advice regarding simple methods of production, the choice of plays and so on, including the actual creation of dramas by the group, through the employment of poems and stories studied in the English courses." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

W. L. Ward's "Creative dramatics for upper grades and junior high schools" (1930 Appleton-Century $2.25; 8s 6d) is another book which will be useful in school work

D'Amico, Victor E.

Theater art. (Books on the arts) 1931 Manual arts press $3.25; Batsford 20s 792P

1 Theaters 31-22423

"Dedicated to prospective stage designers, this book gives a brief history of the theatre, and a detailed, well illustrated discussion of stage technique—lighting, costume, color contrast, etc. One chapter on the use and construction of masks will be of interest to the art student and pageant producer . . . Very fully illustrated." Wis. bul.

Dean, Alexander

Little theatre organization and management for community, university and school, including a history of the amateur in drama. (Drama league library of the theatre arts) 1926 Appleton-Century $2.50; 8s 6d 792P

1 Theater—Little theater movement 26-23919

"A complete handbook on little theatre administration which explains in detail the organization of a little theater group, the necessary committees and the functions of each. The author is a leader of community drama production and associate professor of dramatic art and literature at Northwestern university." Book rev. digest

"English amateurs who read the book will find themselves overwhelmed by foreign detail, but there are many suggestions in it which may prove of value to those who make enough allowance for the differences between English and American conditions." Times (London) lit. sup.

Dolman, John

‡ Art of play production. 1928 Harper $2.75; 10s 6d 792P

1 Theater 2 Acting 3 Amateur theatricals 28-25878

"The amateur theater group will find here helpful suggestions concerning every step in play production from the points of view of director, cast and stage crew. There are a few illustrations, chiefly of stage settings, a bibliography and an index." Book rev. digest

"The present book is of a rather intimidating thoroughness, it is true, but it is intelligently planned, it is reasonably analytical in tone, and it avoids the more solemn pretensions of the majority of such handbooks. Better still, it approaches the subject of the production of plays from a psychological and aesthetic point of view." Times (London) lit. sup.

"A practical manual that sums up in brief compass the most important things drama groups should know for the task of producing plays in churches—not as entertainment but as a means of ministering to the souls of men through a great art." Foreword

Martha Candler's "Drama in religious service" (1922 Appleton-Century $3) is a practical and suggestive discussion of the possibilities of the drama in the church. Directions for producing and costuming, and photographs of actual productions add to its usefulness

Hume, Samuel James, and Foster, Lois Marjorie

Theater and school. 1932 French $3.50 792P

1 College and school drama 2 Drama in education 3 Amateur theatricals 4 Theaters—Stage setting and scenery 5 Expression 6 College and school drama—Bibl. 7 Theater—Bibl. 33-2207

"A compendium of theatre information as it applies to the special problem of school dramatics. It is clearly and succinctly written, comprehensive and detailed. Whether their subject is the right kind of spot-light, methods in acting, or ways and means of selling tickets, their text is filled with concrete and helpful ideas. . . Mr. Hume and Miss Foster have made one of the most usable books in the rapidly developing literature of educational dramatics. Both instructors and students in the field will find it worth their attention." Theatre arts monthly

Kniffin, Herbert Reynolds

Masks. (Books on the arts) 1931 Manual arts press $3; Batsford 18s 792P

1 Masks (for the face) 31-22773

"Mr. Kniffin here introduces the reader to the many interesting popular possibilities of mask making and presents the history and technical processes of making masks in a practical form for play producers, art students, and those who wish to learn this ancient art or acquire an adequate appreciation of it." School arts magazine

Copiously illustrated. Bibliography: p137

Krows, Arthur Edwin

Equipment for stage production. (American theatre manuals) 1928 Appleton-Century $2; 5s 792P

1 Theaters—Stage-setting and scenery 28-24506

"An authoritative, concise handbook of scene building in the theatre. The mechanics of platforms, trees, various 'effects,' are clearly set forth. An excellent guide for the worker in the Little Theatre as well as for professionals." Providence

The author's "Play production in America" (1916 Holt $3.50) is an older work, no longer up to date, which will still be found useful at times. It gives information about a play from its acceptance till its actual production including casting, staging, lighting, etc.

Lobingier, Mrs Elizabeth Erwin (Miller)

Dramatization in the church school; a training course for leaders. (University of Chicago publications in religious education) 1923 Univ. of Chicago press $1.25 792P

1 Drama in education 2 Religious education 23-5615

A series of 10 lessons for leaders in church schools, the outcome of actual experience in teaching such training courses to inexperienced workers. Many of the discussions are based on the assumption that members of the class are familiar with "Dramatization of Bible stories," mentioned below. The lessons cover the making of the dramatization, grouping, the use of color, costumes, and biblical material suitable for dramatization. Appendices contain the texts of three plays,—Half-Bagani, Baby Moses, and Isaac and Rebekah

"Dramatization of Bible stories; an experiment in the religious education of children" by the same author (1918 Univ. of Chicago press $1.25) has chapters on the organization of a church dramatic club, on stage settings, properties and costumes, but the greater part of the book is taken up with the texts of individual dramatizations

* Community drama; suggestions for a community-wide program of dramatic activities. 1926 Appleton-Century $2 792P

1 Community plays 26-15012

Based on a little pamphlet issued by the Playground association in 1921, but entirely worked over, with new material, some of it reprinted from Playground

"This book not only tells you what the minimum equipment of a small stage should be, but tells you what the best materials are, what they cost and exactly where to buy them . . .Besides instructions for equipping and lighting a small stage, one can get hints for pageants, festivals, religious plays and just parties. Sample programs are given for all sorts of occasions, such as May day, Mother's day and Hallowe'en, and the appendices offer classified bibliographies of plays, short and long, pantomimes, masques and pageants [p189-240]." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

C. J. De Goveia's "Community playhouse" (1923 Viking press $2) is another handbook for the little theater or the theater in the small town. Contains chapters on the play, acting, costumes, scenery, etc. Roy Mitchell's "Shakespeare for community players" (1919 Dutton $1.90; Dent 6s) gives selection of scenes from Shakespeare suitable for a community theater with directions for staging, costuming and presenting

Oliver Hinsdell's "Making the little theater pay" (1925 French $1.50) is an older book which will still be useful in libraries where it is to be found

Selden, Samuel, and Sellman, Hunton D.

* Stage scenery and lighting; a handbook for non-professionals. 1930 Crofts $4.50, text ed $3.75; Harrap 12s 6d 792P

1 Theaters—Stage-setting and scenery 2 Theaters—Lighting 3 Scene painting 30-24536

"Thorough and practical handbook prepared for college, school and community theaters. Includes chapters on the design, planning, construction, painting, assembling and shifting of scenery; the section devoted to lighting gives a brief review of electricity and light, a survey of standard lighting equipment and the use of light, shade and color, and lighting for interiors. Photographs, plans, sketches. Selected bibliography. List of dealers and manufacturers of stage equipment." N.Y. libraries

Samuel Selden's "Scenery and lighting for school and little theatre stages" (1928 Univ. of N.C. press pa 50c) one of the Extension bulletins from the University of North Carolina contains many interesting suggestions illustrated by diagrams, sketches and photographs

Shay, Frank

Practical theatre; a manual for little theatres, community players, amateur dramatic clubs and other independent producing groups. 1926 Appleton-Century $1.50; 5s 792P

1 Theater—Little theater movement 2 Community plays 26-11277

"Out of his experience in little theatre management Frank Shay has written this practical guide for little theatres, community players, amateur dramatic clubs and other independent producing groups. The book is confined entirely to the business side of the theatre—working organization, duties of officers, selection of plays and payment of royalties, management, financing and advertising." Book rev. digest

"The appendix furnishes a valuable list of books for production as well as a glossary of stage-craft not only invaluable to the inexperienced but likewise of inestimable help as a reminder for producers of experience. Altogether a book well worth owning." Literary rev.

Simonson, Lee

Stage is set. 1932 Harcourt $5 792P

1 Theater 2 Theaters—Stage-setting and scenery 32-29344

"The director of the Theatre Guild, who has designed the settings for some of its most important productions, analyzes the designer's relation to the theater of today and gives a picture from his own experience of the scene designer at work. He shows also how the designer has worked in the past. Illustrated with pictures of stage settings from the fifteenth century to today. Bibliography. Index." Book rev. digest

"Settings and costumes of the modern stage" by F. F. Kommissarzhevskĭĭ and Lee Simonson (1933 Studio $4.50, pa $3.50; 10s 6d, pa 7s 6d) is a book of 200 photographs and six color plates, illustrating recent developments in the arts of stage setting and costume. Valuable to those planning dramatic productions

Smith, Milton Myers

* Book of play production for little theaters, schools and colleges. 1926 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 792P

1 Theater 2 Amateur theatricals 26-22429

"This is a complete 'how-to-do-it' book on dramatics. Hardly a detail that would be of use to stagers of amateur dramatics is omitted. The book should be useful, therefore, both to those who know nothing of staging a play and to those who are in possession of well-equipped theatres. There is a large number of illustrations, and working diagrams, including costume plates in colors. The author, besides producing and directing plays himself, has taught hundreds of teachers and directors of dramatics at the summer school of Columbia university." Providence

Improvised stage. 1932 Pitman $1.50; 5s 792P

1 Amateur theatricals 2 Theaters—Stage setting and scenery 3 Costume 33-3386

"This is a practical and most charming guide for amateur performers of plays who have artistic ambitions and little cash. It specially aims at being of service to those about to venture on costume productions and shows how everything required for them on the stage, with the solitary exception of a sword blade, can be made. The chapters on lighting, colour, and the general effect of clothes are admirable. But so indeed is the whole of this slim, well got-up book, and its profuse illustrations that are as distinguished as useful." Saturday rev.

Stratton, Clarence

Producing in little theaters. 1921 Holt $3; Allen, G. 8s 6d 792P

1 Theater—Little theater movement 21-18688

"A model manual, sane and sensible, helpful and practical." Brander Matthews in N.Y. Times

"Both the organization and the mechanics of little theatre production are so different from either professional production, at the one end, or old-time amateur production, at the other, that a handbook especially designed for little theatres and elucidating their problems will find a ready welcome. Mr Stratton is equipped, by long and varied experience, to write just such a book." Theatre arts monthly

Wise, Claude Merton

Dramatics for school and community. 1923 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 792P

1 Theater—Little theater movement 2 Community plays 3 Drama—Bibl. 23-12864

"Approaches the subject entirely from the point of view of the art theater and little theater, and will be useful to the more ambitious amateur producers. Deals with the problems of directing, lighting, setting, costume, etc., and discusses briefly the little theater movement and the dramatic method of teaching. A very complete bibliography of plays, pageants and masques, school dramatics, general works and costume houses in the Middle west [p101-47]. Well illustrated." Bkl.

792.3 Pantomime

Aubert, Charles

Art of pantomine; tr. by Edith Sears. 1927 Holt $3.50; Allen, G. 15s 792.3

1 Pantomime 27-11089

"This French treatise on the language of action analyzes and illustrates with numerous diagrams the ways of expressing various emotions by means of attitude, gesture and facial expression." Book rev. digest

"Mr Aubert's discussion in the last half of the book of how to write, translate and produce pantomime is full of interesting and suggestive material." Theatre arts monthly

Pardoe, T. Earl

Pantomimes for stage and study. 1931 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 792.3

1 Pantomime 2 Pantomimes 31-15448

"A comprehensive text, including the history of pantomime, chapters on how to act and to write pantomimes, and descriptions of those suited to the individual and the group." Pittsburgh

"A book that will doubtless be useful to either the amateur or professional actor because of its coordination of the arts of pantomime and of acting, while for those interested in pantomime production, either publicly or for private entertainment, it will be of the greatest service." N.Y. Times

1 Games 27-21474

A compact and inexpensive book, compiled from material contributed by Y.M.C.A. physical directors, playground directors, etc. The new edition is much enlarged

A good collection, for use in connection with church organizations, is E. O. Harbin's "Phunology; a collection of tried and proved plans for play, fellowship, and profit" (rev ed 1923 Cokesbury press $1.50). It includes active games, get acquainted games, quiet games, tricks and stunts, and writing games and contests

Elsom, James Claude, and Trilling, Blanche Mathilde

* Social games and group dances. 2d ed rev and enl 1927 Lippincott $2.50; 10s 6d 793

1 Games 2 Dancing 27-18532

Part 1 was prepared by Dr Elsom, and parts 2 and 3 by Miss Trilling. Miss Trilling has made some slight changes in the new edition, and Dr Elsom has enlarged his section considerably

"Divided into three parts this describes social games, group dances and singing games and dances especially adapted to children. The first part covers mixer games, active games of tag, parlor games, games with pencil and paper and 'stunts.' There are sixteen dances described in the second part, and twelve in the last part. The explanations are simple, the illustrations are numerous, the music for the dances is given, and there is a classed bibliography of four pages." Wis. bul.

"Similar in purpose to 'Ice-breakers' by Edna Geister, but more comprehensive and fully illustrated. Half of this volume is devoted to group dances, while 'Ice-breakers' has only a few. The number of 'social mixers, is more nearly equal, but there is little duplication." N.Y. state lib.

1 Dancing 9-22239
A collection of 43 folk dances with music and directions. The dances were chosen from many different countries, and have been graded as they have been used successfully in the schools of New York city
"Second folk dance book" (1916 Barnes, A. S. $2.40) supplements the first book. It presents 32 dances from various countries arranged in order of difficulty

Dunlavy, Tressie M., and Boyd, Neva L.
Old square dances of America. 1925 H. T. FitzSimons co. pa 75c 793.3
1 Dancing 2 Quadrille (Dance) 26-26541
"The quadrilles which Miss Dunlavy has described in this little book were procured from callers in southern Iowa who were long familiar with the old square dances. Nothing has been added to, or taken from, each caller's contribution; it is greatly to be regretted, however, that the rhythm and characteristic inflection of the caller's voices cannot be transmitted." Foreword
Describes and gives the calls for 42 dances

Frost, Helen
Clog and character dances. 1924 Barnes, A. S. $2; Grafton & co. 793.3
1 Clog dancing 24-29405
Music, pictures and directions for 18 clog and character dances, in quality very like genuine folk dances
"Athletic dances and simple clogs" by Marjorie Hillas and Marian Knighton (1926 Barnes, A. S. $2) is especially designed for boys who want action. There are 14 dances of increasing difficulty, with music, some illustrations and definitions of terms

Tap, caper and clog, fifteen character dances. 1931 Barnes, A. S. $2 793.3
1 Dancing 2 Tap dancing 3 Clog dancing 31-10496
"These dances, described by the author as having educational approach and emphasis, range from elementary to advanced technique and will be popular in schools. Directions and music are given and some of the positions are illustrated with silhouettes." Bkl.
Majorie Hillas's "Tap dancing" (1930 Barnes, A. S. pa $1; Lib. press 4s 6d) is another desirable book describing fourteen routines of tap dancing, with suggestions of appropriate music

H'Doubler, Margaret Newell
The dance and its place in education. 1925 Harcourt $5 793.3
1 Dancing 25-4462
"Discusses the relation of the dance to general culture, and gives detailed, concrete instruction on the conducting of classes, costuming, music, and management of public performances. Illustrated from photographs and drawings. The author is [1933] professor of physical education in the University of Wisconsin." Brooklyn
"The dance; its place in art and life" by Troy Kinney, and Mrs M. W. Kinney (rev ed 1924 Stokes $7.50) is a well illustrated and informing history of dancing

Hofer, Mari Ruef

Outlines a systematic method for teaching social dancing. Based on the methods used by the authors in their teaching

L. H. Chalif, founder of the Chalif Russian normal school of dancing in New York city, has written "Chalif text book of dancing" (5v 1914-25 Chalif ea $3) a valuable series on the art and teaching of dancing. Book 1 gives instruction in fundamental positions and exercises; book 2, standard ball-room dancing and Port de Bras; book 3, Greek dancing; book 4, simple and beautiful dancing for all; book 5, toe dancing

Martin, John Joseph
Modern dance. 1933 Barnes, A. S. $1.50 793.3

1 Dancing 33-32897

The dance critic of the New York Times explains the significance and meaning of the modern forms of the dance, together with a short discussion of past movements. The relation of the dance to the other arts is also considered

"Mr. Martin's book is a brave first step, although making understanding and appreciation of an art easy for the beholder is never a very satisfactory project." Theatre arts monthly

Shafter, Mary Severance
(comp.) American Indian and other folk dances, for schools, pageants and playgrounds; music arranged by Josephine Condon. 1927 Barnes, A. S. $3 793.3

1 Dancing 2 Indians of North America—Dances 27-27854

"A new collection of folk dances with detailed instructions and music, useful for the teacher who desires novel formations, new rhythms, and something that is simple and adaptable. There are five North American Indian dances, four Armenian, and one each of Portuguese, Greek, Scotch, German, Spanish, and Mexican." Bkl.

Another book with good material on Indian dances is J. M. Buttree's "Rhythm of the redman; in song, dance and decoration" (1930 Barnes, A. S. $5) which contains about 30 dances with music and song. Introduction, art section and illustrations by E. T. Seton

793.7 Conundrums. Puzzles. Riddles

Briggs, Le Baron Russell
Pegasus perplexing; charades in verse. 1931 Viking press $2 793.7

1 Charades 31-31499

"These rhymes are rightly labeled 'perplexing' —they are 'teasers,' and the answers at the end of the volume set another task for the person who thinks he has solved one, but they are interesting." Pittsburgh

Lawson, James Gilchrist
(comp.) World's best conundrums and riddles of all ages. 1924 Harper $1 793.7

1 Riddles [24-25206]

Besides conundrums and riddles, there are epigrams, and bon mots put in question-and-answer form. Some are very old, as the "riddle of the sphinx," and some are new and original with the compiler

793.8 Magic

Carrington, Hereward
Boy's book of magic. 1920 Dodd $2; Routledge 7s 6d 793.8

1 Magic 20-17072

"The object of this book is twofold: (1) To explain, not only how a trick is done, but also how to do it—a very different matter; and (2) to describe and explain those tricks which the average boy can make or procure, with relative ease and with but little expense." Preface

"The directions are clear and practicable, and there are many helpful illustrations." Independent

Gibson, Walter Brown
Houdini's escapes. 1930 Harcourt $3; Allan, P. 10s 6d 793.8
1 Houdini, Harry 30-29110

"From a collection of Houdini's own notes and drawings explanatory of many of his famous tricks, the author has drawn most of the material for this book. While, according to Mr Gibson, it was Houdini's wish that several of his famous escapes should be publicly explained, certain of the more original escapes he preferred not to make public. Among the devices exposed in the present volume are several forms of handcuff, cabinet and rope escapes, underwater escapes, and escapes from trunks, barrels, coffins, etc." Book rev. digest

The author's "Houdini's magic; prepared from Houdini's private notebooks and memoranda" (1932 Harcourt $3) is a companion volume describing more tricks and works of magic

Leeming, Joseph
Magic for everybody. 1928 Doubleday, Doran $1 793.8
1 Conjuring 28-21796

"The 250 best and newest feats of magic chosen for the ease with which they can be performed." Subtitle

"Cards, coins, rings, bottles and other simple articles are the only paraphernalia necessary for performing these tricks which the author declares require little skill." Cleveland

Mulholland, John, and Smith, Milton Myers
‡ Magic in the making; a first book of conjuring. 1925 Scribner $1.50 793.8
1 Conjuring 25-6215

"The twenty tricks in their little volume are all comparatively simple and what is more, they are novel, most of them newly invented and all of them newly presented. The ambitious student need not be afraid that he will find in this volume the tricks which have been collected in old magic books." Brander Matthews in International book review

In "Quicker than the eye, the magic and magicians of the world" by John Mulholland (1932 Bobbs $2.50) the author writes entertainingly, not of the technique of the magician but of interesting experiences of his own and episodes in the history of magic

Radcliffe, William Hiram
Magic for amateurs. 1924 Appleton-Century $1.50; 3s 6d 793.8
1 Conjuring 24-5824

"Fifty tricks which can be performed without long practice and with the simplest of apparatus are carefully explained. Each trick is illustrated by diagrams." Book rev. digest

Thurston, Howard
200 tricks you can do. 1926 Burt $1 793.8
1 Conjuring [26-16041]

"The text explains how each trick may be performed, but the illustrations demonstrating the manner of their doing are few. There are tricks with balls, cards, cigars and cigarettes, coins, dice and dominoes, eggs, handkerchiefs, liquids, matches, paper, pencils, rings, sugar, thimbles, watches, and miscellaneous tricks. No index." Bkl.

"The book is meant for the beginner, and the mysteries expounded do not in general require special apparatus." Springfield Republican

The author's "200 more tricks you can do" (1927 Burt $1) is a companion volume to his earlier book

794 GAMES OF SKILL

Capablanca, José Raúl
* Chess fundamentals. 1921 Harcourt $2.50; Bell, G. 10s 6d 794
1 Chess 22-128

A standard work on chess

"In part one the [former] chess champion of the world explains the general principles of chess through eighteen illustrative games. In part two he describes fourteen games played between the author and other famous players. Illustrated with 150 diagrams." Book rev. digest

Clark, Coleman
Modern ping-pong and how to play it. 1933 Day $1 794
1 Ping-pong 33-28920

A well illustrated manual containing also the complete laws of ping-pong as amended in 1933

Helpful to the beginner as well as the more experienced player

Daly, Maurice
Daly's billiard book; ed by W. W. Harris. new and rev ed 1923 McClurg $2.50 794
1 Billiards 23-10439

" 'Daly's billiard book' is credited on its title page to that veteran player and teacher of billiards, Maurice Daly, but . . . a large part of it, as the reader soon learns, was actually written by the editor, William Welton Harris. It was all inspired, however, by Mr Daly; it is truly his book, and the theory and practice alike which it expounds and describes are his." N.Y. Times

Hollings, Frank
* Beginner's book of chess. 5th ed rev and enl 1933 McKay 75c; The author 1s 794
1 Chess [30-26616]

A useful elementary English book first published in 1921. It is confined to the needs of beginners

Lasker, Eduard
‡ Chess and checkers. 1918 Appleton-Century $1.50; 6s 794
1 Chess 2 Checkers 19-585

"The book contains complete instructions for the beginner and valuable suggestions for the advanced player. In enumerating the merits of chess in the preface the author accounts for the present popularity of the game in offering such complete analogies with war. The introduction gives a brief history of both chess and checkers, and the very thorough instructions in the text are followed by a chapter of illustrative games and a chapter of problems for each game." Book rev. digest

"Lasker's manual of chess" (1927 Dutton $3.75) by Emanuel Lasker is one of the most complete expositions of the game. Written by a world chess champion

Manson, James Alexander
Bowling; being the practice of the ancient & royal game of bowls. 1923 Macmillan 75c; Black, A. & C. 1s 6d 794
1 Bowling 23-16593

The chapters in this book form the second part of the author's "Complete bowler" (2d ed 1919 Macmillan o.p. 1933). A good book if the library needs one on this subject

Marshall, Frank James
Comparative chess. 1932 McKay $2 794
1 Chess 32-23900

"The author, an eminent champion, gives here an account of the 1931 World's championship match at Prague at which the American quintet won in a field of nineteen competing nations. Selected games from a 'gallery of champions,' including Morphy's game with the Duke of Brunswick, are discussed as well as the recent development of several openings and interesting end games. Diagrams large and clear." Bkl.

An older book is "Chess step by step" by Mr Marshall and J. C. H. Macbeth (1924 Dutton $2.50) a clear explanation of the principles and strategy of the game

Mitchell, David Andrew
Checkers. (Useful books for everybody) 1918 Penn $1 794
1 Checkers 18-9778

"A simple handbook by an expert player." Cleveland

W. F. Ryan's "It's your move" (1929 McKay $1) is a new manual of checkers for beginners

Smith, Erroll A.
American checker player's handbook. 1926 Winston $1 794
1 Checkers 26-15048

"A modern and practical work on the science of checkers for beginners, and a reliable authority for the advanced player and expert." Subtitle

This book and the one by Mitchell are held in equal esteem by checker players, but the small library will hardly need both

Winkelman, Barnie F.
Modern chess. 1931 McKay $1.50 794
1 Chess 31-33974

"An introduction to the art of chess as played by the modern chess master." Subtitle

"An attempt to outline briefly the development of modern tournament play from the earliest recorded games of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries . . . The lessons in sound play are based chiefly upon Tarrasch's 'Three Hundred Games' . . . We have dwelt little on general advice and so-called maxims, as we doubt the practical value of most generalities in the art of chess play." Preface

795 GAMES OF CHANCE

Emanuel Lasker's "Encyclopedia of games" (v 1 1929 Dutton $2.50) the first of a projected two volume encyclopedia on intellectual games, covers card strategy. Volume 2 covering board games is announced for publication in 1934

Bonaventure, George A.
Two-pack games of solitaire. 1932 Duffield $1.50 795
1 Patience (Game) 32-30264

Seventy-five variations of this popular pastime briefly described and illustrated with diagrams

Bridge headquarters, inc. Advisory council
New standardized official system of contract bridge. 1933 Winston $1.75 795
1 Contract bridge 33-3463

"The official book on the new standardized system with the one over one." Subtitle

Original edition issued in 1931 with title "Official system of contract bridge." Revised frequently to keep it up to date. Nineteen lessons beginning with bidding conventions, teach the system agreed upon by most of the authorities in America. A knowledge of bridge is assumed but the book can be used by the beginner in contract

The appendix contains the "International laws of contract bridge, 1932." These may also be obtained separately (Winston pa 50c)

Bryden, Dean
Fun with cards. 1927 Burt $1 795
1 Patience (Game) 2 Card tricks 3 Fortune telling 27-20747

"Thirty games of solitaire, eighteen card tricks, and eleven different ways of telling fortunes are fully described and illustrated." Chicago

Culbertson, Ely
Contract bridge blue book. 1934 Bridge world $2; Faber 10s 795
1 Contract bridge [33-8239]

Revised frequently to keep it up to date

"It is an excellent treatise, full of sound sense and good advice, and is all the better for an admirably written preface by Caliban, drawing our attention to the chief points of interest. There is only one complaint that may be brought against it—as against most books on Bridge—that it is perhaps too subtle and elaborate for the ordinary player. . But for those who have already some experience of the game this is, no doubt, the best and completest book on Contract Bridge that has yet appeared." Nation and Athenaeum

The author's "Contract bridge for auction players; including an outline for beginners and illustrative hands from the Culbertson-Lenz match" (1932 Garden City pub. co. $1) is useful in teaching how to switch from auction to contract. Two other authors whose works have been much used are Lenz and Whitehead. "My system of contract bidding" by S. S. Lenz (1930 Simon & Schuster $1; Allen, G. 2s 6d) is a brief exposition of the author's system. Two books by W. C. Whitehead are "Winning bridge; standards of auction bidding and play" (1929 Stokes $2) and "Contract bridge: what to do and why" (1931 Stokes $1.50)

Foster, Robert Frederick
‡ Foster's complete Hoyle. rev and enl 1927 Stokes $4, popular ed $2 795

An encyclopedia of indoor games played with cards, dice, tiles or men, chips, etc. It includes the rules of not only such games as bridge, 500, hearts, whist, chess, checkers, dominoes, mah jong, billiards, cribbage, faro, craps and poker, but also European games such as baccara, bézique, vingt-et-un, écarté, roulette, piquet and skat. There are directions for playing some familiar games for which it is difficult to find rules elsewhere, such as authors, old maid, I doubt it, and fan tan. Only a very few varieties of solitaire or patience are included

This edition omits a few varieties of games no longer played and adds new varieties which have become popular since the last edition, such as contract bridge. All official laws are included and brought up to date

The autograph edition of "Hoyle's games" revised by R. F. Foster (Burt $1) covers practically the same ground but the wording is different. A more recent compilation is the "New Hoyle" edited by P. H. Seymour (1933 Whitman, A. $1) Does not contain as many games as the editions by Foster but adds other games as camelot and bunco

Kearney, Paul William
(ed.) Fifty games of solitaire. 1930 Smith, H. $1 795
1 Patience (Game) 31-26228

"A selection that has the distinctive feature of symbols to indicate gradations of difficulty. Includes games for more than one player." Pittsburgh

Warren, Emily Stanley

* Games for two. 1930 Harcourt $1.50 795

1 Games 31-751

"Most of the games are played with cards, beginning with honeymoon bridge, but there are also variations of chess and checkers, with dominoes and anagrams in addition." Wis. bul.

Work, Milton Cooper

Auction bridge complete. 1929 Winston $2; Putnam 7s 6d 795

1 Auction bridge 29-9348

First published 1926. The 1929 edition is a reprint of the earlier edition except that the newer laws, those relating to progressive and pivot auction bridge, have been included

The author's "Auction bridge for beginners" (1928 Winston $1; Putnam 7s 6d) is a more elementary book which will often serve in place of the more complete treatise

796 ATHLETICS AND OUTDOOR SPORTS

In this section, the books have been classified more minutely than in other parts of the Catalog, in order to keep separate the material on individual sports. The smaller libraries will probably not want to use more than three or four figures in classifying their own collections

A history of sports in the United States is given in J. A. Krout's "Annals of American sport." This is published as volume 15 of the "Pageant of America" (class 973)

Four useful series of books and pamphlets on the various games and sports are:

Boy scouts of America. Merit badge pamphlets. The author ea 10c Attractive pamphlets giving instruction on various subjects. Easily understood by boys

Lonsdale library. Lippincott $4-$7 Books on various sports written by experts for the beginner as well as the more experienced sportsman. Some of these titles have been entered in their special classes

Outing handbooks. Macmillan $1-$1.75 Inexpensive, concise and dependable books on sports and outdoor life. A few of them have been included in this list

Spalding's athletic library. Am. sports pub. Published in various series: "Red cover series" ea 25c; "Brown cover series" ea 35c; "Buff cover series" ea 50c Pamphlets giving instruction in the various sports

Bancroft, Jessie Hubbell, and Pulvermacher, William Dean

‡ Handbook of athletic games for players, instructors, and spectators. 1916 Macmillan $2; 10s 796

1 Athletics 2 Games 16-2887

"A little volume which combines the rules governing and descriptions of the fifteen most important ball and track and field games, of use both to the uninitiated and, for quick reference, to those knowing the games. The rules are taken from the Spalding's official handbooks. . . Useful in any library." Wis. bul.

Camp, Walter Chauncey

Withington, Paul
(ed.) Book of athletics; rev. by Lothrop Withington. 1922 Lothrop $2 796

1 Athletics 2 Sports 3 Games 22-22444

"A volume modeled on a 'Book of athletics,' edited by Norman W. Bingham, jr. and published in 1895. It is made up of a collection of articles written by players, captains and coaches, and is 'designed to give those interested a certain amount of knowledge and insight into the player's side of athletics.'" Book rev. digest

"Revision of 1914 edition made necessary by the change in many sports. Obsolete articles have been dropped and up-to-date material supplied by leaders of the sport represented. Wide interest in golf has led to the addition of an article by Francis Ouimet. New illustrations added. Original plan of the book has been followed." Bkl.

Graham Bickley's "Handbook of athletics for coaches and players" (1929 Barnes, A. S. $1.80; Simpkin 8s 6d) is another book meant for coaches and players, which covers the fine points of school sports. C. E. Hammett's "Major sport fundamentals" (1927 Scribner $2) is a useful book on coaching in football, baseball, basket ball and track

796.32 Basket ball

Jacobs, Helen Hull
Modern tennis. 1933 Bobbs $2.50 796.34
1 Tennis 33-11453
Instructions for the beginner in tennis, whether man or woman. The author, who has been national women's champion, contends "that there is no such thing as Tennis for Women. . . The difference between men's tennis and women's tennis as played by the best of both sexes has lain only in strength and endurance, and doesn't affect the variety of stroke equipment that can be developed." Introduction
"Elements of lawn tennis" by J. H. Doeg and Allison Danzig (1931 Coward-McCann $2; Eyre 5s) develops the game from the first stroke to the more difficult points of technique

Lacoste, Jean René
Lacoste on tennis. 1928 Morrow $2.50; Burrow, E. 3s 6d 796.34
1 Tennis [28-22441]

1 Walking 2 Wayfaring life 26-16042

"Gives new ideas and suggestions for trips, speaks of equipment, points out the joyous intricacies of tramping, and tells of many adventures. Also contains chapters on companions, marching songs, tobacco, the bed, long halts and the art of idleness." St Louis

"This is not another intense volume on 'What every young hiker ought to know' nor is it another intimate confession of a reformed boxcar bravo. It is rather a delightful rambling book by a gentleman and a scholar who has found zest in the open road and the chance bivouac." Chicago Daily news

The League of walkers sponsors B. H. Christy's "Going afoot" (1920 Assn. press $1) which tells how, when and where to walk, and discusses walking clubs. Some of the material, e.g. that about clubs, is now out of date

Robbins, Leonard Harman
Mountains and men. 1931 Dodd $3 796.5

1 Mountaineering 31-28010

"A fascinating history of the climbing of world-famous peaks. The mountains include Kanchenjunga, Everest, Erebus, McKinley, Aconcagua, Logan, Matterhorn, and others. The stories are delightfully told and teem with human interest and a rare understanding of the climber's psychology. The illustrations are excellent and the sketch maps adequate for their purpose." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

The narratives of the climbing of special mountains (e.g. Mt. Everest) is classed in this Catalog with books on description of the country in which they are located

796.54 Camping

"Open spaces; incidents of nights and days under the blue sky," by J. C. Van Dyke (1922 Scribner $2) is a book on outdoor life and camping which has a distinct literary flavor

Allen, Hazel K.
Camps and their modern administration. 1930 Womans press $1.50 796.54

1 Camping 2 Young women's Christian associations 30-30586

Practical suggestions to help in the actual running of camps, as well as in building layouts and placing of equipment. Based on work carried on in Y. W. C. A. camps

Camping & scouting lore. 1930 Harper $3; 10s 6d 796.54
1 Camping 2 Outdoor life 3 Boy scouts 4 Girl scouts 30-29239
"This is a complete handbook on camping and scouting lore for girls as well as for boys, by a veteran scout and camper." Book rev. digest
"Practical information about scouting and camping, the product of a full scouting experience. The author was one of the first Eagle Scouts of Brooklyn, New York. Well illustrated by diagrams and sketches which are not too technical." Cleveland

796.8 Boxing. Wrestling. Fencing

A good book on fencing, rather expensive for the small library, is Luigi Barbasetti's "Art of the foil, with a short history of fencing" (1932 Dutton $5). It is a well illustrated presentation of the theory and technique by a European authority

Castelló, Julio Martinez
Theory and practice of fencing. 1933 Scribner $2.50; 8s 6d 796.8
1 Fencing 33-30605
A revision and enlargement of a previous book published in 1931 under the title: Theory of fencing. "Julio Martinez Castello has served many of America's leading universities, as well as in the 1924 Olympic team. . . Many noteworthy features appear in the book, a profusion of diagrams and drawings and the total absence of confusing foreign terminology being the most outstanding. Fencing with the foil, sabre and duelling sword are considered in separate sections." Boston Transcript

799.1 Fishing

Bergman, Ray
Just fishing. 1932 Penn $5 799.1
1 Fishing 2 Trout fishing 3 Bass fishing 32-12010
"The fine points of fishing in fresh waters are discussed clearly and enthusiastically, with considerable space devoted to fishing for trout and bass. The illustrations show fish and flies in color and in black and white." Providence
Another book, recommended especially for the eastern part of the United States, is C. E. Reitell's "Let's go fishing" (1931 McGraw $2.50; 12s 6d). It is a practical, readable book on many kinds of fish by a former fish commissioner of Pennsylvania

Camp, Samuel Granger
‡ Fishing kits and equipment. (Outing handbooks) 1910 Macmillan $1; 5s 799.1
1 Fishing—Implements and appliances 10-8208
The series of articles—here thoroughly revised and considerably extended—upon which this book is based originally appeared in Recreation
"A handbook giving full information about equipment for fresh-water fishing including selection of tackle for fly fishing, catching pickerel, pike, muskelonge, trout, etc., and advice as to selection and cost of necessary and appropriate clothes." Book rev. digest

Mr Camp has written also "Fine art of fishing" (Outing handbooks 1911 Macmillan $1; 5s) which discusses briefly fly-fishing, bait-casting, and other methods of fishing

Another very good manual on the subject is C. B. Cook's "Fishing, tackle and kits; by Dixie Carroll, pseud." (1919 Appleton-Century $3; 12s 6d)

Fly fishing. rev and enl ed 1930 Dutton $3.75; Dent 10s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 2 Flies, Artificial 31-26050

"A new edition of the work first published in 1889, describing the delights as well as the technique of fly fishing. The fish taken are in most cases trout and salmon, and both wet and dry flies are used. Two new chapters of retrospect have been added to the first edition." Book rev. digest

"The wood-engravings of Mr. Eric Daglish are a very notable ornament of the book." Spectator

Grey, Zane

Tales of fishes. 1919 Harper $4; Hodder 3s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 19-14335

"'Fish stories' which are the personal experiences of the author who considers deep-sea fishing the best of sports. He describes the catching of swordfish, tarpon, bonefish, tuna, dolphin, shark, and other rare varieties, and illustrates with many interesting photographs of the fish themselves and the catching of them." Wis. bul.

Zane Grey has written many other books on fishing which will be of interest to lovers of the sport, but their high price puts some of them beyond reach for the small library

Heilner, Van Campen

Adventures in angling; a book of salt water fishing. 1922 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 22-10693

"Experiences with big game fish of the ocean. Illustrations from several paintings and also from photographs by the author." St Louis

"Has interest even for those who do not fish." Freeman

Henshall, James Alexander

Book of the black bass. new ed 1923 Appleton-Century $4.50; 18s 799.1

1 Black bass 2 Fishing 23-12088

"A book that has proved its value for a period of over forty years. The present is a revision of the edition of 1904. Part 1 on the scientific history of the black bass has been curtailed, with new matter added to parts 2 and 3 on tackle and angling. A number of new illustrations are substituted for the old." Wis. bul.

Another book by this author is "Bass, pike, perch and other game fishes of America" (1919 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d)

Holden, George Parker

Streamcraft; an angling manual. rev ed 1927 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 2 Flies, Artificial 27-10217

Based on material first published in Forest and stream

"An expert angler has compiled, from experience, practical information for all anglers, mainly upon trout fishing, with humorous anecdotes here and there. Illustrations and eight color-plates of standard artificial flies, with index and classification according to body color." Bkl.

The author's "Angling; recollections and practice" (1931 Appleton-Century $2; 7s 6d) contains essays telling of his fishing experiences as well as papers on more practical aspects of the art

Rhead, Louis John

Fisherman's lures and game-fish food. 1920 Scribner $2 799.1

1 Fishing 2 Fishes—Food 20-9836

"This book has a twofold object. First: to multiply largely all species of game-fish for the people's use by a new method and a logical system of 'feeding' that will more rapidly attain a better result in the conservation of American fresh-water game-fishes, and also encourage a greater abundance, a larger and quicker growth, and a superior food value. Second: to vastly improve present angling conditions by introducing a new and entirely superior style of fishing with artificial nature lures in place of the live bait that is now being employed in ever-increasing quantities." Preface

A concise all-round guide to the art of angling is the author's "Book of fish and fishing; a complete compendium" (1917 Scribner $2.50)

Smith, Onnie Warren

Casting tackle and methods. 1920 Appleton-Century $3; 12s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 2 Fishing—Implemnets and appliances 20-16779

Part 1 is devoted to tackle, part 2 to methods

"A free and easy book full of authentic information given with the jocular assurance of the long-experienced angler." Bookman

Thompson, John Baptiste de Macklot

Modern bait and fly casting, by Ozark Ripley, (pseud.) 1928 Appleton-Century $2; 8s 6d 799.1

1 Fishing 2 Fishing—Implements and appliances 3 Fly-casting 28-2387

"Mr. Ripley discusses bait casting fully and from ample experience as a means of catching fish—chiefly the small-mouthed bass and trout, but also pickerel and muscallonge, and a few other species. His style is clear and direct." Times (London) lit. sup.

W. C. Vogt's "Bait-casting" (1928 Longmans $2.50) is a book by an expert which gives clear advice for the amateur

Walton, Izaak, and Cotton, Charles

Compleat angler; ed. by Richard Le Gallienne; il. by Edmund H. New. 1904 Dodd $3; Lane 6s 799.1

A less expensive edition is published in the Everyman's library (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Whether regarded as a treatise on fishing, as a charming pastoral, or as an autobiography of Walton, this is one of the best loved books in the English language. It was first published in 1653, but Walton continued to add to it for twenty years or more after that date

799.2 Hunting

It is sometimes difficult to draw the line between books rightly classed here and sporting books which emphasize the travel element or the habits and behavior of wild animals. Several good books uncertain in classification which are classified elsewhere in this Catalog are:

Akeley, Carl. In brightest Africa
Hornaday, W. T. Camp-fires in the Canadian Rockies
Hornaday, W. T. Wild-animal round-up
Johnson, Martin. Camera trails in Africa
Patterson, J. H. Man-eaters of Tsavo, and other East African adventures

Blunt, David Enderby

Elephant. 1933 Houghton $4; East Africa 12s 6d 799.2

1 Elephants 33-27078

"After several years' work for the control and preservation of elephants in a game preserve in Africa, the author is able to dispel many erroneous ideas about the habits and biology of elephants. His book is packed with information and enlivened by hunting experiences, but is serious rather than popularized in style." Bkl.

Some libraries may prefer to classify this book in 599

Branch, Edward Douglas

1 Bison 29-2501

"Beginning with the traditions of the buffalo in Indian folklore and archeology, the author tells how this great beast was almost exterminated by the building of the railways and the opening of the American plains for settlement. He then discusses later efforts made to protect the fragments of the great herds and save them from complete extinction." Bkl.

"It is all told in a lively and readable style, with many anecdotes and graphic descriptions and an admirable sense of the underlying drama. The illustrations, mostly reproduced from old books, are unusually interesting." N.Y. Times

Buck, Frank, and Anthony, Edward

* Bring 'em back alive. 1930 Simon & Schuster $2 799.2

1 Zoological specimens—Collection and preservation 2 Animals—Habits and behavior 30-24956

"Presents with vim and gusto the narrow escapes, the thrills and the type of strenuous experiences incidental to collecting animals, birds and reptiles for zoos and circuses, the ticklish business of transporting them safely to their destination across land and sea, and amusing detail about bartering with native traders. Photographs." N.Y. libraries

The authors' "Wild cargo" (1932 Simon & Schuster $3) relates more adventures the author had while capturing wild animals for zoos and circuses

Clark, James Lippitt

Trails of the hunted. 1928 Little $3 799.2

1 Hunting 2 Taxidermy 28-22113

"An informal account of the naturalist's field work in Africa, Asia, and North America. He was associated with Carl Akeley and with W. J. Morden in the work of photographing, collecting, and mounting wild animal groups for the American Museum of Natural History." Pittsburgh

"'Trails of the Hunted' is a story of a unique life. James L. Clark has told such a story as few men these days can equal, and he has written it with such simplicity, such modesty, and such charm, that no one can fail to read this handsome volume from cover to cover." Sat. rev. of lit.

Curtis, Paul Allen

American game shooting. 1927 Dutton $4 799.2

1 Game and game birds 2 Hunting 27-18017

"The shooting editor of 'Field and stream' [1927] writes easily and conversationally of hunting game of all kinds, large and small, furred or feathered, in all parts of North America. The accompanying photographs are of game haunts and hunts." Book rev. digest

Kephart, Horace

Sporting firearms. (Outing handbooks) 1912 Macmillan $1; 5s 799.2

1 Firearms 12-9611

"It is assumed that the reader of this booklet is familiar with gun catalogues—hence space is saved by omitting nearly everything that catalogues have to say." Foreword

"The little book is an exceedingly terse, compact, and comprehensive study of rifles and shotguns as tools of sport." N.Y. Times

John Caswell's "Sporting rifles and rifle shooting" (1920 Appleton-Century $4; 16s) is a reliable treatise on types of rifles and on shooting as a sport

Mayer, Charles

Trapping wild animals in Malay jungles. 1921 Duffield $2.50 799.2

1 Trapping 2 Hunting 3 Animals—Habits and behavior 21-20117

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint in the Star series (Garden City pub. co. $1)

"Thrilling adventures in capturing strange beasts for circuses and zoological gardens, and interesting glimpses of the jungle tribes." N.Y. state lib.

Roosevelt, Theodore

* African game trails. 1910 Scribner $6; Murray, J. 30s 799.2

1 Hunting 2 Africa, British East—Descr. & trav. 10-35980

An account of hunting experiences on a trip to Africa to secure specimens of African mammals for the Smithsonian museum

"It is a book primarily for hunters, and secondarily for naturalists, with probably what will prove strong claims on the 'general reader.'" Dial

In his "Wilderness hunter" (2v in 1 1921 Putnam $1.75; 9s) the author writes enthusiastically of hunting and big game. In 1927 this title together with the author's "Hunting trips of a ranchman" was published in one volume (Putnam $2.50; 9s) with the title "Hunting adventures in the West." Another book by the same author "Outdoor pastimes of an American hunter" (1905 Scribner $3.50) relates personal adventures in the west of the United States

White, Stewart Edward

Lions in the path; a book of adventure on the high veldt. 1926 Doubleday, Doran o.p. 1933 799.2

1 Tanganyika Territory—Descr. & trav. 2 Hunting 26-23902

"At the age of fifty-three the well-known novelist and sportsman, interested for years in the long bow as a sporting weapon, gave it a trial in hunting African game. Later, 'somewhat chewed by a recent tiger,' he wrote most entertainingly of his adventures." Cleveland

799.3 Archery

R. P. Elmer's "Archery" (rev 1933 Penn $5) is recommended as an additional book for communities having a special interest in the subject. It is a history of archery and a manual. The new edition contains added text

Duff, James

Bows and arrows; ed by Edward Cave. 1927 Macmillan $1; 5s 799.3

his purpose in so many respects, Mr. Lambert may perhaps be pardoned if in places he lapses into discussions of a technical nature more suitable for experts. It may be that such places, unintelligible on a first reading to the tyro, will increase the value of the work on a second reading." Boston Transcript

Rounsevelle, Phillip

* Archery simplified. 1931 Barnes, A. S. $2; Lib. press 10s 799.3
1 Archery 31-19283

"A book of instructions for teachers of archery classes, which describes the correct methods of teaching, tournaments, indoor tournaments and selection and care of equipment. May be used by beginners. Diagrams and photographic illustrations." Book rev. digest

An archery book of a different character is "Hunting with the bow & arrow" by S. T. Pope (1925 Putnam $2.50; 10s 6d). It deals mainly with the author's experiences in hunting with the bow and arrow

Sumption, Dorothy

Archery for beginners. 1932 Saunders $1.60 799.3
1 Archery 32-6077

A well illustrated guide "written for the purpose of instructing the novice in archery in some of the fundamental principles underlying this sport." Preface

801 PHILOSOPHY. LITERARY ESTHETICS

Abercrombie, Lascelles

* Romanticism. 1927 Secker 6s 801

1 Romanticism 27-5668

Formerly carried also by Viking press

"In this original and striking essay in philosophic criticism, Professor Abercrombie attacks the question what romanticism really is. With characteristic energy and decision he hammers out a consistent theory, in the course of it exhibiting Empedocles as a forerunner of Blake and Shelley and remarking upon the typically romantic flavouring of the Odyssey and of the works of Aeschylus. Briefly, he would detach romance as an essence from every temporal association and every technical tradition and present it as a recurring disposition, a typical attitude of the human mind in its reaction to experience." Times (London) lit. sup.

"It contains little or nothing which the American scholar will find new. But for the general reader who meets over and over the terms 'romanticism,' 'classicism,' 'realism,' and finds them rather nebulous terms when it comes to giving them a really valuable content, the book should provide helpful illumination." The 1934 printing adds a table on the development of literary forms, and a time chart of the chief British authors

"Arranged in one alphabet, clearly printed, up-to-date, practical and usable." Bkl.

Hyamson, Albert Montefiore
Dictionary of English phrases. 1922 Dutton $5; Routledge 12s 6d 803

1 English language—Terms and phrases 22-8430

"The fourteen thousand terms and phrases entered in this dictionary include phraseological allusions, catchwords, slang phrases, stereotyped modes of speech and metaphors, nick-names, sobriquets, derivations from personal names, etc. Tho many of the phrases are of foreign origin, they have all been incorporated into the English language. The phrases are explained and in many cases exact references to their sources or early usage are given." Book rev. digest

Keller, Helen Rex
* (ed.) Reader's digest of books. new and enl ed 1929 Macmillan $6 803

1 Book reviews 29-6889

Brief summaries of standard books, both fiction and non-fiction. Was originally published as a volume of the "Warner library" (1917) and is still to be had with that set. In 1922 was published as a separate. This has now been expanded by the addition of nearly 500 titles to the 400 in the original edition. The arrangement is alphabetical by title with an index of authors, but the new material is not incorporated with the old but added as a supplement with a separate index

"One of the most useful of these handbooks." Mudge

Heroes and heroines of fiction, famous characters . . . classified, analyzed and criticised. 2v in 1 1914-15 Lippincott $6; 25s 803

1 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc.

The first volume is devoted to characters in modern prose and poetry including novels, poems, dramas; the second volume lists those of classical, mediaeval, and legendary literature. The dividing line is, roughly, 1500 A.D.

Concerning the second volume Miss Mudge says "It will be useful for quick reference, as it brings together in handy form a good deal of previously scattered information, but must sometimes be supplemented and verified." Library journal

Wheeler, William Adolphus

Who wrote it? ed by C. G. Wheeler. Lothrop $2 803

1 Literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 7-13521

First published 1881

"An alphabetical list of the titles of famous works in all literatures, including poems, songs, plays, first lines of poems, novels, short stories, fables, legends, romances, chronicles, and other types of works having specific or distinctive titles. For each title it gives author's name and his dates of birth and death. Most of the titles are of works published before the middle of the 19th century." Mudge

The author's "Explanatory and pronouncing dictionary of the noted names of fiction" (Houghton o.p. 1933) includes also "familiar pseudonyms, surnames bestowed on eminent men, and analogous popular appellations often referred to in literature and conversation." Subtitle

1 Books and reading 28-902

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint in the Black and gold library (Liveright $2)

"These short papers, which were first printed serially in the 'Chicago Tribune' under the title 'Best sellers of the ages,' deal with sixty great books of ancient and modern times. They are briskly presented, with quotation and anecdote, and a few words about their authors." Book rev. digest

Bibliography: p425-60

Bennett, Jesse Lee

What books can do for you. 1923 Doran o.p. 1933 804

1 Books and reading 23-17918

"The author's purpose is to show the value of books to the individual, and how they help him to understand life and himself and how they may be used as a means of self-education. Half the book consists of selected lists of books in the various fields of human knowledge." Book rev. digest

"A book about books that is unique. It is well thought out and inspiringly written." N.Y. Times

Boyd, Ernest Augustus

Studies from ten literatures. 1925 Scribner $3 804

1 Literature, Modern—Hist. & crit. 25-7663

"Sound critical judgment and wide knowledge of the literatures of many lands inform these essays on prominent contemporary writers of France, Spain, Italy, Portugal, Switzerland, Germany, Scandinavia, Poland and Canada (Canadian-French fiction). A useful guide for the more discriminating reader." N.Y. state lib.

Bradford, Gamaliel

A naturalist of souls; studies in psychography. 1926 Houghton $3.50 804

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. 26-4298

Burke, Kenneth

Counter-statement. 1931 Harcourt $2.50 804

1 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures
2 Criticism 31-29768

Contents: Three adepts of "pure" literature; Psychology and form; Poetic process; Status of art; Thomas Mann and André Gide; Program; Lexicon rhetoricae; Applications of the terminology

"A very clever book. . . Mr. Burke's phrases have scrupulously exact edges, his sentences an elegance, in the best sense of the word, that makes them a literary pleasure to read." N.Y. Times

Collins, Joseph

Doctor looks at literature. 1923 Doran o.p. 1933 804

1 Authors 2 Literature—Hist. & crit. 3 Fiction—Hist. & crit. 23-9645

"Interesting observations on literature from the point of view of a neurologist who 'psychoanalyzes' some of our modern writers. . . James Joyce, Dostoievsky, D. H. Lawrence, Dorothy Richardson, and others." Wis. bul.

"Though he has many of the desirable qualifications of a critic of literature, Dr. Collins is not scientific at all: he makes too many flat assertions, too many open generalizations, to be credited with the scientific temper which is cautious, skeptical, averse to making statements as fact which are dubious or which cannot be proved." N.Y. Tribune

Croce, Benedetto

European literature in the nineteenth century; tr. by Douglas Ainslie. 1924 Chapman o.p. 1933 804

1 Literature, Modern—Hist. & crit. 24-30064

"The first attempt to regard European literature of the nineteenth century as a whole, to blend its various qualities, whether expressed technically in verse or prose, as the result of the one eternal beauty-making gift of 'expression.'" Translator's introduction

"This work in the Italian bears the title 'Poetry and non-poetry.' It is a group of 25 brief critical essays on 19th century writers, chiefly poets. Except for Sir Walter Scott, Ibsen, and Fernán Caballero, all the writers are Italian, French, or German." Pittsburgh

1 Literature, Modern—Hist. & crit. 2 Free verse 3 Literature and science 4 Humanism—20th century 5 Poetry—Hist. & crit. 6 Literature—Psychology 31-33150

"A fearless and satiric attack on the present tendencies in literature, especially in poetry. The effect on authors of the invasion of science and the dilemma of the Humanists and of teachers and critics are analyzed." Pittsburgh

"His book, clean-cut and pungent as it is, and seriously and competently concerned with questions of esthetics, would be more effective if the argument were less controversial." Springfield Republican

Ellis, Havelock

New spirit. 1926 Houghton $2.25; Constable 6s 804

1 Diderot, Denis 2 Heine, Heinrich 3 Whitman, Walt 4 Ibsen, Henrik 5 Tolstoĭ, Leo Nikolaevich, count [21-26226]

First published 1890. The edition formerly carried by Modern library contained an essay on Huysmans which has been omitted in the Houghton edition

Critical essays on Diderot, Heine, Whitman, Ibsen, and Tolstoi, in which the underlying theme is the influence of religion on the world. "He leads the discussion along a path where the healthy-minded can hardly fail to follow him, and he does so with that combination of enthusiasm and tolerance which is so rare in a man of his sensitiveness." New republic

Erskine, John

Literary discipline. 1923 Bobbs $2.50; Grayson 6s 804

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. [23-8332]

Contains five interesting and thoughtful essays on problems of literary aesthetics: Decency in literature; Originality in literature; The cult of the natural; The cult of the contemporary; The characters proper to literature

Hearn, Lafcadio

Life and literature. 1917 Dodd $5 804

1 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 2 English literature—Hist. & crit. 17-31448

"Lectures delivered at the University of Tokyo, 1896-1902, selected and edited by John Erskine. . . Deals with literature not generally known, especially interesting being the many chapters on French literature, the literature of hate, poems upon death, and 'The prose of small things,' i. e. the sketch. . . The style, necessarily simple for the benefit of Japanese students, possesses real beauty." Cleveland

The author's "Books and habits; ed by John Erskine" (1921 Dodd $2.50) contains, with the addition of one or two new essays, selections from his "Life and literature," his "Interpretations of literature" and his "Appreciations of poetry" the two latter listed elsewhere in this Catalog

MacCarthy, Desmond

Criticism. 1932 Putnam 7s 6d 804

Eliot (1921); Verse plays; Beckford and Beckfordism; Prophets, priests, and purveyors; The artistic temperament; Literary booms; Literary snobs; Open letter to a young writer; Modern French literature; Notes on the novel; Proust; Richardson and Proust; Defoe; David Garnett; Unity of effect

"The study of Proust is magnificent: much the best piece of sustained criticism of Proust that has been written. Apart from imaginative colour, Mr. MacCarthy's chief quality as a critic is a mixture of sensibility and commonsense such as we get in no other critic." New statesman and Nation

Sherman, Stuart Pratt

* On contemporary literature. 1917 Smith, P. $2.50 804

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Novelists, English 3 Literature, Modern—Addresses, essays, lectures 18-773

Contents: Democracy of Mark Twain; Utopian naturalism of H. G. Wells; Barbaric naturalism of Theodore Dreiser; Realism of Arnold Bennett; Aesthetic naturalism of George Moore; Skepticism of Anatole France; Exoticism of John Synge; Complacent toryism of Alfred Austin; Aesthetic idealism of Henry James; Humanism of George Meredith; Shakespeare, our contemporary

"Offers us many acute and many weighty pages; there is a subterranean stream of humor from whose half-hidden courses one may occasionally sip a gratefully saline draught; and his introduction, which is really the essence of the book, begins on a charming, captivating note, and rises toward the end, where the war enters to a tone of noble gravity." Dial

Companionable books. 1922 Scribner $2.50 804

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. 2 English literature—Hist. & crit. 23-5812

Also obtainable in the Sylvanora edition (Scribner $1). This edition does not have the original illustrations and the format is not so attractive, though paper, print and binding are good

"Appreciative literary essays of wide appeal, the subjects ranging from the Bible to quaint Izaak Walton, and from Keats to Samuel Johnson. Doctor Van Dyke brings to the book his usual charm of manner, and richness of insight." N.Y. state lib.

Man behind the book. 1929 Scribner $2.50; 7s 6d 804

Contents: Symbolism; W. B. Yeats; Paul Valéry; T. S. Eliot; Marcel Proust; James Joyce; Gertrude Stein; Axel and Rimbaud

"A discussion of symbolism in literature is followed by masterly analyses of the work of the writers who in the author's opinion are the outstanding figures of the movement today." Pittsburgh

807 LITERATURE—STUDY AND TEACHING

Babbitt, Irving

Literature and the American college; essays in defense of the humanities. 1908 Houghton $2; Constable 10s 6d 807

1 Universities and colleges 2 Literature—Study and teaching 8-8540

Contents: What is humanism; Two types of humanitarians: Bacon and Rousseau; College and the democratic spirit; Literature and the college; Literature and the doctor's degree; Rational study of the classics; Ancients and moderns; On being original; Academic leisure

"The central thought of the book is that the old-fashioned culture and discipline of the American college (somewhat idealized perhaps in the retrospect) are being crowded out of modern life and education by the encroachment of the sentimental license of the kindergarten from below, and the pressure from above of specialized pedantry in the graduate school. The remedy is to be found in a return to humanism." Nation

Bates, Arlo

Talks on teaching literature. 1906 Houghton $2.10 807

1 Literature—Study and teaching 6-37886

"Concerns the problems, conditions, and some difficulties of the subject, the inspirational use of literature, the study of prose and of the novel, criticism, literary workmanship, literary biography, and voluntary reading." Bkl.

"The suggestions and criticism contained in this volume will be found extremely helpful to school and college teachers of English subjects." Educ. rev.

The author's "Talks on the study of literature" (Houghton $2) is another useful collection of essays on the same subject

Dudley, Louise

Study of literature. 1928 Houghton $3, student's ed $2.25 807

1 Literature 28-12900

"Tho designed as a text and used by the author in her English classes at Stephens College, Columbia, Missouri, the book is so written as to appeal to any reader looking for an analysis of literature and a discussion of literary standards." Book rev. digest

"Her method is conspicuously admirable. It is clear, concise, provocative, leaning upon a foundation rock of scientific authority." Boston Transcript

Bibliography: p360-62; references at ends of chapters

Smith, Charles Alphonso

‡ What can literature do for me? rev ed 1924 Doubleday, Doran $2, educ. ed $1 807

1 Literature 24-12935

A series of brief essays on books and the value of reading. The chapter headings indicate the character of the contents: It can give you an outlet; It can keep before you the vision of the ideal; It can give you a better knowledge of human nature; It can restore the past to you; It can show you the glory of the commonplace; It can give you the mastery of your own language

"Friendly, practical talks on how literature can make life richer and fuller. Shows broad familiarity with the subject, is full of illustrative material, and specially notable for simplicity, freshness and enthusiasm." N.Y. state lib.

Changes in this edition have been made in response to shift of emphasis during the past decade and include amplifications and additional material on spelling, scales and measures, précis writing; fuller bibliographies and lists of study questions. Adapted from Preface to the revised edition

"Sensible, readable discussion maintaining that the intimate relationship between the right word and clear thinking should guide teaching as should also the aim to enlarge knowledge, expand ideals, deepen emotion, and perfect conduct. Takes up the teaching of composition, poetry, fiction, drama, essay, etc." N.Y. state lib.

Contains index and an appendix giving list of theme topics, material on school libraries and library instruction, and reading lists

808 RHETORIC AND COMPOSITION

Where an advanced textbook is needed for the study of the classical literature on this subject C. S. Baldwin's "Ancient rhetoric and poetic" (1924 Macmillan $2.10) will be found both usable and stimulating

Brewster, William Tenney

English composition and style. 1912 Appleton-Century $2 808

1 English language—Rhetoric 12-14483

"An excellent treatment by a prominent authority, professor of English in Columbia University, [1933]. The text is emancipated from useless conventions, analyzes actual modern conditions of writing and has a literary atmosphere, as opposed to the texts which are written down to the level of students who are not supposed to have read anything." Bkl.

Brownell, William Crary

Genius of style. 1924 Scribner $2.50 808

1 Style, Literary 24-24365

"Six essays on literary style, reprinted from 'North American Review,' of interest to students and writers." Wis. bul.

The author "has luminously analyzed the functions of style, and with style as his theme, conducted a devastating criticism of his own age of 'aesthetic inertia.'" H. S. Canby in Sat. rev. of lit.

Canby, Henry Seidel

* Better writing. 1926 Harcourt $1.35 808

1 Authorship 26-10353

"A stimulating little book for all who are interested in writing. Not a book on the mechanics of writing, or on successful authorship. The author is interested in 'what must happen in a writer's mind, if with something worth writing about, he is to write not badly, but well.'" Wis. bul.

"Here is a book that is all meat for the already educated person who wishes to put his education to use in writing. It is, perhaps, almost too condensed to be agreeable reading, though by its very packed style it gains emphasis and intensity that will carry conviction. Mr. Canby is to be congratulated upon having accomplished the almost impossible; competing with innumerable textbooks on rhetoric with which commercial publishers flood the market, he has said something new about how to write, and he has said it interestingly." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

English composition; based on the study of literary models. 1913 Oxford 85c; 2s 6d 808

1 English language—Composition and exercises 2 English language—Rhetoric 33-34061

"The principle on which this book is based is the principle of imitation. The pupil is invited to read and to study good models, and from these to learn the art of composition. For this purpose a large number of Examples are provided, and the exercises and questions set are such as will require . . . a close study of these Examples." Preface

The author's "New course of composition based on the study of English masters of style" (1925 Oxford 50c; 1s 6d) supplements the above with a large number of passages illustrating kinds of writing. It is especially rich in selections from writers of today

Cunliffe, John William, and Lomer, Gerhard Richard

(eds.) Writing of today. 4th and rev ed 1925 Appleton-Century $2 808

1 American literature 2 Journalism 25-23407

This edition contains some new material published during the preceding three or four years.

"An advanced text-book on journalism, dealing with the treatment of material rather than of words and phrases. Descriptive and narrative articles, personal sketches and interviews, expository, controversial, editorial and humorous articles, art, music, literary and dramatic criticism are considered and illustrated with entertaining selections from leading magazines and newspapers." Cleveland

Fernald, James Champlin

Expressive English. 1918 Funk $2.25 808

1 English language—Rhetoric 18-20334

"A useful book on rhetoric which aims at the presentation of principles rather than precepts and treats a few topics fully rather than a large number cursorily." Pratt quarterly

"Will interest and help both the younger student and the seasoned grammatical expert." Outlook

Foerster, Norman, and Steadman, John Marcellus

Writing and thinking; a handbook of composition and revision. 1931 Houghton $1.40 808

1 English language—Composition and exercises 2 English language—Grammar 31-14652

A revised edition of a book formerly published under the title: Sentences and thinking.

"In Book One, 'A Handbook of Composition,' the organic nature of composition is fully discussed, in relation to the sentence, the paragraph, and the whole theme; and a treatment of words is included in the chapter on the sentence. . . . Book Two, 'A Handbook of Revision,' presents comprehensively rules and suggestions for revising and rewriting themes." Preface

Book 2 is also published separately (Houghton $1.10)

Greenough, Chester Noyes; Hersey, Frank Wilson Cheney, and Bruce, Harold Lawton

Writing well. 1932 Macmillan $2; 10s 808

1 English language—Rhetoric 32-11660

Based on Greenough and Hersey's "English composition," published in 1917. Rewritten and enlarged by almost 100 pages

"An excellent desk-book for all writers of whatever kind. It summarizes briefly and from the writers' own point of view the principal theories of unity, coherence and emphasis. It also contains many hints as to methods of pursuing research, not to mention innumerable actual examples of good and unwise usage. The selections from the work of great writers have been chosen with care, so that the student may gain the full value from them." Boston Transcript

Herzberg, Max John, and Lewin, William

Speaking and writing English. 1925 Allyn $1.50 808

The appendix contains a list of books, p386-94

McCaslin, Davida

Amateur writing. 1933 Farrar $2 808

1 Authorship 33-15123

"This is a helpful book for the amateur writer or speaker, for those who toil over club papers or prepare book reviews, for the man who must rise at banquets to give toasts or make an appeal for a worthy charity. Miss McCaslin's book gives a world of hints on how to prevent such literary efforts from becoming dull as dish-water." Cincinnati

Manly, John Matthews; Rickert, Edith, and Freeman, Martin

‡ Writing of English. complete ed 1929 Holt $2.50 808

1 English language—Rhetoric 29-20125

This edition contains much new material, certain chapters having been almost entirely rewritten. There is also a reorganization of material so that now part I deals with organization of material, study of words, and use of books and dictionaries; part II with methods and forms of writing; and part III contains all the corrective material needed, including a review of grammar, punctuation, etc., and a section on reference books and their uses

"Practical, stimulating textbook of methods used successfully at the University of Chicago to 'awaken in the student the desire for self-expression through the written and spoken word.' Makes a fresh approach to hackneyed themes, with the use of excellent illustrative material." N.Y. state lib.

Murry, John Middleton

Problem of style. 1922 Oxford $2.25; 6s 6d 808

1 Style, Literary 2 Criticism 22-17044

"It is really an exposition of the process of literary creation. 'Style' is a name given to a certain aspect of the product, and a definition he gives on page 15 is that 'a true style is a completely adequate expression in language of a writer's mode of feeling'. . . It is in his examples that Mr. Murry illuminates his theory and convinces his reader." Nation and Athenaeum

"This little book is alive with clear thinking and fine insight." Times (London) lit. sup.

1 Style, Literary [28-30357]

"In a beautiful prose style of his own Herbert Read analyses the prose style of others, illuminating his exposition with quotations from the good and bad in English prose." Book rev. digest

"One of those rare books of literary criticism which give the mind something really substantial to chew. . . Books which pursue truth are not often easy reading, and Mr. Read does not let us off lightly. He writes clearly, and he has taken a great deal of trouble to discover his own meaning and to explain it to other people, but the nature of prose style is a difficult subject." Nation and Athenaeum

Lowes, John Livingston

Convention and revolt in poetry. 1930 Houghton $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 808.1

1 Poetry 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 27-17377

First published 1919. The reprint of 1930 has a more attractive format but beyond the corrections of errors has no changes in the text

A notable book of literary criticism. "Compares the free verse movement with earlier movements, and shows that nearly every school of English poetry has begun in a revolt against established conventions and ended by establishing conventions of its own. At once an explanation and intelligent criticism and appraisal of free verse, pointing out its virtues and its dangers. Delivered as lectures at Lowell institute. Very readable." N.Y. state lib.

Masefield, John

Poetry. 1932 Macmillan $1; Heinemann 3s 6d 808.1

1 Poetry [31-34694]

England's poet laureate discusses the nature of poetry and four great examples: Shakespeare's "Macbeth," Dante's "Divine comedy," Aeschylus's "Agamemnon," and Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey"

"The lecture is, like the writer's own poetry direct, passionate and single-minded. It is the expression of a poet's mind rather than a statement about poetry; and the expression is both singular and impressive." Times (London) lit. sup.

Maynard, Theodore

Preface to poetry. 1933 Appleton-Century $2.75, students' ed $2 808.1

1 Poetry 33-12452

"On two bases this book is recommended: first, that it entertains; second, that it teaches. . . Mr. Maynard writes a didactic book delightfully. He employs an easy, familiar style of leisurely discourse, as of one casually discussing a subject of which he is a master. . . The pleasure of the book, however, does not detract from its essential worth, as a technical treatise and a practical handbook." America

Neihardt, John Gneisenau

Poetic values. 1925 Macmillan $1.75; 9s 808.1

1 Esthetics 2 Poetry 26-950

"Two lectures prepared for delivery at the University of Nebraska. In the first, 'Common sense,' Mr. Neihardt seeks to dispel the popular fallacy that poetry and science are incompatible. In the second, 'The creative dream,' he attempts to discover the exact reasons for the universal appeal of art, and for its easy victory over crass materialism." Bkl.

"Contains more food for thought than many a lengthy disquisition. Even though one be not prepared to agree with his every assertion, one will find the book interesting and stimulating throughout; and, whatever one's literary creed, one will be able to peruse these two essays with profit and enjoyment." Perry, Bliss

* Study of poetry. 1920 Houghton $2.50; Constable 16s 808.1

1 Poetry 20-9853

"In two parts: Poetry in general and The lyric in particular. In one chapter, Rhyme, stanza and free verse, the author gives free verse its due, but he belongs frankly to the older school. Notes and illustrations, for the use of teachers, come at the end. An appendix gives a suggestive topical outline, based on Tennyson. Bibliography (8p)." Wis. bul.

"He gives an unusually clear analysis, supported by rich and apt quotation, of the effects of poetry upon the reader. The value of his essay lies in its vivid ability to provide us with those moments of lucid understanding in which poetic experience is restored to us." Outlook

Sidney, Sir Philip

Apologie for poetrie; ed by J. C. Collins. 1907 Oxford 85c; 2s 6d 808.1

1 Poetry 8-26857

Based on the text of the edition printed for Henry Olney in 1595. This edition contains besides notes, an introduction giving a brief sketch of Sir Philip Sidney's life and an introduction to the essay. The essay is also known as "The defense of poesie"

"Sir Philip Sidney, the perfect knight of the court of Elizabeth, defends the function of the poet against detractors. He glorifies the creative power of the poet, and vindicates his place in learning. Then follows a brief survey of English poets from Chaucer to Spencer, and an account of the primitive pre-Shakespearean drama. The style is witty, learned, and eloquent." English and Pope's What to read

Strong, Leonard Alfred George
Common sense about poetry. 1932 Knopf $1.50; Gollancz 2s 6d 808.1
1 Poetry 32-7594
"The author, who is himself a poet, presents simple suggestions on how to develop an appreciation of poetry when there are such prejudices as that it is 'hard to understand' or 'unreal.' He discusses rhythm and rhyme, the limerick, metre, what is poetry, how it differs from prose and gives illustrative examples of verse." N.Y. libraries

Untermeyer, Louis
* Forms of poetry. 1926 Harcourt $1 808.1
1 Poetics 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 26-12381
"A pocket dictionary of verse. In it can be found, in alphabetical order, definitions of all terms which one may need for a profitable study or discussion of poetry. A section of the book is given over to a presentation of verse forms, diagrammed and exampled. The closing third covers in cut-to-the-bone narrative the history of English and American verse, a decided achievement in brevity. A bibliography and an index complete the volume.
"That it is a serviceable effort it is scarcely necessary to say. But it enjoys the distinction of being readable, too. Indeed, Mr Untermeyer's collection of examples to illustrate the many recognizable forms is in itself an unusually entertaining anthology." Literary rev.

808.2 Drama—Technique

Gustav Freytag's "Technique of the drama" (Scott o.p. 1933) is an older handbook of practical advice which was for long regarded as a standard but which has been superseded by later works. Libraries which have it or are able to obtain it second-hand will find it useful if there is a demand for historical material on the subject

Archer, William
* Play-making, a manual of craftsmanship. 1912 Dodd $3; Chapman 7s 6d 808.2
1 Drama—Technique 12-27870
"Practical and valuable discussion of principles with much intelligent analysis and criticism, the illustrations being taken mainly from Shakespeare and Ibsen. He believes that the talent of sincere students and playwrights may be greatly assisted." Viewpoints in modern drama
"The book is full, is sound and penetrating throughout, but it is, perhaps, when last acts come under consideration that its breadth of view is most marked." Athenaeum

Baker, George Pierce
* Dramatic technique. 1919 Houghton $4.75, student's ed $3.75 808.2
1 Drama—Technique 19-6514
"Eight lectures on playmaking, based on the author's courses at Harvard and originally delivered at Lowell Institute in Boston, 1913. The book attempts no new theories, but presents and compares the tried technique of successful dramatists past and present with the formless products of amateurs, sifting, for the student's benefit, the dramatically effective and therefore permanent from the ineffective and giving numerous illustrative scenes." Cleveland
Based on wide and scholarly knowledge of both theory and practice, showing philosophical grasp and an intimate acquaintance with practical details. Condensed from Nation

Burton, Richard
* How to see a play. new ed 1929 Macmillan $2 808.2
1 Drama—Hist. & crit. 29-18774
"The first edition of this book appeared in 1914. . . It has been deemed best to let the original chapters stand as they were then written. The additional final chapter, entitled Later Developments, essays to picture the more important happenings during the fifteen intervening years and to give an idea of the current American situation." Preface to second edition
"Surveys the chief elements involved in the making of a play, illustrating them by references to well known plays and suggesting an intelligent attitude on the part of the play-goer toward them. A laudable attempt to increase appreciation of the better class of plays . . . written in a simple, expository style that will commend it to the average reader." Wis. bul.

Hillebrand, Harold Newcomb
Writing the one-act play. 1925 Crofts $1.75 808.2
1 Drama—Technique [25-16599]
"A compact little volume in which the essential features of a good one-act play are outlined and exemplified, and directions given which a very young student can follow, as to how and how not to write it." Cleveland
Bibliography of short plays and of volumes of dramatic craftsmanship
B. R. Lewis's "Technique of the one-act play" (1918 Luce, J. W. $1.75) is a practical book on dramatic technique with analysis of more than three hundred contemporary one-act plays

Krows, Arthur Edwin
Playwriting for profit. 1928 Longmans $3.50; 21s 808.2
1 Drama—Technique 28-25876
"As a clear, informative statement of such matters as 'Plot,' 'Sustained Interest,' 'Characterization,' 'Dialogue,' and 'Production' it more than achieves its purpose. One of its chiefest merits is the manner in which Mr. Krows for the most part avoids dogmatism in offering his helpful instruction, and one of its chiefest charms is Mr. Krows's life-long love of his subject which shows on every page and makes his book an invaluable mine for quotations from what past and current practitioners and critics have said about playwriting." Sat. rev. of lit.
"The student of the drama as well as the playwright will find this book worth study. Goes into the subject of play construction quite exhaustively and is well indexed. Does not consider the marketing of plays." Wis. bul.
St J. G. Ervine's "How to write a play" (1928 Macmillan $1.75; Allen, G. 5s) purposes to "state some elementary facts about dramatic craftsmanship" and contains some practical dramatic criticism. M. E. Swan's "How you can write plays" (1929 French $2.75) describes in detail the author's own method of writing plays and offers practical suggestions on subject, act and scene division, dialog and marketing the play

Matthews, Brander
Principles of playmaking. 1919 Scribner $2.50 808.2
1 Drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Drama—Technique 19-15588
"Consists of essays on many phases of the drama and theater as: How to write a play; Shakesperian stage-traditions; Irish plays and Irish play-wrights; Simplification of stage scenery; Memories of Edwin Booth. Written with the author's genial sense of humor, readable and of interest to lovers as well as students of the drama. Author [was for many years] professor of dramatic literature at Columbia University." N.Y. state lib.
Another volume of essays by this author, which would be useful in larger libraries, is "Playwrights on playmaking" (1923 Scribner o.p. 1933) containing studies in the art of dramatic criticism, and articles on Shakespeare, Molière, and others

Scenario and screen. 1928 Harcourt $2 808.2

1 Moving picture plays 2 Moving pictures 28-8163

"The author of this volume is an instructor in photoplay composition, and her approach to the subject is essentially pedagogic. There are chapters dealing with the story, the director, the producer and the camera and all the other factors which go to make up the complicated machinery of the industry." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"It is a very handy little technical book, but it is also written with imagination and with a pleasantly light touch." Boston Transcript

Wilde, Percival

Craftsmanship of the one-act play. 1923 Little $3 808.2

1 Drama—Technique 23-5207

"A workman's own statement of the life and soul and body of the one-act play, made manifest to him in his practical dealing with the subject. To his task as expositor he brings an acute knowledge of the play form as practiced by others. Over two hundred one-act dramas are cited by him, not merely by name but in the form of diagnoses. He uses these plays, not sparing his own, in a clinical method, proving his points by showing the weaknesses and accentuating the excellencies." N.Y. Times

Bibliographies of fiction will be found at the head of class 823 in this Catalog

There are many textbooks on the art of short-story writing and a number of good ones with claims to general appeal are listed below. If there is considerable demand a good recent textbook which might be added is E. R. Mirrielees' "Writing the short story" (1929 Doubleday, Doran $1.25)

Beach, Joseph Warren

Twentieth century novel; studies in technique. 1932 Appleton-Century $3.50; 18s 808.3

1 Fiction—Hist. & crit. 32-32792

"An interesting and important consideration of the technic of the modern novel, aiming 'to get at the effects intended and the technical means by which these effects are secured.' Presenting first the methods of such older writers as Eliot, Meredith, Dostoevski and Thackeray, it proceeds to trace the evolution of certain distinct types of the novel with analyses of illuminating examples from contemporary writers." N.Y. libraries

Bement, Douglas

* Weaving the short story. 1931 Smith, R.R. $3, college ed $2.25 808.3

1 Short story 31-10593

"A manual of short-story writing seen as an art and not as a game or a business. The author attempts to teach the young writer to use his own mind and imagination and to elucidate his experiences. One chapter is devoted to questions of technique, and an appendix gives detailed analyses of two short stories: The Golden Wedding, by Ruth Suckow, and The Golden Honeymoon, by Ring Lardner." Book rev. digest

"It is refreshing to come upon a work which recognizes that mechanics play only a minor part in creation, and that without something to say and some imaginative equipment with which to get it said, the achievement of anything above the level of hack writing is hardly within the realm of possibility." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Clark, Glenn

Manual of the short story art. 1922 Macmillan $1.75; 9s 808.3

1 Short story 22-10627

Part one, Studies in short story writing, gives the essential requirements and types of the short story; part two, Creative criticism of four short stories, prints in full four widely differing types of story—of character, of complication, of atmosphere and a thematic story—and analyses their composition; part three gives some suggestions for meeting the chief problems in rhetoric, style, and plot building

"For the serious student, the simplicity of statement, and straightforwardness of presentation, and the value of information contained in this little volume will have a direct appeal." Bookman

Grabo, Carl Henry

Technique of the novel. 1928 Scribner $1.50; 6s 808.3

1 Fiction—Technique 2 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 29-1740

"An associate professor of English at the University of Chicago analyzes the works of numerous novelists from Richardson to Virginia Woolf, pointing out the means by which they have made their stories convincing. Intended primarily for the young writer of novels, it will appeal equally to the critical novel reader." Bkl.

The author's "Art of the short story" (1913 Scribner $1.40) is a practical and readable discussion, particularly helpful to the would-be writer and useful in libraries where there is much call for this type of material

Hamilton, Clayton Meeker

Manual of the art of fiction. 1918 Doubleday, Doran $1.50 808.3

1 Fiction 18-9369

"The author's Materials and methods of fiction, 1908, 'revised and amplified.' Has very little new material, but the addition of chapter summaries, paragraph headings, and questions for review and a full bibliography has remodeled the work into a textbook." Cleveland

Lovett, Robert Morss

Preface to fiction. 1931 Follett $1.25 808.3

1 Fiction—Hist. & crit. 31-14517

The author, professor of English at the University of Chicago, here presents critical studies of six modern novels: Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina," Hamsun's "Growth of the soil," Flaubert's "Madame Bovary," Butler's "Way of all flesh," Mann's "Buddenbrooks," and Upton Sinclair's "Boston." A final chapter on the post-realistic novel, considers briefly the works of such writers as Dorothy Richardson, James Joyce and Marcel Proust

"A small book that would serve well as a guide to a study course on the novel." Wis. bul.

Lubbock, Percy

* Craft of fiction. (Travellers' lib.) 1929 Smith, P. $2; Cape, J. 3s 6d 808.3

1 Fiction—Technique 29-24878

First published 1921. Formerly carried by Scribner

"Purpose [Mr. Lubbock maintains] is the key to right art and right criticism. . . After applying this criterion of subject, or purpose, to one or two well-chosen masterpieces, the author goes on to the consideration of the various methods by which the novelist makes his form fit the theme he has undertaken. . . This book about the novelist's craft is neither purely professional nor purely academic in attitude. It is as far from being over-literary as it is from being 'popular' in style." North American review

"Mr Percy Lubbock's treatise is an example of the best qualities of the analytical method of criticism. . . It is a book which no writer of fiction can afford to leave unread, and it is one which will also very much enhance the pleasure of every intelligent novel-reader." Spectator

Structure of the novel. (Hogarth lectures on literature ser.) 1929 Harcourt $1.25; Hogarth 3s 6d 808.3

1 Fiction 2 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 29-3271

"A distinguished literary critic analyzes the structure of novels of different types—the novel of action and character, the dramatic novel, the chronicle, and the period novel—referring to famous examples of each type in English literature." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Muir has made an interesting and valuable addition to the literature about the novel. . . His particular merit is that he refuses to elevate his favourite kind of novel into an archetype to which all novels should conform, and also refuses to be influenced by fashion. If his argument is metaphysical rather than aesthetic, it is also admirably clear." New statesman

Overton, Grant Martin

Philosophy of fiction. 1928 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 808.3

1 Fiction 2 Fiction—Hist. & crit. 28-25877

"Not a book on how to write fiction, but an exhibit of 'the raw material showing how the mind works upon it, discussing and settling the interior subject and the method, and covering most of the ground that must be traversed before the pen scratches on paper the heading, Chapter One.' Many examples are given from authors who are widely familiar, hence the book will be of general interest. Useful also with study clubs." Wis. bul.

"His summaries are unusually good, his comments always sensible and in certain cases extremely acute." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Handbook series" (1917-33 Wilson, H.W. ea $2.40, by subscription $12 for series of six, earlier volumes vary from $1.50 to $2.25; Holmes) is a series of volumes on public questions of current interest or suitable for debate such as Law enforcement, Chain banking, and Censorship of the theater. Each volume contains articles on the subject selected to reflect the opinions of leading authorities on varying phases. References to book and periodical material are given and frequently briefs for debate. This series succeeded the "Debaters' handbook series." Libraries may prefer to keep the individual volumes with their subjects and they will be found thus classified in this Catalog

A series of smaller volumes is "The reference shelf" (8v 1922-34 Wilson, H.W. v3-8 ea $6, separate numbers ea 90c, price varies for early numbers; Holmes) which furnishes briefs, references, reprints of selected articles, study outlines and debates. Ten numbers a year constitute one volume. Each number is concerned with one topic, such as Stability of employment, Socialization of medicine, Agriculture and the tariff. Continues an earlier series "Abridged debaters' handbooks." As noted above libraries may prefer to keep the individual volumes with their subjects and they will be found thus classified in this Catalog

"A revision and enlargement of the subject index to debate material, formerly included in the 'Debaters' manual' [listed below]. It has been brought down to date and published as an independent work. . . More than 500 entries have been added for new material. Entries to the older literature have been dropped when the material was out of print or the subjects covered lacked present day interest. Some out of print items have been retained where the material is still of some value and the books are to be found in the average library." Introduction

1 Debates and debating 29-27464

This edition "has been brought down to date by the revision of the present contents where it seemed advisable, and also by the addition of new material, especially on the subjects of Persuasion, Judging and New systems of debating. The appendices have been revised thoroly and much new material has been added." Explanatory note

Part 1 contains articles describing steps thru which the debater must go in the preparation for a debate. Part 2 contains brief and valuable suggestions for organizing and managing a debating society and for drawing up its constitution. Various forms of inter-society organizations are described and model constitutions given. The appendix gives an up-to-date list of suitable subjects for debate, each accompanied by references to briefs, bibliographies, actual debates, collections of articles, etc. dealing with the question. This provides what is actually a subject index to debate literature, and there is also a selected bibliography on debate and public speaking

(ed.) Spirit of man. 1916 Longmans $2.50; 6s 6d 808.8

1 English literature—Collections 2 French literature—Collections 3 Idealism in literature 16-6701

" 'An anthology in English and French from the philosophers and poets,' the choice based on the belief that 'the proper work of man's mind is to interpret the world according to his higher nature, and to conquer the material aspects of the world so as to bring them into subjection to the spirit' (Preface). It has been prepared specially to meet the spiritual needs of war-stricken England; but has great charm for the cultured American reader, not only in the quality and breadth of its selection but also in the close interrelation of the extracts. The most spiritual of all English anthologies not avowedly religious, and in literary merit ranks with the 'Golden treasury.' " Wis. bul.

Frost, Lesley
(ed.) Come Christmas. 1929 Coward-McCann $2.50 808.8

1 Christmas 29-29947

A selection from the poetry, songs, and prose in English, French and Spanish concerning Christmas. The anthology contains also some brief miracle plays, and selections from the old plays of York, Wakefield and Coventry. Music is given for some of the carols. Illustrations are from 14th and 15th century woodcuts and engravings

"Miss Frost prints some old favorites but gives much more that is unfamiliar to the reader who has not browsed about in Christmas literature. There is much excellent reading here put in convenient and attractive form. She is to be commended for the early English carols she prints and for her very interesting selections from the French." 1 Literature—Collections 30-14227

"Under the headings Epic and Romance, Tragedy, Comedy, The Lyric, The Tale, History, Biography, The Letter, Literary Criticism, Satire, Political Ideas, and Philosophical Discourse, are grouped generous selections from over a hundred and thirty writers from Homer to Croce. [They] . . . are excellently chosen, from both the historical and the critical point of view, and with the introductory essays, which are compact, accurate and well-balanced, they form an 'Outline' of literature worth ten popularizations. The general reader may make as good use of the book as the college classes for whom it is primarily intended." Bookman

* (comps.) Christmas book. 1928 Dutton $3 808.8

1 Christmas 28-26852

Available in England in a cheaper edition (Dent 3s 6d)

"This anthology for moderns omits the ingredients commonly found in Christmas mixtures. . . and serves up, instead, entirely fresh materials ranging from the Saturnalia of Martial to Chesterton and Hilaire Belloc, including a rich selection of medievals and such festal things as recipes for lordly dishes, from the Arundel collection." Book rev. digest

"The beauty of the book is enhanced by decorations by A. C. Harradine, the most interesting of which is the frontispiece. Mr Harradine has also reproduced the music of the various carols found throughout the volume, which is a unique addition to the list of Christmas books." Boston Transcript

Painton, Mrs Edith F. A. U. (Palmer)

Commencement manual. 1915 Denison $2 808.8

1 Readers and speakers 15-22267

"A 'vade mecum' for intending graduates without ideas, meeting all kinds of demands, from salutatories and valedictories to class colors, flowers, yell, drill, song and motto. The chapters on class programs are perhaps the most helpful. The grade graduating exercises are considered fully as much as the high school." Wis. bul.

More material on graduation exercises will be found in E. E. Preston's "Popular commencement book" (1931 Denison $2) which contains models for valedictories, etc.

Phelps, William Lyon

What I like (in prose). 1933 Scribner $2.75 808.8

1 Literature—Collections 33-31627

"Contains excerpts ranging from Homer to Ring Lardner, from the 'Funeral Oration' of Pericles to Stephen Leacock's 'My Financial Career.' In an introduction, Prof. Phelps staves off criticism of his subject matter by declaring candidly that his selections are in the book solely because he chose to place them there. Before each selection he has written a brief explanation of why he likes it. . . While the reader may be tempted to dissent at times from opinions expressed in the forewords, Prof Phelps proves an admirable guide and for pure entertainment the book may be warmly commended." Springfield

1 Readers and speakers—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 25-26173

"An index to all of the readings in twenty-five selected volumes published since 1915. With the aim of making the contents of these volumes available in as many ways as possible each reading has been indexed by author, by title, by as many subjects as possible and by type, with an index to first lines and refrains. A very valuable aid, useful in meeting the constant demand for readings and recitations." Wis. bul.

Smith, William Palmer
(ed.) Prose and verse for speaking and reading. 1930 Harcourt $1.60 808.8

1 Readers and speakers 30-11059

"These selections for reading aloud or reciting will be useful to teachers and students of public speaking. The author has tried to make his collection fresh and unhackneyed, and claims that nearly ninety per cent of the material has not appeared in other collections." Bkl.

Dictionary of similes. new ed rev and enl 1924 Little $4 808.8

1 Simile 24-28476

This edition adds 2300 new similes in a separate alphabet. New index, however, includes both the old and new matter

"A varied collection . . . drawn from English and other literatures, and arranged alphabetically under subject, with author index. Authors as modern as O. Henry and Irvin Cobb, and as standard as Shakespeare, Goethe, and the Bible are well represented. . . Will furnish interest for odd moments as well as inspired ideas when these are not forthcoming." Bkl.

808.8Q Quotations

In the Decimal classification there is no separate number for books of quotations, and they may be put with other books in 808.8. For libraries where it is a convenience to have them separate, it is suggested that Q be added to the class number

Two older collections, well-indexed, now, 1933, out of print but still found useful are:
Allibone, S. A. Poetical quotations from Chaucer to Tennyson. Lippincott
Allibone, S. A. Prose quotations from Socrates to Macaulay. Lippincott

808.81 Poetry—Collections

In the 13th edition of the Dewey decimal classification the numbers 808.81-.87 have been used for collections of poetry, drama, etc. from several literatures. Libraries which have used the numbers 808.1-.7 may prefer to continue to do so. Collections covering English and American only will be found in 821.08, those covering American only in 811.08

Borrow, George Henry
(tr.) Ballads of all nations; a selection ed by R. B. Johnson. 1928 Rivers o.p. 1933 808.81
1 Ballads 2 English poetry—Collections 28-11350

"A selection made from Professor Herbert Wright's texts, transcribed from the original manuscripts or prepared by collating the manuscripts with printed versions. An exhaustive examination of sources used has been made so that the selections can now be grouped under the languages of their origin. They form a fine collection of the primitive, fighting, adventure, and story ballads of many nations." Bkl.

Another good collection unfortunately out of print, 1933, is "Folk ballads of southern Europe" translated and compiled by Sophie Jewett (1913 Putnam)

Thought and letters in western Europe, A.D. 500-900. 1931 Methuen 15s 809

1 Civilization, Medieval 2 Literature, Medieval 3 Learning and scholarship 31-35084

"An uncontroversial treatment in one volume of monastic education, literature and thought in western Europe from the collapse of the Western Roman empire to the end of the Carolingian Renaissance. Two introductory chapters on Pagan and Christian education and letters, and on the general political and social background, during the fourth and fifth centuries, lead up to a regional treatment of the subject from the beginning of the sixth to the middle of the eighth century. The fullest treatment is reserved for the revival of learning under Pepin, Charlemagne and their successors. [The author is, 1933] professor of ancient history at Cornell university." Springfield Republican

"This book, though incomplete in certain respects, is on the whole a remarkable piece of work, containing more information about many aspects of the early Middle Ages than is to be found in any other single volume in English." Times (London) lit. sup.

"A clearly written and decidedly entertaining outline of most of the world's principal national literatures, with relatively more space devoted to English and American literature. By a former literary editor of the 'Nation'. . . Includes a bibliography for the 'lover of books.' The drawings by Ontorio Ruotolo . . . are powerful and suggestive on the whole." Cleveland

Moulton, Richard Green

World literature and its place in general culture. 1911 Macmillan $2; 10s 809

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. 11-6359

"Presents a conception of World Literature not in the sense of the sum total of particular literatures, but as a unity, the literary field seen in perspective from the point of view of the English-speaking peoples. Theoretical treatment is throughout supplemented by exposition of masterpieces." Preface

"The reader will occasionally wonder at some of Professor Moulton's literary judgments. The book has enough genuine value, however, to make the discriminating reader patient of minor defects. In spite of such exceptions as those just noted, its author's judgment is generally sound; his taste is catholic; and he has a sufficiently keen sense of the distinction between accident and essence in the study of literature." Rascoe, Burton

Titans of literature; from Homer to the present. 1932 Putnam $3.75; Routledge 12s 6d 809

1 Authors 2 Literature—Hist. & crit. 32-31589

"An informal history of European literature set forth in a series of some thirty essays containing rather personal and unconventional literary criticism of the great writers, their times and their contemporaries, from Homer and the Greek dramatists to the present." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Rascoe has written a book of enduring value, which stands alone in its combination of scholarship with zest, wit and humanness. It may be quarreled with easily on many points. . . But whatever its minor faults, the book has life; its air is clean and full of sunlight, not cluttered up with the dust of the ages. It is incredible that any one could write almost five hundred pages about books and authors without ever becoming bromidic somewhere, and this Mr. Rascoe has accomplished." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Richardson, William Lee, and Owen, Jesse M.

Literature of the world. 1922 Ginn $2; 10s 6d 809

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. 22-15329

A general survey of literature, arranged by country, with one chapter on the literature of the Orient. Each chapter gives the setting of the national literature by indicating the historical background and national characteristics. Reference lists at ends of chapters

"In its most happily written sections it succeeds in suggesting the character and flavor of many of the masterpieces of literature and invites and even entices one to read these for himself. . . It is less happy, I think, in the purely informational and critical passages. . . But such defects, pardonable or unavoidable in a work of this character, should not be counted too heavily against it." School rev.

Outline of the literary history of Europe since the renaissance; tr. by A. L. McKenzie. 1930 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 809

1 Literature, Modern 30-27713

Published originally in French in 1925

"Written by a French scholar, this work will fill a useful place in our libraries, in which English and American literatures are perhaps overstressed. Here English literature is given its place in relation to the general literary development of Europe. A topical treatment makes this possible." Wis. bul.

Wendell, Barrett

Traditions of European literature, from Homer to Dante. 1920 Scribner $3.50; Murray, J. 28s 809

1 Classical literature 2 Christian literature, Early 3 Literature, Medieval 20-20996

Originally delivered as class lectures at Harvard, these chapters have been expanded and developed for the general reader. They deal with the literatures of Europe under the subdivisions, Greece, Rome, Christianity, Christendom, Middle ages, following the chapters on the literature in each case, with a summary of the traditions of the epoch. The full bibliography, p617-30, is arranged chronologically

"A most instructive book for those who are capable of profiting by it. The author knows what he is about, and does not let pedantry, or learning for learning's sake, deflect him from his praiseworthy object." Times (London) lit. sup.

‡ Winged horse; the story of the poets and their poetry. 1927 Doubleday, Doran $3.50, educ. ed $1.50 809.1

1 Poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Poets 27-27772

"The book contains some statements that are not true. It states as facts many hypotheses which are simply the intelligent guesses of the learned. A book which devotes one line to Lucretius, omits all the great literatures of Asia, and assigns a whole page to Vachel Lindsay, cannot be considered impeccable in its sense of proportion. But, though we mention these matters for the guidance of confiding readers, we do not present them as severe criticisms of the work. A book must be judged according to its aims. The aim of 'The Winged Horse' is not to give a well proportioned survey of history, but to show 'the youth of all ages,' what it should read and in what spirit the reading should be done. Judged according to such a standard, it is a decidedly readable and decidedly valuable book." Sat. rev. of lit.

Contains bibliographies and an index. A companion volume, "The winged horse anthology" is listed in 821.08

The reading lists contained in the "Winged horse" are also available separately as "Poetry and poets, a readers list" compiled by Mrs T. H. W. Elmendorf (1931 A.L.A. pa 75c)

The second impression issued in 1930 contains no changes beyond the correction of a few errata, but adds an analysis of the general argument of the book

"A series of nine lectures delivered while Professor Murray was the first incumbent of the Charles Eliot Norton professorship of poetry at Harvard University. They are plainly an attempt to restate the classical view of poetry, developing it with slight variations on the obvious thesis that the great bulk of European letters is unified in important urges, and that these urges derive from the classical Greek and Roman writers." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"One of the most important contributions to the philosophy of literary criticism which has appeared . . . during the last decade." Spectator

Tinker, Chauncey Brewster
Good estate of poetry. 1929 Little $2.50 809.1

1 Poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 3 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 29-9527

"Essays, some of them reprinted from the 'Yale review' and the 'Saturday review of literature,' others never before published. They 'examine certain tendencies in poetry and criticism against the background of what may be termed the tradition of English literature.' The author is [1933] professor of English literature at Yale university." Book rev. digest

"A notable feature . . . is what might be termed the very friendly manner in which the subject is approached. Professor Tinker, without abating in the least his respect both for poetry and the poets, is like a man on friendly terms with his neighbors. There is nothing of academic stiffness. At the same time he sees poetry clearly." N.Y. Times

This work, first published in 1925, is an outgrowth of two of the author's earlier books, "Continental drama of to-day," and "British and American drama of to-day." This edition has been thoroly revised, play lists and references brought up to date, and the bibliographical section rewritten and expanded

"Comprehensive, elementary handbook of European, English and American drama of the last half century, giving brief summaries of the lives, and of one or two significant plays of sixty-one outstanding dramatists. Designed for reference, study, and club discussions. Chronological lists of plays, valuable bibliographic material and index." N.Y. state lib.

Dixon, William Macneile

1 Tragedy [25-4014]

"Mr. Dixon's subject is tragedy as a whole, especially as seen in its greatest four masters, the three Greeks and Shakespeare; and he has not much to say of particular tragedies, whether Greek or Shakespearean. His subject is the method and business of tragedy, and above all the view of life which he considers it to imply. For these purposes he discusses the theories of various critics—Aristotle, Hegel, Hume, Schopenhauer, Nietzsche, and others." Times (London) lit. sup.

Goldberg, Isaac

Drama of transition, native and exotic playcraft. 1922 Appleton-Century $5; 21s 809.2

1 Drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Dramatists 23-2060

"After an introductory chapter on contemporary dramatic criticism the book deals with the leading transition authors of Spain, Italy, South America, France, Germany, Russia and the United States, with a minimum of biography, where necessary, a more or less full description of the contents of plays and his own critical evaluations as well as the opinions of foreign critics. Considerable attention is given to the Yiddish drama." Book rev. digest

" 'The Drama of Transition' gives ample proof of painstaking scholarship, catholicity of taste and a probing insight . . . The book is exceedingly well documented; it is richly and organically informative; almost every page will give the reader pause because the author essays, as documentary critics rarely do, fresh re-appraisals of single plays and long standing æsthetic tenets and specific judgments that centre around the dramatists on the table." 1 Strindberg, August 2 Ibsen, Henrik 3 Maeterlinck, Maurice 4 Wilde, Oscar 5 Shaw, George Bernard 6 Granville-Barker, Harley Granville 7 Schnitzler, Arthur 8 Galsworthy, John 26-20095

First published under this title in 1913, though four of the essays had previously appeared in his "Interpreters of life and the modern spirit." In this edition the essay on Galsworthy is new, the essay on Schnitzler has been expanded, and the others have been, in all possible cases, brought up to date

Contents: August Strindberg; Henrik Ibsen; Maurice Maeterlinck; Oscar Wilde; Bernard Shaw; Granville Barker; Arthur Schnitzler; John Galsworthy

"Mr. Henderson shows much skill in making clear the personality of the man and the individuality of the artist. The criticisms of their work are keen and lucid, and have the advantage of coming from one who has studied the plays exhaustively and in some cases in their native environment." Dial

Lewisohn, Ludwig

Modern drama, an essay in interpretation. 1915 Viking press $2 809.2

1 Drama—Hist. & crit. 15-9341

"Careful and stimulating study of European drama and dramatists, analyzing its foundations in Ibsen and others, the realistic drama in France, the naturalistic drama in Germany, the renaissance in England and the neo-romantic movement. On the whole admirable, but 'too fervently for Hauptmann, too contemptuous of Henry Arthur Jones; as for American drama: there isn't any!' " Viewpoints in modern drama

"Traces the development of the drama from the evolution of Greek tragedy to the present day. The author is interested chiefly in the structure and movement of plays rather than in their production, although there is some information on actors, acting, and the theater. Much attention is given to the plots, both of well known and obscure plays. Bibliography: p651-664." Bkl.

810 AMERICAN LITERATURE

Bibliography

A list of "Articles on American literature appearing in current periodicals" is now published in each number of the periodical "American literature" published quarterly by the Duke university press. The list is arranged in four periods from 1607-1800 to 1900-1933, with also a section on Language and folk literature, and Miscellaneous, and brings out a good deal of material that is not available thru the general periodical indexes

B. M. Fullerton's "Selective bibliography of American literature, 1775-1900" (1932 Payson, W. F. $10) gives a brief estimate of the more important American authors and a description of their representative works, and is a useful handbook on American first editions

1 American literature—Bio-bibl. 2 American literature—Outlines, syllabi, etc. 29-14937

"This book is not so much a revision of the Contemporary American Literature published in 1922 as it is a new book. Every feature of the original book has undergone the most searching scrutiny and revision, many new authors have been included, and hundreds of books and critical entries have been added. The new book aims to give a systematic account of contemporary American literature since 1900, a classified bibliography of all the significant writers of the period, with biographical information, suggestions for reading, and carefully chosen studies and reviews for each author of major importance." "Each of the dozen or so sections of the book is complete by itself, but the same alert intelligence and discriminating enthusiasm run through all of them. Mr. Canby writes wisely and wittily, if at times rather too easily; the volume as a whole makes refreshing reading." Times (London) lit. sup.

1 American literature—Hist. & crit.

The author was at the time of writing editor of the "Literary review." These volumes are made up of material first printed in that and other periodicals, and include essays on fiction, on the American tradition, on book reviewing, on sex and the censorship, on criticism, etc.

"'Definitions' is well named because it definitely clarifies a number of important issues and it is certainly one of the best expressions that have been given of the conception of literature as a function of society. Moreover it is no small additional advantage that Mr. Canby writes with exceeding ease. He has the simple flowing style of the best light essayist with, fortunately, many times more to say. He is surely one of the least pontifical of serious American critics." Nation

Contents: Bryant; Whittier; Emerson; Thoreau; Lowell; Whitman; Lanier; Muir; Burroughs." Book rev. digest

"As Foerster ably shows, nature, and particularly wild nature, has been for a century a living flame in America from which writer after writer has lit his torch. It is an impressive fact, the implications of which for American social and intellectual life are great. Before they are to be studied such a book as this was necessary; and in his admirable study of Thoreau in Chapter IV, the best on the whole that has appeared in American criticism, Mr. Foerster shows how the thing can be done." Oxford book of American prose, chosen & ed by Mark Van Doren. 1932 Oxford $3; 12s 6d 810.8

1 American literature—Collections 32-32296

Contains 73 selections from 48 American writers. The editor has aimed to include complete pieces instead of excerpts from longer works

"Mark Van Doren's anthologies of poetry are distinguished because his selections are sound, catholic, comprehensive, and above all fresh. This book of American prose has the same virtues. It is compiled without reference to a hundred previous anthologies. . . . Mr. Van Doren's is by far the best anthology of American prose ever compiled; and it is preceded by a Preface that is itself a distinguished example of American writing." Nation

Contents: v 1 Transplanting of culture, 1607-1650; v2 Beginnings of Americanism, 1650-1710; v3 Growth of the national spirit, 1710-1775

"Aims especially to show the development of national culture and ideals. Although not eschewing them, it does not deal primarily with political life or with historical interests. It attempts to present mainly in modernized spelling such passages from the works of colonial authors as reveal most of literary art, of individual genius, and of the national mind in the process of its differentiation." "A companion volume to 'Social Backgrounds of English Literature,' by Boas and Hahn [class 820.9]. It presents in brief compass those aspects of social history which have most definitely influenced American literature. It also discusses representative literary works in close relationships to the social conditions from which they evolved. . . It is prepared for beginners in the study of literature and aims to make them aware that American literature . . . is a direct reflection of the American social environment." Preface

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 30-9771

"The compactness of this textbook makes it useful in the average library. It traces the development of literature in America and gives concisely the most important facts regarding American authors and their works. In this second edition the chapter dealing with literature after 1883 has been rewritten and an additional chapter carries the history very briefly from 1914 to 1930. A few minor changes have been made in other parts of the book." Bkl.

Calverton, Victor Francis

Liberation of American literature. 1932 Scribner $3.75; 17s 810.9

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 32-26987

"Mr. Calverton has produced the first thoroughgoing history of American culture from the Marxian point of view. . . The essence of the Marxian historical position is the contention that not merely the obvious political events but all other cultural manifestations in the last analysis are the result of economic forces operating through social classes. This tempting thesis becomes in Mr. Calverton's application of it fruitful of many new insights and understandings." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Mr. Calverton's book is important, and rich in genuine contributions to American literary history. . . But when he leaves economic trends and comes to social moods or to individuals, particularly to great individuals, the unsoundness of his general theory vitiates his conclusions. The nineteenth century America he describes is not familiar." H. S. Canby in Sat. rev. of lit.

"The great tradition" by Granville Hicks (1933 Macmillan $2.50) is another interpretation of American literature in the light of an economic theory, namely that since the Civil war the dominant factor in American life has been the rise of industrialism

"Mr. Norman Foerster has done an important service that long waited to be done: he has analyzed the literary theories of Poe, Emerson, Lowell, and Whitman. His task was no easy one, for, except in Poe's essays, these theories are scattered through a great number of works; and he has extracted, compared, and pieced together these critical 'obiter dicta' with no little acumen. All this was worth doing; and Mr. Foerster (within his limitations) has done it well. I trust that no one interested in American literature and criticism will over-look this book." New republic

* American literature. 1923 Ginn $1.60; 8s 6d 810.9

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Authors, American [13-21798]

First published 1913. This edition contains an additional chapter of 30 pages, called Books and writers of the present day

An unusually interesting and readable textbook. The author says that he has 'tried to emphasize the men and the books that reflect the national traditions,' and that he has given considerable attention to colonial and revolutionary writers, as a background for the present. The history is divided into 5 periods, for each of which he gives a survey of social and political conditions, of its literature, and a discussion of the separate writers, major and minor

An "account of the genesis and development in American letters of certain germinal ideas that have come to be reckoned traditionally American—how they came into being here, how they were opposed, and what influence they have exerted in determining the form and scope of our characteristic ideals and institutions." Introduction

"This is a work of the first importance, lucid, comprehensive, accurate as sound scholarship should be, and also challenging, original in its thinking, shrewd, and sometimes brilliant. It is the book which historians and critics of American literature have been waiting and hoping for." H. S. Canby in Sat. rev. of lit.

"After surveying the entire history of American literature from its beginnings up to the Civil War the author summarizes in a brief chapter of thirty pages entitled 'A new nation,' all the literary achievements in this country which have taken place since that period." Boston Transcript

"Our age has been fed so much on criticism of robust vein and sharp edge that we may sometimes be misled into mistaking Mr Perry's chronic kindliness—which extends even to vers libristes—for too easy complaisance; but many readers on reviewing his volume will probably admit the rightness of most of his verdicts and his prevailing sanity." Smith, Charles Alphonso

Southern literary studies. 1927 Univ. of N. C. press $2; Oxford 9s 810.9

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 27-15370

A volume of essays and addresses which will interest especially libraries of the South

"Professor Smith played a considerable part in the literary life of the South, holding chairs in several important universities, and dying as a member of the Faculty of the United States Naval Academy in 1924. Professor Howard W. Odum has edited these studies, which include appraisals of Thomas Jefferson, Edgar Allan Poe, Joel Chandler Harris, and O. Henry." Outlook

Southern authors of a later period are treated in Emily Clark's "Innocence abroad" (1931 Knopf $3) which tells the history of the "Reviewer" periodical and its association with Cabell, Glasgow, Rives, Hergesheimer, Mencken, Van Vechten, Boyd, Wylie, Newman, Peterkin, Heyward, Paul Green and Gerald Johnson

Appraisals of Canadian literature. 1926 Macmillan o.p. 1933 810.9C

1 Canadian literature—Hist. & crit. 27-26457

In the first half "Canadian literature is considered in its relation to the history and topography of the country, in its relation to the British and American literary influences to which it might be subject, and in its relation to the principal currents of modern thought... The remaining portion of the book is a survey of the literary material which is peculiar to Canada, and of the extent to which it has been exploited by Canadian writers." Introduction

"A useful source of information on Canadian writers. The selection for criticism is somewhat arbitrary, but the criticism itself evinces common sense and good judgment." Bkl.

"Mr. Aiken's selections from his six most recent volumes of verse, chronologically arranged. Among the longer poems included are The jig of Forslin, The house of dust, Punch: the immortal liar, The pilgrimage of Festus, and Priapus and the pool." Book rev. digest

"The volume is like a collection of symphonies by a composer whose new works nearly always embody rephrasings of theses which his previous works have made familiar... An examination of Mr. Aiken's work as assembled in this volume deepens one's feelings that he is more of a musician than a thinker." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Austin, Mrs Mary (Hunter)

The American rhythm. new and enl ed 1930 Houghton $2.50 811

1 Rhythm 2 Indians of North America—Poetry 30-6268

"The introduction to this collection of Amerindian songs, lyrics, magic formulas and tribal lays, translated and arranged by Mary Austin, contains a critical essay explanatory of the rhythmic effects in the American Indian tribal dances, and the development of verse forms from this primitive poetic beginning. This is a new and enlarged edition of a book first published in 1923." Book rev. digest

In this edition "the introductory essay, perhaps the most valuable portion of the work, has been added to, and the Indian songs, poems and recitations have been improved. The points that she makes are well taken and the examples of Indian poetry that she includes in the anthology division of her book are more than ordinarily interesting. This is a work that deserves a continual circulation, for it taps an aspect of expression that belongs only to the United States, an aspect, too, that is fast becoming no more than a part of our history." Benét, Stephen Vincent

31-2655

"This book is, in the main, a selection from three earlier books of verse, all now out of print. Some new poems have been added and certain old ones altered, though not materially." Note

"He tells us good stories and he sings us gay songs. His is a banjo rhythm at times, at times that of a guitar—pleasant music in the darkness... Light verse and ballads are always acceptable when well turned and Mr. Benet's muse is facile, gracious and delightfully naive." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"A long narrative poem of great energy and sweep, which swings into view the whole course of the Civil war, throwing into relief against the war torn background individual figures of both North and South, soldiers and civilians." Book rev. digest

"It is a straightforward, close-circumstanced narrative, with great attention to the distinguishing marks of the period it chronicles. The verse varies, and there are prose interventions. If it is not within the ranks of epic poetry, it is 'a tale of the times of old' by a precise and sympathetic student." Nation and Athenaeum

Contains a fifty-page drama and a group of short poems

"There are sinewy dramatic sketches, meditative monologues, child verses, lyric odes, and fragments of dramatic narrative, all marked by fluent, unconventional music, and strong, unconventional phrase. Yet the mood of wonder that underlies all of it is singularly integral." Nation

Sonnets from a lock box, and other poems. 1929 Houghton $2 811

A series of thirty-eight correlated sonnets forms the opening group of the book, "Sonnets from a lock box." Lyrics on varied subjects follow, and the volume concludes with three narrative poems under the title, "Three stories told in a haunted house"

"The simplicity of taste, together with a gentle humor, a sort of arch slyness, that mark the poems of 'Sonnets From a Lock Box' should win for the author many a reader." N.Y. Times the sake of older readers who will welcome it and to round out the American poetry collection." Wis. bul.

Cary, Alice, and Cary, Phoebe

Poems. household ed Houghton $2.50 811

[21-18164]

Poems first published between 1850 and 1871 "It is the poetry of sentiment, memory, and domestic affection, entirely feminine, rather tame and diffuse as a whole, but tender and sweet, cherished by many good women and dear to simple hearts." H. A. Beers

Coffin, Robert Peter Tristram

Ballads of square-toed Americans. 1933 Macmillan $1.50 811

1 American ballads and songs 33-27391

"Poems about sturdy pioneer Americans of many kinds: New Englanders, Chesapeake planters, and even Mormons. The prolog, called The Strange Children, is a long poem read as the Phi Beta Kappa poem last commencement at Harvard, and the subject is an heroic and idealist vision of America." Book rev. digest

"The admirable qualities of the New Englander are celebrated by Mr. Coffin here in verse that has the same stalwart sense of responsibility and self-sufficiency and the same pithy language of his subjects. It is clean-cut and competent, with dry, and sometimes caustic, humor." Commonweal

Conkling, Mrs Grace Walcott (Hazard)

Afternoons of April. (New poetry ser.) 1915 Houghton $1.50 811

15-19637

"All from the inner store of dreams the poet creates her beauty of life, quite independent of and unswayed by the ruling passions of her time." Boston Transcript

If a later title is desired either in addition or as a substitute, "Witch, and other poems" (1929 Knopf $1; Allen, G. 6s) is a new collection from Mrs Conkling's work done since 1926

Crane, Hart

Collected poems; ed by Waldo Frank. 1933 Liveright $2.50 811

33-27111

This volume contains "White Buildings," "The Bridge" and forty-four of Hart Crane's unpublished verses, including "Key West: an island sheaf," the sequence of poems which he had completed just before his death

"Most of the posthumous pieces seem fragmentary, but the longest of them, 'Eternity,' is an extraordinarily fine poem which shows Crane in a new role, that of a reporter with a sharp, quick, cinematic style. A dozen early poems are printed in an appendix, together with an essay on 'Modern Poetry' which proves that the poet wrote good prose—something his private letters would prove more abundantly." New republic

Crane, Nathalia Clara Ruth

Janitor's boy. 1924 Boni $1.50; Lane 5s 811

24-12775

"These poems of a little girl show the influence of a wide range of reading and an enthusiasm for life. Some indicate simply a happy rhyming gift and a sense of humor, but the rhythm, well-chosen words and imagery of others reveal a rarer poetic ability." Bkl.

Crane, Stephen

Collected poems; ed by Wilson Follett. 1930 Knopf $2.50; Allen, G. 7s 6d 811

30-9605

"Stephen Crane, the romanticist and adventurer and the novelist of the '90s, published during his short lifetime two books of poetry: 'The Black Riders,' and 'War is Kind.' These two volumes, together with certain other more recently discovered poems, are now given us again in the 'Collected Poems.'" Book rev. digest

"There is nothing contemptible in the least of his poems. Acidulous and brilliant, unappreciated in his time, these elliptical concisions have not yet received their due from a generation which employs their very technique. . . It is a cause for gratification that the . . . [publisher has] risked the first complete—and popularly priced—collection of Crane's concisely intimate poetry." Sat. rev. of lit.

Cullen, Countee

Black Christ & other poems. 1929 Harper $2; Putnam 5s 811

29-24220

"Though the lyrics in Countee Cullen's new book do not display any technical advance over his previous work, and though they do betray an uncertainty of tone and mood that has not been observable hitherto, the volume is made notable by its title poem, 'The Black Christ.' Beauty of imagery, vigor of line and intensity of mood are sustained throughout a poem of considerable length." N.Y. World

Smaller libraries may not need this title in addition to the earlier work but it is listed here as a recent title which may well be added if there is an interest in this poet. Add also the author's "Copper sun" (1927 Harper $2; 6s) if still more is needed

* Color. 1925 Harper $2; 6s 811

25-21678

"A first book of poems, reprinted from The American Mercury and other periodicals. They are somewhat morbid lyrics, but with a touch of the real thing in them. The author is a negro, and 'color' is the color of race." Chicago

"Countee Cullen is more than a racially self-conscious rhymster. His race and its sufferings give him depth and an understanding of pain and sorrow. But he rises above all surface barriers and sings of experiences of universal appeal, limited only by the winds and skies." Sat. rev. of lit.

Daly, Thomas Augustine

McAroni ballads, and other verses. 1919 Harcourt $1.75 811

19-18252

"Delightful and often clever verses in Italian or Irish dialect, some in English undefiled, combining fun and feeling." N.Y. state lib.

Another volume of the author's light verse which is available is "McAroni medleys" (1932 Harcourt $1.75)

Madrigali. 1912 Harcourt $1.75; Chambers 5s 811

12-25599

"To his simple themes he brings a depth of understanding and a sympathetic insight that are both rare and delightful. Mr. Daly is a genuine lover of humanity; a writer who finds light and beauty in the slightest of subjects and the humblest of lives. Much of his best work has been in the Irish and Italian dialect—a fact which seems to have blinded some writers to the charm of his verse." Outlook

Dickinson, Emily

‡ Poems. centenary ed 1930 Little $4 811

31-26084

A volume edited by M. D. Bianchi and A. L. Hampson, containing the poems of the three early volumes, "Poems, first, second and third series," and those in "The single hound" which were brought together in 1924 as "Complete poems," and "Further poems" published separately in 1929. Libraries already having these two volumes will probably not need to replace them with this

"The verses, written so many years ago, are surprisingly modern in technic and tone, and mark her as an imagist whose line is full of melody and whose mood and thought range from the airiest fancy or mocking irreverence to the themes of grief and death." N.Y. state lib.

A selection of her poems is available in an English edition as "Selected poems" edited by Conrad Aiken (1924 Cape, J. 6s)

Dillon, George

Boy in the wind. 1927 Viking press $1.50 811

27-19705

A collection of the published verse of one of America's younger poets who at nineteen became associate editor of "Poetry"

"A careful first collection containing a majority of good poems and a few exquisite poems." Boston Transcript

Flowering stone. 1931 Viking press $1.75 811

31-25183

"Lovely lyrics and several fine sonnets by one of the more promising and sensitive of the younger verse writers." N.Y. libraries

Received the Pulitzer award for poetry in 1932

Dunbar, Paul Laurence

* Complete poems. 1913 Dodd $3 811

13-25781

Includes "Lyrics of lowly life," "Lyrics of the hearthside," "Lyrics of love and laughter," and "Lyrics of sunshine and shadow," with a few other poems. Introduction by W. D. Howells

"Dunbar is the first American negro of pure African blood to reveal innate distinction in literature; as W. D. Howells has said, 'to feel the negro life esthetically and express it lyrically.' His dialect pieces are delightful." Review of reviews

Eliot, Thomas Stearns

Waste land. 1922 Liveright $1.50 811

23-1936

A long poem, which first appeared as a prize poem in the "Dial"

"The power of suggesting intolerable tragedy at the heart of the trivial or the sordid is used with a skill little less than miraculous in 'The Waste Land,' and the power is the more moving because of the attendant conviction that this terrible resembling contrast between nobility and baseness is an agony in the mind of Mr. Eliot of which only a portion is transferred to that of the reader." Literary rev.

"Poetry of T. S. Eliot" by H. R. Williamson (1933 Putnam $2; Hodder 5s) is an enthusiastic commentary which by explaining the allusions makes possible a wider understanding of the poet's work

26-10232

"At times I think him the first of our lyric poets, his turns are so wild and unexpected. . . He often captures us with absolute beauty, the poetry that poets love,—the lilt and melody of Shelley . . . joined to precision of thought and outline." E. C. Stedman

G. S. Hubbell's "Concordance to the poems of Ralph Waldo Emerson" (1932 Wilson, H.W. $6; Holmes) is a complete concordance to his poems as they appear in v 9 of the Centenary edition of his works, listed in this Catalog in class 814. The Centenary edition is especially valuable for its notes

Ficke, Arthur Davison

Selected poems, with a preface on the nature of poetry. 1926 Doran o.p. 1933 811

26-16414

"Ficke has included many new poems here, and the old ones which have most rarity, substance, and power. This poet's mastery of the sonnet form is extraordinary. He uses it with grace and agility. He uses it for varying emotions and ideas, and in every unit of fourteen lines there is vision and beauty. In addition to the famous 'Sonnets of a Portrait-Painter' and 'Nocturne in a Library,' there are several other sonnet sequences and individual sonnets by the score." Bookman

Field, Eugene

* Poems. complete ed 1910 Scribner $3.50; Laurie 21s 811

10-28193

Contains the poems published in "A little book of western verse," "Love songs of childhood," "With trumpet and drum," those scattered through "Culture's garland," and "Sharps and flats," and some fugitive verse

Field, Rachel Lyman

Points east, narratives of New England. Macmillan $2 811

30-11753

First published in 1930 by Brewer

"Four long narrative poems, all dealing with the mystery, color and romance brought back to sea-coast Maine by sailors, in the days of the Far Eastern trade. All are in homely vernacular and have charm and atmosphere. The illustrations are from early English and American chap books." Cleveland

Frost, Robert

* Collected poems. 1930 Holt $5; Longmans 15s 811

31-2784

"Attractive single volume edition containing 'A boy's will,' 'North of Boston,' 'Mountain interval,' 'New Hampshire,' and 'West-running brook,' together with six hitherto unpublished poems." N.Y. libraries

"'Collected poems' shows and shows clearly that Frost has written as fine poetry as any living American and that the proportion of first-rate poetry to the whole is greater than that in the work of any other contemporary. This last point is important not because quantity matters, but because so many American poets, after a brief productive period, have slipped into silence or mediocrity." New republic

If the separate volumes are needed either in addition to this collection or in place of it they may still be had from Holt at prices varying from $1.50 for "A boy's will" to $2.50 for "New Hampshire." There is an earlier volume "Selected poems" (1928 Holt $2.50, student's ed $2) which contains a representative selection from all these volumes except "West-running brook"

Gifford, Mrs Fannie Stearns (Davis)

Ancient beautiful things. 1923 Macmillan $1.25 811

23-11789

"A thin book of delicately made lyrics on intimate themes, often domestic. The poems are not ambitious, but are largely the expression of joy arising from simple things, and of thanksgiving for that joy." Outlook

Gilder, Richard Watson

Complete poems. household ed 1908 Houghton $2.50 811

8-31503

"Verse marked by the mystical beauty, intense emotion, and psychological distinctions, of the select illuminati." E. C. Stedman

Gregory, Horace

No retreat. 1933 Harcourt $1.50 811

33-5860

"'No Retreat,' though in it the tricks of spurious modernism are achieved, is, perhaps, in its basic philosophy, the most truly modern volume of poetry which has come out of this country. Its finished music is no ornamental device, but the evolved medium of a man at once capable of social passion and classic justice. Not all the poems are equally successful. . . None the less, considered in its totality,

Gregory, Horace—Continued
this volume has a more unified beauty and seems the result of applying a harsher self-criticism to the choice of its content." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Guiney, Louise Imogen
Happy ending. new ed 1927 Houghton $2.50 811
27-21050

This new edition of Miss Guiney's lyrics contains twelve poems here for the first time collected

"Out of the featureless ranks of the minor poets Miss Guiney has emerged with a shining loveliness and a fragile strength." Nation

Guiterman, Arthur
Laughing muse. 1915 Harper $2.25 811
15-18768

"Clever inventions in verse; mostly satire, pointed but without venom, on the various phases of New York life." Cleveland

Two other collections which might well be added if there is a demand for more are his "Light guitar" (1923 Harper $2) and "Song and laughter" (1929 Dutton $2.50)

Harte, Bret
Poetical works. household ed Houghton $2.50 811
26-21389

Humor, pathos and power of characterization are combined to portray vividly men and conditions in the western mining camps during the last half of the nineteenth century

Hoffenstein, Samuel
Poems in praise of practically nothing. 1928 Liveright $2 811
28-8645

"Sardonic, exceedingly clever, witty verse, in which Hoffenstein tilts at mankind in general and womankind in particular." N.Y. libraries

"At his best he can be gorgeously biting, despite his leaning toward brittle wisecrackery,—and toward the end of the book, in the 'Interlude, for a Solitary Flute,' he flashes into real poetry that rouses our admiration." Sat. rev. of lit.

Holmes, Oliver Wendell
* Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50 811
4-13823

Also available in the household edition (Houghton $2.50)

"From his poetry many delightfully humorous, sentimental, and pathetic pieces may be selected . . . Holmes yields to no one as the laureate of a college, of a cultured city, and of graceful old age, and to few as an urbane writer of familiar verse." W. P. Trent's Hist. of Amer. literature

Hughes, Langston
Dream keeper, and other poems. 1932 Knopf $2 811
32-19186

The author has made this selection for young people from the verse included in "Weary blues" and "Fine clothes to the Jew," and has added some new poems

"The brevity of many of the selections greatly enhances their effectiveness. They are simple, human, vivid, tingling with sincerity." Boston Transcript

"Weary blues" (1926 Knopf o.p. 1933) expresses the emotions and hopes of the negro race in America, in poems that range from the clangor of jazz to a wistful sadness. "Fine clothes to the Jew" (1927 Knopf $2) is another small book more even in quality

Jeffers, John Robinson
Roan stallion, Tamar, and other poems. 1925 Random house $2.50; Hogarth 7s 6d 811
25-24489

"A collection of remarkable poetry containing long narrative poems . . . and fine lyrics . . . all written in powerful free verse. The work is saturated with the atmosphere of mountains, canyons, the sea, and the California coast near Carmel where the author lives." Bkl.

"It is only fair to warn many readers that they will be horrified by its magnificent but perverse imagining." Bookman

A later book by this author is "Give your heart to the hawks" (1933 Random house $2.50) consisting of a long narrative poem and eight shorter poems

Johnson, James Weldon
God's trombones. 1927 Viking press $2.50; Allen, G. 3s 6d 811
27-12269

"Seven Negro sermons in verse. Out of memories of his boyhood, the poet has recreated the art of the old time preachers, achieving effects quite remarkably without the use of dialect." Wis. bul.

Kilmer, Mrs Aline (Murray)
Selected poems. 1929 Doubleday, Doran $1.50 811
29-7114

"The publishers have made this selection from Aline Kilmer's three books of verse, 'Vigils,' 'The poor king's daughter,' and 'Candles that burn,' adding two poems that have never before appeared in print." Book rev. digest

"Mrs. Kilmer does not possess the gifts which a major poet must have, but to competency she adds an appealing courageousness. In much of her poetry there is the sincerity of personal grief and personal joy, and this alone would justly win her many readers." N.Y. World

Kilmer, Joyce
Joyce Kilmer; ed by R. C. Holliday. 2v 1918 Doubleday, Doran $5 811
19-148

"Volume one collects his poems, and contains an unusually well drawn memoir by Robert Cortes Holliday which shows us the personality of the man and poet. Volume two contains six essays, a selection from his letters, many written from France, and four miscellaneous pieces." Wis. bul.

"Trees, and other poems" (1914 Doubleday, Doran $1.25) is a smaller collection of the author's early poetry which might be sufficient for the needs of very small libraries

Lanier, Sidney
* Poems. new ed 1918 Scribner $3.50 811
17-1199

A complete collection edited by his wife and with a memorial by W. H. Ward

"Second only to Poe among the poets of the South." Pratt alcove

Leonard, William Ellery Channing
Two lives. 1925 Viking press $2 811
25-22776

"In three sonnet sequences the story is told of an intimate personal tragedy and the anguish of a soul racked by conscience." Book rev. digest

"Not the least remarkable feature of the poem is the sheer power of the narrative to startle and waylay. The bald and dreadful tale takes on majesty and beauty by the author's employment of the poetic medium, and more especially by the use of the grave, succinct, austere sonnet stanza." N.Y. Tribune

Lindsay, Vachel

‡ Collected poems. rev ed 1925 Macmillan $3.50; 15s 811

25-10046

"A second edition of the complete poems which adds 136 pages and is illustrated with Mr. Lindsay's characteristic drawings." Bkl.

"Poetry especially written to be read or chanted aloud. It does not disdain the use of 'shuffle along' jazz measures, but is curiously effective. Sometimes Lindsay even indicates the musical instruments which should accompany the chanting, as bass drums, banjos, and tambourines. The quick-step metre of 'The Congo' is not to be excelled." Chicago

Selected poems. (Modern readers' ser.) 1931 Macmillan 80c 811

31-3164

An extensive selection with a critical introduction by Hazelton Spencer

Longfellow, Henry Wadsworth

4-13830

"The American poet most generally read and appreciated, and the favorite poet with American young people." Pratt alcove

Lowell, Amy

* Selected poems; ed by J. L. Lowes. 1928 Houghton $3 811

28-26446

From Amy Lowell's eleven volumes of verse Mr Lowes has made a selection of her most distinctive and permanent work

"The labor of condensation has been performed with a fine and scholarly tact, and the volume will certainly come to represent for most readers all that is permanently interesting in Amy Lowell's work." Springfield Republican

If libraries feel a need for separate volumes of Miss Lowell's poetry, such as "East wind," "Men, women and ghosts." "Sword blades and poppy seeds" etc. these are still available from Houghton at $2.25 each

Lowell, James Russell

4-13831

Also available in the household edition (Houghton $2.50)

His verses are "a rapid fire of wit and common sense and no poems have ever more distinctly revealed the New England temper. . . The best have become a lasting part of our popular literature." Cambridge hist. of Amer. literature

MacLeish, Archibald

Poems, 1924-1933. 1933 Houghton $3 811

"This book is not a 'collected edition' of my poems nor does it purport to trace my development as a poet. . . What I have done here has been to select from poems already published and from poems not yet published, those pieces I can now reread without embarrassment." Foreword

"I think it is the sensitive, lyrical MacLeish who is worthy of our attention. It is he, the Romantic, nostalgic poet who says most and who is the better artist. . . It is hardly necessary for me to add that any book that contains 'You, Andrew Marvell' and the opening lines of 'Conquistador' (though the entire poem is included) is a valuable item in any library of contemporary poetry." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

The author's "Conquistador" is also available separately (1932 Houghton $2.50; Gollancz 7s 6d) It tells the story of the conquest of Mexico by Cortez

Markham, Edwin

* Man with the hoe, and other poems. 1899 Doubleday, Doran $2 811

99-2566

This is Markham's earliest collection. The title poem, inspired by Millet's painting, is still his most famous poem

Masters, Edgar Lee

Selected poems. 1925 Macmillan $2.50 811

25-18498

"Mr. Masters in a brief introduction remarks that he has put into this volume poems which show his range and quality, without dependence on other poems. It is naturally of great interest to reread many of the verses, now that they may be regarded coolly. Mr. Masters's lyrical brutality and keen interest in the unfortunate bits of human driftwood make some of his phrases seem stark rather than beautiful." Boston Transcript

‡ Spoon River anthology. 1915 Macmillan $2.25; Laurie 12s 6d 811

15-8027

"A series of character sketches which reveal the life of a village community in the Middle West. They are in the form of epitaphs in a kind of 'free verse.'" Pratt quarterly

"An extraordinary book, which will delight some readers, as its cynicism—or realism—will offend others." N.Y. branch lib. news

Millay, Edna St Vincent

* Fatal interview. 1931 Harper $2; Hamilton, H. 5s 811

31-9922

"A sequence of 52 distinguished and beautiful love sonnets in the Shakesperean tradition. Rich as many of the lines are in classic symbols, the poet has stamped the whole with her own individual idiom." N.Y. libraries

"Greatness is present in these sonnets. It is there as presence even more distinctly than it is there as an agency. It is the voice rather than the speech that uplifts and subdues us." O. W. Firkins in Sat. rev. of lit.

* Harp-weaver, and other poems. 1923 Harper $2; Secker 6s 811

23-27170

"Verse of a singing lyric quality, written with skill and a charming simplicity of expression. The predominant theme is the transitoriness of love, but in mood the range is wide, from the ironic to the whimsical, and from the tragic to the tender." N.Y. state lib.

Renascence, and other poems. 1917 Harper $2 811

31-14569

"Five sonnets, some brief lyrics and three long poems—'Renascence,' 'Interim' and 'Suicide.' Remarkable for homeliness of subject, intensity of feeling and simplicity and beauty of style." Cleveland

Second April. 1921 Harper $2 811

21-26734

"Poetry with a wayward personal charm. It alternates joy and sadness, but shows always a passion for beauty." Chicago

"In her lyrical expression of simple yet strong emotions, of enjoyments, longings, and griefs, there is evidence enough that here emerges a writer to be reckoned with." Times (London) lit. sup.

Two other collections of her lyrics are "A few figs from thistles" (1923 Harper $2) and "Buck in the snow" (1929 Harper $2; 5s). "Edna St Vincent Millay's poems selected for young people" (1929 Harper $2.50) is recommended as a good introduction to her poetry

Miller, Joaquin

Poetical works. 1923 Putnam $3.50 811

23-7262

A complete one-volume edition of Joaquin Miller's poems, with a biographical and critical introduction, by Stuart P. Sherman

"There is little variety of verse form, but there is much and lavish beauty mingled, here and there, with sentimentality and overemphatic rhythm. Even in the most erring of them one comes upon memorable lines, and recognizes the sincerity and vigor of this pioneer who was born in a covered wagon, and who spent his last years on the hills overlooking San Francisco Bay." Bookman

Moody, William Vaughn

Poems and poetic dramas. (Poems and plays, v1) 1912 Houghton $2.50 811

[12-26319]

Contents: Gloucester moors, and other poems; Second coming, and later poems; Poetic dramas: Fire-bringer; Masque of judgment; Death of Eve (a fragment)

"Moody's poetry . . . is notable for its freedom from response to the obvious, the trivial, the merely pretty. This is, no doubt, one reason why, for all his rich and various melody, his wealth of fresh and vivid imagery, his modernity, his worship of beauty and love, his depth of spiritual emotion, he is not popular, is indeed hardly remembered by any except those to whom poetry is not an idle pastime, but a passion." J. M. Manly in Introduction

The author's "Selected poems; ed with introd. by R. M. Lovett" (1931 Houghton $2.50) contains representative selections from the "Poems and poetic dramas." Also available in the Riverside college classics edition (Houghton $1)

Morley, Christopher Darlington

* Poems. 1929 Doubleday, Doran $2 811

29-25329

A collected edition containing "Parsons' pleasure," "Songs for a little house," "The rocking horse," "Hide and seek," "Translations from the Chinese," and "Toulemonde"

Neihardt, John Gneisenau

Collected poems. 1926 Macmillan $4; 20s 811

26-21770

"In this book Mr. Neihardt has brought together his three epics of the west—'The Song of Three Friends.' 'The Song of Hugh Glass,' and 'The Song of the Indian Wars'; the poems previously published in one volume called 'The Quest,' and his two poetic dramas which were published together under the title of 'Two Mothers.'" Chicago

"The three members of his Epos are Mr. Neihardt's most important work to date, and they partially compose a work to which he is devoting the twenty best years of his life. . . He has given us vivid, heroic, authentic canvases. He has handled the flow of his couplets with power and beauty, he has evoked thrilling drama. His lyric period is past; but he never was a lyric poet of the first water, while he is nigh to be narrative poet of that kind." Sat. rev. of lit.

Parker, Mrs Dorothy (Rothschild)

Death and taxes. 1931 Viking press $1.75 811

31-16112

"The book consists of 62 pages of poetry, some of it the kind that 'Enough Rope' was mostly, a bit flippant, and always amusing, and some of it with a deep poetic beauty." Chicago Daily Tribune

Enough rope. 1926 Liveright $2 811

27-279

"Amusing little poems previously published in Life, Vanity Fair, The New Yorker, and The New York World. Sparkling and sophisticated, modern, and lightly cynical." Chicago

The author's "Sunset gun" (1928 Liveright $2) is written with the same wit and irony and with a maturer outlook

Peabody, Josephine Preston

Collected poems. 1927 Houghton $2 811

28-347

"It is a complete portrait of a woman that stands forth here—a woman who lived life well, intensely, and set it down in verse that is highly significant in her time." Sat. rev. of lit.

Poe, Edgar Allan

* Poems and three essays on poetry; ed by R. B. Johnson. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 811

27-27611

Complete poetical works. Includes also "Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym" and prose miscellanies

"His poems convey no moral, they echo no call to duty, they celebrate beauty only, beauty immaterial and evanescent; they are their own excuse for being." Brander Matthews

There is also an edition by E. C. Stedman and G. E. Woodberry (1914 Scribner $2) in the Scribner's series of modern poets

Pound, Ezra Loomis

Personae. 1926 Liveright $3.50; Am. bk. supply 17s 6d 811

27-1691

Collection containing all the poems of Ezra Pound except the unfinished "Cantos"

"It is impossible not to admire his cool detachment, his irony, the spare precision with which he uses his colors, the hard skill with which he balances, in his patterns, symmetry with asymmetry; his satire is of the keenest; and his sense of the age, of the modern, of the Twentieth Century manners is exceptionally sharp." Independent

Reese, Lizette Woodworth

Selected poems. 1926 Farrar $2; Longmans 7s 6d 811

26-12754

"Lizette Woodworth Reese's poetry has for its characteristic quality an emotion that has been schooled and that finds its interpretation in things that traditionally have been found lovable —simple and natural things." Chicago

White April, and other poems. 1930 Farrar $1.50 811

30-23823

"Once again we accompany Miss Reese among her flowers, through humble doors, down the lovely countryside which is familiar to the long-time admirers of her exquisite yet sturdy art." Pittsburgh

Another small collection of this author's poems is "Pastures, and other poems" (1933 Farrar $1.50)

Ridge, Lola

Firehead. 1929 Brewer o.p. 1933 811

1 Jesus Christ—Crucifixion—Poetry 30-1145

"A narrative poem, the scene and time of which are the day of the crucifixion of Christ. The poem is divided into nine parts, eight of them presenting a specific character associated with the event of crucifixion: Christ, John, Judas, the two Marys, Peter, the Merchant of Babylon, Thaddeus the Unborn, and the Bondman. Part nine describes the resurrection." Book rev. digest

"Among religious poems, especially among religious poems of today, 'Firehead' must be given a very high place. It is forceful and beautiful, a work in which imagination and intelligence fuse in a white flame." N.Y. Times

Riley, James Whitcomb

‡ Best loved home ballads. 1931 Blue ribbon bks. $1 811

31-31662

A good selection from his poems

A different collection of poems is his "Best loved poems" (1930 Blue ribbon bks. $1) containing the poems in his "Host of children"

Riley, James W.—Continued
published by Bobbs in 1930 with 16 additional poems. The black and white sketches have been included, but the color plates have been dropped

Complete works, ed by E. H. Eitel. biographical ed 6v 1913 Bobbs o.p. 1933 811

It is desirable to get this complete edition, originally published at $18, second hand if possible. It "includes 220 poems which have never before appeared in book form, and many of which are here printed for the first time, as well as several heretofore unpublished prose sketches—these in addition to all of the author's works which have previously been published." Nation

"In his preference for native themes and homely, unliterary treatment of seemingly unpoetic material he continued the work of the Pike County balladists. More than any one else Riley is responsible for the modern newspaper type of ballad that is to poetry what ragtime is to music." F. L. Pattee

The author's "Hoosier book" containing poems in dialect, and "Lockerbie book" poems not in dialect, both collected and arranged by H. H. Howland, are available (Bobbs ea $3)

Rittenhouse, Jessie Belle

Door of dreams. 1918 Houghton $1.25 811

18-5144

"Little love poems which have a rare grace and delicacy both in conception and form." Wis. bul.

Robinson, Edwin Arlington

‡ Collected poems. 1929 Macmillan $5 811

All of his published work up to and including "Cavender's house"

"During a period of poetic experimenting, which had its kernel of true and original inspiration but a large amount of wilful and deplorable imitation, Mr Robinson has remained true to the higher esthetic ideals of the poetic art. . . He has been a great poetic influence, helping to keep alive an appreciation of the purest English poetry by aiming at fresh embodiments of its spirit." Springfield Republican

Glory of the Nightingales. 1930 Macmillan $2 811

30-24530

"Of the characters in this soul-drama only two are living—the man who did the wrong and the one who was wronged—but the woman whom both loved, dead many years, is present on every page. A somber tale in blank verse." Pittsburgh

Matthias at the door. 1931 Macmillan $1.75; 9s 811

31-24423

"A narrative poem describing the subtle relationships of three men and one woman, and the fates which overtook them. It is mainly 'a study of how Matthias, whose faith is in his own rectitude, is stripped of complacency until nothing is left him, not even self-pity, and how he comes to understand the significance of lives other than his own.'" Book rev. digest

Nicodemus. 1932 Macmillan $1.75; 8s 6d 811

32-24563

The themes of four of these ten poems are biblical, and three have their settings in the West Indies. Contents: Nicodemus; Sisera; Toussaint L'Ouverture; Ponce de Leon; Annandale again; How Annandale went out; The spirit speaking; Young Gideon; The prodigal son; Hector Kane; March of the Cameron men

Poems; selected, with a preface, by Bliss Perry. 1931 Macmillan $2.25 811

"A collection made up of shorter poems, selections from a few of the longer poems, and sonnets. A good collection for a library." Wis. bul.

This book is also available with Charles Cestre's "Introduction to Edwin Arlington Robinson" as "Introduction to Edwin Arlington Robinson and Selected poems, with a preface by Bliss Perry" (2v in 1 1931 Macmillan $3.50) a combination of two books formerly published separately. The "Introduction" is a sympathetic estimate by a professor at the University of Paris, and is still available separately (1930 Macmillan $1.75; 9s)

Talifer. 1933 Macmillan $1.75; 7s 6d 811

33-27408

"A long narrative poem of psychological interest based on a triangle situation and centering about a doctor who helps untangle his friends' marital mistakes." Bkl.

Sandburg, Carl

‡ Selected poems; ed by Rebecca West. 1926 Harcourt $2 811

26-15796

"Rebecca West's introduction on Carl Sandburg and Chicago is worth reading as an English commentary on America. The poems are well chosen and the whole is a good representative volume for a library." Wis. bul.

"There is a breadth of emotion in the smallest of the fragments; an amplitude, recognizably American in range." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Early moon" (1930 Harcourt $2.50) is a selection of seventy of the author's poems for young people, with a brief introduction on poetry in general

Sarett, Lew R.

Wings against the moon. 1931 Holt $2 811

31-24517

"Dramatic lyrics and narratives, nature and love lyrics, and character sketches of wild animals and primitive backwoods folk—Indians, French-Canadians, rangers, and timber-cruisers." Cleveland

"Poems which . . . show the author's deep affection for his western country and his power to give a universal significance to its natural life." Pittsburgh

Seeger, Alan

Poems; with an introduction by William Archer. 1916 Scribner $2; Constable 5s 811

16-24961

"Imaginative beauty and much nobility of expression mark all of these poems, but their viewpoint is always that of the conventionally romantic." Bookman

Sill, Edward Rowland

Poetical works. household ed Houghton $2.50 811

6-35717

First published in one volume in 1902

"He was a poet of strong spiritual feeling and 'The Fool's Prayer' and 'Opportunity' are perenially popular." Bessie Graham's Bookman's manual

Stedman, Edmund Clarence

Poems. household ed 1901 Houghton o.p. 1933 811

[8-34145]

"He translated Theocritus, made poems of Grecian beauty, and dreamed dreams in a world far from his own land and day. . . He published enough poetry to make possible a 'Household Edition,' but of it all only a few virile war lyrics, written in the days when the war shook

him out of his dreamy reveries, and two or three other lyrics that came from his heart, have survived him." F. L. Pattee

Tabb, John Bannister
Poetry of Father Tabb; ed by F. A. Litz. 1928 Dodd $3; Lane 8s 6d 811
28-18053

"A complete volume of Father Tabb's poetic brevities has long been a standing need to students of American poetry. Here we have a most satisfactory book, well printed, and with an interesting introduction by the editor. . . The verse of Father Tabb has for long appealed widely, both to Catholics and to non-Catholics. His epigrammatic gift was great, his insight often profound." Sat. rev. of lit.

Teasdale, Sara
Love songs. 1917 Macmillan $1.60 811
17-25236

"Besides new poems, this book contains lyrics taken from 'Rivers to the Sea,' 'Helen of Troy and other poems,' and one or two from an earlier volume." Prefatory note

"Characterized, as her work has always been, by a musical facility, strong imagery, and that note of mingled joy and pain which haunts the moments of love, whether in its inception, its fulfillment, or its loss." Dial

Rivers to the sea. 1915 Macmillan $1.60 811
15-20000

"Poems which are conspicuous . . . for their combined delicacy and vigor and their perfection of workmanship. The short love lyrics have signal and distinctive merit and sing themselves into the heart—passionate but restrained, wholly unlabored, and beautiful in imagination, diction and form." Wis. bul.

"Many of her poems are brief ones of two stanzas, recalling Heine without imitating him; and in their brief compass she conveys perfectly her mood and her thought." Yale review

Three other volumes of the author's lyrics are "Dark of the moon" (1926 Macmillan $1.50) "Flame and shadow" (1920 Macmillan $1.60) and "Strange victory" (1933 Macmillan $1)

Thomas, Edith Matilda
Selected poems. 1926 Harper $2 811
26-18427

"Edith M. Thomas, who was hailed in the eighties as a sister to Keats, is practically unknown today among young poets. Jessie Rittenhouse, in the 'Selected poems of Edith M. Thomas,' has collected and edited both her published and unpublished work and prefaced it with a memoir." Bookman

"I have heard Edith Thomas's verse called cold, but to me it has the truest warmth—not of color but of tenderness. Let no one consider that he is acquainted with American poetry at its most artistic expression who does not know this melodious volume." R. U. Johnson in Sat. rev. of lit.

Torrence, Frederic Ridgely
Hesperides. 1925 Macmillan $1.75 811
25-9353

"Ridgely Torrence is not only a masterly poet; he is a mystic of no mean stature. I have called Mr. Torrence a masterly poet because I believe I could quote as many finely wrought lines from his book as from any volume of the same size by a contemporary American. His imagery is the result of fresh, keen realization. His music is intricate, but gracious." Marguerite Wilkinson in International book review

Untermeyer, Louis
Burning bush. 1928 Harcourt $2 811
28-11421

"He is a musician above all, and the present volume which marks a distinct advance over his past performance, shows a technical achievement that it would be difficult to match. His shrewd rhymes, his fine assonances, his careful rhythms, are a continual delight to the ear." Bookman

Van Dyke, Henry
Poems. new and rev ed 1920 Scribner $3.50 811
21-3283

Poems which reflect a love of nature as well as a high moral purpose. This edition includes the drama, "The house of Rimmon"; the poems included in the volumes, "Music," "The toiling of Felix," "The builders" and the "White bees" and many others hitherto uncollected

The author's "Chosen poems" (1927 Scribner $2.50; Bird 12s 6d) is a selection of his best known poems

Whitman, Walt
‡ Leaves of grass; ed by Emory Holloway. 1924 Doubleday, Doran $3 811
25-1488

"An excellent inclusive edition, in text and arrangement following the Putnam edition of 1902. Whitman's prefaces to his volumes of poetry of 1855, '72, '76 and '88 have been brought together at the back of the book. A list of variorum readings and an alphabetical title index are included." Bkl.

"'Leaves of Grass,' [is] a book of singular service, a book which tumbled the world upside down for me, blew into space a thousand cobwebs of genteel and ethical illusions, and, having thus shaken my tabernacle of lies, set me back again upon a strong foundation of all the original and manly virtues. But it is, once more, only a book for those who have the gift of reading." R. L. Stevenson

Large libraries which have it or can obtain it second hand will find Walt Whitman's "Uncollected poetry and prose, edited by Emory Holloway" (2v 1921 Doubleday, Page o.p. 1931) useful. It contains miscellaneous prose and verse, selected from his magazine and newspaper publications as important in illustrating his life and literary growth

Whittier, John Greenleaf
‡ Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50; Oxford 6s 811
4-13847

"Whether his work is poetry or rhymed propaganda, it is literature, for it expresses a man and events in words that are today alive with emotion." J. Macy's Spirit of American literature

Widdemer, Margaret
Collected poems. 1928 Harcourt $2.50 811
28-22324

Contains the poems included in the author's volumes published under the titles: "Factories"; "Old road to paradise"; "Cross-currents"; and "Ballads and lyrics." There are also a few poems hitherto unpublished

"She is mistress of a verbal music that can be very lovely at times and which is almost always charming. She does not march on the heights that have known the feet of the great poets, but she has discovered many of the 'little roads' to beauty." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Wylie, Mrs Elinor (Hoyt)
* Collected poems. 1932 Knopf $3.50 811
32-26577

"The contents of this book embody the contents of Elinor Wylie's four books of poems, 'Nets to catch the wind' (1921), 'Black armour' (1923), 'Trivial breath' (1928), and 'Angels and earthly creatures' (1929), in the exact sequence and order in which they were originally published. Added to these is a section of poems hitherto uncollected in book form, some of which have previously been published in periodicals. A few, on the other hand, have never before been printed." Foreword by W. R. Benét

"Here are more than three hundred pages ranging from brilliant artifice to uplifted art. Many, perhaps most, of these three hundred pages will die. But some of the quietest seem destined for a far longer life than all but a few of their louder contemporaries. No less than a dozen of these poems—possibly a score—will survive, poems that helped change the renaissance of American poetry from an era of propaganda to a richly performed accomplishment. If poetry, the final authority, has a voice for all to recognize, its accent is unmistakable in this last book by Elinor Wylie." Sat. rev. of lit.

Three of the books are also available separately from Knopf: "Angels and earthly creatures" ($2.50), "Black armour" ($1.75; Secker 5s) and "Trivial breath" ($2.50). "Nets to catch the wind" is available only in the "Collected poems"

811C CANADIAN POETRY

There is no separate number in the 13th edition of the Dewey decimal classification for Canadian literature, but it is suggested there that C be prefixed to 810 or 820 as desired. In this catalog the C has been added to the subdivisions of 810. Some libraries may prefer to class with English literature

In addition to the titles listed below "Flint and feather" by E. P. T. Johnson (1912 Musson $2.25) and "Lyrics of earth" by Archibald Lampman (1900 Musson $2.50) have been well recommended by a Canadian librarian

Carman, Bliss

Poems. 1931 Dodd $3.50 811C

31-28114

This volume contains the poems previously published in the author's "Later poems"; "Ballads and lyrics"; "Far horizons"; "Wild garden"; and "Sanctuary" (with a few omissions). A few new poems have been added. "Ballads and lyrics" is a selection from his "Low tide on Grand Pré," "Ballads of Lost Haven," "By the Aurelian wall," "Behind the Arras," "A winter holiday," and the "Songs from Vagabondia" series

"Carman . . . was the lyricist whose simple business was to sing. And at his best I venture to say that he belonged in noble company." W. R. Benét in Sat. rev. of lit.

"Ballads and lyrics" is still available separately (1924 Dodd $2; Harrap 3s 6d) as is also "More songs from Vagabondia" (1896 Dodd $1.25)

Drummond, William Henry

* Poetical works. 1912 Putnam $3.50; 17s 6d 811C

12-23175

Contains a biographical and critical sketch by Neil Munro, and an appreciative introduction in French by Louis Fréchette

"The poems which he wrote in his proper person as Dr. Drummond in only a few instances rise above mediocrity, and sometimes fall below it. But as soon as he puts on 'de-ole-tam ceincture' of Pierre or Bateese or Jeremie or the historian of the fate of the 'Julie Plante,' inspiration comes with it. 'The curé of Calumette' is already a classic and the less-known 'Doctor Hilaire' is a good companion piece." N.Y. Times

McCrae, John

In Flanders fields, and other poems. 1919 Putnam $1.75; Hodder 3s 6d 811C

19-4006

"A collection of the poems of this physician, soldier, and poet, who died in France as a Lieutenant-Colonel with the Canadian forces. Includes an essay in character, by Sir Andrew Macphail." Brooklyn

"McCrae could imitate Kipling or Newbolt with skill. But he was at his best when he was entirely himself—a soldier expressing brave, human, inspiring thoughts in a form that had a certain modest perfection." Athenaeum

Pickthall, Marjorie Lowry Christie

Lamp of poor souls, and other poems. 1916 Lane o.p. 1933 811C

16-24320

"This volume includes all the poems that appeared in 'The drift of pinions,' published in 1913, together with a number of new poems. Some of the latter are reprinted from Scribner's magazine and the University magazine of Montreal." Book rev. digest

"In music and magic of line, in range and delicacy of imagination, Miss Pickthall yields to none." Dial

Roberts, Charles George Douglas

Poems. new complete ed 1907 Page $3 811C

A19-50

"As an original Poet, Roberts' forte is the treatment of Canadian Nature and pastoral life in impressionistic pastels, to an accompaniment of verbal music in folk rhythms or simple lyric forms. Thus accepted and appreciated he is a satisfying nature-colorist and melodist." Logan and French's Highways of Canadian literature

Scott, Duncan Campbell

Poems. 1926 Dent 12s 6d 811C

27-26909

Formerly also carried by Dodd

Includes selections from previously published volumes together with new poems

"His sonnet on March, the weirdness of 'Avis' and 'The Forgers,' such things are good, and his observation of nature is all through his work; there is a fragrance of balsam and pine about it." Sat. rev. of lit.

Service, Robert William

* Rhymes of a Red cross man. Dodd $1; Benn 4s 6d 811C

I European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 16-22918

First published in 1916 by Barse and company

"A book of war poems, many of which depict the horror and awfulness of war, others its glory and honor. Some of them are in Irish, some in Scotch dialect, and many bring out the humor which characterizes some of his earlier work." Bkl.

Rhymes of a rolling stone. 1912 Dodd $1; Benn 4s 6d 811C

12-25200

"Fine, joyous ballads, full of the out-of-doors." St Louis

Another popular volume by the same author is "Spell of the Yukon, and other verses" (Dodd $1)

Aiken, Conrad Potter

1 American poetry—Collections 29-4202

Attempts "to include in one volume specimens of American poetry from the earliest times to the present, and as such it illustrates the various purposes which a good anthology may serve; it gives the reader an opportunity to see modern poetry against the background of the past; it calls to the attention certain forgotten writers; it brings together contemporary poems that most of us would otherwise fail to see." N.Y. World

Benét, William Rose

‡ (ed.) Fifty poets; an American auto-anthology. 1933 Duffield $2.50, school ed $1.50 811.08

1 American poetry—Collections. 2 Poets, American 33-16821

"This anthology contains a brief poem or selection from the works of fifty contemporary American poets, the poems, with a few exceptions, being the choice of the poets themselves. Each poem is introduced by a short editorial comment and a statement by the poet concerning the mood or circumstance of its creation. Index." Book rev. digest

"When all the unchallengeable objections to this anthology have been made, there still remains a body of original source material on American poets . . . that cannot be matched in any other book." N.Y. Times

* (comp.) Poems for youth; an American anthology. 1925 Dutton $2 811.08

1 American poetry—Collections 25-7765

"The poems are arranged in chronological order according to the dates of birth of the poets, beginning with FitzGreen Halleck (1790-1867) and ending with Hilda Conkling (1910—), with a very brief biographical sketch and critical comment for each poet. These comments tell concisely the consensus of opinion about an author's work and present his most distinguishing traits." N.Y. Tribune

"Although the title indicates that the selection was made for young readers, it is an admirable collection for anybody." Outlook

Boynton, Percy Holmes

1 American poetry—Collections 18-9383

"Anthology of American verse from earliest times to the present. In order to show the progress of American poetry the compiler has included some epigrams and elegies of the seventeenth century, almanac verse of the eighteenth century and lyrics of the Revolution and Civil war. His purpose has been to show the progress of American poetry and thought and to fairly represent the chief characteristics of the authors. There are short critical comments on the authors; indexes of subjects, periodical publication, titles and first lines." Bkl.

Bronson, Walter Cochrane

1 American poetry—Collections 12-21111

"Presents a great quantity of material in chronological arrangement, and is supplied with copious notes and bibliographies. The resources of the special collections of Brown university have supplied the editor with the best authorities for accurate texts, and have made possible the widest range of selections." Dial

"A good collection not only for schools and colleges but for general readers." Bkl.

Another good collection is "Introduction to American poetry" edited by F. C. Prescott and G. De W. Sanders (1932 Crofts $3.50) more representative of earlier than of modern poets. The material is arranged chronologically by the birth-dates of the poets

(ed.) Caroling dusk; an anthology of verse by negro poets. 1927 Harper $2.50; 12s 6d 811.08

1 Negro poetry 27-23175

"An anthology of verse by negro poets, most but not all, inspired by the very recent awakening of interest in Negro art in all forms. A few of the older writers, beginning with Paul Laurence Dunbar, are represented also. A most interesting anthology." Wis. bul.

"The biographical notices carried with these poems have been written by the poets themselves save in three cases." Foreword

1 Negro poetry 31-26811

First edition, published 1922, contained poems by thirty-one poets. "The book now contains selections from the work of forty writers. . . . The sketches of the poets included have been made critical as well as biographical, and a list of references for supplementary reading has been added." Preface to revised edition

Striking poems "with a finely suggestive historical and critical introductory essay on the negro's creative genius." N.Y. state lib.

Kreymborg, Alfred

* (ed.) Lyric America. 1930 Coward-McCann $5 811.08

1 American poetry—Collections 30-30795

An anthology of American poetry covering three centuries, 1630-1930, which contains about six hundred poems selected from the best works of some two hundred and sixty poets. Planned as a companion volume to the editor's "Our singing strength" listed in 811.09. Contains author, title, and first line indexes

"Mr. Kreymborg has produced a solidly inclusive work. . . . As this area has already been a good deal anthologized, Mr. Kreymborg is to be congratulated on having strictly exercised a balanced personal judgment, even though we do not always agree, and he has done his work among the most modern with a decided idiosyncrasy of his own applied to an extremely comprehensive knowledge of what is being written." Sat. rev. of lit.

Lomax, John Avery

(comp.) Cowboy songs and other frontier ballads. new ed 1916 Macmillan $1.75 811.08

1 Cowboys—Songs and music 2 American ballads and songs 3 Folk songs, American 23-26571

Music is given for some of the songs

"Professor Lomax has collected more than 150 songs which were orally preserved on remote cattle ranches of the Southwest. They deal with a variety of themes, including logging, the saw-mill, the Mexican war, outlaws, gold-mining, stage-driving and cow-punching. Many of the songs, with their sharp, rhythmic yells to stir up laggard cattle, or their crooning lullabies to soothe the fractious herds, have something in their uncouth lilt which haunts the memory and reproduces the land of vast spaces." Pittsburgh

Another volume by the same compiler "Songs of the cattle trail and cow camps" (1919 Macmillan $1.75) contains similar material and might be added if there is need for it. "Frontier ballads" compiled by C. J. Finger, listed in class 781, is a collection of genuine frontier songs, some of them with music, attractively illustrated by Paul Honoré

Oxford book of American verse, chosen and ed by Bliss Carman. 1927 Oxford $3.75; 10s 6d 811.08

1 American poetry—Collections 27-24634

Also available in a satisfactory inexpensive reprint in the Bonibooks (Boni $1)

"A conservative selection from American poetry from Revolutionary times to the present, the lyric poetry of the compiler's own taste predominating. The selection from the older poets will be found more satisfactory than that for the new." Wis. bul.

While the votes for the inclusion of this title were not unanimous, it is believed that, in spite of its short-comings, it would be missed if not included here

Pound, Louise

1 American ballads and songs 22-21580

"A book of some slight reference value; but of more definite appeal to lovers of folksongs and to the student of social traditions in this country. Arrangement is by type of material, rather than section or chronology; e.g., English and Scottish ballads in America, Western ballads and songs, Dialogue, Nursery and Game songs, etc. The book has an interesting introduction on the sources and social significance of folk-ballads, and source notes in the back for individual ballads." ‡ (ed.) Modern American poetry: a critical anthology. 4th rev ed 1930 Harcourt $3.50, text ed $2.50; Cape, J. 15s 811.08

1 American poetry—Collections 30-19495

"A revised and enlarged fourth edition of this indispensable anthology. Includes twenty new authors who have come into prominence since the 1925 edition and some two hundred and fifty additional poems, some of them heretofore unpublished. The valuable, critical and biographical introductions have been brought to date and enlarged to the proportions of condensed essays. The preface with its discussion of tendencies, schools and movements has also been greatly enlarged." Cleveland

Van Doren, Mark

1 American poetry—Collections 32-27285

"This anthology does not attempt to represent every period of American literature nor every American poet who has a name. The fifty-seven poets included were chosen because they seemed to the editor to possess genuine distinction, and each of these is represented with as many of his poems as was considered necessary to prove their worth and give knowledge of the poet. Contains title, first line, and biographical indexes." Wis. bul.

Wagner, Charles Abraham

1 American poetry—Collections 30-13386

Poems which have won prizes offered by American magazines

"These 'Prize Poems' form an interesting survey of poetry during the twenties. And Mr.

Wagner's idea of gathering them together is a very good one. They appear, moreover, in . . . an inexpensive and delightful presentation, and with a very charming introduction by Mark Van Doren. The level of the prize poems included is on the whole high. Such outstanding poems as T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land, Malcolm Cowley's Blue Juniata, William Carlos Williams's Paterson, and Wallace Stevens's Pecksniffiana would make any collection interesting." Nation

811.08C Canadian poetry—Collections

There is no separate number in the 13th edition of the Dewey decimal classification for Canadian literature, but it is suggested there that C be prefixed to 810 or 820 as desired. In this catalog the C has been added to the subdivisions of 810. Some libraries may prefer to class with English literature

Campbell, William Wilfred

(comp.) Oxford book of Canadian verse. 1913 Oxford $3.75; 6s 811.08C

1 Canadian poetry—Collections 14-30123

"An anthology, representing no less than one hundred poets of the last century and a half. Contains a number of early poems . . . but no French Canadian verse. Completeness and variety of representation have resulted in the inclusion of many poems of a mediocre quality." Bkl.

Garvin, John William

(ed.) Canadian poets. [rev ed] 1926 Dodd $5 811.08C

1 Canadian poetry—Collections 2 Poets, Canadian [27-26597]

The revised edition of this Canadian anthology contains 28 poets and 212 poems not included in the first edition published in 1916. There is a brief biographical sketch and a portrait of each poet represented. Available in Canada from McClelland at $3 Canadian

"A book of generous format and of 536 pages, it is, like most such collections, rather too inclusive. However, such poets as Dr. Drummond, Charles G. D. Roberts, with his brother, Theodore Goodridge Roberts, and his son, Lloyd Roberts, Bliss Carman, Archibald Lampman, Arthur Stringer, Constance Lindsay Skinner, and Robert W. Service give it distinction and interest." Outlook

"Modern Canadian poetry" edited by N. A. Benson (1930 Graphic pubs. o.p. 1933) is a selection from the work of twenty young Canadian poets

Kreymborg, Alfred

Our singing strength. 1929 Coward-McCann $5 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 29-23359

"A complete outline of American poetry from the early colonial period to the present time. The poets are classed, where possible, under specific schools or periods, and the work and influence of each outstanding poet receive analysis. Of special interest are the chapters on the poetic renascence just prior to the War; and the appraisal of the work of contemporary poets." Book rev. digest

"A fine, detailed appraisal of American poetry, seen from a balanced viewpoint. He will please neither the radicals nor the conservatives, but he will illuminate the whole scene for the spectator on the sidelines." N.Y. World

‡ Tendencies in modern American poetry. 1917 Houghton $3.50 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Robinson, Edwin Arlington 3 Frost, Robert 4 Masters, Edgar Lee 5 Sandburg, Carl 6 Aldington, Mrs. Hilda (Doolittle) 7 Fletcher, John Gould 23-26548

"Interesting critical interpretation of the new movement in poetry, using six contemporary poets as examples—Edwin Arlington Robinson, Robert Frost, Edgar Lee Masters, Carl Sandburg, Mrs Hilda Doolittle Aldington ("H. D."), and John Gould Fletcher. Miss Lowell, a poet herself and a personal friend of all six poets brings sympathy and understanding to her work. Biographical material, portraits and a bibliography for each." N.Y. state lib.

Monroe, Harriet

Poets & their art. new ed rev & enl 1932 Macmillan $2; 10s 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 32-24803

First edition 1926. Chapters on T. S. Eliot, Elinor Wylie, Archibald MacLeish, Lew Sarett and Memories of Vachel Lindsay have been added and other essays revised to consider poetry written since the first edition was published

"Of these rather brief essays by the editor of Poetry, in which periodical they first appeared, about half deal with some American poets of today. Studies of certain English poets of an older day, a group of comments and queries and four essays on poetic rhythms make up the rest of the volume." Book rev. digest

"Miss Monroe's comments on such themes are always worth attention, and if she has her prejudices, let us grant that she has earned her right to them." Outlook

* Poets of America. 1885 Houghton $4 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 18-13421

Contents: Early and recent conditions; Growth of the American school; William Cullen Bryant; John Greenleaf Whittier; Ralph Waldo Emerson; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; Edgar Allan Poe; Oliver Wendell Holmes; James Russell Lowell; Walt Whitman; Bayard Taylor; The outlook; Index

"Stedman's appreciative summary of the poets, with its many quotations, remains a standard book." Bessie Graham's Bookman's manual

Untermeyer, Louis

* American poetry since 1900. 1923 Holt $3.50; Richards press 12s 6d 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 23-14228

"At once a 'reestablishment and revision' of the author's judgments contained in his first survey, 'The new era in American poetry.' New material has been added, and the whole has been largely rewritten and rearranged. The poets are, for the most part, grouped under such titles as Lyricists, Impressionists, and Cerebralists. Well-bound and printed and contains seventeen portraits." N.Y. state lib.

"As an anthology the book is valuable throughout. As criticism it ranges all the way from gossip and vulgarity to the genuine thing. All of it is vigorous, and some of it is subtle. There are quantities of information." Nation

Weirick, Bruce

From Whitman to Sandburg in American poetry. 1924 Macmillan $2; 10s 811.09

1 American poetry—Hist. & crit. 24-5117

"Attempts . . . to give a critical estimate of the American poetry of the last fifty years; and to supply at the same time the setting, national and cultural, without which such an estimate must necessarily be thin or meaningless. . . Much of this book . . . is concerned with Whitman's influence, and his point of view as democrat, mystic, and poet." Preface

"A stimulating work that will interest a host of readers in poetry and will bring many of them into forming opinions of their own." Literary rev.

Wood, Clement

Poets of America. 1925 Dutton $2.50 811.09

1 Poets, American 25-8501

"Critical studies of the work of American poets from the early colonial period to the present. The author attempts to show that the three strains of English poetry—Celtic fantasy, Norman zest, and Anglo-Saxon contemplation—are still evident in American poetry." Pittsburgh

"Hectic, contradictory, now and then inaccurate, yet on the whole it gives brilliantly the main outline of our past and the rich promise of our present Renaissance." N.Y. Times

812 AMERICAN DRAMA

Altho many separate plays have been listed here it has been felt that the small public library will prefer to buy heavily in the classes 808.82 and 812.08 and will not wish to duplicate too much material already there. Very small libraries should be careful to ascertain if any desired title is to be found in a volume of collected plays before deciding to buy it as a separate

Anderson, Maxwell

Both your houses. 1933 French $2 812

33-10095

"The play is based upon the story of an idealistic young Nevada school teacher, recently elected to Congress, who attempts to fight single-handed the organized lobbyists in the Senate. Beaten at first by the allied forces of the old established order of corruption, he attempts to out-play the lobbyists at their own game, and is defeated even in this. The play has received the Pulitzer prize for 1932." Book rev. digest

Elizabeth the queen. 1930 Longmans $2 812

1 Elizabeth, queen of England--Drama 30-32414

"There are dignity and high purpose, considerable interest and a certain amount of tragedy in this treatment of the Elizabeth and Essex episode." Providence

Mary of Scotland. 1934 Doubleday, Doran $2 812

1 Mary Stuart, queen of the Scots—Drama 34-3714

"A dramatization of the life of Mary Stuart, from the dark night when she landed on Scottish soil until the time of her imprisonment in Carlisle Castle. The idea of Mary which the drama conveys is of a charming woman, every inch a queen, fighting first for her throne and then for her life." Book rev. digest

"Effective, well knit as a chronicle-history, alive with character conflict in its episodes, and achieving beauty and richness of speech and dignity of understanding." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Saturday's children. 1927 Longmans $2 812

27-22554

"A tender, humorous play about the first year of married life and its effect upon Saturday's children who must work for their living." Chicago

Anderson, Maxwell, and Stallings, Laurence

Three American plays. 1926 Harcourt $2.50 812

What price glory; First flight; The

"They all disclose the vigor and the excitement of life. While not plays of unusual dramatic power, or indeed of unusual theatric power (and we except, of course, 'What Price Glory?') they make for extremely entertaining reading." Literary rev.

Barry, Philip

Holiday. 1929 French $2, pa 75c 812

29-7881

"A comedy in three acts, which contrasts the people whose end and aim in life is to make more and ever more money, and those people who look at life and find it good without the aid of millions." Book rev. digest

"A literary play in the sense that a great deal of its charm and wit are verbal and depend on the felicity of expression of its clever author. The book reads as enjoyably as it plays." N.Y. Evening post

Hotel universe; a play. 1930 French $2 812

30-18049

"A long play of continuous action without the usual division into scenes. The action takes place on the terrace of a house on the Riviera where, in the strange atmosphere created by the presence of a half-mad scientist, each one of a group of disillusioned young people relives a critical moment in his earlier life and resolves to make a new start." Wis. bul.

This author's "White wings" (1929 French $2) is a clever whimsical comedy dealing with the replacing of the horse by the automobile. "Animal kingdom" (1932 French $2) is another of the author's successful plays

21-16405

Contents: The hero; Doctor Auntie; Crimson lake; Milly dear; The web; Loving cup; Joint owners in Spain; Sugar house; A March wind

"Miss Brown's dramatic writing in general is not 'literary'; that is to say, not closet drama. Characterization, dialogue, situation, suspensive interest and genuine climax make her work practicable drama." Literary rev.

"Joint owners in Spain," the best known of these plays is obtainable separately (Baker, W. H. pa 35c)

Connelly, Marcus Cook

‡ Green pastures. 1929 Farrar $2 812

1 Negroes—Drama 30-16400

"A play in two parts and seventeen scenes, more or less based on Roark Bradford's two books of sketches of the deep South. It is a negro interpretation of the Bible as it shows progressively God's dealings with his sinning suffering earth-people, from the Creation to the Redemption." Cleveland

"There has been no play in New York for years where the access to the deep emotions is so direct and sure. Mr. Connelly and Mr. Bradford are to be congratulated; but this is a triumph not so much for them as for the Bible. It is the poetry of the Bible that moves the audiences of 'The Green Pastures.'" Sat. rev. of lit.

Also published with illustrations by R. E. Jones in a quarto volume at $5

Crothers, Rachel

Let us be gay. 1929 French $2 812

Davis, Owen

* Icebound. 1923 Little $1.50 812

23-10497

"Skilfully constructed drama, in three acts, based on the acrimonious bickerings of a Northern Maine family over a possible inheritance. The theme is developed through clever characterization, and through dialog possessed of a natural tang, and not without a certain humor." N.Y. state lib.

Field, Rachel Lyman

Six plays. 1924 Scribner $1.25 812

24-29331

Contents: Cinderella married; Three pills in a bottle; Columbine in business; Patchwork quilt; Wisdom teeth; Theories and thumbs

"Designed for the amateur actor of school age—eight to eighteen. They call for small casts, never more than eight, usually four to six; and the mechanical requirements and scenery are simple. All . . . are on the borderland where fact shifts to fancy." Book rev. digest

"Conceived with a daring fantasy of imagination, executed with all the care and skill of an accomplished workman." Boston Transcript

The author's "Cross-stitch heart, and other plays" (1927 Scribner $1.25) is another collection of plays suitable for amateur performance. Contents: The cross-stitch heart; "Greasy luck"; Nine days' queen; "The Londonderry air"; At the junction; "Bargains in Cathay"

It is suggested that most libraries should consider some, at least, of these volumes for first purchase. Among the best known of the plays are "Beau Brummel," "Nathan Hale," and "The truth"

Contents: v 1 Beau Brummell, Lovers' lane, Nathan Hale; v2 Barbara Frietchie, Captain Jinks of the Horse marines, The climbers; v3 Stubbornness of Geraldine, Girl with the green eyes, Her own way; v4 Woman in the case, The truth, The city

"The editors may be congratulated on having brought together, in an intelligent scheme, the plays of Mr. Fitch that were most significant, or, at all events, most popular in their day, and are most worthy of preservation as an index of his versatile talent. Each volume has a brief and judicious introduction." Springfield Republican

Gale, Zone

Miss Lulu Bett; an American comedy of manners. 1921 Appleton-Century $2, student's ed $1; 7s 6d 812

21-19675

"Dramatized version in three acts of . . . [the] story by the same name, depicting the small-town life of America's middle class, and the transformation of a drudge into an independent woman. With alternate endings." N.Y. state lib.

"The characters are limned in high relief and are rare stage stuff; they seem too good until you remind yourself that life, whence they are drawn, is like that, that truth is stranger than fiction." Literary rev.

The author's "Mister Pitt" (1925 Appleton-Century $2; 6s) presents an entertaining character study of a worthy but futile hero

Gerstenberg, Alice

* Of thee I sing. (Theatre of today) 1932 Knopf $2; Gollancz 5s 812

1 U.S.—Hist.—Humor, caricatures, etc.

33-15186

"A 'musical play' which burlesques campaign methods and our national politics. 'Love' is made the chief issue of a presidential campaign, a beauty contest is launched, the winner to wed the successful candidate. About this ludicrous theme plays the satiric dialog with its constant flow of broad or witty sallies. Pulitzer prize play for 1931." N.Y. libraries

"Once in a lifetime" by Moss Hart, and G. S. Kaufman (French $2) is a satire on Hollywood and the moving picture business; "Let 'em eat cake, a musical play" by G. S. Kaufman and Morrie Ryskind (1933 Knopf $2) is a sequel to "Of thee I sing"

Kelly, George Edward

* Craig's wife. 1926 Little $1.50 812

26-1781

"Domestic drama in which a man's eyes are opened to his wife's selfishness, jealousy, worship of 'things,' and, above all, inherent dishonesty." N.Y. libraries

Kelly, George E.—Continued

"The strength of Mr. Kelly's dramatic talent lies in his patience of concentrating all attention upon a simple trait of character, like paranoia or selfishness. His novelty lies in his looking at middle-class American family life with very naturalistic fidelity." Literary rev.

The show-off. 1924 Little $1.75 812

24-10248

"Veracious character study of the braggart with a million-dollar imagination and an irritating personality, who nevertheless secures our sympathy despite his obnoxious traits, through a subconscious appeal to our own desire to reach the unattainable." Viewpoints in modern drama

Kingsley, Sidney

Men in white. 1933 Covici $2 812

34-1965

"An absorbing play, its setting a large hospital; its theme, the stern demands of the medical profession, in which no compromises are accepted." Cleveland

Kreymborg, Alfred

Puppet plays. 1926 French $1.50; Secker 5s 812

1 Puppet plays [23-12225]

Contents: When the willow nods; Blue and green; Manikin and Minikin; Jack's house; Lima beans; People who die; Pianissimo

"For the most part 'Puppet Plays' is compact with a gentle, tender and wisely humorous symbolization of life that intimates far more than is actually set before the reader or observer of these plays. A unique form and a peculiarly individual approach, both in verbal arrangement and thought development, are evident here." Literary rev.

These plays are intended for human actors as well as for puppets, and have been performed by both

Mackay, Constance D'Arcy

* Beau of Bath. 1915 Holt $1.50 812

15-19091

Beau Nash, Fanny Burney, Horace Walpole, Edmund Burke, Peg Woffington and George Romney are some of the characters in the half dozen one-act plays that make up this book. All the plays have an eighteenth century setting

"Verse sensitive, and exquisitely adapted to its purpose. . . The plays are intended primarily for amateurs, but they would furnish opportunity for the most finished professional acting." Dial

MacKaye, Percy

Jeanne d'Arc. 8th ed 1918 Macmillan $1.50 812

1 Joan of Arc, Saint—Drama [6-35545]

First published 1906

"Historical play in blank verse of lyric cadence and beauty. Rather a series of rich dramatic pictures than a closely welded drama." N.Y. state lib.

Kentucky mountain fantasies. 1928 French $1 812

28-20172

"Of the three short plays included in the present volume, Napoleon Crossing the Rockies is much the strongest. The characterization is sure and fine. The dialect is particularly salty. The other two pieces, The Funeralizing of Cricknеck, a little comedy, and Timber, a tragedy on more conventional lines, are interesting reading and should act well." Theatre arts monthly

Marks, Jeannette Augusta

Merry merry cuckoo; and other Welsh plays. 1927 Appleton-Century $2; 7s 6d 812

27-2583

"Seven Welsh plays, three of which—The merry merry cuckoo, The deacon's hat, and Welsh honeymoon—were published together in 1917 under the title 'Three Welsh plays'. The other four—A tress of hair—Love letter Steppin' westward—Look to the end—are here published for the first time. Good acting and reading plays, suitable for amateur production." Bkl.

"Miss Marks's little Welsh plays are sad and merry and very Welsh; they have a charm and a pathos that is undeniable." N.Y. World

Marquis, Don

The dark hours. 1924 Doubleday, Doran $1 812

1 Jesus Christ—Drama 24-32210

"A drama on the betrayal, trial and crucifixion of Jesus. Don Marquis has thoroughly dramatized the chief narrative of the New Testament, developing with marked originality several of the principal characters, notably Judas, and freely inventing incidents and speeches for subordinate figures, yet—without striking a single note which is not perfectly in harmony with the tone and atmosphere of the Gospels. In the case of the central figure, he attempts no interpretation that deviates a hair's breadth from the Christian tradition. The character and personality of the Son of Man, the Son of God, are left quite inviolate." N.Y. Tribune

"A rarely moving and wholly reverent Passion Play has been the result of Mr. Marquis's meditation upon the greatest tragedy in history." Sat. rev. of lit.

King's henchman. 1927 Harper $2; Cape, J. 5s 812

1 Edgar, king of England—Drama 2 Æthelwold—Drama 30-33541

"Tells a story of Saxon England in the tenth century. The hero, Aethelwold, foster-brother and sworn friend of King Eadgar, is sent to Devon to fetch home as bride for the king the beautiful Aelfrida, daughter of Ordgar. Falling in love with her himself he marries her without revealing his mission and in the last act kills himself in expiation of his treachery." Book rev. digest

"The verse is admirably rhythmed, though the recitative might at times grow monotonous or even a little jerky if it did not insist on singing itself to the inward ear. It breaks naturally here and there into delightful lyric. On the whole, here is a beautiful thing, which satisfies our sophisticated twentieth-century hunger for the primitive, artificially presented, and delicately lifts the stark life of our forbears into the purest atmosphere of romance." Atlantic's bookshelf

The poem, slightly abridged, forms the book of the opera by Deems Taylor

1 Dramatists, American 2 American drama—Hist. & crit. 29-10495

"Brief biographical sketches of America's foremost playwrights beginning with Eugene O'Neill, with shorter mention of beginners in play writing, a chapter on novelists whose books have been dramatized, the veterans of the theatre world, etc." Book rev. digest

"It brings within the covers of one book much surface information about the dates and characteristics of the majority of American playwrights, and by its informal style makes this information easily assimilable." Theatre arts monthly

Mayorga, Margaret Gardner
* (ed.) Short history of the American drama; commentaries on plays prior to 1920. 1932 Dodd $3.75 812.09

1 American drama—Hist. & crit. 32-25448

"Discussion of the American plays which antedated 1920. A few plays produced since then are also discussed, in order to give completion to the consideration of authors who made their appearance before that date. The plays discussed are those which have been professionally produced and are at the same time available in printed form, either through publishing houses or in one of the large public libraries." Preface

"Aside from its obvious and unquestionable value as a text in drama courses it should prove profitable supplementary reading in history courses and others which have a bearing on American life. . . . The bibliographies should prove standard for years to come." Theatre arts monthly

Moses, Montrose Jonas
‡ American dramatist. 1925 Little $3.50 812.09

1 American drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Dramatists, American 3 Theater—U.S. 25-24704

"A third edition entirely rewritten, up-to-date and inclusive, retaining only such subject matter of the 1917 edition as is necessary to mark certain tendencies, tastes, or methods in the development of American drama. The individual dramatist is considered only as a part of that development. Considers little theaters, the one-act play, and such recent dramas as 'The show-off,' 'Beggar on horseback,' 'Processional,' etc. Index; bibliography." Bkl.

T. H. Dickinson's "Playwrights of the new American theater" (1925 Macmillan o.p. 1933) deals with the work of dramatists writing since 1900, particularly Percy MacKaye and Eugene O'Neill

813 AMERICAN FICTION—HISTORY AND CRITICISM

Works of fiction are not included in this volume as they form a separate volume of the Standard catalog for public libraries

Oscar Wegelin's "Early American fiction 1774-1830" (3d ed corr & enl 1929 Smith, P. $5) which lists works of fiction by American writers born or residing north of Mexico and printed before 1831, is an important reference tool which larger libraries will find useful. Other bibliographies of fiction will be found at the head of class 823 in this catalog

Michaud, Régis
American novel to-day; a social and psychological study. 1928 Little $2.50 813

1 American fiction—Hist. & crit. 28-940

"That American novelists 'since Hawthorne, through Henry James, Howells and Edith Wharton show themselves obsessed by the problems of Puritan inhibitions and their influence on human conduct' is the theme of this stimulating survey of prominent writers. Among those studied are Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Anderson, Cabell, Willa Cather and Ben Hecht." N.Y. libraries

Pattee, Fred Lewis
* Development of the American short story. 1923 Harper $2.50 813

1 Short story 23-4306

Traces the history of the American short story from the time of Washington Irving to the present

"It is a reference book full of information, with all the useful if unattractive apparatus of indexes and bibliographies. But it is also a book which may be read for pleasure." Independent

"Our short story writers" by B. C. Williams (1920 Dodd $2.50) listed in class 920, will also be found useful as it gives brief but illuminating criticism of many modern writers such as Alice Brown, James Branch Cabell, Dorothy Canfield, Booth Tarkington, etc.

Van Doren, Carl Clinton
* American novel. 1921 Macmillan $2; 10s 813

1 American fiction—Hist. & crit. 21-10973

"Based on the author's contribution to the 'Cambridge history of American literature.' It covers the period from 1744 to the present time, though contemporary writers are only touched upon. . . Useful for reference work and study clubs. Bibliographical notes and an index." N.Y. state lib.

"A genuine piece of scholarly criticism as well as an interesting and significant chronicle." New republic

* Contemporary American novelists, 1900-1920. 1922 Macmillan $1.50; 7s 6d 813

1 American fiction—Hist. & crit. 22-8071

"Supplements the author's work on 'The American novel' taking up such writers as Hamlin Garland, Winston Churchill, Theodore Dreiser, Booth Tarkington, Edith Wharton, Willa Cather, and others. Reprinted from the 'Nation.'" Wis. bul.

Van Doren, Carl C.—Continued

"He is judicious and his relative standards are trustworthy. Whether one has read the books which Dr. Van Doren discusses or not, his criticism is very pleasant reading, and its sincere enthusiasm is infectious." Spectator

814 AMERICAN ESSAYS

The "Essay and general literature index" edited by M. E. Sears and Marian Shaw which most libraries will classify in 040, will be found useful for its full author, subject and title indexing of essays published or reprinted since 1910. For full description see class 040

Aldrich, Thomas Bailey

Ponkapog papers. Houghton o.p 1933 814

3-26157

"A delectable medley of notes and essays; reminiscences of travel, anecdotes of a life rich in literary associations, memoranda for unwritten stories, bits of character-study, paragraphs of criticism, with here and there a swift mordant thrust at the Philistines, or a touch of pure light comedy." Atlantic monthly

Available in v9, "Ponkapog papers, A sea turn, and other matters," of the Riverside edition of his "Works" (9v Houghton ea $2)

Babbitt, Irving

On being creative, and other essays. 1932 Houghton $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 814

1 Literature—Philosophy 2 Humanism—20th cent. 3 Imagination 32-12974

"These 10 essays restate and reaffirm Professor Babbitt's philosophy of humanism. Students of American fiction will enjoy 'The critic and American life.'" Pittsburgh

Contents: On being creative; Primitivism of Wordsworth; Problem of the imagination: Dr. Johnson; Problem of the imagination: Coleridge; Schiller as aesthetic theorist; Julien Benda; Critic and American life; Romanticism and the Orient

Sketches "marked with happy turns of phrasing, an informal and personal style and a welcome wit." Dial

Brooks, Charles Stephen

Chimney-pot papers. 1919 Yale univ. press $2.50; Oxford 10s 6d 814

19-7586

"Carries on the essay tradition of Hazlitt and Lamb with that studied artlessness whose other name is charm." Dial

Journeys to Bagdad. 1915 Yale univ. press $2.50; Oxford 10s 6d 814

15-26981

"Ten papers on travel, dress and literary subjects, characterized by rare charm of style, intimacy and quiet wit combined with a graceful leisureliness. Excellent woodcuts admirably reflect the spirit of the text." N.Y. state lib.

The author's "There's pippins and cheese to come" (1917 Yale univ. press $2.50; Oxford 10s 6d) is another volume in similar vein

Brooks, Van Wyck

Emerson and others. 1927 Dutton $3 814

1 Emerson, Ralph Waldo 2 American literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 3 English literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 27-6840

Contents: Emerson: six episodes; John Butler Yeats; Randolph Bourne; Letters of Ambrose Bierce; Amor fati; Notes on Herman Melville; Novels of Upton Sinclair; Literary life in America

"Mr. Van Wyck Brooks has done, and is doing, a service to America in enabling us to see these erstwhile American giants at their true heights; and, whether by intent or by pure native genius, he is reducing them from the giantesque to their actual dimensions with such consummate tact and by such gradations that our respect for them is in no wise diminished, while our liking for them is measurably increased. Mr. Brooks's narrative is interpretative biography." N.Y. Times

Burroughs, John

Accepting the universe. 1920 Houghton $2.25; Constable 11s 814

1 Philosophy—Addresses, essays, lectures 2 Science—Addresses, essays, lectures 20-18062

"In these 'spirited and eloquent pages,' as H. W. Boynton calls them, Burroughs philosophically examines and considers the universe and finds it good." A. D. Dickinson

* Wake-robin. Houghton $2.25 814

1 Natural history—Outdoor books 2 Birds 5-21547

First published 1871

"Essays reflecting the author's familiar observations of nature. All of them are devoted to bird life, and the suggestive title of the book is the popular name of the wild wood flower which, blooming early in the spring, is associated with the return of the birds." Pratt alcove

Burt, Maxwell Struthers

Other side. 1928 Scribner $2; 7s 6d 814

A series of essays answering the critics of American culture. Some of the titles are: The European complex; Furor Britannicus; Gallic calm

"He has written one of the most lively, candid, fair and accurate discussions of international psychology which has yet appeared. His book presents 'the other side' to all the questions which are involved in that 'certain condescension' on the part of foreigners and the equally vicious self-contempt on the part of some Americans." N.Y. Times

Cabell, James Branch

Beyond life; dizain des démiurges. 1919 McBride $2.50; Lane 7s 6d 814

19-1362

Contents: Wherein we approach all authors at their best; Which deals with the demiurge; Which hints at the witch-woman; Which admires the economist; Which considers the reactionary; Which values the candle; Which indicates the mountebank; Which concerns the contemporary; Which defers to the arbiters; Wherein we await the dawn

"Essays on literature—ironical, humorous, and keenly critical—presented as a long-drawn conversation with John Charteris, author, on the comparative merits of romanticism and realism." Pittsburgh

The author's "These restless heads; a trilogy of romantics" (1932 McBride $2.50) is a miscellaneous collection of short essays giving the author's views on life

Collins, Joseph

Doctor looks at love and life. (Star ser.) Garden City pub. co. $1 814

1 Sex 2 Fiction 26-17707

A satisfactory cheap reprint of a book published in 1926 by Doran

"The author's frank but sane discussion of sex and abnormal psychology will make the book taboo for open shelves in some communities. Contents: Pt. 1, Love: The sex urge, its onset and management. Sexual frigidity and marital incompatibility. Matrimony wreckers. Homosexuality.—Pt. 2, Life; Adult infantilism. Voices crying in the wilderness. Do characters in fiction behave like human beings? The fundamentalists and modernists of psychology. Adult education via leisure and libraries." Bkl.

The author's "Doctor looks at life and death" (1931 Farrar $3) is another collection of essays on sex aberrations and psychoneuroses. He also discusses some modern novels dealing with these subjects

Crothers, Samuel McChord

Among friends. 1910 Houghton $2 814

10-26156

"Eleven engaging essays combining quaint wit and mellow wisdom, under titles: The convention of books, The hundred worst books, In praise of politicians, etc." N.Y. state lib.

* Gentle reader. 1903 Houghton $2 814

Contents: Gentle reader; Enjoyment of poetry; Mission of humor; Cases of conscience concerning witchcrafts; Honorable points of ignorance; That history should be readable; Evolution of the gentleman; Hinter-land of science; Gentle reader's friends among the clergy; Quixotism; Intimate knowledge and delight

"Crothers is the true successor of Oliver Wendell Holmes. Kindly, mellow humor and sprightly fancy characterize his essays." Pratt alcove

Curtis, George William

Prue & I. (Home lib.) Burt $1 814

Also available in Everyman's library "Prue & I; Lotus eating" (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

"These charming papers were published in 1856; and have been popular ever since, as the subject is of perennial interest, while the treatment is in the author's happiest vein. They are a series of sketches or meditations showing the enjoyment to be derived from even the most commonplace existence." H. R. Keller's Reader's digest of books

Dewey, John

Individualism, old and new. 1930 Minton $2; Allen, G. 6s 814

1 Individualism 2 U.S.—Civilization

"Made up of essays, with some new matter added, which originally appeared in the 'New Republic.' The underlying theme is the submergence of the individual in our predominantly business civilization. Contents: The house divided against itself; 'America'—by Formula; The United States, incorporated; The lost individual; Toward a new individualism; Capitalistic or public socialism; The crisis in culture; Individuality in our day." Book rev. digest

"Analyzes the present, probes it and discovers its inadequacies. It offers us a technique for evolving a new individualism. It is at once a small book and a most profound one. And it is a most effective counterblast to humanism. Persons wandering in a maze but honestly looking for a way should not overlook it." N.Y. World

Durant, William James

Adventures in genius. 1931 Simon & Schuster $4 814

31-27008

A miscellaneous collection of essays and magazine articles. Part 1 contains essays on the ten "greatest" thinkers, on the ten "greatest" poets, and on one hundred best books, with a list of books; part 2, Adventures in philosophy: Spengler, Keyserling, Bertrand Russell; part 3, Adventures in literature, on Flaubert, Anatole France and John Cowper Powys; part 4, Travel sketches of Palestine, India and China; and part 5, Adventures in controversy, containing among other items, an article on behaviorism and one on education

"Dr. Durant here adds to the wise thinking and lucid style which have characterized his previous books a discursiveness that decidedly enhances the appeal of this new volume." Boston Transcript

* Selected essays, 1917-1932. 1932 Harcourt $3.50; Faber 12s 6d 814

32-24259

"Of the dozen or more essays on the Elizabethan dramatists and the poets of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, it is sufficient to say that they represent a high level of critical intelligence united with mature scholarship and a rare competence in the writing of criticism which is literature in its own right. The rather long essay on Dante is a worthy addition to the literature of that vast field." Christian century

Emerson, Ralph Waldo

Complete works; ed by E. W. Emerson. centenary ed 12v 1903-04 Houghton ea $2.75 814

33-25512

"Twenty-one essays arranged in chronological order, selected from Emerson's complete works. The editor has stressed in these selections Emerson's counsel to the individual person. The introduction includes a brief biographical sketch. The book is a rearrangement with some changes of 'Selections from the Prose Works of Ralph Waldo Emerson,' edited by Professor Perry and published in 1926 in the Riverside college classics, [and still available from Houghton at $1]" Book rev. digest

Emerson, Ralph W.—Continued

"The present selection of essays is particularly valuable for the rounded picture it gives of the development of Emerson's thought. Together with 'The Heart of Emerson's Journals,' edited by Professor Perry with the same discrimination and affectionate care, the book offers the new reader a splendid avenue of approach to the sage of Concord." Christian science monitor

Morley, Christopher Darlington
* Essays. 1928 Doubleday, Doran $2.50 814
28-26447

"A collection representing the cream of all of Morley's essays to date. They have been selected from his books Shandygaff, Mince pie, Pipefuls, Travels in Philadelphia, Plum pudding, The powder of sympathy, The Romany stain. There are included also some essays never before published in book form except in the Haverford edition of his works." Book rev. digest

Newton, Alfred Edward
‡ Amenities of book-collecting, and kindred affections. 1918 Little $5; Lane 20s 814
1 Book collecting 18-22198

"Papers by an American collector and lover of books, some of them reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly, others appearing here for the first time. . . The first five essays set forth some of the delights of collecting. Others are pleasant studies of notable figures, the great Johnson, Mrs Thrale, William Godwin, and Anthony Trollope. The last is a tribute to that young collector, Harry Elkins Widener, lost on the Titanic. The delightfully varied illustrations are chosen from items in the author's collection." Book rev. digest

End papers; literary recreations. 1933 Little $3 814
1 Books 2 Book collecting 33-36914

"A pleasant miscellany, books and authors, ranging from Burton's 'Anatomy of melancholy' to Carolyn Wells and her Whitman collection." N.Y. libraries

Greatest book in the world, and other papers. 1925 Little $5; Lane 20s 814
1 Books 2 Book collecting 3 Bible—Versions, English 25-17139

"In the first chapter the author writes delightfully of the various editions of the Bible and of prayer books with a passing reference to hymnals, for which he has little affection. And this is followed by other bookish papers, one on Shakespeare, one on Gilbert and Sullivan, one on Shelley, etc." Wis. bul.
"Primarily this is a book for book collectors. . . But whether one collects books or not he will find in "The Greatest Book in the World' . . . much good reading." Boston Transcript

Nicholson, Meredith

Old familiar faces. 1929 Bobbs $2.50 814

"Eight delightful essays which give a pleasant impression of the culture of Indiana about forty years ago." Pratt quarterly

Perry, Bliss

* Praise of folly, and other papers. 1923 Houghton $2 814

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. 2 American literature—Hist. & crit. 3 Authors, American 23-15166

"Quiet, scholarly essays on literary subjects. Includes essays on Emerson, John Burroughs, Richard Henry Dana, Woodrow Wilson as a man of letters, Criticism in American periodicals, and other subjects." Wis. bul.

The author's "American mind" (1912 Houghton $2) contains essays on American traits as revealed by American literature, written in a readable and entertaining fashion

Essays on things. 1930 Macmillan $2; 10s 814

30-24460

"A series of essays in which the author discourses provocatively of such inevitabilities as the weather, war, optimism and pessimism, sunrise, English tea, a private library all your own, going abroad the first time, and many other subjects." Ontario library review

Repplier, Agnes

* Fireside sphinx. 1901 Houghton $2.50 814

1 Cats 1-24105

Some libraries may prefer to class this in 636.8

Charming essays on the part the cat has played in legend, history and literature, by one who is an authority and an enthusiast on the subject. The illustrations by Elizabeth F. Bonsall are delightfully in accord with the text

Points of friction. 1920 Houghton $2 814

20-19680

"Essays in the author's usual clever style, discussing with caustic humor the glad book, women's rights, prohibition, authors from the beyond, money, politics, etc. Keen and original, upholding recognized standards." Bkl.

To think of tea! 1932 Houghton $2.75; Cape, J. 5s 814

1 Tea 2 Drinking customs 32-30763

"Essays dealing with the coming of tea to England, and its place in English history and letters. Includes a chapter on Dr. Samuel Johnson as tea-drinker." Boston

"There must be enough of us with the right attitude toward tea to make an impassioned audience for Miss Repplier's new book. Jacket to colophon, its 'steamy column' rises from the social brew. For it is in its friendly, conversation-stimulating aspect that it takes possession of these charming pages—in the English aspect, not the Oriental." M. L. Becker in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Three other volumes of this author's delightful essays are "Americans and others" (1912 Houghton $2) "Compromises" (1904 Houghton $2) and "Times and tendencies" (1931 Houghton $2)

Sharp, Dallas Lore

* Magical chance. 1923 Houghton $2 814

23-12909

"The eight essays contained in this volume have a quality 'sui generis.' They lead on pleasantly through byways of literature and nature, with occasional glimpses of politics and religion verging on pantheism, to a philosophical concept of life." Literary rev.

Shepard, Odell

Harvest of a quiet eye. 1927 Houghton $3 814

1 Natural history—Outdoor books 2 Connecticut—Descr. & trav. 27-12872

"A quiet, companionable book recording a city dweller's two weeks' walking tour thru the Connecticut countryside. He writes of those beauties that are observable to the quiet eye, of talks along the way with people who have time to think, of healing sights and sounds." Book rev. digest

‡ Critical woodcuts. 1926 Scribner $2.50 814

1 Literature, Modern 26-8769

"Impressions of the personalities of 26 writers from Sherwood Anderson and Willa Cather among the contemporaries to Wilde, Loti, and Sterne out of the past." N.Y. state lib.

"They are entertaining and enlightening book reviews. The viewpoint is one of a man of taste, who enjoys a commendable measure of tolerance. His representations are brisk and accurate." Literary rev.

My dear Cornelia. 1924 Little $2.50 814

24-24601

"Discussions on a variety of subjects, which range from modern girls to religion, and from the eighteenth amendment to present-day fiction. Excellent as an example of the possibilities of conversation as an art." N.Y. state lib.

* Points of view. 1924 Scribner $2.50 814

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Literature—Hist. & crit. 24-27630

Contents: Towards an American type; Forty and upwards; Unprintable; For the higher study of American literature; W. C. Brownell; On falling in hate; On falling in love; American style; Apology for essayists of the press; Significance of Sinclair Lewis; Where there are no Rotarians; Mr Tarkington on the Midland personality; Oscar S. Straus; Brander Matthews and the Mohawks; Note on Gertrude Stein; Samuel Butler: Diogenes of the Victorians; Disraelian irony; George Sand and Gustave Flaubert

The author "has not sacrificed his earlier beliefs, but he has widened his sympathies." Boston Transcript

Another collection of the author's miscellaneous essays is "Emotional discovery of America and other essays" (1932 Farrar $2.50). Literary subjects predominate

Torrey, Bradford

Friends on the shelf. 1906 Houghton $1.75 814

1 Hazlitt, William 2 Fitzgerald, Edward 3 Thoreau, Henry David 4 Stevenson, Robert Louis 5 Keats, John 6 France, Anatole 6-36033

Contents: William Hazlitt; Edward FitzGerald; Thoreau; Thoreau's demand upon nature; Robert Louis Stevenson; Relish of Keats; Anatole France; Verbal magic; Quotability; Grace of obscurity; In defense of the traveler's notebook; Concerning the lack of an American literature

The style "is lithe and simple. Within its own limits it is resourceful, too, and full of variety." Nation

Many minds. 1924 Knopf o.p. 1933 814

1 American literature—Hist. & crit. 24-26389

"Critical papers, on Mary Austin, George Ade, Robert Frost, Edna St. Vincent Millay, H. L. Mencken, Carl Sandburg, and other literary figures. Although many of them were written as book reviews they have more than temporary interest. The author's criticism of himself written for the Nation is also included." Wis. bul.

"His mind is academic, but at the same time liberal, a most rare and useful combination." Dial

Other provinces. 1925 Knopf $1.75 814

25-18852

Contents: Shadow of a triangle; Bitter outline; Smith in search of a majority; The scholar; The gipsy; The barbarian; Life and death of a dilemma; Burglar's dark; Last heretic

"Wearied of professional criticism, Mr. Van Doren has turned to 'other provinces.' The result is this collection of nine short, character studies. They are attenuated, full of subtle nuances and overtones and are, perhaps, too sophisticated for general appeal." Chicago

On the border line between essay and fiction. Some libraries may prefer to class with the latter

Van Dyke, Henry

* Fisherman's luck, and some other uncertain things. Scribner $2.50 814

99-5146

First published in 1899. Also obtainable in the Sylvanora edition (Scribner $1)

"One need not be an enthusiastic fisherman to enjoy this volume of friendly essays. Dr. Van Dyke talks of other things besides fish—of the joys of the open air, of companionship and the companionable virtues, of old books and the like. The lure of angling, like the delight of life, is its uncertainty, and the familiar surprises which give zest to experience are the larger theme, to which the reminiscences of this devoted fisherman are but illustrations." English and Pope's What to read

Little rivers; a book of essays in profitable idleness. new ed Scribner $2.50 814

First published 1895. Also available in the Sylvanora edition (Scribner $1)

"A series of angling sketches—a chronicle of plain pleasures and friendly observation of men and things." A. D. Dickinson

If more of Dr Van Dyke's essays are needed "Days off" (1907 Scribner $2.50; Sylvanora ed $1) sketches of outdoor life with a literary flavor would be a popular choice

Warner, Frances Lester

Endicott and I. 1919 Houghton $2 814

19-15764

"Fourteen little sketches of a family group, told with whimsical humor. Some of the titles are: Endicott and I conduct an orchestra; Retrieving the airedale; Endicott and I reduce; Endicott and I economize; Barbara develops the land." Pittsburgh

Essays in a similar vein of kindly and vivacious humor are to be found in the author's "Groups and couples" (1923 Houghton $2) and her "Unintentional charm of men" (1928 Houghton $2)

Warner, Frances Lester, and Warner, Gertrude Chandler

Life's minor collisions. 1921 Houghton $2 814

21-19674

"Some of the well-known and inevitable sources of irritation in families are here discussed with humor and understanding." Book rev. digest

Pleasures and palaces. 1933 Houghton $1.75 814

33-30809

Another book of essays by the authors of "Life's minor collisions." Contents: Pleasures; Dabbling; Delving; Pipe-organ caprice; Household scenes and how to make them; Skip the cadenza; Home-in-law; Apartment etiquette; Marionettes at large; Hay fever: an interruption; Good use of worry; Resting uncomfortably; Hunting acorns; Traveling alone; Picnics; Palaces

"Appropriately, this collection of essays begins with a lively piece on 'Pleasures' and ends with another, colorful and a bit venturesome in its metaphors, on 'Palaces.' In between these are more than a dozen amusing and edifying essays that skip about in agile style among a great variety of themes." N.Y. Times

Wilson, Woodrow

"It takes something approaching genius to make a cockroach and an alley cat understandable and sympathetic characters, and that is what Mr. Marquis has done with the literary bug, archy, and his friend, mehitabel, whose motto is 'toujours gai' and who is forever the lady, no matter how undignified, and even immoral, her conduct may appear at times." North American review

Further stories of Mehitabel will be found in "Archys life of Mehitabel" (1933 Doubleday, Doran $2)

Masson, Thomas Lansing

* Our American humorists. new and enl ed 1931 Dodd $2.50 817

1 Humorists, American 2 American wit and humor 31-8707

First published 1922. This edition brings the account up to the present day and includes among others which did not appear in the first edition, Will Rogers, Corey Ford, "Amos 'n Andy," George Chappell, and Chic Sale

"Characteristically humorous autobiographies are incorporated in these chapters on our leading humorists, with quotations typical of their work, and amusing or informing comment by the author, a former editor of Life. The last chapters are devoted to comic artists and poets, columnists and writers of humorous stories." N. Y. state lib.

"Best short stories" compiled by T. L. Masson (1918 Doubleday, Page o.p. 1933) is a collection of jokes and anecdotes collected from 'Life' which is very popular and would be useful if it can be obtained second hand

Mussey, J. B.

(ed.) Cream of the jesters. 1931 Boni $3 817

1 American wit and humor 31-31765

A collection of modern American wit and humor in cartoon, verse, and anecdote. Among the contributors are Robert Benchley, F. P. A., Dorothy Parker, George S. Chappell, Will Rogers, Alexander Woollcott, Peter Arno, and Gluyas Williams

"It is sophisticated humor, and if an illustration or two offends some library readers, the pictures can be removed from the book easily." Bkl.

Rogers, Will

Illiterate digest. 1924 Boni $2 817

25-2371

"Humorous and shrewd comment on various celebrities, on politics, and on topics of current interest." Pittsburgh

Rourke, Constance Mayfield

* American humor. 1931 Harcourt $3.50 817

1 American wit and humor—Hist. & crit. 2 National characteristics, American 3 American literature—Hist. & crit. 31-7953

A study of the national character as revealed thru types, Yankee, backwoodsman, Uncle Sam, etc., by Sam Slick, Mr Dooley, Will Rogers and others

"Miss Rourke's volume is scholarly in temper and the conclusions which she draws emerge from a careful examination of every aspect of a century of recorded literary and dramatic humor." N.Y. Evening post

Sullivan, Frank

In one ear. 1933 Viking press $1.75 817

33-12763

"In this collection of short essays a well-known humorist offers a bookful of ingratiating nonsense, parody and burlesque, with considerable common sense underneath." Cincinnati

"Easily the best of the Sullivan harlequinades. What a perfect book to read aloud! The only trouble is that you can't read aloud more than two pieces of an evening; it takes too long on account of the frequency and lengthiness of the laughs." F. P. Adams in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Thurber, James

My life and hard times. 1933 Harper $1.75; 6s 817

33-33895

"A burlesque autobiography provides the author with a framework for his hilarious humor, altho his 'preface to a life' pleads, not without seriousness, for sympathy for the plight of the short-piece writer who is mistakenly termed a humorist." Wis. bul.

Untermeyer, Louis

Collected parodies. 1926 Harcourt $2.75 817

1 Parodies 26-17721

Four previous volumes of Mr Untermeyer's parodies and a considerable number of new works are here presented in a single volume

"Mr. Untermeyer has parodied nearly all the poets, living and dead, and done it remarkably well." Outlook

Warner, Charles Dudley

Being a boy. Houghton $1.75 817

14-1627

Humorous reminiscences of the author's boyhood on a farm, first published 1877

The author's "My summer in a garden" (Houghton $1.50) is a delightful attempt "to tell the truth about one of the most fascinating occupations in the world"

817C CANADIAN HUMOR

There is no separate number in the 13th edition of the Dewey decimal classification for Canadian literature, but it is suggested there that C be prefixed to 810 or 820 as desired. In this catalog the C has been added to the subdivisions of 810. Some libraries may prefer to class with English literature

Leacock, Stephen Butler

Behind the beyond, and other contributions to human knowledge. 1913 Dodd $2; Lane 3s 6d 817C

13-22884

"The book contains a burlesque of modern drama, a series of 'Familiar incidents,' some satire on Parisian life, and more satire on editors and the cult of the antique." Athenaeum

Laugh with Leacock. 1930 Dodd $2.50; Lane 5s 817C

30-28083

Published in England with title: Leacock book

A representative selection of Leacock's humorous essays, sketches and parodies, from his work published during the past twenty years

"Those of us who have at times despaired because the professor talked too fluently to talk wittily will welcome this book, in which he talks at his best." N.Y. World

Nonsense novels. 1911 Dodd $2; Lane 5s 817C

11-20594

"As parodies, or more properly burlesques, the 'Novels' are of a general rather than personal nature, fastening upon the type in lieu of the individual, and conceived in a spirit of literary romping which, while not sounding the heights of ideal humour, can scarcely fail to exhilarate." Athenaeum

"Winnowed wisdom" (1926 Dodd $2; Lane 5s) is another volume of humor in the same vein. Besides these listed here there are many more which libraries will no doubt buy as local demand decides

818 AMERICAN MISCELLANY

Baker, Ray Stannard

Adventures in solitude, by David Grayson, [pseud.]. 1931 Doubleday, Doran $2; Hodder 7s 6d 818

31-28301

Essays embodying the author's philosophic musings during a long illness and convalescence

"If you have in you just that little touch of the mystic that makes you feel in sky and earth, in tree and flower, in bird and bee, an appeal that clothes it with a significance alien to the perceptions of the materialist, then David Grayson will have a very special place in your favor. Otherwise, you will not be able to 'see anything in him.' This new book is particularly flavorsome of his distinctive qualities." N.Y. Times

* Adventures of David Grayson, [pseud.]. 1925 Doubleday, Doran $2.50 818

26-457

Contains his previously published volumes "Adventures in contentment"; "Adventures in friendship"; "Friendly road"; and "Great possessions." These are still obtainable separately from Doubleday, Doran at $2 each except the "Adventures in friendship" (Grosset $1; Hodder 2s 6d)

Friendly refreshing essays and sketches revealing love of the country-side and the simple ways of country life

Day, Clarence Shepard

God and my father. 1932 Knopf $1; Hamilton, H. 3s 6d 818

32-8194

Published in England under title: My father's dark hour

"The portrait of a hot-tempered and masterful father by an unusually outspoken son. The author tells of his father's fearless relations with his God, his impatient endurance of his pastors and the conflict of his high-spirited views with the faith of his wife." Book rev. digest

"A delightful little volume. . . The beauty of the book lies in its analysis of a state of mind which seemed perfectly reasonable to one generation and obviously absurd to another. Such an analysis hardly needs to be made again, and we only hope that we shall live long enough to read some similar account of the impression which our own proudly sophisticated generation made upon its children." Nation

Humphrey, Zephine

Beloved community. 1930 Dutton $2.50 818

30-15825

"Short stories and essays concerning life and the people who live it in the author's 'beloved community,' which is presumably Dorset, Vermont." Book rev. digest

"This is essentially a book of reflection, meant for a leisure hour when one can afford spiritual contemplation. Although 'The Beloved Community' may at times savor of sentimentality, the vivid enjoyment felt by the writer for her place of abode is worth noting—and emulating." N.Y. Times

Winterwise. 1927 Dutton $2.50 818

1 Country life 27-3745

"From her home in the Vermont hills Zephine Humphrey writes this diary—musings about books and living and the beauty of a winter world." Book rev. digest

"Here is an oasis of a book, an honest book which is yet delicate, a stimulating book which is yet utterly simple and unpretentious; a book with a clear, homely attic charm unattainable save to self-forgetting distinction of mind and style." Sat. rev. of lit.

Readers of "Winterwise" will also enjoy the author's "Chrysalis" (1929 Dutton $2.50) which tells of leaving the old home and building a new one

Miller, Max

‡ I cover the waterfront. 1932 Dutton $2 818

32-26658

"These short sketches gleaned from the routine life of a waterfront reporter at San Diego charm the reader on many counts—most of all, perhaps, because of the unusual characters and the tolerant affection the author shows toward them." Pittsburgh

"A distinctive touch marks all these sketches. They are original, unusual, fresh in tone and manner, with a quaint whimsicality of feeling and expression." N.Y. Times

York road. 1931 Farrar $3 818

31-28131

Essays and sketches some of which continue the reminiscences of her childhood begun in "A Victorian village," listed in class 92

"A group of charmingly intimate essays. . . It abounds in sincere and simple beauties clear as water, and if it occasionally meanders, so does the river that flowing slowly has as its objective the greater sea." N.Y. Times

Ripley, Mrs Katharine (Ball)

Sand in my shoes. 1931 Harcourt $3 818

31-29418

"The author and her husband spent the years from 1921 to 1929 trying to make a North Carolina peach orchard pay. This book relates the story of their experiences and how they failed." Book rev. digest

"Mrs. Ripley's tale of their peach-orcharding adventure [is] a very good tale indeed. For it gives a first hand, full, intimate and graphic account of a phase of the American scene and of an interesting and important section of our economic life, a section that includes both fruit and truck growing. Her narrative is entertaining, too, for it is told in breezy, informal fashion and is spiced with a sense of humor and youthful spirits." N.Y. Times

The author's "Sand dollars" (1933 Harcourt $2) relates her experiences after she and her husband left the peach orchard, settled in Charleston, South Carolina, and met the depression

Risley, Mrs Eleanor de la Vergne (Doss)

Abandoned orchard. 1932 Little $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 818

32-26254

"The author left New York to go out to the Ozarks to take care of a 100-acre apple orchard that had come to her by inheritance. It is a story of hard work and of curious human contacts, lightened by courage and a sense of humor. A delightful book." Wis. bul.

Thoreau, Henry David

Little essays; selected by C. R. Murphy. 1931 Houghton $2 818

31-20167

"A delightful introduction to Thoreau for one who does not know him, and pleasant reading for one who does." Wis. bul.

A selection of short essays taken from the first six volumes of the writings of Thoreau. The following are the volumes used: A week on the Concord and Merrimack rivers; Walden; The Maine woods; Cape Cod; Excursions, and Poems; Familiar letters

Thoreau: philosopher of freedom. 1930 Vanguard press $3 818

1 Liberty 30-7019

"Extracts from Thoreau's works which expound or interpret the philosophy of freedom; selected by James Mackaye, professor of philosophy at Dartmouth College, who writes the introduction." Pittsburgh

Writings. Riverside ed 11v Houghton ea $2.50 818

"Walden" should be starred for first purchase by libraries which do not wish to buy the full set. It is available also in the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c)

Contents: v 1 Week on the Concord and Merrimac rivers; v2 Walden; v3 Maine woods; v4 Cape Cod; v5 Early spring in Massachusetts; v6 Summer; v7 Autumn; v8 Winter; v9 Excursions; v10 Miscellanies; v11 Familiar letters

Readers who enjoy Thoreau will also enjoy "The heart of Thoreau's journals, edited by Odell Shepard" listed in class 92

Wilkinson, Mrs Marguerite Ogden (Bigelow)

Dingbat of Arcady. 1922 Macmillan $1.25 818

22-5815

"An amusing account of the author's adventures here and there by rowboat and decrepit motors. In the spirit of camaraderie, she shares with the reader the ardor and gaiety of life out of doors, the hazard of chance acquaintance on the road, the finding of 'new joy in old beauty.'" N.Y. state lib.

Woollcott, Alexander

While Rome burns. 1934 Viking press $2.75 818

34-4961

A collection of the writings of one of our most famous raconteurs and critics, known on the radio as the Town crier. Many of them first appeared in the New Yorker

"As witty as a pair of newspaper clipping scissors is keen and as humorous as a crutch. In a word, it explains by precept as few have been able to explain by example the difference between wit and humor." Chicago Daily Tribune

820 ENGLISH LITERATURE

"Bibliography of English language and literature" compiled by members of the Modern humanities research association 1920-31 (v 1-12 1921-31 Bowker ea $2.25; Bowes v 1-7 ea 6s, v8-10 ea 6s 6d, v 11-12 ea 7s 6d) is a good annual bibliography of English and American literature which includes books, pamphlets and periodical articles and refers to reviews of works listed

"Register of bibliographies of the English language and literature" by C. S. Northup (1925 Cornell univ. press) is a carefully selected list of both separately published bibliographies and bibliographies published in periodicals and books. Some annotations and references to reviews are given. Publisher announces a new edition in preparation, 1933

Contents: v 1, 680-1638; v2, 1639-1729;

encyclopedia of origin
each author treated gives brief biographical data and then selected quotations from criticisms of his work grouped as (1) personal (2) individual works (3) general. Extracts are of some length and are given with exact reference, so that the work serves both as an encyclopedia of critical comment and an index of literary criticisms. Very useful to the reference librarian, and in general public library work." Mudge

820.3 English literature—Dictionaries

Chambers's cyclopædia of English literature. new ed by David Patrick 3v 1922 Lippincott $20; Chambers 60s 820.3

* 1 English literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. [1-27359]

"The 1922 issue contains 6 additional pages at the end of v. 3, adding 143 new names, and shows some revision throughout, principally in the way of addition of dates of death in the case of authors who have died since the 1901 edition, and the inclusion of recent titles or editions in the bibliographies.

"A chronological, not an alphabetical, cyclopedia, containing a large number of articles on individual writers, and some articles on literary forms, periods, and subjects; for each writer treated gives biography, comment on his writings, some specimens of his works, a bibliography, and in many cases a portrait. Signed articles; general alphabetical index of authors and titles in v. 3." Mudge

Harvey, Sir Paul

‡ (ed.) Oxford companion to English literature. 1932 Oxford $5; 15s 820.3

1 English literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 2 English literature—Bio-bibl. 3 American literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 4 American literature—Bio-bibl. 33-18628

Includes in alphabetical arrangement a list of English authors, literary works and literary societies which have historical or present importance. A number of American authors are included. Under each author are given facts bearing on his life and literary activity. Under the title of a work is given an indication of its nature and for the important works of literature of the past, poetry, prose, drama, there is a brief sketch of the plot. . . Contains also an explanation of allusions mostly limited to those containing proper names and occurring in English literature

"Sir Paul Harvey has produced a fascinating book, even if its plan is rather uncertain, and its scope not clearly defined." New statesman and Nation

Adcock, Arthur St John

Glory that was Grub street. Low 3s 6d 820.4

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 American literature—Hist. & crit. 29-26040

Formerly carried also by Stokes

First published 1928. Second volume of the "Gods of modern Grub street." Includes Shaw, Chesterton, Dreiser, Hergesheimer, Lucas and others

"'The glory that was Grub Street' must be classified as literary gossip primarily because it is not in any sense criticism. Here we have the craft of the amiable commentator, the biographer, the bibliographer; there is no attempt at all to create new meaning, or to deduce principles." Times (London) lit. sup.

Gods of modern Grub street. Low 3s 6d 820.4

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 English fiction—Hist. & crit. [23-13132]

Formerly carried also by Stokes

First published 1923. Biographical and critical sketches of contemporary English authors, with portraits after photographs by E. O. Hoppé

"If Mr. St John Adcock has little new to say about contemporary poets and novelists, he contrives to say it in decent. straightforward prose and with touches of lightness and urbanity." New statesman

Literary blasphemies. 1927 Harper o.p. 1933 820.4

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 American literature—Hist. & crit. 27-24132

"His unconventional attitude toward established literary reputations gives title to the author's collection of essays on Shakespeare, Milton, Swift, Byron, Dickens, Poe, Walt Whitman, Henry James, and Hardy." Wis. bul.

"A witty, amusing, and not entirely sound attack on our over-reverent attitude toward the classics, a challenge to independence of thought. And if one finds that the least blasphemous essays—those on Shakespeare, Swift, and Hardy—are the best, one is at liberty to draw one's own conclusions." Bookman

Erskine, John

* Delight of great books. 1928 Bobbs $2.50; Grayson 8s 6d 820.4

1 English literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 28-8639

Contents: On reading great books; Canterbury tales; Malory's Le morte d'Arthur; Faerie queene; Romeo and Juliet; Tempest; Paradise lost; Walter Scott; Don Juan; Moby Dick; Ordeal of Richard Feverel; Huckleberry Finn; Candida; Modern Irish poetry

"In each of these discussions, which are brilliantly and sympathetically written, Mr. Erskine aims to illumine the viewpoint and purpose of the writer and to show how true to the eternal truths of human nature his work remains." N. Y. Times

Interpretations of literature. 2v 1915 Dodd $7.50 820.4

1 English literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 2 English literature 3 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 15-24217

Contents: v 1 Lectures on English literature, chiefly of the 19th century; v2 Miscellaneous lectures, chiefly on English literature

"From 1896 to 1902 Hearn lectured on English literature in the University of Tokyo. He used no manuscript, but dictated slowly, and from the careful notes of a number of his pupils the present volumes have been edited. . . That Hearn would show a refined and subtle sympathy with certain classes of writers, every one would expect; but it might not have been predicted that his taste would be so normal and on the whole well balanced as it shows itself in these pages." Yeats; Tchehov; Lady Gregory; Cunninghame Graham; Swinburne; T. M. Kettle; J. C. Squire; Joseph Conrad; Rudyard Kipling; Thomas Hardy

"Mr. Lynd is known primarily as a critic; as a critic he has an audible and a merited reputation. He is serious, but not pedantic; he writes a great deal for papers, but I do not believe that he often expresses an opinion which after-thought retracts. He is educated, and he is, usually and on the whole, on the right side." Athenaeum

Muir, Edwin

Transition; essays on contemporary literature. 1926 Viking press $2; Hogarth 7s 6d 820.4

Alden, Raymond MacDonald

(ed.) Readings in English prose of the eighteenth century. 1911 Houghton $4 820.8

1 English literature—Collections 11-27862

"Gives really adequate representation to the great luminaries of the age (20,000 to 30,000 words each), without neglecting the many lesser writers who need to be known if the literature of the century is to be properly studied. More than two score authors are illustrated altogether, and judicious annotation helps to their understanding without unduly swelling the contents of the volume." Dial

First edition 1910. The main additions in this volume represent the period from Stevenson to the present time so that now the volume gives selections from Chaucer to Galsworthy. There are also a biographical and critical sketch of each author, bibliographies and a general chronological table. Intended to be used in connection with a history of literature. Excerpts are long enough to give some idea of the characteristics of the writer

"Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch has perhaps followed the only possible method. He has read widely and taken what he liked, not attempting to present authors where he finds no brief wholes that please him, not letting space assigned be a criterion of greatness. And he has striven to make his book as English in spirit as possible. It is a readable book." Sat. rev. of lit.

Three earlier compilations by Prof. Pancoast which have had a wide use in schools have been drawn on, 'Standard English poems,' 'Standard English prose' and 'Early English poems.' But revisions and rearrangement make this a new collection rather than a consolidation of these works." Book rev. digest

1 English prose literature 31-26740

"A good primer of English prose. It contains seventy-six fairly short passages, printed in chronological order. In most cases an author is represented by the passage from his work which is most widely known. Thus, we have Raleigh's apostrophe to Death, and passages from Lamb's 'Dream children' and Pater's 'Mona Lisa.' There are surprises, however—three collects from the First Prayer Book of Edward VI., a description of the Boat Race from FitzGerald's 'Euphranor,' and Halifax's 'A Rough Draft of a New Model at Sea.' Each passage is headed by a brief description of its author and his work." New statesman

(ed.) Book of English literature. 3d ed 2v in 1 1933 Macmillan $4 820.8

1 English literature—Collections [32-10101]

First edition 1916, revised and enlarged in 1924. The present revision, done by Professor Snyder alone, was issued in 2 volumes in 1932. It is enlarged by about 600 pages, and somewhat rearranged. Each volume contains an index. A collection of extracts from English literature with explanatory notes and intended for college students. "The editors have included enough work by men of secondary importance to fill the gaps between the larger figures, and to make this text adequate for any survey of English literature, from 'Beowulf' to Galsworthy, save in the fields of drama and fiction. . . The biographical appendix will be of assistance, particularly to those who care to use the volume without an accompanying history." Preface

"It is delightful and refreshing to review the history of our literature through the slightly detached but very discerning and friendly eyes of M. Legouis. M. Legouis has the characteristic virtues of the French critic—a just and delicate taste, a refined perception of aesthetic nuances, a sense of order and proportion, and a talent for lucid and pointed expression. When these gifts are combined with a faithful and thorough scholarship, the result is a very superior kind of history." Nation
"The merits of Professor Cazamian's volume rest in the high philosophical conception which he has of the entire development of literary thought and expression, and in the way he binds together national and scientific aspirations with pure poetry and prose. He possesses a penetrating acumen and at times an almost epigrammatic conciseness of utterance." Nation and Athenaeum

"Much of his verse is a highly finished study in the manner of Wordsworth, tempered with the love of Goethe and of the Greeks. . . His devotion to beauty, the composure, simplicity, and dignity of his temper, and his deep moral sincerity, gave to his poetry a singular charm." Garnett & Gosse's English literature

Another recommended edition is "Poems, with an introduction by A. T. Quiller-Couch" (Oxford $1.25; 3s 6d)

Barham, Richard Harris

Ingoldsby legends. (World's classics) Oxford 80c; 2s 821

[17-13905]

"Humorous, satirical, and almost grotesque verses and tales into which the author, concealing his identity under the pseudonyn 'Thos. Ingoldsby, Esq.,' has cleverly woven English legendary lore." Pratt alcove

Also obtainable in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford 3s 6d)

Baring, Maurice

Collected poems. 1925 Heinemann 10s 6d 821

[12-835]

Formerly carried also by Doubleday, Page

This volume contains not only all his poems but also his poetical plays. It is "verse which combines lightness of touch with depth of feeling." Chicago

Binyon, Laurence

22-12646

"A selection of some seventy poems from this English poet, much of whose work has not been published in America. They are quiet, reflective poems, written apparently without effort and with a strong sense of meter. One of his longer poems, 'The death of Adam,' is included, also his tribute to America in the war, in the poem entitled 'The new world.'" Book rev. digest

Blake, William

[6-18300]

This edition includes besides the purely lyrical poems, the earlier blank verse poems, the hitherto unprinted "French revolution," the whole of the minor prophetic books, together with selections from the three longer Prophecies. There are also a bibliographical introduction, a chronological table, and index of first lines. Illustrated with reproductions of Blake's title pages. If a smaller selection only is needed there is a volume in the World's classics selected by Basil de Selincourt (1927 Oxford 80c; 2s); if a fuller edition, the "Poetry and prose of William Blake," edited by Geoffrey Keynes (1927 Random house $3.50; Nonesuch press 12s 6d) is complete

"His poetry deals in the subtlest kind of symbolism with a skill that cannot be matched. His philosophy is a series of intuitive flights into the realm of the Absolute, soaring with tranquil and imperious assurance; to our minds they are presented as a group of strange, complicated symbols, which to Blake are the clearest, the most familiar realities." Legouis and Cazamian's Hist. of Eng. literature

Blunden, Edmund Charles

Near and far. 1929 Cobden-Sanderson 6s 821

30-1807

Formerly carried also by Harper

"Contains a number of Japanese pieces (reprinted from a limited edition in 1927), and, under the grouping Moods, conjectures and fancies, are lyrics of war and peace, nature and human affairs." Book rev. digest

"We like Mr. Blunden best of all in his characteristic rôle of quiet country observer and chronicler. Such poems as 'The Kiln,' 'Epitaph,' and that charming portrait of an old-time village schoolmaster, entitled 'The Geographer's Glory, or, The Globe in 1730,' show that he well sustains his supremacy in that capacity." Spectator

Poems, 1914-30. 1930 Cobden-Sanderson 10s 6d 821

31-9336

Formerly carried also by Harper

"Mr. Blunden has gathered the poems of sixteen years. The spirit of the book is not the spirit of to-day. It is the spirit of the early Romantics, of the lull before the great Romantic storm, intimate, domestic, observant, melancholy, humorous, charming; the spirit of William Collins and William Cowper." Nation and Athenaeum

Blunt, Wilfred Scawen

Selected poems. Macmillan 7s 6d 821

"A rebel in literature as in life, he brought with his poetry the breath of a new candor to the Victorian age. Incapable of ever becoming 'classics' in the dull schoolroom sense, these poems have a classic simplicity, sincerity and power that make them enduring achievements in English literature." Floyd Dell

Bridges, Robert Seymour

* Poetical works, excluding the eight dramas. (Oxford standard authors) 1914 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

[13-15702]

"Consists of the Poems and Masks (as apart from the Dramas) contained in the collected editions . . . together with two groups of Later Poems and Poems in Classical Prosody now published for the first time or now first collected." Note

"The charm of Robert Bridges, who is especially a nature poet, lies in his love of quiet effects, pale colours, small soft sounds. . . Much of his work makes me think of the old Japanese colour prints." Lafcadio Hearn

Shorter poems. enl ed 1931 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 821

Reprint of v2 of his "Poetical works," first published 1899 together with selections from "Later poems," collected in 1912, "October & other poems," 1920, and "New verse," 1926

"The poems reprinted in this book are the highest achievement of Robert Bridges. They have in a special degree the primary virtue of poetry, which is to give delight." New statesman and Nation

Testament of beauty; a poem in four books. 1929 Oxford $3.50; 7s 6d 821

This "we believe to be the greatest poem he has written. In verse which untiring discipline has moulded to a new freedom he tells us that life is happiness, and reasons with us why it must be so, and, better still, invites us to share with him the breath of a happiness that is unassailable." Times (London) lit. sup.

Brontë, Charlotte, and others

Brontë poems; selections from the poetry of Charlotte, Emily, Anne and Branwell Brontë; ed by A. C. Benson. 1915 Murray, J. 3s 6d 821

[15-11037]

Formerly carried also by Putnam

"Representative work by the four Brontës is presented in this volume. Fully one half of the book is devoted to Emily, and rightly, for, as Mr. Benson says, 'The most fragmentary and faulty of Emily's poems, even if it is but a few inconsequent lines, is more interesting than the most polished and finished poem by either Charlotte or Anne.' A number of the poems are printed here for the first time. The format of the volume is that of the 'Oxford book of English verse.' " Book rev. digest

"The scholar will be likely to find not a few faults in Mr. Benson's edition. Not only is it a selection, but the poems selected are very frequently printed with large omissions. . . Whatever the faults of the book, gratitude is due Mr. Benson for giving us an opportunity of possessing some of the Brontë poems in such a cheap and convenient shape." Spectator

Brooke, Rupert

* Collected poems; with an introd. by G. E. Woodberry, and a biographical note by Margaret Lavington. 1915 Dodd $2 821

30-31415

A reprint of 1931 contains an appendix with ten poems not in the 1915 edition. His poems are also available in England as "Complete poems" (1932 Sidgwick 5s)

"In this volume are collected all the poems of Rupert Brooke, born at Rugby, August 3, 1887, died in the Aegean, April 23, 1915. George Edward Woodberry, in an introduction to the volume, calls it a 'book of youth, sensitive, vigorous, sound.' But young tho he was, 'his literary skill in verse was ripe. . . He might have grown in variety, richness and significance, in scope and in detail; but as an artisan in metrical words and pauses, he was past apprenticeship.' " Book rev. digest

Browning, Mrs Elizabeth (Barrett)

‡ Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50 821

Her poems are also available in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Browning, Robert

‡ Complete poetic and dramatic works. Cambridge ed Houghton $4, student's ed $3 821

1-111

This edition contains a biographical sketch, notes, and indexes; and, in an appendix, Browning's suppressed essay on Shelley

Another recommended edition is the one in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

A good selection from the poems of Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning is "Two poets, a dog, and a boy" (1933 Lippincott $2, school ed $1.60) which contains also a brief story of their lives and some remarks on the poems by Mrs F. T. P. Russell

Burns, Robert

* Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, student's ed $2.50 821

4-4743

This edition contains a biographical and critical essay on Burns by W. E. Henley, notes, indexes and portraits

Two other recommended editions are "Poems and letters, ed. by Alexander Smith" in the Globe edition (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d) and "Poems" in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Byron, George Gordon Noel Byron, 6th baron

* Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $4, student's ed $3 821

28-10249

A well edited edition with a biographical sketch, notes and indexes of first lines and titles

"A celebrated emotional English poet of great versatility and range of thought. His work was colored by his own brilliant, but dissolute and disappointing career." Pratt alcove

Other recommended editions are "Poetical works, ed. by E. H. Coleridge" (Scribner $3); "Poetry of Byron, chosen by Matthew Arnold" in the Golden treasury series (Macmillan $1.40; 3s 6d) and "Poetical works" in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Campbell, Thomas

Complete poetical works; ed by J. L. Robertson. (Oxford standard authors) 1907 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

Contains a critical introduction, a chronology of the poet's life, and an index to first lines

"He has the glorious distinction of being, in three different pieces, [Ye mariners of England; Battle of the Baltic; Hohenlinden] nearer than any other poet among many to being a perfect master of the great note of battle-poetry. . . Perhaps no other poem of Campbell can be named with these three, as a whole, but most of his earlier and shorter poems give flashes of undoubted poetry." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Carroll, Lewis, pseud.

Collected verse. 1933 Macmillan $2.50; 8s 6d 821

33-12449

"With illustrations by Sir John Tenniel, Arthur B. Frost, Henry Holiday, Harry Furniss, and the author." Subtitle

"The present volume contains all the verse which appeared in the books by Lewis Carroll published during his lifetime, together with a number of hitherto unpublished juvenile pieces from the original MSS. of Useful and Instructive Poetry and The Rectory Magazine, in addition to many others collected from Collingwood's Lewis Carroll Picture-Book and Life and Letters of Lewis Carroll, and from other works now out of print or not readily accessible. The order followed is mainly chronological." Preface

Another good edition is "Collected verse" (1929 Dutton $3.50) with an able introduction by J. F. McDermott, but which lacks the illustrations

Chaucer, Geoffrey

Canterbury tales; ed by A. Burrell. (Everyman's lib.) 1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 821

A10-35

A good inexpensive edition for the general reader. In seventeen of the twenty-four tales the spelling and the vocabulary have been slightly modernized

Canterbury tales; tr. into modern English verse by F. E. Hill. 1930 Longmans $3.50; 17s 6d 821

30-26612

"A rendition of Chaucer into modern English which preserves the meter and much of the flavor and richness of the original. The beautifully printed volume contains, 'The Prologue' which describes the diverse characters making the pilgrimage, 'The Knights' tale,' 'The nun's priest's tale,' and 'The pardoner's tale.' There are, besides, six lyrics and a shortened version of 'The book of the Duchess.' The decorations add much to the interest. A good book to own." Cleveland

* Complete poetical works now first put into modern English, by J. S. P. Tatlock and Percy MacKaye. (Modern reader's Chaucer) 1912 Macmillan $2.50; 12s 6d 821

12-23747

"A prose rendering in modern language for the general reader. Besides the 'Canterbury Tales,' this volume includes transcriptions of all of Chaucer's poetry and prose except a few doubtful and repetitious elements." Pratt alcove

"Granting the demand for a modern version, it is a pleasure to acknowledge that Messrs. Tatlock and MacKaye have done their work well. To those for whom the book was planned it may be heartily commended." Nation

Illustrated in black and white by Warwick Goble

* The student's Chaucer, being a complete edition, ed by W. W. Skeat. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 6s 821

4-13896

Also available in the Oxford standard edition at 95c

An excellent edition for those who wish to read Chaucer in the original. The introduction includes a life of Chaucer, an account of his writings and the early editions, and a brief discussion of the grammar, meter, versification and pronunciation. Glossarial index

"College Chaucer; ed by H. N. MacCracken" (1913 Yale univ. press $2.50; Oxford 12s 6d) is a selection in the original, intended for college classes and complete enough for most purposes. The Canterbury tales, with the Prologue, a group of minor poems, and a full glossary are included

Chaucer's "Complete works, ed by F. N. Robinson" (1933 Houghton $4, student's ed $3; Oxford 12s 6d) in the Cambridge poets series, a scholarly edition edited from manuscript study, is desirable but a little more expensive than the Oxford edition

Works. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821

4-13897

Edited by A. W. Pollard and others. Since this is the edition on which the "Concordance to the complete works of Chaucer, by J. S. P. Tatlock and A. J. Kennedy" (1927 Carnegie inst. $21) is based, libraries which need the concordance will also need this edition

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith

Collected poems. 1932 Dodd $3 821

[28-9581]

The English edition (1927 Burns 10s 6d) lacks the section Miscellaneous

Contents: New poems; Ballad of St Barbara; Poems; Wine, water and song; Ballad of the White Horse; The wild knight; Miscellaneous

"His most serious verse has been held to give him rank as the last of the great rhetorical poets. . . If a prediction may be ventured Chesterton will be remembered longest by his poems and his work in literary criticism." Encyclopedia Britannica, 11th ed

Clough, Arthur Hugh

Poems. (Oxford miscellany) 1910 Oxford $1.25 821

[4-13898]

"Including Ambarvalia and the first edition of the Bothie, edited by H. S. Milford." Subtitle

"Far less polished than Arnold's, Clough's poetry yet shows in some respects a freer and broader power." V. D. Scudder

Coleridge, Samuel Taylor

* Poetical works; ed by J. D. Campbell. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821

4-13899

"Of all that is purest and most ethereal in the romantic spirit, his poetry is the most finished, the supreme, embodiment." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Another recommended edition is the one edited by E. H. Coleridge in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Collins, William

Poetical works of Gray and Collins. See entry under Gray, Thomas

Colum, Padraic

Poems. 1932 Macmillan $2; 7s 6d 821

32-10867

"Bringing together verses from 'Dramatic legends,' 'Wild earth,' 'Creatures' and 'Old pastures,' as well as several new poems. Notes and indexes." Ontario library review

He is "pre-eminently a popular poet, deriving his surest inspiration from the life of the Irish people today, but frequently lifting this local material to a level of general human significance, through his ability to invest it with a note of ideal beauty and tenderness." Dial

Coppard, Alfred Edgar

Collected poems. 1928 Knopf $2.50; Cape, J. 5s 821

28-27675

"This edition of collected poems makes once more available poems of two earlier volumes, Hips and haws and Pelagea, which have been out of print." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Coppard is as definitely a poet as a short story writer, getting into his verse the same effects of life crystallized with gem-like precision and clarity, the same apparently casual and yet deliberate music, and the same deep compassion and understanding as the finest of his stories show." Spectator

Cowper, William

* Poetical works; ed by William Benham. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821

26-11357

"Cowper, though not among the great poets of England, holds a unique place, partly by virtue of the personality which shines in every line of his poetry, partly by virtue of the sincerity and simplicity which, 'keeping its eye on the object,' saw beauty and consolation in common things, till then neglected, but eagerly seized upon by his successors and transformed into material for their profoundest and noblest art." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Another recommended edition is the one edited by H. S. Milford, in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Crabbe, George

Poetical works; ed by A. J. Carlyle and R. M. Carlyle. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

33-27214

This edition reproduces the text of the author's own edition, adding the posthumous volume of "Tales and a few poems" gathered under the titles "Juvenilia" and "Occasional poems." There is a biographical and critical introduction and an index of first lines

"He very seldom has the absolute spirit of poetry . . . but the vigour and the distinction of his verse, as well as his wonderful faculty of observation in rendering scene and character, are undeniable." G. E. B. Saintsbury

Davies, William Henry

Collected poems. 1929 Smith, P. $3; Cape, J. 7s 6d 821

[29-11512]

"There are poems in this volume that have never been collected before, some of which have appeared recently in American periodicals. This book includes both the former collections of 1916 and 1923 as well as the recent poetry." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"The impression remains that his place is likely to be secure; and secure, especially, as what common opinion takes him to be, a poet of quiet moods and perceptions of country loveliness." New statesman

De La Mare, Walter John

* Collected poems, 1901-1918. 2v in 1 1920 Holt $5; Constable 2v 21s 821

20-21987

"Collection of earlier volumes. Volume 1 contains 'Poems: 1906; The listeners: 1914; Motley: 1919.' Volume 2 has 'Songs of childhood: 1901; Peacock pie.' Skilful, musical verse, marked by delicacy of fancy and craftsmanship." N.Y. state lib.

"The poems are like silk threads which are individually fragile, but which, woven together, make a fabric of unmatched fineness and strength, and are capable of taking on the softest, clearest colours. Some of the poems for children are exceedingly successful." Spectator

Selected poems. 1927 Holt $2 821

27-11085

A selection from The Listeners; Poems, 1904; Flora; Motley; The veil; and Crossing. Nothing has been included from the volumes intended for children

The author's "Fleeting, and other poems" (1933 Knopf $2.50; Constable 7s 6d) is a later collection of lyrics with two long dramatic poems

Dobson, Austin

Complete poetical works. (Oxford standard authors) 1923 Oxford $1.50; 6s 821

24-15714

"A complete collection containing all the poems included in the ninth edition . . . and in addition fifty-four war rondeaus and other miscellaneous poems. Some changes in the arrangement have been made and three complete indexes have been added." Bkl.

"A deft master of light verse. In his 'vignettes in rhyme' he revives for us the movement and color of his beloved eighteenth century in France and England, in shrewd character sketches and lively anecdotes, mingling wisdom and sentiment with delightful fancy. Although Dobson's art is frankly conventional and bookish, the grace and ease of his verse raise him high in the ranks of minor poets." English and Pope's What to read

Donne, John

* Complete poetry and selected prose; ed by John Hayward. 1929 Random house $3.50; Nonesuch press 8s 6d 821

[29-11198]

"The edition puts the seal upon Donne's reputation. In the best sense it is a 'popular edition.' There are few notes; the text has been carefully prepared by Mr. John Hayward; there is an admirably large amount of Donne in an admirably small compass." Spectator

"The poems of John Donne" edited by H. J. C. Grierson may be had separately in the Oxford standard authors series (1933 Oxford $1.50)

Dowson, Ernest Christopher

Poems. 1905 Dodd $2.50; Lane 5s 821

5-40782

Contains a memoir by Arthur Symons, four illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley, and a portrait frontispiece by William Rothenstein

"We may well believe that a few of these poems at least will live and be treasured, never indeed by the many, but by those who are sensitive to music and choice expression, and to sentiment that is genuine, however fatally stamped with too much sadness, born of disease." Saturday rev.

Drinkwater, John

New poems. 1925 Houghton $1.50 821

25-7773

Divided into two parts, "From an unknown isle" and "From the German." Each part is separately published in England by Sidgwick, the first at 3s 6d, and the second in a limited edition at 21s

"A quiet charm pervades the poems in this little book that is quite refreshing. . . The second part consists of seventeen translations from the German, lyrics by Schiller and others." Chicago

An earlier collection "Poems, 1908-1919" (1919 Houghton) is now, 1933, unfortunately out of print. "Collected poems" (2v 1923 Sidgwick 21s) contains all the poems from 1908 to 1922

Dryden, John

* Poetical works; ed by W. D. Christie. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821

4-13905

"The first of the great English neo-classic poets. It was he who perfected the heroic couplet as the medium of satiric and didactic verse. . . High technical perfection, good sense and wit distinguish all of his verse." English and Pope's What to read

Another recommended edition is the one edited by John Sargent in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Dunsany, Edward Moreton Drax Plunkett, 18th baron

Fifty poems. 1929 Putnam 10s 6d 821

30-11498

"The verse in this little volume reflects various moods and embraces a wide range of subjects as 'Art and life,' 'Evening in Africa,' 'To Keats,' At the time of the full moon.'" Ontario library review

Eliot, George, pseud.

Poems. Riverside ed Houghton $2.50 821

26-26949

A complete edition of the poems of this famous woman novelist of the nineteenth century

Flecker, James Elroy

Collected poems; ed by J. C. Squire. 1922 Knopf $3; Secker 10s 6d 821

17-26316

"Poems of a young Englishman who died in 1915 at the age of thirty, and who belonged to the so-called Parnassian School—a group of seekers after perfection of form and the objective interpretation of beauty." Cleveland

"As Parnassian he created some of the sweetest and most melting rhymes, some of the most vivid and sunlit pictures, some of the most plastic poetic art of our own day." Bookman

Galsworthy, John

Verses new and old. 1926 Scribner $1.50; Harrap 7s 6d 821

26-23671

"This little volume contains some verse selected from Moods, Songs and Doggerels, most of it revised; some verse that has appeared in periodicals, and some that has not yet appeared at all." Prefatory note

"Mr. Galsworthy has a way of capturing days and moods of old, not only for himself but for his readers, which adds to these too-modestly introduced verses of his a quiet and individual charm, as of a distant peal of bells." Spectator

Gay, John

Poetical works including "Polly," "The beggar's opera," and selections from the other dramatic work. (Oxford standard authors) 1926 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

27-26598

A good edition edited by G. C. Faber. The introduction is largely textual and there is also a bibliographical summary and a discussion of the doubtful poems. Indexes to titles, first lines, and first lines of the songs in the operas

"The originality of Gay's talent is to be found . . . in a clear-sighted realism, with an inclination to irony, which alternates between the sense of and search for the picturesque, and parody. There is in him a kind of intellectual cynicism that knows how to see freely and make us actually see, and thus to emerge from convention." Legouis and Cazamian's Hist. of Eng. literature

Gibson, Wilfrid Wilson

Collected poems 1905-25. 1926 Macmillan $3.50; 8s 6d 821

27-15021

"Contains all his work, published during the last twenty years, that the author cares to reprint." Note

"His work is simple, rough-hewn and frequently unbeautiful, but his sympathies penetrate to the innermost heart of humble life." Cleveland

Goldsmith, Oliver

* Poetical works; ed by Austin Dobson. (Oxford standard authors) 1906 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

26-8456

"This volume is a reprint, extended and revised, of the 'Selected Poems' of Goldsmith issued by the Clarendon Press in 1887. It is 'extended,' because it now contains the whole of Goldsmith's poetry: it is 'revised' because, besides the supplementary text, a good deal has been added in the way of annotation and illustration." Prefatory note

Gosse, Edmund William

Collected poems. 1911 Heinemann 5s 821

13-5443

"Sincere and charming verse. The lines of a poet who has seen immortal beauty and now fashions beautiful dreams out of the memory." Academy

Graves, Robert

* Poems, 1914-26. 1929 Heinemann 8s 6d 821

Formerly carried also by Doubleday, Doran

"This volume makes one realize that Graves, in his unpretentious way, has been an untiring experimentalist, trying many forms, investigating the possibilities of internal rhyme, utilizing assonance and creating a score of new methods for disentangling conventional devices from conventional effects. One realizes, too, that Mr. Graves's search for originality is not the result of making novelty a fetish; it rises from a strong conviction that beauty can never be expressed in outworn terms, that a new vision demands new poetic resources." N.Y. World

Poems, 1930-33. 1933 Heinemann 6s 821

This volume closes the author's dated sequence. Previous volumes are "Poems 1914-26" and "Poems 1926-30"

"Although Graves first became known as a war poet, his best verse is of a fantastic, whimsical quality." J. M. Manly and E. Rickert's Contemporary British literature

"Poems 1926-30" is also available (Heinemann 3s 6d) Most of the poems have appeared in previous limited editions that are now, 1933, out of print

Gray, Thomas

* Poetical works of Gray and Collins. (Oxford standard authors) 2d ed rev 1926 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

[A21-988]

The works of these eighteenth century poets are here edited by A. L. Poole with bibliographical prefaces, bibliographies and notes. Index of first lines

For Gray another recommended edition is his "Poems, with a selection of his letters and essays" in the Everyman's library (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Hardy, Thomas

Chosen poems. (Golden treasury ser.) 1930 Macmillan $1.50; 3s 6d, school ed 2s 6d 821

"Formerly published as 'Selected poems.' Present edition contains a considerable number of additional poems chosen personally by Mr Hardy in the last months of his life." Publisher's note

"A selection of lyrical poems, narrative and reflective poems, war poems and lyrics." Cleveland

* Collected poems. 1926 Macmillan $3.50; 8s 6d 821

[24-154]

This edition adds to the contents of the 1920 edition the poems published separately under the titles "Later lyrics and earlier" and "Human shows, far phantasies"

"There have been many poets among us in the last fifty years, poets of sure talent, and it may be even of genius, but no other of them has this compulsive power of Hardy. The secret

is not hard to find. Not one of them is adequate to what we know and have suffered... Therefore we deliberately set Mr Hardy among the greatest." Athenaeum

Winter words in various moods and metres. 1928 Macmillan $2; 6s 821
28-19327

"A collection of the last poems of Thomas Hardy, in which the reader will find what the author in his introduction calls 'flippant, not to say farcical pieces,' among those of somber note." Book rev. digest
"A crisp and vigorous sheaf of verse like this does not suggest that it was the last word of an aged writer." Times (London) lit. sup.

Henley, William Ernest

* Poems. 1921 Macmillan $2.40; 6s 821
[22-149]

Contents: In hospital; Bric-à-brac; Echoes; Rhymes and rhythms; Hawthorn and lavender; London voluntaries; London types; Three prologues; For England's sake; Epicedia; Song of speed; Appendix
"There are echoes... of old ballads, of standard verse, of modern singers as various as Tennyson and Emily Brontë and Swinburne. But, even in these... Henley almost always contrives to blend an original tone." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Herbert, George

Poems. (Oxford standard authors) 1913 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821
The introduction by Arthur Waugh contains biographical as well as critical material. The poet's works in Greek and Latin are given in addition to his English poems, and all are indexed by first lines

Herrick, Robert

* Poetical works. (Oxford standard authors) 1921 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821
[15-27760]

An edition based on the library edition edited by F. W. Moorman and published in 1915. The brief introduction is by another hand. Indexes of titles and first lines
Herrick was "a cavalier pastoral poet. His lyrics dwell on love, flowers, music, precious stones, etc., agreeable to the court life and fancies of Stuart days." Pratt alcove

Hinkson, Mrs Katharine (Tynan)

Collected poems. 1930 Macmillan $4; 10s 6d 821
31-26360

In an appreciative foreword A. E. (G. W. Russell) says of this poet: "Katharine Tynan was the earliest singer in that awakening of our imagination which has been spoken of as the Irish Renaissance. I think she had as much natural sunlight in her as the movement ever attained." Foreword

Hodgson, Ralph

17-14542

"A compilation in one small volume of poems hitherto published in chapbook or broadside form. Mr. Hodgson is of the more conservative modern school of poets, and, on account of the mingled simplicity and whimsical grace of some of his work, he has been compared in turn to Walter de la Mare, William Davies and William Blake." Cleveland

Hood, Thomas

Complete poetical works; ed by Walter Jerrold. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821
13-12349

This edition contains a brief introduction and a chronological table of the poet's life, notes, and index of first lines

Hood "was the poet of the heart, and sound at heart himself,—the poet of humane sentiment, clarified by a living spring of humor, which kept it from any taint of sentimentalism. To read his pages is to laugh and weep by turns; to take on human charity... Even his artistic weaknesses (and he had no other) were frolicsome and endearing." E. C. Stedman

Housman, Alfred Edward

Last poems. 1922 Holt $1.25; Richards press 5s 821
23-2168

"In almost each of the forty-one poems in this book he has achieved that complete fusion of rhythm, sound and sense which characterize a perfect work of art." Spectator

* Shropshire lad. 1922 Holt $1.25; Richards press 3s 6d 821
A22-845

First published 1896
"A verse sequence, which gives a picture of the outdoor life of a young man in springtime England, where hawthorne bushes are 'wearing white for Eastertide,' but where tragedy comes to haunt the beauty. Something of a newer Elizabethan is Housman in his zest for living. Elizabethan, too, is his sense of brooding fate." Chicago

Ingelow, Jean

Poems. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821
A13-1907

"Miss Ingelow may be termed an idyllic lyrist, her lyrical pieces having always much idyllic beauty, and being more original than her... ambitious efforts in blank-verse." E. C. Stedman

Keats, John

‡ Complete poetical works and letters. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, student's ed $2.50 821
99-5065

In this edition the attempt is made to follow a chronological arrangement as nearly as it can be ascertained from the letters. Text has been collated with the first editions and there are historical and bibliographical notes

Two other recommended editions are "Poetical works" in the Globe edition (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d) and "Poems" in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Very small libraries may be satisfied with the combined edition "John Keats and Percy Bysshe Shelley; complete poetical works, with the explanatory notes of Shelley's poems by Mrs Shelley" in the Modern library giants series (1932 Modern lib. $1) Paper is thin but type is legible and the volume fairly sturdy

Kingsley, Charles

Poems. (Everyman's lib.) Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 821
A27-284

"As a poet he wrote but little, but there are... many isolated lyrics, which are worthy of a place in all standard collections of English literature." Encyclopedia Britannica, 11th ed.

Kipling, Rudyard

‡ Rudyard Kipling's verse. inclusive ed 1885-1926 1927 Doubleday, Doran $5; Hodder 25s 821
27-20736

Inclusive edition of Kipling's poetry, combining his separate volumes of verse and including also incidental songs and poems first published in his books of prose
"Poems that sing themselves, that breathe of the open and free, poems of adventure and romance that are of the very soul of youth." Pratt alcove

Kipling, Rudyard—Continued

For the library that prefers separate volumes the following are suggested: "Departmental ditties and Ballads and barrack-room ballads," "Five nations," and "Seven seas" (Doubleday, Doran ea $2.50; Methuen ea 7s 6d). His "Songs for youth" (1925 Doubleday, Doran $2.50; Hodder 6s) is a selection of 55 poems, attractively illustrated

Landor, Walter Savage

Poems, dialogues in verse, and epigrams; ed by C. G. Crump. 2v Dent o.p. 1933 821

1-20384

"Both his poetry and his prose have been admired by so many well-qualified judges that they may be considered as a touch-stone of refined taste." A. D. Dickinson

Langland, William

Vision of Piers the Plowman; done into modern English by W. W. Skeat. (Medieval lib.) 1905 Oxford $2; Chatto 5s 821

22-19754

"This long, allegorical, alliterative poem by an author (or authors) contemporary with Chaucer describes all sorts of human types and throws much light upon social and religious institutions in 14th Century England." A. D. Dickinson

"Piers Plowman . . . a version for the modern reader by Arthur Burrell" (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s) is another rendering available in Everyman's library

Lawrence, David Herbert

Last poems; ed by Richard Aldington and Giuseppe Orioli. 1933 Viking press $3; Secker 10s 6d 821

33-10247

"These poems are moving, for they approximate a spiritual record of Lawrence's life during his last year. Technically they are not among his best, some are very slight, but they are direct and sincere and show the intense vitality and strong personality peculiar to Lawrence." Cincinnati

The author's "Collected poems" (2v 1929 Viking press $5; Secker 21s) is available in a one volume edition from Secker at 10s 6d

Ledwidge, Francis

Complete poems. 1919 Jenkins o.p. 1933 821

20-2931

The work of a young Irish poet who died in the Great war. Lord Dunsany's introductions to the separately published volumes are included

"Trees, flowers and the recurring seasons were his theme. But he evidently believed in these things, and did not write of nature because since Wordsworth's day, it is the correct thing to do. Ledwidge was a countryman and loved the country; the desire to express himself came, and he moulded into what are often exquisite forms, the simple country thoughts which were natural in him." Athenaeum

Macaulay, Thomas Babington Macaulay, 1st baron

* Lays of ancient Rome, with Ivry, and The Armada. Longmans $1.65; 4s 6d 821

4-13917

"It was Macaulay's conjecture that the half-legendary history of Rome's earliest days was preserved for generations in ballad form. The ballads were lost, but the legends were re-told by the historians. In the 'Lays of Ancient Rome' Macaulay sought to 'reverse that process, to transform some portions of early Roman history back into the poetry out of which they were made.' There are only four 'Lays': 'Horatius,' 'The Battle of Lake Regillus,' 'Virginia,' and 'The Prophecy of Capys.' It may be said that these poems are so stirring that their author seems almost to have been a Roman citizen, exulting in the heroic past of his people." English & Pope's What to read

Macpherson, James

Poems of Ossian. Centenary ed with additional Ossianic ballads and songs by William Sharp Grant, J. 6s 821

Poems published as alleged translations from the Gaelic Ossian legends, but which are now considered to be original poems inspired by the legends. This edition by Sharp was first published in 1896

Masefield, John

Minnie Maylow's story. 1931 Macmillan $2.50; Heinemann 7s 6d 821

31-30756

"A volume by England's poet laureate, containing narrative poems and several scenes or tableaux in verse. Many of the themes are taken from English history and legend: Tristan and Iseult, Rosamund, Dick Whittington, etc." Book rev. digest

The author's "Tale of Troy" (1932 Macmillan $1.50; Heinemann 5s) describes the siege of Troy as told by several of the participants

‡ Poems. 2v in 1 1929 Macmillan $5; Harrap 21s 821

Part I of this single volume of Masefield's collected poems contains the following previously published works: Salt-water ballads; Miscellaneous poems; Sonnets, and other poems; Lollingdon Downs, and other poems; part II, Reynard the fox, and other poems; and Midsummer night, and other tales in verse

"Mr Masefield's talent might have flowered differently if it had emerged at a period of less conscious rebellion. But his talent has been a genuinely poetic talent at all times—that is, he has had true genius for expression, and therein has been superior to most of his contemporaries. He can be read with pleasure and studied with profit in the mass." Springfield Republican

Salt-water poems and ballads. 1916 Macmillan $2.50; Mathews 5s 821

This book of racy lyrics and stirring narrative poems is a popular selection which it will be useful to have in addition to the complete edition. Illustrated in color and in black and white by Charles Pears

If, as is likely to be the case in many libraries, others of the separate volumes are needed in addition to the complete poems a very popular choice would be "Reynard the fox" (1919 Macmillan $2.50; Heinemann 3s 6d) a long rollicking rhymed narrative celebrating the joy of the hunt, the feelings of hunter and hunted, and the beauty of the English countryside. This is also obtainable in an attractive illustrated edition at $5. His "Selected poems" (1923 Macmillan $2.50; Heinemann 6s) is another good collection of some fifty poems chosen by the poet himself. It has been well recommended as an interesting introduction to his verse

Meredith, George

* Poetical works; with some notes by G. M. Trevelyan. 1912 Scribner $4 821

12-23125

"The text, except for a few emendations and changes in arrangement, is that of the Scribner Memorial edition, issued in three volumes. . . . Explanatory notes have been added. Portrait, table of contents, and index of first lines." N.Y. state lib.

"Meredith's verse is dramatic and realistic, but occasionally ventures upon a classical or romantic study." E. C. Stedman

* Poems. complete ed 1923 Scribner $2.50; Burns 6s 821

23-7220

This edition includes all of the poems previously published in "Preludes," "Poems," "Later poems," "Poems, a collected edition," "A father of women," and "Last poems"

"To many people her poems are rightly exceedingly attractive, they are intellectual, they are melodious, they are in admirable taste, and, in almost every poem, there are here and there lines which must give deep pleasure to every intelligent reader of poetry." Spectator

A selection of her best poems with the biographical sketch from the Encyclopaedia Britannica is available as "Selected poems" (1931 Scribner $1.50; Burns 3s 6d)

Milton, John

24-24830

This edition contains a biographical sketch by W. V. Moody, critical introductions to each group of the poems, notes and headnotes. The Latin poems are given with prose translations

Another recommended edition is the one edited by H. C. Beeching in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d). A recent well edited college text is "Complete poems, edited by F. A. Patterson" (1930 Crofts $2.50) Also available in the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c)

Poetical works, with introduction by David Masson. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821

Libraries which have the "Lexicon to the English poetical works of Milton" by L. E. Lockwood, listed in 821D will need this edition as that work is based upon it

Milton's "Works" (v 1-9, 14-15 1931-33 Columbia univ. press $105; Oxford 480s) to be complete in 18 volumes, when finished will be a complete and definitive edition. All the variant readings of the authorized and other important editions are included and translations of the works that were not originally written in English

Moore, Thomas

* Complete poetical works. 1895 Crowell $1.75 821

This edition is printed on thin paper from the same plates as the Standard library edition, which the publishers report out of print, 1933. Contains a biographical sketch by N. H. Dole, title and first line indexes

"He may not soar very high, he may not dive very deep; but he skims the surface with a curiously light, deft and variously fluttering wing. . . One thing no competent and fair-minded enemy has ever denied him—an almost unique faculty of marrying words to music and music to words." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Another recommended edition is the one in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d)

Morris, William

Earthly paradise. 2v Longmans $5; 4v 12s 821

First published 1868-70. The issue of 1930 in two volumes, is identical with the "new edition," 1905, in four volumes

"One of the most beautiful of nineteenth century romances. . . The poem is a collection of the tales of Golden Greece, and of the dim, rich, mediaeval time. . . The author draws upon Greek mythology, upon the 'Gesta Romanorum,' the Nibelungenlied, the Eddas; indeed, upon the greatest story-books of the world. He has woven them all together in one beautiful Gothic tapestry of verse." H. R. Keller's Reader's digest of books

Life and death of Jason. pocket lib. ed Longmans $1.40; 3s 6d 821

First published 1865

"A narrative poem, of epic proportions, all story and action, composed in the rhymed pentameter, strongly and sweetly carried from the first book to the last of seventeen. . . The poem is fresh and stirring, and the style befits the theme." E. C. Stedman

* Story of Sigurd the Volsung and the fall of the Niblungs. Longmans $2.75, school ed 80c; 7s 6d 821

4-13922

"In 'The Story of Sigurd,' which remains his masterpiece of sustained power, he goes sheer through civilization, and finds an ampler beauty shadowed under the dusk of the Gods . . . And now, at last, he touches the heart; for he sings of the passions of men, of the fierceness of love and hate, of the music of swords in the day of battle." Saturday rev.

His "Defence of Guenevere" (pocket lib. ed Longmans $1.40; 3s 6d) is a volume of early poems whose "virtue is their spontaneity, a natural unlabored gift of poetry asserting itself without definite effort." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

Newbolt, Sir Henry John

Poems, new and old. 1918 Murray, J. 7s 6d 821

22-26391

Formerly carried also by Dutton

"A complete collection of the author's verse from 1897 to 1918. It includes the contents of five previous volumes: Admirals all (1897); The island race (1898); The sailing of the long-ships (1902); Songs of memory and hope (1909); and St George's day (1918); together with a number of pieces added to later editions of the first two of these, ten poems first collected in Poems; new and old (1912), and six which have not hitherto appeared in book form." Author's note

"He is the sanest and healthiest of our patriotic poets. For the author of 'Drake's drum' there is assured immortality. To have added a ballad to the English anthology is an achievement indeed." English review

Noyes, Alfred

* Collected poems. 3v 1913-20 Stokes ea $3 821

13-23178

Volume 1 includes The flower of old Japan, The progress of love, The forest of wild thyme, and Drake; v2 The enchanted island, Sherwood, and Tales of the Mermaid tavern; v3 The elfin artist, The new morning, The lord of misrule, A Belgian Christmas eve, and The wine press. There are additional poems in each volume. The 4v set carried in England by Blackwood at 7s 6d each, has a different arrangement of titles, as well as poems published since 1920

"A very versatile poet who especially excels in the ballad form, to which he imparts a strong lyric feeling, as in such poems as 'The Highwayman' and 'Forty singing seamen.'" Chicago

The author's "Torch-bearers" (3v 1922-30 Stokes ea $2.50; Blackwood ea 7s 6d) is a trilogy of epic poetry in praise of science. Volume 1 "Watchers of the sky" is concerned with astronomers; v2 "Book of earth" with natural scientists from Pythagoras to Darwin; and v3 "Last voyage" with medicine

Dick Turpin's ride, and other poems. 1927 Stokes $1.75 821

27-20477

"A volume of lyrics, ballads, and narrative poems, possessing beauty and variety." Chicago

Forty singing seamen, and other poems. 1930 Stokes $3 821

30-31470

An attractive selection from this poet's work which will make an appeal to youthful readers

Contains many illustrations, some in color, by Elizabeth MacKinstry

Contents: Forty singing seamen; Highwayman; Bacchus and the pirates; Admiral's ghost; Tramp transfigured; Black Bill's honey-moon

Phillips, Stephen
Poems. Dodd $2; Lane 4s 6d 821
13-9325

A "poet who treated old themes with a fresh beauty. His 'Marpessa' and 'Christ in Hades' (included here) received an immediate welcome from the public." Neilson and Thorndike's Hist. of Eng. literature

First published 1897. In 1907 another small collection "New poems" (Lane 4s 6d) was published

Pope, Alexander
* Complete poetical works; ed by H. W. Boynton. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, student's ed $2.50 821
3-10221

"We cannot deny him the tribute of greatness. . . It is too much to claim that his verses attained the highest imaginative flights. . . He sought above all, in imitation of classical models, correctness of style." Painter's Hist. of Eng. literature

"Pope gave our heroic couplet its strictest melody and tersest expression." Thomas Campbell

Another good edition is the Globe edited by A. W. Ward (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d)

Quiller-Couch, Sir Arthur Thomas
Poems. 1929 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 821
29-27600

"Much of his work is . . . of high quality, moving with stately beauty, as befits the muse of one who has dwelt with the poets of the past and in close communion with them." N.Y. Times

Rossetti, Christina Georgina
Poetical works; ed by W. M. Rossetti. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 821
8-13713

"While she naturally displayed a temper akin to her brother's . . . large parts, and some of the best parts, of her poetical accomplishment are quite distinct from anything of his. . . Her lyrics have a lighter, more bird-like, movement and voice than his stately descants; she is less prone to an extreme regularity of metre, and her whole tone is often different. . . Her most characteristic strain is where . . . pathos blends with, or passes into, the utterance of religious awe, unstained and unweakened by any craven fear." G. E. B. Saintsbury

Rossetti, Dante Gabriel
Poems. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821
Contains also a prose story "Hand and soul" and the poet's translations from the Italian: the poets before Dante, Dante and his circle, and Dante's "Vita nuova"

The "work of the poet-painter who with Millais, Hunt and others founded the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood in protest against existing conventions in art and literature. With the publication of his Poems in 1870 Rossetti was quickly acclaimed as a new poet of originality and beauty." Pratt alcove

Another recommended edition which does not, however, include the translations is the one edited by E. L. Cary (2v Putnam o.p. 1933)

Russell, George William
Collected poems, by A.E. 2d ed 1926 Macmillan $3.75; 10s 6d 821
26-27675

Collected from "Homeward," "Songs by the way," "The earth breath," "The divine vision," and "Voices of the stones," with some new verses including many poems not in the first edition. Includes, the poet says, "what poetry of mine I would wish my friends to read"

Mystical, decorative verse in which "the presence of true inspiration and of haunting beauty . . . is incontestable." Nation

Sassoon, Siegfried Lorraine
Counter-attack, and other poems. 1918 Dutton $1.50 821
1 European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 19-2052

"Poems of the war by a young English poet who saw active service and has no sympathy with the romantic view of war." Pratt quarterly

His "Heart's journey" (1929 Heinemann 3s 6d) is a small volume of lyrics which might well be added if needed

Selected poems. 1925 Heinemann 3s 6d 821
25-15082

A representative selection of the author's early verse which includes poems from "The old huntsman," "War poems" and "The picture show"

Scott, Sir Walter, bart.
‡ Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, students ed $2.50 821
0-2568

Contains a biographical sketch, notes, indexes, and a portrait

"By its spirited action, picturesque narrative, and beauty and vividness of description, Scott's poetry is assured lasting popularity and distinction." Pratt alcove

Another recommended edition is the one in the Globe edition (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d). Satisfactory separate editions of Scott's longer poems, such as "Lady of the Lake," "Lay of the last minstrel," and "Marmion," are available in the English classics published by Macmillan at prices varying from $1.20 to $1.40 each; in England 2s 6d to 3s

Heart of Scott's poetry. 1932 Oxford $2.50; 6s 821
32-26667

"This is a valuable little collection of the best of Scott's poetry. The introduction by John Haynes Holmes is a well-written critical essay attempting to restate Scott's position as a poet and to summarize his particular virtues. Mr. Holmes . . . revaluates the beauty of Scott's poetry in the light of modern criticism, and finds that for the impersonal, dramatic quality of his folk stories in verse Scott has few equals." Nation

Sharp, William
Poems; selected and arranged by Mrs William Sharp. 1912 Duffield $2; Heinemann 6s 821
12-40597

This volume includes a selection from five volumes and a number of miscellaneous poems published under the poet's own name. Those published under the pseudonym Fiona Macleod will be found in v7 of the "Works of Fiona Macleod, edited by Mrs W. Sharp" (Duffield $2; Heinemann 3s 6d)

"Poetically they bear a distinct resemblance to the work of Matthew Arnold. There is the same loftiness of spirit, the same serene vision and high striving for spiritual worthiness." Review of reviews

Shelley, Percy Bysshe
‡ Complete poetical works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, student's ed $2.50 821
1-22906

Edited with notes and an introduction by G. E. Woodberry. Indexes

Two other recommended editions are "Poems" in the Oxford standard authors series (Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d) and "Poetical works" in the Globe edition (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d)

Very small libraries may be satisfied with the combined edition "John Keats and Percy

Shelley, Percy B.—Continued

Bysshe Shelley; complete poetical works, with the explanatory notes of Shelley's poems by Mrs Shelley" in the Modern library giants series (1932 Modern lib. $1) Paper is thin but type is legible and the volume fairly sturdy

Southey, Robert

Poems; ed by M. H. Fitzgerald. (Oxford standard authors) 1909 Oxford $1.50; 6s 821

14-14907

Not a complete edition, this contains Thalaba the Destroyer; The curse of Kehama; Roderick; Madoc; A tale of Paraguay; and selected minor poems. It is also furnished with the usual critical apparatus in an introduction, bibliographical and critical, a biographical table, notes and index of first lines. A list of the poems not reprinted in this edition is given in an appendix

Spenser, Edmund

* Poems; ed by R. E. N. Dodge. Cambridge ed Houghton $4, student's ed $3 821

8-11738

His greatest work is the "Faerie queene" a long imaginative poem of knight-errantry reflecting the influence of the renaissance. It is also available in Everyman's library (2v Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s)

Another recommended edition of his complete works is the Globe edition (Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d)

Stephens, James

Collected poems. 1926 Macmillan $3; 10s 6d 821

26-18496

In this reprinting from his previous volumes of verse Mr Stephens has discarded a great number of his poems and retained some of the most criticised. The poems thus chosen he has arranged in subject-sequence. Adapted from Preface

"James Stephens is April in Ireland. Chase his laughing fancy down the lyric lane and it stops in tears; or, the other way about. Whether sprightly or serious, his thought nearly always wears a thin, shimmering mantle which may be called Loveliness. That his poetry is not great is as unimportant as the dragon-fly's failure to be the rainbow—let us remember too that there is always the entomologist whose preferences must be served." North American

Strict joy. 1931 Macmillan $1.25; 5s 821

31-24166

"A slim volume by a true poet, whose lyrics are compounded of beauty in phrase and image and rhythm. For the more reflective poetry lover." N.Y. libraries

Stevenson, Robert Louis

‡ Complete poems. 1923 Scribner $4 821

23-17137

Contents: Child's garden of verses; Underwoods; Songs of travel and other verses; Ballads; New poems

"Stevenson was a poet, a reckonable poet. He was a better short-story writer. . . It is astonishing, after all, that he was so good a poet in the intervals of fecund prose creation. He was a casual poet, with extraordinarily lucky moments." Literary rev.

Swinburne, Algernon Charles

* Collected poetical works. 2v 1924 Harper $7.50; Heinemann 15s 821

[20-10082]

"The most fertile lyric poet of the Victorian era, whose unequalled versatility in the use of lyric form was amazing in its brilliance. Receptive of manifold influences, classical, English and foreign, he reproduced them in a style which was wholly individual." Cambridge hist. of Eng. literature

--- recommended edition is "Poems" ' $3)

Synge, John Millington

Poems and translations. Luce, J. W. $1; Allen, G. 4s 821

[9-16093]

"Human emotions, the more elemental the better, are for Synge the subject matter of his cameo carved work." J. G. Huneker

Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, 1st baron

‡ Poetic and dramatic works. Cambridge ed Houghton $3.50, student's ed $2.50 821

98-806

Edited with a biographical sketch and notes by W. J. Rolfe

"Tennyson has made the widest appeal of any English poet of the nineteenth century. His verse is graceful, romantic, elegant, of great pictorial beauty, and imbued with deep religious feeling. Tennyson's poetry perfectly mirrored the spirit of his era in England." Pratt alcove

Another recommended edition is the Globe edition (Macmillan $2.50; 4s 6d). If it is needed separately his "Idylls of the king" is available in the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c; 2s 6d)

Thompson, Francis

* Poems; ed by T. L. Connolly. 1932 Appleton-Century $3, student's ed $2.25 821

32-10862

"The collected poems, supplemented by over two hundred and fifty pages of notes analyzing the poems exhaustively. Includes some biographical data, an index to first lines, and a title-index of poems and notes." Book rev. digest

"Thompson has written, amidst the pains of a grievous life, some masterpieces filled with a strangely sumptuous and ample harmony, in which amplitude and sumptuousness are not always reconciled, and in which poetry at times is the loser for their secret struggle. The instants of their union possess a supreme beauty, which reminds one of Keats; but even more beautiful are those in which breadth of inspiration predominates, and enforces its sway." Legouis and Cazamian's Hist. of Eng. literature

Another recommended edition is the one in his "Works, edited by Wilfred Meynell" (v1-2 2v Scribner $7.50; Burns ea 7s 6d). The poems from the Meynell edition have been reprinted as "Complete poetical works" (1918 Modern library 95c) A good selection is the "Selected poems" (Scribner $2; Burns 5s)

Thomson, James

Complete poetical works; ed by J. L. Robertson. (Oxford standard authors) 1908 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 821

A10-427

Contains a critical introduction with a chronological table of the principal events in the poet's life, a genealogical table, and index to first lines

Contents: The seasons; Castle of indolence; Liberty; Lyrical pieces; Memorial verses; Epistles; Miscellaneous poems; Juvenilia

Wilde, Oscar

Poems. 1909 Methuen 3s 6d 821

[9-29433]

An attractively printed edition. There is a biographical and critical introduction by Temple Scott in which he says, "there is enough of each kind [of literary expression in Wilde's works] so excellent in quality that one is fain to believe that Wilde would have been distinguished as great in any one. . . Indeed, there are many who concede to him the title of poet on 'The Ballad of Reading Gaol' alone."

Another edition is available in the Modern library at 95c

Wolfe, Humbert

[26-27552]

A "group of poems about the lost love of Pierrot and Pierrette, and about Pantaloon and the Constable and Harlequin. Each one speaks for himself in lovely poetry and in a characteristic manner. Here we have, in a variety of metres, all sides of Humbert Wolfe: his serious side, seriousness with a tinge of irony, pathos, mischievous humor, charming little will-o'-the-wispy nothings that one could almost blow away with a breath. The poems are divided like a drama in five acts." Providence

Another volume of his poetry which might be added is "Requiem" (1927 Benn 6s)

Wordsworth, William

4-13941

Another recommended edition is the one edited by A. J. George in the Cambridge edition (Houghton $4, student's ed $3) A good cheap edition is "Poetical works" ed by Thomas Hutchinson in the Oxford standard edition (Oxford 95c) A good inexpensive selection, chosen by Matthew Arnold, is in the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c; 3s 6d)

Yeats, William Butler

33-33894

Includes the poems in his "Early poems and stories" (1925 Macmillan 10s 6d) except Celtic twilight and Rosa Alchemica, and all the poems formerly published in his "Later poems" (1924 Macmillan $2.50; 12s 6d)

"In gathering his poems for this collected volume, Yeats has frequently revised and sometimes practically rewritten many of his early pieces. . . The poet is so radically altered . . . that he is almost in the position of one person criticizing and manipulating another person's text." S. J. Kunitz in Wilson bul.

He "has put into English the strange charm of old Irish legends, and he has written of modern Ireland in language with the swing and charm of English as Irish men and women speak it." Auslander and Hill's Winged horse 821D Individual poets—Critical works, dictionaries, etc.

We have made a separate list of these titles in order to bring them together in this Catalog, but libraries will doubtless wish to shelve each one after the works of that author

For material supplementing this list libraries are referred to class 92, where works on many writers are listed which will be found to contain much critical as well as biographical material. Libraries which have need for material for students and scholars should consult I. G. Mudge's "Guide to reference books" (class 016) for a fuller list of dictionaries, etc.

Arnold, Matthew

[17-13963]

Reprint of a book first published 1917 by Bobbs

"One chapter is devoted to Matthew Arnold's character and career, and the remainder of the book is then given up to a study of his work. 'Mathew Arnold is a charming but not an altogether conciliatory writer,' says the author in beginning his first chapter. 'If you disagree with him, he does not encourage you to believe with him, he does encourage you to believe that you may be in the right.' The literary study is divided into the following chapters: Poems of the personal life; Poems of the external world; Literary criticism; Education; Politics and society; Religion." Book rev. digest

"This is the more effective because the biographical chapter at the beginning is a real introduction to the man himself." Literary digest

Browning, Robert

Berdoe, Edward. Browning cyclopaedia. Macmillan $3.75; Allen, G. 10s 6d 821D

31-19453

Originally published, 1892, and frequently reprinted

Gives "an exposition of the leading ideas of every poem, its key-note, the sources—historical, legendary, or fanciful—to which the poem was due, and a glossary of every difficult word or allusion." Preface

Bibliography: pref. p11-18

* Brooke, S. A. Poetry of Robert Browning. 1902 Crowell $2.50; Pitman 12s 6d 821D

2-24748

A volume of criticism highly recommended for "its high literary value, its acute insight into the principles of literary production, and its judicial estimate of one of the greatest of our poets." Spectator

"Introduction to the study of Robert Browning's poetry" by Hiram Corson (3d ed 1903 Heath $1.60) is a sympathetic guide with selected poems

Orr, Mrs A. L. Handbook to the works of Robert Browning. 6th ed 1892 Harcourt $2.25; Bell, G. 6s 821D

6-25881

Approved by Browning as the official introduction to his writings. Bibliographies are included

Phelps, W. L. Robert Browning. new ed with additional chapters 1932 Bobbs $2.50; Murray, J. 10s 6d 821D

32-25561

First edition 1915. The author has added chapters on Christmas Eve, Pauline, The ring and the book, the Plays, Browning and his critics, Browning's theory of music, and A Browning pilgrimage to Italy

"Explains interestingly and clearly the meaning of Browning's poems. Quotes over fifty of the shorter poems. The opening chapters are on Browning the man, and his theory of poetry." N.J. lib. bul.

"The informality of style and the briskness and simplicity of the work as a whole will make it useful to young Browning readers and to beginning clubs; the student will not always agree with Professor Phelps' interpretations, but he will enjoy his sane attitude and personal judgments." Wis. bul.

Chaucer, Geoffrey

Chesterton, G. K. Chaucer. 1932 Farrar $2.50; Faber 12s 6d 821D

32-23269

"A fascinating story of the life of Geoffrey Chaucer and an informative study of medieval life and mentality. The author points out the beauty of the Gothic scene, the grades of chivalry, the orders of the Guilds, and treats Chaucer as the flower of that period, a genius that could not have developed to maturity in any other age. 'The religious doubtless will find him very controversial; the historians will disapprove,' quotes a reviewer in the 'Spectator,' but nevertheless the book is Chesterton at his very best, witty and provocative. Index." Ontario library review

A very full bibliography of Chaucer is found in E. P. Hammond's "Chaucer; a bibliographical manual" (1933 Smith, P. $4), a reprint of a book first published by Macmillan in 1908

* Kittredge, G. L. Chaucer and his poetry. 1915 Harvard univ. press $1.50; Oxford 6s 6d 821D

15-5448

"Lectures delivered in 1914 on the Percy Turnbull memorial foundation in the Johns Hopkins university." Subtitle

"From the point of view of the student, these papers represent the views of a thorough-going scholar addressing an audience possessed of at least a reading knowledge of the subject... Prof. Kittredge's first paper concerns the man and his times; specific works form the subject of those that follow, and the last two are devoted to the Canterbury tales." Springfield Republican

Lowes, J. L. Geoffrey Chaucer and the development of his genius. 1934 Houghton $2.50, student's ed $1 821D

34-5318

"To have brought together within the confines of a few chapters, material so zestfully and illuminatingly presented that the casual reader is made aware not only of Chaucer's backgrounds and horizons, his world of affairs and his world of books, but also of the evolution of his genius in his writings is the distinctive achievement of the author." N.Y. libraries

For information concerning Chaucer Concordance see note under Globe edition of Chaucer's works, class 821

Milton, John

Hanford, J. H. Milton handbook. rev ed 1933 Crofts $2 821D

33-4182

First edition 1926. Revised, enlarged by 60 pages of new material in both text and bibliography

Contents: Materials for Milton's biography; Prose works; Minor poems; Paradise lost; Paradise regained and Samson Agonistes; Milton's style and versification; Milton's fame and influence

D. H. Stevens's "Reference guide to Milton; from 1800 to the present day" (1930 Univ. of Chicago press $5; Cambridge univ. press 22s 6d) is a very full bibliography of works about Milton and of the many editions of his works

Lockwood, L. E. Lexicon to the English poetical works of John Milton. 1907 Macmillan $4.50; 12s 6d 821D

7-37515

"Based upon the text of the Globe edition. Defines words and refers to text. Records all occurrences of each word except in the case of very common words where each meaning, but not each occurrence, is recorded." Mudge

Tennyson, Alfred Tennyson, 1st baron

* Brooke, S. A. Tennyson, his art and relation to modern life. 1894 Putnam $4; Pitman 7s 6d 821D

30-8189

A critical study discussing the individual poems as well as the general characteristics of the poet and "well adapted to bring to the reader's attention the many admirable aspects of Tennyson." Trinity college list

Van Dyke, Henry. Studies in Tennyson. 1920 Scribner $2 821D

20-5685

An interesting critical study. A revision of his "Poetry of Tennyson," first published 1889, containing much new matter

Wordsworth, William

Herford, C. H. Wordsworth. (Republic of letters) 1930 Dutton $2; Routledge 6s 821D

30-32417

"A new interpretation of the personality and works of the poet Wordsworth, based on the recent discoveries concerning the poet's visit to France in his youth, and access to the original version of the autobiographical poem, 'The Prelude.' There is a chronological list of Wordsworth's principal works, a bibliography, and an index." Book rev. digest

"The poet emerges from this inquiry much more truly portrayed, a firmly argued individualist subsisting under a presiding genius of the universe as a direct microcosm thereof, putting into his thought and actions that simple principle, and building on it his theory and conduct of art, philosophy, religion and politics." Spectator

821.08 English poetry—Collections

In addition to collections of English poetry alone we have classed here anthologies containing poems by English and American authors with little or nothing by foreign writers. Some libraries, in order to keep all or most anthologies together, may prefer to class many of these in 808.81

The small public library will wish to buy heavily in this class and lightly in classes 821 and 811. The very small library may find that even in the case of standard authors a good collection of anthologies will take the place of many titles by individual writers

Regional and Special anthologies

Several books of regional verse are noted here for the benefit of libraries in which they will be useful:

Murdoch, Walter, comp. Book of Australasian verse. 1924 Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d A revised edition of the "Oxford book of Australasian verse," which appeared in 1918

Slater, F. C., ed. Centenary book of South African verse, 1820-1925. 1925 Longmans 6s

Stevens, Bertram, ed. Golden treasury of Australian verse. 1909 Macmillan o.p. 1933

Two anthologies of special subjects are:

Curtiss, M. K., comp. Olive, cypress and palm; an anthology of love and death. 1930 Harcourt o.p. 1933 "A distinguished and discriminative selection"

Shortridge, V., comp. Songs of science. 1930 The author $2 Aims to show the advance of science as recorded in poetry

Adamson, Margot Robert

(comp.) Treasury of Middle English verse. 1930 Dutton $2; Dent 6s 821.08

1 English poetry—Middle English 30-16491

"The compiler of these lyrics dating from the twelfth to the sixteenth centuries has transliterated them into modern English rhyme and scansion. The greater number of the poems are taken from manuscripts and collections such as the Vernon MS., An Old English Miscellany, Hymns to the Virgin and Christ, and collections of songs and carols." Book rev. digest

Miss Adamson "has cut out of her collection those two fierce strains in medieval satire, against women and against the clergy, and she has softened the ugliness of worms and corruption. Her anthology is like a medieval church stripped of its gargoyles: only the pleasantly quaint decoration—that is, the ingenuous religious imagery—has been allowed to remain. The modernizing is done with the lightest possible hand, with evident delight in the original, and (except where this bias is apparent) with scrupulous faithfulness to it." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Middle English metrical romances" edited by W. H. French and C. B. Hale (1930 Prentice-Hall $4.50) is a large and scholarly collec-

tion of the metrical romances in the original Middle English. Arthurian pieces, Floris and Blancheflour, Robert of Sicily and many others are given, usually in full

Albertson, Charles Carroll
(ed.) Lyra mystica. 1932 Macmillan $3; 7s 6d 821.08
1 Religious poetry 2 Mysticism in literature 32-7383
"This anthology of mystical verse is chronologically arranged, beginning with an Egyptian poem of 3000 B.C. and ending with a large section of selections from contemporary poets. Tho a great many of the selections are English and American, there are also many translations from other languages, Hebrew, Persian, East Indian, as well as German, French, Russian, etc. Indexes of authors and first lines; table of contents arranged alphabetically by titles." Book rev. digest
"A notable collection of the greatest religious poems of all time. . . The introduction by Dean Inge is a meaty essay on mysticism and its expression in poetry." Christian century

Ault, Norman
(ed.) Elizabethan lyrics from the original texts. (English lyrics, I) 1925 Longmans $3.50; 10s 6d 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 25-23511
"A selection of six hundred and forty Elizabethan lyrics, arranged according to the date when each became popularly known and so presenting, the author hopes, 'a living literary movement,' illustrative of that period. Contains numerous examples of the work of obscure and less well-known poets as well as recognized favorites." Bkl.
"A very good compilation, and one which will long keep its place. It is useful to those who study literature as well as delightful to those who read unsystematically." New statesman

(ed.) Seventeenth century lyrics from the original texts. (English lyrics, II) 1928 Longmans $3.50; 10s 6d 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 28-1315
"This compilation is exhaustive, including selections from the minor poets, many, indeed, which have never been reprinted since the seventeenth century. The editing and emendment were made with the aid of the original texts, and the book is annotated in a scholarly fashion. . . Author, title, and subject indexes." Bkl.
"On the whole, Mr. Ault's most important services to English poetry are the provision of the fullest and most intelligently-framed bibliographical guide yet produced, and the criticism of certain accepted attributions." Saturday rev.
"Restoration verse, 1660-1715" edited by William Kerr (1931 Macmillan $2.25; 7s 6d) is a selection of verse from a more limited period, carefully made and annotated

Auslander, Joseph, and Hill, Frank Ernest
* (comps.) Winged horse anthology. 1929 Doubleday, Doran $3.50, educ. ed $1.50 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 29-12709
"Intended as a companion volume and following closely the order of the authors' 'Winged horse' (in 809.1). . . This is a one-volume anthology, containing 'the best verse done in English, in whatever form—and only the best,' and compiled to serve especially those just beginning to read poetry." Cleveland
"Designed for the use of younger readers who have still to climb the slopes of Parnassus and older readers who neglected to climb them during their youth. For these two classes, it can be very highly recommended. For readers more familiar with great English poetry and for all those who have ceased to pursue culture as an end in itself, the present collection will not supersede 'The Oxford Book of English Verse.'" Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Binyon, Laurence
* (comp.) Golden treasury of modern lyrics. 1924 Macmillan $1.75; 5s 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 25-8409
"Continues Palgrave's Golden treasury of songs and lyrics. Beginning with the chief Victorian poets, it includes, within the prescribed scope, many of the most notable English poems up to the present. Author and first line indexes and notes." N.Y. state lib.
"About Mr. Binyon's choices from the works of his poets lively discussion may be expected, especially in regard to Tennyson, but none the less this cultivated and sensitive anthologist has given us another golden volume to rejoice the life of thousands." Literary rev.

Braddy, Nella
(ed.) Standard book of British and American verse. 1932 Garden City pub. co. $1 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 32-30229
"An anthology containing 588 poems by 240 poets from Chaucer to Edna St Vincent Millay and Richard Aldington. The arrangement is chronological, and there are indexes of authors, titles, and first lines." Book rev. digest
"Fulfills so far as any book of the kind can the promise of its title. It holds most of the things that the average reader of poetry will ask for or be pleased to find, and it holds little or nothing that the experienced reader of poetry will be surprised to encounter. The selection is 'standard.'" Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Bridges, Robert Seymour
(comp.) Chilswell book of English poetry. 1924 Longmans $1.50, school ed $1.25; 3s 6d 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 24-5775
"A selection of standard poetry, including a few modern writers of the type of De la Mare and James Stephens. An attractive book." Wis. bul.
J. M. Manly's "English poetry, 1170-1892" (1907 Ginn $2.40) compiled for intrinsic worth, beauty and significance in the history of English literature, is another good collection. A condensation of this and the author's "English prose," published with the title: "English prose and poetry" is listed in 820.8

Brooke, Stopford Augustus, and Rolleston, Thomas William Hazen
(eds.) Treasury of Irish poetry in the English tongue. rev and enl 1932 Macmillan $3; Murray, J. 10s 6d 821.08
1 Irish poetry—Collections 32-26046
First edition 1900. A new section with work of later poets has been added and biographical material has been brought up to date
Contains a selection from the best poems by nineteenth century Irish authors, with an introduction on the development of Irish poetry and biographical and critical notes of each poet

Bryant, William Cullen
(ed.) Library of poetry and song. rev and enl Utopian ed 3v Doubleday, Doran $7.50 821.08
1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections (25-7664)
A comprehensive collection of poetry, for the most part English and American. Published 1925-26 in a 3 volume edition which takes the place of the 1 volume edition formerly sold at $5, but out of print, 1933

Bullett, Gerald William
(ed.) English galaxy of shorter poems 1934 Macmillan $2; Dent 7s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections [33-36942]

Anthology of English lyrical verse, made up of shorter poems, covering the whole field of English verse from its beginnings to 1900

"The English Galaxy contains scores of poems that have never before been anthologised. Many popular favourites, of course, are here to light up the pathway with their ancient rays; but scores of them are so little known that they masquerade almost as new planets. . . The anthology ends with the nineteenth century, and the chief adverse criticism to make against it is that there is in it too little of the other centuries." New statesman and Nation

Burns, Vincent Godfrey
(comp.) Red harvest; a cry for peace. 1930 Macmillan $3.75 821.08

1 Peace—Poetry 2 War poetry 30-7017

"An anthology of peace poetry, practically all of its poetry growing out of the late war. Indexes to authors and titles make the contents easily accessible, and the wide inclusiveness of selection will make the book valuable for reference." Wis. bul.

Cambridge book of lesser poets; compiled by J. C. Squire. 1927 Macmillan $2.75; Cambridge univ. press 8s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 27-20620

Excluding more than one hundred poets whose works are to be found in other anthologies, the compiler has succeeded in making a pleasant browsing book of poems by some three hundred lesser English and American poets, from the 14th century to the 20th. There are indexes to first lines and authors

Campbell, Oscar James; Pyre, James Francis Augustine, and Weaver, Bennett
(eds.) Poetry and criticism of the romantic movement. 1932 Crofts $3.50 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 3 English literature—Hist. & crit. 4 Criticism—Hist. 5 Romanticism 32-14465

"A collection of poetry and extracts from prose criticism designed for the use of teachers and students of English literature of the early 19th century. The selections are grouped by authors. Indexes." Book rev. digest

"This book, which must be viewed primarily as a text, seems to offer ampler materials and to be better edited than most books having the same general purpose." Bookman

Carhart, George S., and McGhee, Paul A.
* (comps.) Through magic casements. 1926 Macmillan $2.50 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections A27-206

There is also a school edition with the title: "Magic casements," published at $2

"A collection of English and American poetry intended for boys and girls of high school age. The poems are chosen without regard to chronological periods or schools of poetry but are arranged in four parts to correspond roughly with the four years of high school." Pittsburgh

"Some of the best poems of our language are gathered here. They vary extensively, as they should, and they represent the romance and the dreams that for centuries have stirred our race to song." Independent

Child, Francis James
* (ed.) English and Scottish popular ballads; ed by H. C. Sargent and G. L. Kittredge. Cambridge ed 1904 Houghton $4, student's ed $3; Harrap 10s 6d 821.08

1 English ballads and songs 2 Scottish ballads and songs 4-13303

"An abridgment of [Professor Child's 5v collection (Houghton o.p. 1933)] sufficient for ordinary purposes. Gives each of the 305 ballads in one or more versions, without the apparatus criticus, and with briefer notes. Contains a briefer glossary, full list of sources, and an index of titles." Mudge

Clark, Thomas Curtis, and Gillespie, Esther A.
(comps.) Quotable poems; an anthology of modern verse. 2v 1928-31 Willett ea $2.50 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections

"An extensive collection that lives up to its title, well indexed and useful for any library. Contains a section, Poems for the great days of the year." Wis. bul.

"There are poems of joy and sadness, of faith and of adventure, of nature and of love. The variety is as wide as life and as rich as the intricate patterns of human experience." Christian century

Clarke, George Herbert
* (ed.) Treasury of war poetry, 1914-1917. 1917 Houghton $2 821.08

1 European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 17-25441

"An excellent collection of war verse written . . . by English and American poets and entered under the headings of the various embattled nations and topics, such as Reflections, Poets militant, Auxiliaries, Women and war, The fallen. . . Contains indexes of authors, titles and first lines." Cleveland

* (ed.) Treasury of war poetry, 1914-1919; second series. 1919 Houghton $2 821.08

1 European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 19-12360

"Contains about 215 poems most of them published since 1917. This volume and the first series . . . form the most useful collection of war poetry available. Table of contents, indexes of first lines, titles and authors." N.Y. state lib.

Colum, Padraic
* (ed.) Anthology of Irish verse. 1922 Liveright $3 821.08

1 Irish poetry—Collections 22-5613

"The distinctive contribution of Mr. Colum's excellent anthology is a dual service. For the book is both an uniquely revealing record of the racial experience of the Irish people, and an eloquently persuasive introduction to the literature in which it has found most subtle expression." New republic

Cooper, Alice Cecilia
(ed.) Poems of today. (Standard English classics) 1924 Ginn 80c 821.08

1 American poetry—Collections 2 English poetry—Collections 24-4808

"A collection of the contemporary verse of America and Great Britain." Subtitle

"Arranged according to subject, intended as an attractive introduction to contemporary poetry. Useful biographical notes, bibliography of collections, and a chapter on the form and structure of poetry. Inexpensive and a good collection." Bkl.

Cunliffe, John William
(comp.) Poems of the Great war. 1916 Macmillan o.p. 1933 821.08

1 European war, 1914-1918—Poetry 16-23421

"Notable collection chosen for poetic merit from Australian, Canadian, British and American sources. The 140 selections from as many poets, include Rupert Brooke's 'The soldier,' Alan Seeger's 'I have a rendezvous with death' and poems by Tagore, Laurence Binyon, Walter de la Mare, W. W. Gibson, James Stephens, W. R. Benét, Amy Lowell, Sara Teasdale, etc." N.Y. state lib.

"Muse in arms" edited by E. B. Osborn (1918 Murray, J. 7s 6d) is a recommended English collection of 130 war poems

De La Mare, Walter John
* (comp.) Come hither; a collection of rhymes and poems for the young of all ages. rev ed 1928 Knopf $5; Constable 21s, cheaper ed 10s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 28-28556

"Nearly five hundred selections, representing a poet's choice, and including a number from modern writers. There is an introduction, in the form of a story, which shows the development of Mr. De La Mare's own love of poetry from the days of his early boyhood. The many notes, 'written about and roundabout the poems' are also of unusual interest." Pittsburgh

In this edition "the introduction and anthology remain unchanged, but many entries have been added to the notes, increasing that part of the book from 171 pages to 304. The same illustrations have been used and the same general format." Bkl.

Author and title indexes

Dixon, William Macneile
(ed.) Edinburgh book of Scottish verse, 1300-1900. 1910 Oxford $6; Meiklejohn 8s 821.08

1 Scottish poetry—Collections [A11-1394]

"Prof. Dixon has accomplished his task with skill and judgment, and has brought together a delightful body of verse." Athenaeum

Drinkwater, John
(comp.) Anthology of English verse. 1924 Houghton $2; Collins 3s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 24-24256

A collection of poems from Chaucer's time to the present, chosen "not for readers who already have an extensive acquaintance with the English poets" but "for those for whom it may be a convenience to find in one volume a small, but representative, selection." Arranged chronologically in three groupings: (1) well-known lyrics; (2) reflective and elegiac poems; (3) long poems. Author, title and first line indexes

"Mr. Drinkwater's choice among the moderns is disputable, but on the whole he has made such an attractive little book that one hesitates to quarrel with him on minor issues." Literary rev.

Drinkwater, John; Canby, Henry Seidel, and Benét, William Rose
(eds.) Twentieth-century poetry. 1929 Houghton $4, students' ed $2.25 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 29-27945

"An anthology of British and American poetry, from 1900 to 1929 . . . The British and American poets are in separate groups with stimulating and informing critical-biographical notes on each author represented." Cleveland

"They have covered a huge field and selected from it with tact and understanding, the result being a good-sized book that actually does give a comprehensive picture of what has been accomplished in English and American poetry during the last three decades." N.Y. Times

Suggestions for further reading: p615-20. Indexes to first lines, authors and titles

(ed.) Nature lover's knapsack. 1927 Crowell $2.50 821.08

1 Nature in poetry 27-22666

"A knapsack of poems for lovers of the open road, collected by the Professor of Books, Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida. 'Its purpose is to serve as a friendly guide to many of the most beautiful nature poems by English and American authors.'" Cleveland

"All of your friends will be found here, and also you will discover many new ones. The field of the editor's choice is remarkably large. It doesn't seem as if he had passed over a single author of note, past or present. The poems are selected with discriminating taste." Boston Transcript

Two other volumes for nature lovers are "Bird-lovers' anthology" compiled by Clinton Scollard and J. B. Rittenhouse (1930 Houghton $2), and "Roosevelt bird sanctuary anthology" compiled by Eugene Swope and A. D. Weekes (1932 Sears $2), a good collection of about 130 poems on birds and the relations of birds to man

Gummere, Francis Barton

1 English ballads and songs 12-32737

A useful collection of some fifty English ballads with an introduction, notes and glossary. "The ballads are intended to be representative both in range and in quality. In most instances the editor has selected what seemed to be the best text, although in one or two cases the best had to yield to the suitable." Preface

Kilmer, Joyce

(ed.) Dreams and images, an anthology of Catholic poets. new ed 1926 Liveright $2.50 821.08

1 English literature—Catholic authors 2 English poetry—Collections 28-28196

An anthology, first published 1917, containing poems written by Catholics since the middle of the nineteenth century. Contains poems by Belloc, Benson, Blunt, Colum, Patmore, Thompson, Tynan and many others. This edition has been augmented with additional poems chosen by Shaemas O'Sheel

"This collection is for all who love poetry as such, and not particularly through the sympathies of a certain faith." Boston Transcript

Two other anthologies of verse by Catholic poets are: "An anthology of Catholic poets" compiled by Shane Leslie (1925 Macmillan $2; Burns 5s) a survey from Anglo-Saxon times to the present; and "Book of modern Catholic verse" compiled by Theodore Maynard (1926 Holt $3, school ed $1.48)

Lieberman, Elias

‡ (ed.) Poems for enjoyment. 1932 Harper $2.50, text ed $1.40 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 31-10193

"An anthology for high school students 'who honestly aspire to discover for themselves the magic that lurks in poetry.' A classified arrangement is followed under such headings as: Lyric verse, Narrative verse, Sonnets, French verse forms, Light and humorous verse, Free verse, etc. The editor has supplied brief introductory comments for the various sections, also a section of suggested readings and biographical notes on standard and contemporary poets, American and English, and a section on Aids to interpretation." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Lieberman's taste is catholic, and the selection witnesses a delicately keen discrimination. A poet himself, he has a clarity of poetic vision too often clouded in compilers of groups of poetry." Boston Transcript

Masefield, John

(ed.) Sailor's garland. Macmillan $2.50; Methuen 3s 6d 821.08

1 Sea poetry 24-26892

Reprint, 1924, of a volume first published in 1906

"Poems on the beauty and wonders of the sea, a sailor's life and love, pirates, smugglers and mermaids. Gives many earlier poems and ballads, mostly English, omits many familiar poems and contains comparatively few poems of sentiment." Cleveland

Another good collection of sea poems is C. F. Smith's "Sailor's delight" (1931 Methuen 6s)

1 English poetry—Collections 24-13983

It is "a discriminating anthology of poetry in the English language, British and American, ranging from before Chaucer to the end of the nineteenth century." Pratt alcove

Oxford book of sixteenth century verse; chosen by E. K. Chambers. 1932 Oxford $3; 8s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 32-28157

This "anthology ranges from Skelton and Hawes to Campion; and scarcely a poet in the long Elizabethan and pre-Elizabethan period is unfairly or inadequately represented." Saturday rev.

"I cannot discover any poetry of importance that has been denied inclusion, while the best poets have been more generously represented than they usually are in collections of this kind. The editor has not overlooked men of the second and third rank, but he has preferred to deal with them as briefly as justice permits in order to make place for as much great work as possible. He has barred nothing because it is familiar, and included nothing merely because he could claim it as his own discovery; poetry, not novelty, has been his aim." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Oxford book of Victorian verse; ed by * Arthur Quiller-Couch. 1912 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections W13-37

Contains poems from over two hundred and fifty English poets and eighteen American. Includes a few poems from writers of the Edwardian and Georgian periods, closing with Lascelles Abercrombie

"As must be inevitable with any anthology, the individual poetry-lover will grumble a little over what will seem to him errors of proportion or omission; but his abiding feeling will be one of gratitude for such a wealth of treasure in so compact and beautiful a form." Dial

Two other useful Oxford books of verse are "Oxford book of English mystical verse" compiled by D. H. S. Nicholson and A. H. E. Lee (1917 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d); and "Oxford book of regency verse, 1798-1837" compiled by H. S. Milford (1928 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d)

Palgrave, Francis Turner

1 English poetry—Collections 29-17943

"An anthology of English lyrical poetry selected with almost faultless discrimination with the aid of Tennyson's advice and criticism." Pratt alcove

"To the previous two-volume edition, now bound in one, have been added two hundred additional poems by modern poets. These additional poems are also published separately as a Macmillan Pocket classic [(Macmillan 48c). The two volumes are also to be had separately at $1.25 each]" Bkl.

There are several other recommended editions: one with additional poems published by Crowell at $1.75; another in the Riverside literature series (Houghton 80c); and one in the Everyman's library (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

"Silver treasury of English lyrics" edited by T. E. Welby (1925 Dial press $3) is a companion volume to Palgrave. It is "not a collection of the second-best of our poetry. It is a collection of the best, so far as that is not already available in Palgrave's Golden treasury." Bkl.

Parrott, Thomas Marc, and Thorp, Willard
(eds.) Poetry of the transition, 1850-1914. 1932 Oxford $3.50, educ. ed. $2.90 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 32-23253

"An anthology of English verse intended primarily for the use of schools, and supplied with notes and bibliography, as well as a few pages of biography and criticism of each poet. Thirty poets, beginning with Rossetti, are represented, but no poet is included who was not writing before the war. The choice of poems and poets was dictated by a desire to show the changing outlook and increasing freedom in verse forms during the years covered." Bkl.

* (ed.) Victorian anthology, 1837-1895. 1895 Houghton $5 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 4-13936

The "plan is not to offer a collection of absolutely flawless poems, long since become classic and accepted as models; but in fact to make a truthful exhibit of the course of song during the last sixty years, as shown by the poets of Great Britain in the best of their shorter productions. [It] . . . is designed to supplement my 'Victorian Poets' [in 821.09], by choice and typical examples of the work discussed in that review." Preface

The last section is devoted to Colonial poets. There are biographical notes and indexes of first lines, titles, and poets

1 English poetry—Collections 30-23819

"Practically all the matter included in the earlier editions has been retained and almost as much again has been added. . . The bibliographical and critical paragraphs which serve as introductory notes, as well as the more general preface, [have] been greatly amplified." Foreword to the third revised edition

A companion volume to the editor's "Modern American poetry," listed in 811.08. It contains selections from 150 poets, ranging from Christina Rossetti born in 1830 to Stephen Spender born in 1909. Arrangement is chronological by birth date. There is a brief selected bibliography: p773, and indexes of authors and titles. Also available in "Modern American poetry; Modern British poetry" (combined ed Harcourt $4.75)

"Aside from the small flecks the book presents itself as an admirable attempt and one that, through its delightful snapshots of the poets prefixed to each writer's work, should inveigle readers into a closer scrutiny of British verse." N.Y. Times

(ed.) Yesterday and today. 1927 Harcourt $2.50, school ed $1.04 821.08

1 English poetry—Collections 2 American poetry—Collections 27-2878

"A collection of verse, mostly modern, designed for the person of nine to nineteen and possibly older. It is a comparatively recent yesterday to which the poets represented in the first section belong—those born between 1800 and 1850. The second part is devoted to the work of poets of our own times, represented by living authors mostly. Many teachers have had an advisory part in the selection. A Who's who among the poets is included, also a list of famous older poems and a supplementary reading list. Index." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Untermeyer's introduction is worth reading. It is infectious in its informality, sound in its observations and in no way didactic. The volume also includes . . . twenty-five definitions of poetry by those who have made it—all characteristic, and some therefore very amusing." Literary rev.

"A series of essays, to which groups of poems are appended as illustrative material. The analysis of organic rhythm, diction, pattern, images, and symbols, will be helpful to readers who know nothing of poets, past or present. . . Where Mrs Wilkinson excels is in choosing the poetry to illustrate her points. Here her taste never errs, and the two hundred or more poems which make up her anthology are themselves the best defense of the poetry of which she is so ardent an advocate." Atlantic's bookshelf

The popular ballad. (Types of English literature) 1907 Houghton o.p. 1933 821.09

1 Ballads 2 English ballads and songs 3 Scottish ballads and songs 7-18086

"Prof. Gummere starts out with a severely critical consideration of just what must be meant by 'popular' as applied to ballads and rules out all but about 300 specimens of the genre. . . . He restricts the present study to these remnants of oral tradition, divides them into half a dozen classes, studies their sources, and gives a critical estimate of their worth . . . Prof. Gummere writes in an interesting style. He has a cleverness of statement and an ability to use aptly and vividly a very great fund of erudition that will make his book entertaining as well as instructive for the general reader, while the special student will find it a mine of information." 1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Eliot, Thomas Stearns 3 Pound, Ezra Loomis 4 Hopkins, Gerard Manley 32-22174

"Critical discussion of what is significant in modern English poetry, especially the work of T. S. Eliot, Ezra Pound and Gerard Manley Hopkins, who 'together represent a decisive re-ordering of the tradition of English poetry.' " Book rev. digest

Morton, David
Renaissance of Irish poetry, 1880-1930. 1929 Washburn $2.50 821.09

1 Irish poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 29-27599

"A discussion of the lyric poetry of the Irish literary revival. Two especially interesting chapters are 'The natural world and its creatures' and 'The faeries of Ireland.' The author has included so many illustrative poems that the book may serve as an anthology." Cleveland

Noyes, Alfred
Some aspects of modern poetry. 1924 Stokes $2.50 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. [24-29103]

"A group of critical essays on Meynell, Dobson, Henley, Shelley, Wordsworth, Shakespeare and others, and on the general character and aspects of modern poetry. Throughout, the author eloquently defends the old tradition in poetry, particularly in the case of Tennyson, Longfellow and Emerson. Eminently sincere, clearly and persuasively written." Bkl.

"We wish the violent pulpiteering were absent from this volume, for Mr. Noyes knows great verse when he sees it, and can explain its merits. He . . . seems entirely blind to a certain solid amount of contemporary accomplishment." Sat. rev. of lit.

Palmer, George Herbert
Formative types in English poetry. 1918 Houghton $1.75 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 18-22193

"Sketches in broad outlines the chief poetic influences of English literature, choosing for the purpose Chaucer, Spenser, Herbert, Pope, Tennyson and Browning, to each of whom the author gives a competent essay in which biography is mingled with an analysis of the subject's particular contribution to the English Parnassus." N.Y. state lib.

"Suggestions for reading" at the end of each chapter

Phelps, William Lyon

* Advance of English poetry in the twentieth century. 1918 Dodd $2.50 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 18-18493

"Critical chapters originally contributed to the 'Bookman' in which are treated among the earlier writers of the period Henley, Kipling, Hardy and among the most recent Amy Lowell, Robert Frost, Edgar Lee Masters and others." Pratt quarterly

"In short the book's coherence lies mostly in its Phelpsianism. But here, too, lies its inescapable charm. Our only important criticism of Mr Phelps is that he sometimes makes a gesture of authority which is not justified in the sequel." Nation

M. C. Sturgeon's "Studies of contemporary poets" (rev ed 1920 Dodd o.p. 1933) is another recommended volume which contains brief but thoughtful studies of a number of modern English poets such as Abercrombie, De La Mare, Masefield, etc.

Rhys, Ernest

Lyric poetry. (Channels of English literature) 1913 Dutton $2.50; Dent 7s 6d 821.09

1 English poetry 13-24871

Traces the "development of the lyric in the earliest English verse, proceeding to Wyatt and Surrey through the poets of the 'Exeter book' and their successors, and from Wyatt and Surrey down to the minor Victorians." Boston Transcript

"The plan of the author enables him to cover a great deal of ground outside the actual lyric, and to write an interesting book, which is a little difficult to read, perhaps, but includes much sound criticism." Athenaeum

Schelling, Felix Emmanuel

The English lyric. (Types of English literature) 1913 Houghton o.p. 1933 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 13-7361

"Traces the meaning and development of the English lyric to the present time, analyzing its significance and characteristics, with frequent well-selected illustrations and much fresh, sane criticism. A scholarly study, for those familiar with lyrical poetry. Classed bibliography." Wis. bul.

Stedman, Edmund Clarence

* Victorian poets. Houghton $4 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Poets, English 14-869

First published 1875. The revised edition published in 1887 had an additional chapter which brought the survey to that date, since which there has been no change in text

"Interpretative in a very real sense of the period it surveys and likely for that reason to possess permanent importance." H. W. Mabie in Bookman

Williams, Charles Walter Stansby

Poetry at present. 1930 Oxford $3; 7s 6d 821.09

1 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 30-23886

"These are careful studies and interpretations that present us not only with a number of sensitively-wrought portraits, but also a commentary on the development of modern verse that is full of intuition and constructive criticism. In particular, the studies of Mr. W. H. Davies and Mr. Robert Graves are to be recommended for the way in which they bring out the original qualities in these poets." Spectator

Contents: Thomas Hardy; Robert Bridges; A. E. Housman; Rudyard Kipling; W. B. Yeats; W. H. Davies; Walter de la Mare; G. K. Chesterton; John Masefield; Ralph Hodgson; Wilfrid Gibson; Lascelles Abercrombie; T. S. Eliot; Edith, Osbert, and Sacheverell Sitwell; Robert Graves; Edmund Blunden

822 ENGLISH DRAMA

Ashton, Winifred

Bill of divorcement, by Clemence Dane, [pseud]. 1921 Macmillan $1; Heinemann 2s 6d 822

21-6628

"A play of intense emotions. . . On the eve of Margaret Fairfield's remarriage her husband, who has been insane fifteen years, reappears, unexpectedly cured." Bkl.

Will Shakespeare, by Clemence Dane, [pseud]. 1922 Macmillan $1.75; Heinemann 3s 6d 822

1 Shakespeare in fiction, drama, poetry, etc. 22-1233

"A four-act play introducing Shakespeare, Ann Hathaway, Marlowe, The queen, and Mary Fitton. Takes liberties with history, but is interesting in its interpretation of some of the characters, notably Anne." Wis. bul.

The author's "Wild Decembers" (1933 Doubleday, Doran $2; Heinemann 6s) is a play about the Brontë family

Barrie, Sir James Matthew, bart.

Peter Pan. 1928 Scribner $1.25; Hodder 5s 822

28-26932

"The first appearance in print of the well loved play, 'Peter Pan, the boy who would not grow up.' Not the least delightful parts of the book are the thirty-page dedication, and Barrie's stage directions, in the form of comments on the action and characters." Cleveland

‡ Plays. 1928 Scribner $5; Hodder 21s 822

29-2144

Twenty plays which comprise all of Barrie's dramas that had been published, to 1928 with the exception of "Der Tag"

Contents: Peter Pan; Quality Street; Admirable Crichton; Alice Sit-by-the-fire; What every woman knows; A kiss for Cinderella; Dear Brutus; Mary Rose; Pantaloon; Half an hour; Seven women; Old friends; Rosalind; The will; Twelve-pound look; New word; Well-remembered voice; Barbara's wedding; Old lady shows her medals; Shall we join the ladies?

"Read in close succession, their sentimentality tends soon to cloy the palate even of the most appreciative of the author's admirers. But how wonderfully clever they are! No English dramatic writer during the past generation, except perhaps Pinero, has approached the level of Barrie's instinctive stagecraft. For there is something about all his work that seems to be instinctive. He gets his effects without any sign of effort." New statesman

Representative plays; with an introduction by W. L. Phelps. 1926 Scribner $1.60 822

26-10126

Contents: Quality Street; Admirable Crichton; What every woman knows; Dear Brutus; Twelve-pound look; Old lady shows her medals

A smaller and much less expensive collection which will be useful in addition to the inclusive edition in many libraries. For circulating purposes many libraries may wish to supplement these two volumes of collected plays by plays published separately. Several of the plays are obtainable in separate volumes from Scribner at $1 each and from Hodder at 5s each, including such popular titles as "Quality Street," "Admirable Crichton," "What every woman knows," "Alice Sit-by-the-fire," "Mary Rose." The shorter plays may be had in two volumes "Half-hours" and "Echoes of the war" at $1.25 each

Beaumont, Francis, and Fletcher, John

* Beaumont and Fletcher; ed by J. St L. Strachey. (Mermaid ser.) 2v Scribner ea $1.25; Benn ea 5s 822

1-17934

Contents: v 1 Maid's tragedy, Philaster, Wildgoose chase, Thierry and Theodoret, Knight of the burning pestle; v2 King and no king, Bonduca, Spanish curate, Faithful shepherdess, Valentinian

This interesting and valuable Mermaid series, of which a number of volumes will be found listed here, gives literal reproductions of the old texts of many of the Elizabethan and Restoration dramatists. In some cases all the plays of a writer are given, in other cases only a selection of "best" or representative plays. They are edited by well-known scholars and there are biographical and critical introductions and a few explanatory footnotes

Bennett, Arnold, and Knoblock, Edward

Milestones. 1912 Methuen 3s 6d 822

[12-11219]

"The play represents three successive generations of one family beset by the same problems under varying aspects in 1860, in 1885 and in 1912. With exquisite irony it shows how the radicals of one age become the conservatives of the next and how, to each generation as it passes, 'the age is going to the dogs' and 'women are not what they used to be.'" Pittsburgh

Besier, Rudolf

Barretts of Wimpole Street. 1930 Little $2; Gollancz 5s 822

1 Browning, Mrs. Elizabeth (Barrett)—Drama

A31-174

"The long-famous courtship and elopement of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning furnish the theme for this drama. . . The author has followed the known facts faithfully and yet has succeeded in creating a play which is of commanding interest in itself." Pittsburgh

Chapman, George

George Chapman; ed by W. L. Phelps. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

1-17789

Contents: All fools; Bussy D'Ambois; Revenge of Bussy D'Ambois; Conspiracy of Charles Duke of Byron; Tragedy of Charles Duke of Byron

Colum, Padraic

Three plays. rev ed 1925 Macmillan $2.25 822

25-17470

First published 1916, by Little. Contents: Fiddler's house; Land; Thomas Muskerry

"Plays written for the Irish National Theatre in its early days, all three expressing the 'conflict between the individual and that which in Ireland has much authority, the family group.'" Cleveland

Congreve, William

William Congreve; ed by A. C. Ewald. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

3-30461

Contents: Old bachelor; Double dealer; Love for love; Way of the world; Mourning bride

The author's "Comedies," edited by J. W. Krutch, is available in the Modern readers' series (1927 Macmillan 80c; 6s). It contains all the plays in the Mermaid series volume except the "Mourning bride"

Coward, Noël Pierce

‡ Play parade. 1933 Doubleday, Doran $3.50 822

33-27461

Contents: Design for living; Cavalcade; Private lives; Bitter sweet; Post mortem; Vortex; Hay fever

One of his most popular plays is "Cavalcade," also available separately (1932 Doubleday, Doran $1.75; Heinemann 5s) a pageant which dramatizes the tragic crises in England's 20th century, beginning with the Boer War and ending with the aftermath of the World War. "Design for living" also available separately (1933 Doubleday, Doran $1.75; Heinemann 5s) is a farcical comedy of love among artists

Davies, Hubert Henry

Mollusc. 1914 Baker, W. H. pa 75c; Heffer 2s 6d 822

14-8777

"Skilfully details the process of energizing the invertebrate wife who spends all her ingenuity and even huge exertions to avoid being disturbed, to stick instead of to move—mollusk-like. Neat in technique and pleasing in style." Viewpoints in modern drama

Dekker, Thomas

Thomas Dekker; ed by Ernest Rhys. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

1-403

Contents: Shoemaker's holiday; Honest whore; Old Fortunatus; Witch of Edmonton

Drinkwater, John

‡ Abraham Lincoln. 1919 Houghton $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

1 Lincoln, Abraham—Drama 19-13148

"Seven scenes from the life of Lincoln from his acceptance of the nomination for President to the final dramatic scene in Ford Theatre, Washington, where he was shot." Wis. bul.

An "impressive play. . . Small errors of diction, local color, and incident, due to its English authorship, in no way diminish its value as a notable study of Lincoln. Emphasizes his world rather than his national importance." N.Y. state lib.

Bird in hand. 1929 Houghton $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

[27-24418]

"The proprietor of an old country inn is outraged by his daughter's friendship with the squire's son. The guests side with the young people, and after a night of harried chasings in and out of one of the bedrooms the old man is brought to reason." Book rev. digest

"A whimsical play of contemporary English life, having a charm that has made it popular." Pittsburgh

Oliver Cromwell. 1921 Houghton $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

1 Cromwell, Oliver—Drama 21-21414

In eight scenes pictures Cromwell's life from 1639-1654

"Here is a play which avoids gross errors, which deals with great characters in a simple and dignified spirit, which will send us back to our books with renewed pleasure, but which will also keep us attentive in the theatre. Moreover, the prose in which it is written is beautiful." Spectator

Robert Burns. 1925 Houghton $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

1 Burns, Robert—Drama 26-26137

"A dramatic rendering of episodes in Burns' career into which are introduced several of his most popular poems." Pratt quarterly

Drinkwater, John—Continued

For libraries wanting a volume of collected plays that is complete to 1923, there is the author's "Collected plays" (2v 1925 Sidgwick ea 8s 6d). The latest play included is "Robert E. Lee"

Dryden, John

John Dryden; ed by George Saintsbury. (Mermaid ser.) 2v Scribner ea $1.25; Benn ea 3s 6d 822

5-6038

Contents: v 1 Almanzor and Almahide, Marriage à la mode, Aureng-Zebe; v2 All for love, Spanish friar, Albion and Albanius, Don Sebastian

Dunsany, Edward John Moreton Drax Plunkett, 18th baron

* Five plays. (Modern drama ser.) 1914 Little $2; Putnam 5s 822

17-18368

Contents: Gods of the mountain; Golden doom; King Argimēnēs and the unknown warrior; Glittering gate; Lost silk hat

"The plays exhibit fantastic imagination of an uncommon and powerful order, and are written admirably, in vigorous prose, of almost classic purity. Actually, they are dramatic episodes rather than plays, being very brief, while the virtue in them is descriptive rather than constructive." Nation

* Plays of gods and men. Putnam $2; 7s 6d 822

17-13749

First published, 1917

Contents: Tents of the Arabs; Laughter of the gods; Queen's enemies; Night at the inn

"Delicate satire, sardonic fate, oriental and poetic atmosphere characterize these plays." N.Y. state lib.

Plays of near and far. 1923 Putnam $2; 7s 6d 822

23-9073

Contents: Compromise of the king of the Golden isles; Flight of the Queen; Cheezo; Good bargain; If Shakespeare lived to-day; Fame and the poet

"Shows the author a little less inclined than usual to wander to dim palaces beyond the sunset and to enter 'faery land forlorn.' While the fantastic elements are not lacking, and one may find much of the gloss and shimmer with which Dunsany usually decorates his work, yet he succeeds at times in coming down almost to earth; he is as skilful in producing an atmosphere of reality in one or two of his plays as he is in creating an effect of beautiful unreality in the others." Dial

Seven modern comedies. 1929 Putnam $2; 5s 822

29-1219

Contents: Atalanta in Wimbledon; The raffle; Journey of the soul; In holy Russia; His sainted grandmother; Hopeless passion of Mr. Bunyon; Jest of Hahalaba

Humor and fantasy, with one exception in modern English setting. Tho "they will do very well acted by amateur one-acters . . . to read they are disappointing and even foreboding." Boston Transcript

Ervine, St John Greer

First Mrs Fraser. 1930 Macmillan $1.25; Chatto 3s 6d 822

31-32085

A play dealing with the divorce problem in present-day England

"It is a comedy of manners after the pattern developed by Henry Arthur Jones, in which the characterization is individualized and the intrigue given a serious purpose. Mrs. Fraser is surely a charming person, and the dialogue has sufficient humor and sparkle to give the play at least a passing distinction, if no novelty." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Four one-act plays. 1928 Macmillan $1.50; Allen, G. 3s 6d 822

[28-12116]

Contents: Magnanimous lover; Progress; Ole George comes to tea; She was no lady

"St. John Ervine's one-act plays are well known to all Little Theater groups. They have the folk quality, the sincerity and the truth of the Manchester or Abbey theater schools, and, if adequately acted, their effect is certain." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

The author's "Four Irish plays" (1916 Macmillan o.p. 1933) contains one long play "Mixed marriage" and three one-act plays, "Magnanimous lover," "The critics" and "The Orangeman"

Jane Clegg. Macmillan $1.25; Sidgwick 3s 6d, pa 2s 6d 822

25-4630

First published in 1914

"Jane Clegg, the strong, broad-minded wife of a London clerk who is a poor creature in every sense of the term, is confronted with a domestic problem involving the usual triangle, and solves it with tolerance and magnanimity. A simple, homely, but very telling play." Cleveland

* John Ferguson. new ed 1920 Macmillan $1.75; Allen, G. 3s 6d 822

20-8221

First published 1915. New edition contains an introduction by the author

"A tragedy concerned with the cumulative misfortunes of a farmer of Ulster, an old saint who is overtaken, by most of Job's afflictions but who has none of his temporal rewards." Cleveland

"It has all that atmosphere of wistfulness peculiar to so much of the Irish drama. The characterization and workmanship of the play are excellent, for Mr. St. John Ervine is master of his art, but its persistent melancholy tends to make it somewhat monotonous reading." Spectator

Mary, Mary, quite contrary. 1923 Macmillan $1.25; Allen, G. 3s 6d 822

[23-7254]

"An amusing four-act comedy, in which the irritating naiveté of the actress, Mary Westlake, disturbs the regularity of a quiet English household and threatens to entangle seriously the young poet son and an elderly bachelor uncle." Bkl.

Farquhar, George

George Farquhar; ed by William Archer. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

7-22720

Contents: Constant couple; Twin-rivals; Recruiting officer; Beaux' stratagem

Flecker, James Elroy

Hassan. 1922 Knopf $2; Heinemann 6s 822

22-19633

"Tells how Hassan, a confectioner, saved Bagdad and the calif's life; how wealth and power brought him little joy and how wearying of it all he attempts the golden journey to Samarkand." Bkl.

"A delightful piece of fanciful writing, chequered with surprises of incident and character, quickened with artful incongruities, melodious with lyrical passages in verse as in prose." Nation and Athenaeum

Ford, John

John Ford; ed by Havelock Ellis. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

25-7685

Contents: Lover's melancholy; 'Tis pity she's a whore; Broken heart; Love's sacrifice; Perkin Warbeck

"Plays by Webster and Ford" (1933 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s) in Everyman's library, contains Ford's "The broken heart," and "'Tis pity" as well as two plays by Webster: "The white devil" and "The duchess of Malfi"

Galsworthy, John

‡ Plays. 1928 Scribner $2.50; Duckworth 8s 6d 822

28-25469

Contains all his plays published up to 1929. Contents: Silver box; Joy; Strife; Eldest son; Justice; Little dream; Pigeon; Fugitive; Mob; A bit o' love; Foundations; Skin game; Family man; Loyalties; Windows; Forest; Old English; Show; Escape; Six short plays: First and the last, Little man, Hall-marked, Defeat, Sun, Punch and go

"Obviously some compression in the physical process of book-making has been necessary. The indispensable economy has been effected by using a small though legible type and placing it in two columns on each page." Springfield Republican

Some libraries may find that separate volumes of the more popular titles are needed in addition to this or the 6v set listed below. All are obtainable from Scribner at $1 each, or Duckworth at 3s each, except the "Six short plays" which is listed at $1.50 or 5s. The plays receiving the highest votes from our collaborators are "Escape" (1927), "Justice" (1910), "Loyalties" (1922), "Old English" (1925), "Strife" (1920). The collection "Representative plays" (1924 Scribner $1.60) which includes: The silver box; Strife; Justice; The pigeon; A bit o' love; and Loyalties should prove useful as an additional collection

Plays, first-seventh series. 7v 1916-30 Scribner v1-6 ea $2.50; Duckworth ea 7s 822

The American publishers report that they do not carry the seventh series, 1934

In some libraries this set may be found more useful for circulating than the one-volume edition above, and less expensive than a complete or nearly complete set of separate volumes. The first to sixth series include all the plays in the one volume edition except the "Six short plays" and "Escape." They are grouped, three to a volume in approximately the order of the one-volume edition. The seventh series contains Escape, Exiled, and The roof

The roof. 1931 Scribner $1; Duckworth 3s 822

31-28335

"The scene of this play is a small Parisian hotel catering almost exclusively to English guests. Its novelty lies in the time treatment: the first six scenes show what takes place in various parts of the hotel during the half-hour that precedes the outbreak of a fire which, in the last scene, drives all the characters to the roof." Book rev. digest

Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck

* Plays & poems, with a preface by Deems Taylor. 1932 Random house $3.50 822

32-34647

The complete text of the fourteen Gilbert and Sullivan operas, three other Gilbert plays and all of "The Bab Ballads"

"For constant usefulness, for excellence of presentation, and for economy this book has not been equalled during the winter season. It runs to more than 1200 pages. . . No one to whom Gilbert and Sullivan mean anything at all should be without it." Bookman

Another good edition is his "Original plays, first-fourth series" (4v Scribner ea $1.75; Chatto ea 3s 6d) a complete edition of the plays

Some inexpensive collections of the author's works which are available are: "Mikado and other plays" (Modern lib. 95c) including also "Pirates of Penzance," "Gondoliers" and "Iolanthe"; "H. M. S. Pinafore and other plays" (Modern lib. 95c) including also "Patience," "Yeoman of the guard" and "Ruddigore"; "Mikado and other operas" in the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c) which includes "Pinafore," "Pirates of Penzance," "Iolanthe," and "Mikado"

Goldsmith, Oliver

* Plays, together with The Vicar of Wakefield, ed by C. E. Doble. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 822

26-26951

Includes the two plays "The good-natur'd man," and "She stoops to conquer" and a fragment of a farce "The grumbler." There is a full glossarial index which includes the editorial notes and an appendix which gives a short history of each work and some additional notes

She stoops to conquer; ed by G. A. F. M. Chatwin. Oxford 85c; 2s 6d 822

A13-840

"The author's masterpiece. A delightful example of the best type of English society comedy." Pratt alcove

Granville-Barker, Harley Granville

Madras house. 1911 Little $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

[10-28191]

"A thought-provoking four-act comedy in which the woman question is a vital issue, being buffeted between the Mohammedan notion of absolute subjection—but freedom in that subjection—and the present-day warmly controverted equal rights notion." Book rev. digest

"Granville Barker retains in this play all his power of pointed and able characterization. He flashes forth a temperament in a phrase with amazing brilliancy. He handles dialogue with consummate grace and is a master of ironic portraiture." North American review

Voysey inheritance. Little $1.50; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

16-9294

First produced 1905

"English drama of ideas. Studies the effect of commercialism on a typical English family—an unforgettable middle class group. With deft characterization and clever conversation presents an interesting problem in ethics." Viewpoints in modern drama

Greene, Robert

Robert Greene; ed by T. H. Dickinson. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

W9-278

Contents: Alphonsus, king of Arragon; Looking glass for London and England; Orlando furioso; Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay; James the fourth; George-A-Greene, the pinner of Wakefield

Gregory, Isabella Augusta (Persse), lady

‡ Seven short plays. 1909 Putnam $2; 5s 822

[10-15842]

Contents: Spreading the news; Hyacinth Halvey; Rising of the moon; Jackdaw; Workhouse ward; Travelling man; Gaol gate

Gregory, Isabella A. P., lady—Continued

"The one-act plays of this collection present seven sketches of Irish life and character by a leader of the Celtic Renaissance. Lady Gregory sincerely strives to depict the Irish people of the humble classes as they really are—shifty, pugnacious, and complaining, on the one hand, and on the other, warm-hearted, sentimental, imaginative, and humorous." English and Pope's What to read

Three last plays. 1928 Putnam $2; 7s 6d 822

28-25203

Contents: Sancho's master; Dave; Would-be gentleman [translation]

"If these are not the best of her abundant dramatic output, they hold well to her high level; there is the same deft craftsmanship, and the fine sense that in reading or seeing her work you are in the presence of literature, and the unfailing sheer delight. On the printed page, they read well; and they have already passed the highest test of presentation at the Abbey Theatre." Sat. rev. of lit.

Three wonder plays. 1922 Putnam 6s 822

22-23574

Three fanciful plays; The dragon, Aristotle's bellows, The jester. Contains music to accompany the second play

"These plays are characterized by an airy imagination, a delicious and whimsical humour, and a fascinating and purposeful unreality; they bear us up from the earth on the wings of fairies, yet are never quite out of sight of earth, and never wholly out of touch with life." Dial

Hamilton, Cosmo, and Reilly, Frank C.

"Pickwick." French pa 75c 822

[27-20613]

Reprint of a book published in 1927 by Putnam

"A dramatization of some of the well-known episodes of 'Pickwick papers,' including the scene at the White Hart Inn, Mr Pickwick's 'proposal' to Mrs Bardell and the famous court scene in the case of 'Bardell agin Pickwick.'" Book rev. digest

"The pains with which the sketches are drawn, the comicalities and humors of character sought, and the book ransacked for possible dramatic scenes, cannot be too much praised." New republic

Hardy, Thomas

* The dynasts. 1924 Macmillan $3; 8s 6d 822

1 Napoléon I—Drama 24-26461

Volume 2 of the author's "Poetical works." This play is also published separately (1931 Macmillan $4.50)

"An epic-drama of the war with Napoleon, in three parts, nineteen acts, & one hundred & thirty scenes, the time covered by the action being about ten years." Subtitle

Heywood, Thomas

Thomas Heywood; ed by A. W. Verity, introd. by J. A. Symonds. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

Houghton, Stanley

Hindle wakes. 1912 Luce, J. W. $1; Sidgwick 3s 6d 822

[12-18807]

Deals with the double standard of sexual morality

"The real value of the play is the truth of the atmosphere and of the wilful Lancashire characters. Mr. Houghton shows himself a skillful manipulator of the realistic formula." Springfield Republican

Housman, Laurence, and Granville-Barker, Harley Granville

Prunella. 1906 Little $1.50; Sidgwick 6s 822

[7-1292]

"As a fantastic allegory, in felicitous style, gently satirizes false restraints in secluding a girl from life instead of preparing her for it." Viewpoints in modern drama

Jerome, Jerome Klapka

Passing of the third floor back. 1921 Dodd $1.50 822

21-18404

First produced 1908

"Symbolic English drama. A parable which emphasizes the better self in everyone waiting to be developed by the right sympathetic touch, in this case the spirit of brotherly love." Viewpoints in modern drama

His works are also available in Everyman's library as his "Complete plays" (2v Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s)

Kennedy, Charles Rann

* Servant in the house. 1908 Harper $2; 7s 6d 822

8-14511

"With elaborate symbolism teaches the spirit of service and brotherhood. Applies the teaching of Jesus Christ to the life of today, indicating that brotherly love is greater than wealth or social position. . . Handles a vital theme with literary finish and a human touch." Viewpoints in modern drama

Mackintosh, Elizabeth

Richard of Bordeaux; a play in two acts by Gordon Daviot [pseud]. 1933 Little $2; Gollancz 5s, pa 3s 6d 822

1 Richard II, king of England 33-27311

"Richard II, son of the Black Prince, is the subject of this historical play. The play begins in 1385, when Richard is nineteen and happy in his life with his young queen, Anne of Bohemia; it closes with his abdication and departure for Pomfret in 1399." Book rev. digest

"In bare, unadorned prose, devoid alike of rhetorical flourish and colloquial flippancy, the author writes a chronicle history of Richard II in twelve scenes, well compacted and well ordered, intended neither to revive 'poetic drama' nor to furnish a costume pageant, but to recreate a passage in English history in terms of its possible essential drama and significance." W. P. Eaton in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Marlowe, Christopher

Tristan and Isolt; a play in verse. 1927 Macmillan $2; Heinemann 6s 822

1 Tristan [27-15241]

"Moves swiftly, following a terse plot, beautifully simple in its economies of word and phrase, and cruelly tragic in some of its interpretations." Bkl.

"It breeds an atmosphere of resignation and inevitability, and gives a convincing finish to the reader's conviction that this further treatment of a threadbare theme is well justified." Spectator

* Verse plays. 1925 Macmillan $3.50 822

25-24795

Contents: Good Friday; Philip the king; Esther; Berenice; King's daughter

[20-12856]

Contents: Wurzel-flummery; Lucky one; Boy comes home; Belinda; Red feathers

"His dialogue is deft and natural, and his observations of human nature cool and sane." Nation

Four plays. 1932 Putnam $2.50 822

32-25454

Contents: Michael and Mary; To meet the prince; Perfect alibi; Portrait of a gentleman in slippers

"The plays have pleasant humor, pleasant sentiment, theatrical effectiveness, and are not too difficult to act. They will probably continue on local stages long after most of their apparently more robust contemporaries are forgotten." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* Second plays. 1922 Knopf $2.50; Chatto 7s 6d 822

[21-12889]

Contents: Make-believe; Mr Pim passes by; Camberley triangle; Romantic age; Stepmother

Three plays. 1922 Putnam $2.50; Chatto 7s 6d 822

22-14297

Contents: Dover road; Truth about Blayds; Great Broxopp

"Mr. Milne's plays are distinguished by freshness of idea and method, a genuine naturalism with complete avoidance of the abnormal, characterization at once acute and consistent, moral cleanliness, an individual brand of genial and satiric humor, sound and unpretentious dialogue, and an underlying motive both definite and wholesome. The literary quality in them makes them almost as interesting in the library as upon the stage." Literary rev.

Nichols, Robert Malise Bowyer, and Browne, Maurice

Wings over Europe. 1929 Covici $2 822

29-26261

"An extremely well written drama of a young physicist who has discovered how to release the energy of atoms." Chicago

Noyes, Alfred

* Sherwood; or, Robin Hood and the three kings. 1911 Stokes $2.50 822

1 Robin Hood—Drama 11-25699

Published in England with title: "Robin Hood" (Blackwood 5s)

A five-act romance which "embodies nearly all the familiar legends associated with the name of Robin Hood. . . Pure romance as the play is, it is not devoid of serious purpose, for it is founded upon a democratic creed of the broadest sort and waxes eloquent in its assaults upon the old feudalism and modern abuses." Nation

There is also an acting edition prepared with text-cuts and production notes for the use of schools and colleges by M. Dorey (1921 Stokes $2)

O'Casey, Sean

Two plays. 1925 Macmillan $2; 7s 6d 822

25-4225

Contents: Juno and the paycock; Shadow of a gunman

"As a presentation of Dublin life Sean O'Casey's plays are central; they give one what is nearly the norm of that life. These men and women, by their wonderful talk, by their piety, their casualness, their singlemindedness, are authentically the folk of Dublin." Padraic Colum in Theatre arts monthly

Otway, Thomas

Thomas Otway; with an introd. and notes by Roden Noel. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

3-31975

Contents: Don Carlos, prince of Spain; The orphan; Soldier's fortune; Venice preserved

Parker, Louis Napoleon

* Disraeli. 1911 Dodd $2 822

1 Beaconsfield, Benjamin Disraeli, 1st earl of—Drama 11-29412

"An interesting example of the well constructed modern 'one-part' play. The dramatic effects are familiar but well handled, and the comedy of manners fulfils the author's intention to create a theatrically effective picture of Disraeli's times, not a historically accurate portrait of the man himself." Bkl.

Pomander walk. 1915 French 75c 822

16-6075

"Charming English comedy. A delightful graceful, old-fashioned romance embroidered with clever lines, pathos, and sentiment, based on wholesome situations, in which a young and an elderly pair of lovers are united after a series of mishaps." Viewpoints in modern drama

Phillips, Stephen

Collected plays. 1921 Macmillan $3.50 822

21-3800

Contents: Aylmer's secret; Ulysses; Sin of David; Nero; Faust; Pietro of Siena

"In all these dramas the full onrush of poetic exclamation is made subservient in an admirably workmanlike way to the structure of the play as a whole. Therefore the mere diction of many passages is thin as to poetic content even while their dramatic value is high and they fulfil their proper function." Literary rev.

Paolo & Francesca. 1905 Dodd $2; Lane 4s 6d 822

1 Francesca da Rimini—Drama 2-483

A tragedy in blank verse which gives in an effective and dramatic fashion a beautiful and sympathetic interpretation of the story of the ill-fated lovers

Pinero, Sir Arthur Wing

Social plays; ed by Clayton Hamilton. 4v 1917-22 Dutton v 1-3 ea $3.25, v4 $4.50 822

(18-1027)

Contents: v 1 Second Mrs Tanqueray, Notorious Mrs Ebbsmith; v2 Gay Lord Quex, Iris; v3 Letty, His house in order; v4 Thunderbolt, Mid-channel

Trelawny of the "Wells." Dramatic pa 75c; Heinemann 3s 6d, pa 2s 6d 822

[26-9974]

"A comedy of sentiment, mainly about people of the theatre. One of the best of Pinero's plays, of fine dramatic and literary quality, and deservedly a favorite. The love story of Rose Trelawney, an actress, beloved by her colleagues, and Arthur Gower, a young aristocrat. Glimpses of theatre life, with various types; sentiment, pathos and humor; excellent dialogue." S. M. Tucker's Plays for amateurs

If his "Second Mrs Tanqueray" is also needed in a separate edition it may be had from W. H. Baker at 75c or from Heinemann at 3s 6d

Robinson, Lennox

Far-off hills. (Dolphin books) 1932 Macmillan $1.25; Chatto 2s 822

31-19440

An amusing little comedy of Irish life based on an Irish saying, "'Tis the far-off hills are green."

Another popular play by this author is "Is life worth living?" (1933 Macmillan 3s 6d)

Whiteheaded boy. 1921 French pa 75c 822

[21-18686]

Originally published by Putnam. Now out of print in that edition

"Irish comedy of manners depicting the shrewd yet simple village family which sacrifices everything for the youngest child who is no better than the rest. Dryly humorous." N.Y. state lib.

Shadwell, Thomas

Thomas Shadwell; ed by George Saintsbury. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

7-22719

Contents: Sullen lovers; True widow; Squire of Alsatia; Bury fair

Shaw, George Bernard

* Androcles and the lion, Overruled, Pygmalion. 1916 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

16-9158

"Probably Mr. Shaw would consider the most important part of this volume to be his one hundred and twenty-seven page introduction to 'Androcles,' in which he sets forth in all its phases his theories of Christian sociology, beginning with a review and interpretation of the Four Gospels. 'Overruled' is a farcical comedy concerned with the gallantries of married people, the slight preface dealing with sex in conduct and art. 'Pygmalion' has no preface, but is provided with a sequel carrying forward the history of the characters several years and disposing of them in ways for which those who see the play without first reading the sequel will be scarcely prepared." Cleveland

* Apple cart. 1931 Dodd $2; Constable 5s 822

31-22427

A satire on modern politics. It has been successfully played in New York

Back to Methuselah. 1921 Dodd $2.50; Constable 6s 822

21-10012

The thesis of this group of five dramas of creative evolution, with a characteristic Shavian preface, is that death comes before man has attained either wisdom or vision, and so, if nature is not to replace him with a more competent species, his span of life must be extended to three hundred years

"They have all his old energy and rapidity of intellectual movement and the last two are matchless exercises of a cold imaginative vigor building its structures out into the void." Nation

Doctor's dilemma, Getting married, and The shewing-up of Blanco Posnet. 1911 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

11-3353

Three short plays each with a long preface; the first is a satire on the modern physician;

Shaw, George B.—Continued

the second discusses the marriage question; the third asks, in effect, what is God doing with man?

"Here is the delightful Mr. Shaw again, quite after his usual manner, taking up with lost causes and moral reforms and progressive ideas with all his usual satire, joviality, and good-humor." North American

Heartbreak house. 1919 Dodd $2.50; Constable 6s 822

19-15115

Contents: Heartbreak house; Great Catherine; O'Flaherty, V. C.; Inca of Perusalem; Augustus does his bit; Annajanska, the Bolshevik empress

"Vivacious dramas with introductions yet more stimulating." N.Y. state lib.

John Bull's other island, and Major Barbara. 1907 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

7-21528

Also contains a short farce "How he lied to her husband," and the usual characteristic prefaces

"If only to find the secret that is in Mr. Shaw's heart, his prefaces are to be read. There are the plays to be read, as well . . . all three as amusing and stimulating in print as on the stage, all three brilliantly successful devices for compelling you to swallow the powder of the 'paper-apostle' in the jam of the 'artist-magician.'" London Times

* Man and superman. 1903 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

4-14142

"A brilliant comedy wherein helpless Man is pursued by relentless Woman, the life-force incarnate and instrument of nature." A. D. Dickinson

Misalliance, The dark lady of the Sonnets, and Fanny's first play, with a treatise on Parents and children. 1914 Dodd $2.50 822

14-10044

The first play is an amusing farce, the second, a very short play on Shakespeare, identifies the "dark lady" as Mary Fitton, the third pokes fun at the critics who slavishly follow Aristotle

‡ Plays: pleasant and unpleasant. 2v 1905 Dodd $5; Constable ea 7s 6d 822

6-1002

Contents: v 1 Widowers' houses, The philanderer, Mrs Warren's profession; v2 Arms and the man, Candida, The man of destiny, You never can tell

* Saint Joan. 1924 Dodd $2.50; Constable 6s 822

1 Joan of Arc, Saint—Drama 24-16535

"Accompanied by the usual Shavian preface, this artistic chronicle play portrays a very human Joan of Arc, at once a mixture of tomboy, saint and sane country girl." N.Y. state lib.

"The scenes in which the leaders of the church and state confer, and especially that scene when Joan's cause is tried, exhibit a splendid intellectual passion, a fine and moving drama of mind and feeling." Stark Young in New republic

* Three plays for Puritans. 1906 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

6-20215

Contents: Devil's disciple; Caesar and Cleopatra; Captain Brassbound's conversion

Too true to be good, Village wooing & On the rocks. 1934 Dodd $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822

34-2650

"Too true to be good" is a political extravaganza; "On the rocks" a political comedy. There are also two short essays or prefaces: On democracy under dictatorship and On extermination of undesirables

"His present volume, apart from Village Wooing, 'a comediettina for two voices,' which takes rank among the most amusing and least controversial of his lighter pieces, is chiefly valuable for the dialogue between Jesus and Pilate wherein he escapes from his economic obsession and writes for a few pages with all his former clearness of mind." Times (London) lit. sup.

Sheridan, Richard Brinsley Butler

* Dramatic works. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 822

Deirdre of the sorrows. 1910 Luce, J. W. $1.25; Allen, G. 3s 6d 822

10-15091

"Beautiful and poetic dramatization of the tragic Celtic legend of Deirdre and the sons of Usna." Viewpoints in modern drama

‡ Playboy of the western world. 1911 Luce, J. W. $1.25; Allen, G. 3s 6d 822

[10-7519]

"A poetic, imaginative drama of Irish peasant life, considered by many the most important contribution of the Celtic revival to contemporary literature. It seems destined to a permanent place in English literature." Pratt alcove

Riders to the sea. 1911 Luce, J. W. 75c 822

11-11995

A simple impressive tragedy in which an Irish mother watches her sons, one after the other, ride away to be destroyed by the sea

The author's "Well of the saints" (1911 Luce, J. W. $1.25; Allen, G. 3s 6d) is an early play, first produced in 1905, that has been highly praised. His "Complete works" are available in the authorized library edition (4v 1912 Luce, J. W. $10)

Synge, John M.—Continued

An English edition of his works is available (4v 1912 Allen, G. 20s 6d) of which volume 2, "Plays" (Allen, G. 7s 6d) contains: Shadow of the glen; Riders to the sea; Tinker's wedding; Well of the saints; Playboy of the western world; Deirdre of the sorrows

Vane, Sutton

Outward bound. 1924 Liveright $1.75; Chatto 5s 822

24-26312

"Scene opens in the saloon of an ocean liner. A group of somewhat mystified but otherwise ordinary human beings are the passengers. Gradually it dawns on them, as it does on the reader, that they have died and are 'outward bound.' The author has accomplished a difficult feat in making a play on this theme that is wise and humorous and tender." Wis. bul.

Webster, John

Webster and Tourneur; ed by J. A. Symonds. (Mermaid ser.) Scribner $1.25; Benn 3s 6d 822

1 English drama—Hist. & crit. 14-18042

"A thoroughly scholarly and competent historical survey of English drama from the miracle play to Sheridan's time, with a sketch of later drama in the concluding chapter. Practically every play is criticized, however briefly." Wis. bul.

Symonds, John Addington

Shakspere's predecessors in the English drama. 2d ed 1900 Scribner $3.75; Murray, J. 10s 6d 822.09

1 English drama—Hist. & crit. [2-24423]

"Treats of the origin of the literary form which Shakespere brought to perfection, and of the men who immediately preceded him; it is the history of the evolution of our great romantic stage, of the gradual fusion of mediaeval dramatic traditions and Renaissance poetical tendencies, of the various necessities which made the Shakesperian play what it became." Vernon Lee in Academy

Thorndike, Ashley Horace

English comedy. 1929 Macmillan $4.50; 21s 822.09

1 English drama—Hist. & crit. 29-10393

"This history of English comedy for four hundred years, from its beginnings in the early sixteenth century is a history of the English theater as well. Professor Thorndike stops his discussion at the close of the nineteenth century, thus including only the early work of Shaw and none of the modern writers." Book rev. digest

"In this excellent and erudite book, Professor Ashley Thorndike, of Columbia University, gives the student of drama an immense amount of historical information, critically considered and written in a clear and precise prose which is very pleasant to read." New republic

Tragedy. (Types of English literature) 1908 Houghton $2.75; Constable 8s 6d 822.09

1 English drama—Hist. & crit. 8-15303

"The course of English tragedy . . . to the middle of the nineteenth century and the part which it has played in the history both of the theatre and of literature." Preface

Weygandt, Cornelius

Irish plays and playwrights. 1913 Houghton $3 822.09

1 Irish drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Dramatists, Irish. 3 Theater—Ireland 13-2333

"Follows the development of the movement which has given Ireland a genuine native drama and made an important contribution to the dramatic literature of the contemporary stage. Gives interesting critical studies of Synge, Lady Gregory, Yeats, Moore and other writers whose productions the Irish players have given so successfully, and considers, also, the evolution of the players from a company of amateurs to perfected actors. Illustrated." Pittsburgh

Editions

The "New variorum edition of Shakespeare; ed. by H. H. Furness, and H. H. Furness, jr." (20v 1871-1928 Lippincott ea $7.50; ea 30s) is the monumental, scholarly edition. It contains an exhaustive collation of texts, elaborate critical and textual notes, and is indispensable for serious study of Shakespeare. Nineteen plays have appeared

Shakespeare, William

Works; ed by W. G. Clark and W. A. Wright. Cambridge Shakespeare 9v Macmillan ea $4; ea 12s 822.3

20-243

The Cambridge edition which first appeared in nine volumes between 1863 and 1866 exhaustively notes the textual variations of all preceding editions and until the publication of the New variorum edition, noted above, was the fullest critical text

The "Swan Shakespeare; a player's edition" (3v 1930 Dutton $10; Dent ea 9s) with notes on production by C. B. Purdom, and drawings of costumes and scenes by Jean Campbell, is useful to amateur players and the general reader. Text of the Cambridge Shakespeare is followed

Works; ed by W. G. Clark and W. A. Wright. Globe ed Macmillan $1.80; 4s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Language 20-246

A one-volume edition using the text of the Cambridge Shakespeare with slight modifications. It is necessary for reference use as the "Concordance" by Bartlett listed below is based on it, but small type limits its use for general reading. Contains glossary

‡ Complete works; ed by W. J. Craig. Oxford $2; 8s 6d 822.3

[7-41814]

Known as the Oxford Shakespeare. Contains numbered lines and glossary and is well printed in large type. A school edition is available in the Oxford standard edition (Oxford $1.25)

"A very well made edition, beautifully printed on good paper. The text is based on the early quarto and the first folio. . . This is the easiest to read of the one volume editions." H. H. B. Meyer

Works; ed by W. J. Craig, with introductory studies of the plays by Edward Dowden. 3v Oxford ea $1.75; ea 6s 822.3

The three volumes are: Comedies; Tragedies; Histories and poems. Numbered lines, introduction to each play, and a glossary in each volume. Readable type is used

New Hudson Shakespeare; introd. and notes by H. N. Hudson, ed and rev. by E. C. Black. 19v Ginn ea 60c; ea 2s 9d 822.3

An expurgated edition excellent for school use. Well printed and annotated. The notes are not too scholarly nor so profuse as in the Rolfe edition and are placed with the texts

Complete dramatic and poetic works; ed by W. A. Neilson. Cambridge ed Houghton $4, student's ed $3 822.3

6-38336

"Edited from the text of the early quartos and the first folio, by William Allan Neilson." Subtitle

Introduction to each play with notes and glossary. Lines are numbered, the type used is larger than that in the Globe edition

* Works; ed by W. J. Rolfe. 40v Am. bk. ea 80c 822.3

(12-38637)

An expurgated edition with notes, recommended for school use and quick reference. The out of print Harper edition had additional notes containing extracts from noted critics not included in this edition

Another "individual play edition," the "Yale Shakespeare" (40v Yale univ. press ea $1.50) under the general editorship of the Department of English of Yale university is an attractive small edition following the Oxford text. Numbered lines, and glossarial footnotes

about Shakespeare

"Shakespeare's England; an account of the life & manners of his age" edited by C. T. Onions (2v 1916 Oxford $14; 42s) is a very useful book for the student of Shakespeare. It contains a vast amount of information on various aspects of the period including religion, education, the arts, science, etc.

"Shakespeare bibliography" by Walter Ebisch and Levin Schücking (1931 Oxford $7.50; 21s) is an extensive bibliography of the Shakespeare studies which in the opinions of the compilers are still significant

H. H. B. Meyer's "Brief guide to the literature of Shakespeare" (1915 A.L.A. o.p. 1933) is a good brief annotated bibliography, useful for small libraries or in other cases where a brief selection, somewhat fuller than this Catalog lists, is needed

Adams, Joseph Quincy

Life of William Shakespeare. 1923 Houghton $5, students' ed $2; Constable 10s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Biog. 23-9804

"Based on a thorough examination of all existing materials. . . Gives little space to details that have long been disputed, but aims rather to present an independent interpretation of the known evidence." Bkl.

Alden, Raymond Macdonald

Shakespeare handbook. rev and enl by O. J. Campbell. 1932 Crofts $1.50 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William 32-24682

First edition 1925. Enlarged by sixty pages including new chapters on England in Shakespeare's day, Shakespeare's dramatic career, Elizabethan theatres, and Elizabethan dramatic companies

"A useful little book containing the known facts of Shakespeare's life, source material and analyses of the plays, chronology, and notes on grammar and versification." Chicago

"Contains an extensive treatment of Shakespeare's source material. The great usefulness of this to the Shakespeare amateur will be apparent, for he is saved the labor of gathering together the volumes of Holinshed, Plutarch, Belleforest, Fiorentino, Bandello, and the rest. Here they all are." Literary rev.

Bailey, John Cann

Shakespeare. (English heritage ser.) 1929 Longmans $1.25; 3s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 29-20681

"This study of Shakespeare and his work is not concerned with matters of theory or controversy, but is written with the aim of adding to the ordinary reader's enjoyment of Shakespeare. The author goes thru the poems and the plays, keeping as close to the text and meaning of Shakespeare as possible." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Bailey, who can be as acute and subtle as the best, is never afraid to take the plain, conventional, average view when he thinks it is right. He knows what the learned and the super-subtle and the fantastic have written about Shakespeare; and he uses his knowledge not to darken counsel for the plain man, but for the enrichment of the plain, straightforward view which comes on a first acquaintance with the plays." Times (London) lit. sup.

Baker, George Pierce

Development of Shakespeare as a dramatist. 1907 Macmillan $2.60; 13s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Technique 2 Shakespeare, William—Stage history 7-22387

"Professor Baker, in his study of how Shakespeare developed his technical mastery from play to play, not only helps us to understand the technical principles underlying all dramatic writing, but also tells us a great deal about the Elizabethan stage, about its physical construction, its size, its employment or non-employment of scenery, the actors on it, the audiences facing it." W. P. Eaton's Study of English drama on the stage

"The book throws more light on Shakespeare's intellectual and artistic development than many others written with less regard for external conditions and for the part other playwrights played in preparing the way for Shakespeare." Dial

Bartlett, John

* New and complete concordance or verbal index to words, phrases, and passages in the dramatic works of Shakespeare, with a supplementary concordance to the poems. 1894 Macmillan $12.50; 42s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Concordances 4-13960

"Based upon the text of the Globe edition; gives full context for each word listed, with exact reference to act, scene, and line as numbered in the Globe edition 1891. The best and most comprehensive Shakespeare concordance." Mudge

Boas, Frederick Samuel

Introduction to the reading of Shakespeare. (World's manuals) 1927 Oxford $1.25; 2s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William [21-5187]

First published in England in 1920

"Its aim is to remove, or to lighten, some of the obstacles which 'the general reader' often finds to the understanding and enjoyment of Shakespeare's plays and poems." Preface

"Mr. Boas's 'Introduction' appears likely to render a wide service in informing readers quickly yet soundly, and awakening them to the pleasure of a really watchful reading of Shakespeare's text with its endless wealth of almost concealed significances." Times (London) lit. sup.

Bradley, Andrew Cecil

* Shakespearean tragedy; lectures on Hamlet, Othello, King Lear, Macbeth. 2d ed 1905 Macmillan $3.75; 12s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Tragedies 14-7521

First published 1904. Some corrections and improvements have been made in the second edition and subsequent impressions

"A great mass of erudition, thoroughly digested, reasoned, and ordered, is brought to bear not merely on the four tragedies professedly dealt with, but incidentally on the other plays as well; the ideas are expressed in a style always admirably clear and often of a finely restrained eloquence." Nation

Brandes, George Morris Cohen

William Shakespeare. Macmillan $4; Heinemann 18s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 24-26746

This distinguished work traces the personality of Shakespeare through his works, and gives criticism and analyses of the plays and characters. It was originally published in Danish in three volumes, 1897-98; this translation, first published in 1898, was made by William Archer, Mary Morison, and Diana White

"Dr. Brandes is both an antiquary and a critic, interested in the smallest details of biography, and also taking broad and comprehensive views of Shakespeare's thought and style. He has equipped himself for his task by wide study and research; and on all the materials he has amassed he has brought to bear a judgment well balanced and vigorous, and a mind liberal and independent." Athenaeum

Brooke, Stopford Augustus

* On ten plays of Shakespeare. Oxford $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 17-21679

First published 1905 by Constable

Contents: Midsummer night's dream; Romeo and Juliet; Richard II; Richard III; Merchant of Venice; As you like it; Macbeth; Coriolanus; Winter's tale; Tempest

This volume and the following "offer excellent interpretative criticism of the plots and characters of the plays." H. H. B. Meyer

* Ten more plays of Shakespeare. Oxford $2.50; Constable 7s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 29-506

First published 1913 by Constable

Contents: Much ado about nothing; Twelfth night; or, What you will; Julius Caesar; Hamlet; Measure for measure; Othello; King Lear; King John; Henry IV (Part I); Henry IV (Part II); Henry V

"He is not interested in Shakespeare's relation to his own era. . . The plays are regarded as masterpieces which can stand the criticism of any age. . . In the main, the book comprises a series of pleasant, analytical appreciations which the average student may read with profit; at times the language rises to reverential eloquence." Nation

Chambers, Sir Edmund Kerchever

Short life of Shakespeare; abr. by Charles Williams. 1933 Oxford $1.75; 5s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Biog. 33-13746

"In this excellent condensation all matter that is controversial or of interest chiefly to specialists has been eliminated. There remains a short biography in which the general reader or student may enjoy a product of the best scholarship, presented not in popular fictionized style but in concise form and very agreeably written." Cincinnati

The "Short life" is an abridgment of Chambers's "William Shakespeare; a study of facts and problems" (2v 1930 Oxford $15; 42s) which is a scholarly treatment of Shakespeare's relation to the Elizabethan stage with textual criticism of his works. Larger libraries will find it indispensable

Chapman, John Jay

Glance toward Shakespeare. 1922 Little $1.25 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 22-7768

"Brilliant, penetrating little essays, commenting, with subtle discrimination, on Shakspere's types, the plays as poetry and on the stage, the comedies, the sonnets, and various individual plays. The appendix contains notes on enunciation and American speech." N.Y. state lib.

"Introduction to Shakespeare" by H. N. MacCracken, F. E. Pierce, and W. H. Durham (1910 Macmillan $1.60) is another volume of interesting essays dealing with Shakespeare's life, the earlier English drama, Elizabethan London, and other pertinent subjects

First published 1875. This edition has an introduction and a brief bibliography by W. D. Howe

"An interpretation of the progressive development of the mind of Shakespeare as revealed by a study of the plays in the supposed order of their writing. Constructive and inspiring." Pratt alcove

Drinkwater, John

Shakespeare. (Great lives) 1933 Macmillan 75c; Duckworth 2s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William 33-11958

"This study of Shakespeare covers briefly the question of the authorship of the plays, Shakespeare's stage, his art and his mind, as well as the course of his life and career." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Drinkwater's 'Shakespeare' is a model of what such works should be, concise, straightforward and packed with common-sense and sound appreciation. His chapter on 'Who was Shakespeare' would surely end the controversy once and for all." Saturday rev.

Granville-Barker, Harley Granville

Prefaces to Shakespeare, first-second series. 2v 1927-29 Sidgwick ea 9s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation (28-12289)

Contents: ser. 1 Love's labour's lost, Julius Caesar, King Lear; ser. 2 Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, Antony and Cleopatra, Cymbeline

"These prefaces are an attempt to profit by the new scholarship and to contribute to it some research into Shakspeare's stagecraft—to examine the plays, one after another, in order to ascertain as far as possible just what were Shakespeare's intentions in regard to them. [The plays] are considered in regard to the producer's problem, acting, staging, costume, casting, cutting, music, characters, structure, etc." Providence

Hapgood, Norman

Why Janet should read Shakspere. 1929 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 29-18654

"Essays on various aspects of Shakespeare's plays written in answer to a girl's question. Written with freshness and enthusiasm. Of interest to the general reader and worth bringing to the attention of high school teachers of English." Wis. bul.

"Mr. Hapgood goes into the subject lightly, of course, as one must who is writing a comparatively brief and general volume, but with him lightness is not superficiality. Here is charm, color, character." Boston Transcript

Hazlitt, William

Characters of Shakespeare's plays; with an introd. by Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch. (World's classics) Oxford 80c; 2s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Characters 31-17196

First published 1817

"The subject is most pleasantly handled, and with an infectious enthusiasm: the reader feels all the while that his sympathy with Shakespeare is being stimulated and his understanding promoted." Sir A. T. Quiller-Couch in Introduction

Hudson, Henry Norman

* Shakespeare: his life, art, and characters. 2v 1872 Ginn $4; 22s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William 2 English drama—Hist. & crit. 3 Shakespeare, William—Characters 4-13965

About half the first volume is devoted to chapters on the life of Shakespeare, the origin and growth of the drama in England, Shakespeare's contemporaries, and Shakespeare's art. The remainder of this volume and all of volume two give detailed analyses of the characters in twenty-five plays

Jameson, Mrs Anna Brownell (Murphy)

Ontario library review

Mackenzie, Agnes Mure

Women in Shakespeare's plays. 1924 Heinemann o.p. 1933 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Characters 24-31984

"Each of the plays is analyzed, the women characters in each being the special center of interest." Pratt quarterly

"It is the book of a woman who rates the powers and duties of her sex very high, yet is without contempt for the human male; the book of a well-read, thoughtful, humorous, and on occasion very plain-spoken woman. Her work cannot always command assent; but it is always bracing and sensible." Times (London) lit. sup.

Previous edition 1913. A few very slight changes have been made in the text of the revised edition, and the bibliography has been brought up to date

"Compact, clear volume, summarizing in the light of modern scholarship, all authentic information concerning Shakespere's life and the chronology of his plays. Discusses also the England of his time, evolution of the drama, editions, criticism and acting of plays to the present. Two portraits, bibliography and index, with additional indexes of characters and of first lines of songs. Also published as the final volume of the 'Tudor Shakespeare.'" N. Y. state lib.

Nicoll, Allardyce

Studies in Shakespeare. (Hogarth lectures on literature ser.) 1928 Harcourt $1.25; Hogarth 3s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Tragedies 28-11520

Six lectures on Shakespearean tragedy. The first discusses the subject in general. The next two are devoted to a study of Hamlet, and those following take up Othello, Macbeth and King Lear

"Professor Nicoll examines the 'why' of certain things, especially the changes Shakespeare made in altering the plots he took over. It is a refreshing approach, free of the adipose metaphysics, and he makes many illuminating discoveries." Nation and Athenaeum

Onions, Charles Talbut

Shakespeare glossary. 2d ed rev 1919 Oxford $1.75; 5s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Language 20-4994

"An excellent small dictionary. . . The aim of the glossary is to supply (1) definitions or illustrations of words or senses now obsolete or surviving only in archaic or provincial use, (2) explanations of other words involving allusions not generally familiar, (3) explanations of proper names carrying with them some connotative significance or offering special interest or difficulty, and of idioms, or colloquial phrases, specialized uses of pronouns and particles and the relation of the poet's vocabulary to the midland area, especially Warwickshire. Includes also obsolete and technical terms which occur only in the stage directions." Mudge

Quiller-Couch, Sir Arthur Thomas

Notes on Shakespeare's workmanship. 1917 Benn 9s 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Technique [17-14157]

Formerly carried also by Holt

"University of Cambridge lectures studying the plot development, handling of characterization, stage business, etc., of ten of Shakespeare's plays; Macbeth, Hamlet, As you like it, Merchant of Venice, Midsummer night's dream, Pericles, King Henry VIII, Cymbeline, Winter's tale and The tempest. The book presupposes a knowledge of Shakespeare's works. It would not serve as a text for use with high school or college students but would enrich their knowledge and add to their interest if used as a supplement to their studies, and would delight any Shakespeare lover." Cleveland

Smith, Logan Pearsall

* On reading Shakespeare. 1933 Harcourt $1.50; Constable 7s 6d 822.3

1 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 33-15121

"The great rewards in reading Shakespeare lie, for Mr. Smith, in his poetry and his characters. Of Shakespeare on the stage he thinks little and of the mysteries of meaning in which the scholars have become entangled, much less. Delightful essays written with intelligence and humor." Wis. bul.

Stokes, Francis Griffin

Dictionary of the characters and proper names in the works of Shakespeare. 1924 Houghton $7.50 822.3

* (comp.) Index to short stories. 2d and enl ed 1923 and Supplement 1929 Wilson, H. W. service basis; Holmes

1 Short stories—Bibl. 23-27435

"An index of authors and titles in one alphabet with full information under author and cross references from titles. Indexes the short stories of 898 writers and indicates where these may be found in collected works, separate volumes, periodicals or composite collections. All material indexed is in English, but of the 898 authors included, 327 are foreign writers whose works are accessible in English translations. The cross references from title to author serve to answer questions of authorship also. A useful index, indispensable in either the college, public or school library." Mudge

There have been indexed in the Supplement stories by 1,031 authors

G. Wells, John Galsworthy, Edith Wharton, Joseph Conrad; Younger generation

"There is no attempt to give a synopsis of the author's work but rather to describe each in terms of what is most central and essential in him and to show how that in turn is integral with that motive power behind modern living and thinking which the authors term the 'new humanism.'" Cleveland

Howells, William Dean

Heroines of fiction. 2v Smith, P. $4 823

1 Fiction 2 Women in literature and art 1-25389

Reprint of a book published in 1901 by Harper

"The field covered is a wide one, practically the whole life of English fiction from Richardson to [1900]. . . In a general way, Mr. Howells is happiest with those fictional creations whose authors have used his own method—that of the realist. . . His attitude toward the romanticists makes him a bit less sympathetic perhaps to the children, fair or foul, of their making; yet the strictures are so frank, so gently put, and so intensely honest. . . . that they carry the more weight, whatever one's opinion." Marble, Mrs Annie (Russell)
* Study of the modern novel. 1928 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 2 American fiction—Hist. & crit. 28-25757
Contains sketches of British and American novelists, considered separately; analyses of their novels since 1900; and bibliographies. Novels are classified as History and romance; Fantasy and mystery; Characterization and manners; Revolt and escape; Whimsicality and humor
"Mrs. Marble's comprehensive and competently worked-out volume ought to add value and interest to the study of such courses in schools and colleges, and enhance greatly the pleasure afforded by fictional current reading done by literary societies, women's clubs and unassorted individuals. One is impressed by the enormous amount of reading in careful, critical mood the author must have done and by the pains she has taken to make her biographical information authentic." N.Y. Times

Advance of the English novel. 1916 Dodd $2.50; Murray, J. 7s 6d 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 16-18587
"Popular and very readable review of the English novel, from Defoe and Richardson to Wells and Galsworthy. Prof. Phelps says it is 'a record of personal impressions and opinions,' and as such it will no doubt induce among its readers 'the pleasure of recognition, the pleasure of opposition, and a stimulus to further reading.' Considerably over half the book is devoted to modern and contemporary novelists. All but one chapter—that on Henry James—was published in the Bookman." Wis. bul

* Essays on modern novelists. 1910 Macmillan $1.50; 7s 6d 823
1 Fiction—Hist. & crit. 10-2313

1 Dickens, Charles 2 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 3 Thackeray, William Makepeace [25-11274]
Contents: Dickens; Thackeray; Victorian background; Disraeli; Mrs Gaskell; Anthony Trollope: The Barsetshire novels
"About one-half of the book is devoted to Dickens, but no matter who is the subject, something new and suggestive is offered along with appreciation or criticism." Chicago

Raleigh, Sir Walter Alexander
English novel. (University manuals) 1894 Murray, J. 4s 6d 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 11-22935
A valuable study by a notable English critic of the development of the novel from its beginnings to Sir Walter Scott

Saintsbury, George Edward Bateman
English novel. (Channels of English literature) 1913 Dutton $2.50; Dent 7s 6d 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 13-35815
"Traces the history of the English novel from its beginnings in Malory to the mid-Victorian era." Pratt quarterly
"It is in itself a book we may thoroughly enjoy and must cheerfully praise; it reveals courage, sympathy, insight, and scholarship. We find it difficult to imagine that the work could have been done with more skill or more charm." Spectator

Weygandt, Cornelius
* Century of the English novel. 1925 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 2 Novelists 25-24029
"Being a consideration of the place in English literature of the long story; together with an estimate of its writers from the heyday of Scott to the death of Conrad." Subtitle
"Professor Weygandt has a sense of humor and he is tolerant, as becomes one who knows the novel not only from reading and study, but from 'stout and pleasant quarrels' about them with his friends these many years. He writes easily, in a leisurely and mellow style which it is a pleasure to read." Springfield Republican

Williams, Orlo
Some great English novels. 1926 Macmillan $3 823
1 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 27-5969
Contents: Tom Jones; Martin Chuzzlewit; Pendennis; The egoist; Roxana; Emma; Adam Bede; Way of all flesh; Novels of William de Morgan; A little classic (Edith Somerville and Martin Ross)
"Mr. Williams has read the books he criticizes, and reread them, and pondered them, and made them a part of his life. His criticism will stimulate his readers to make these books a part of theirs." Sat. rev. of lit.

823D Individual novelists—Dictionaries

We have made a separate list of these titles in order to bring them together in this Catalog, but libraries will doubtless wish to shelve them after the authors' works

Libraries which have need for material for students and scholars should consult I. G. Mudge's "Guide to reference books" (class 016) for a fuller list of dictionaries, etc.

The Oxford edition of Jane Austen's "Novels, the text based on collation of the early editions by R. W. Chapman" (2d ed 5v 1926 Oxford $10; ea 5s) contains indexes which partially take the place of an Austen dictionary

Dickens, Charles
Philip, A. J. and Gadd, W. L. Dickens dictionary. 2d ed rev 1928 Philip, A. J. 21s 823D
30-2355
"Contains (1) Synopses of plots, (2) alphabetical list of characters and places, (3) index of originals. Includes names from all Dickens' works except the 'Child's history of England' . . . The new ed. differs from the first in including all notes about originals in the Index to originals." Mudge
Two other dictionaries which have been recommended are the "Dickens encyclopaedia" by A. L. Hayward (1924 Dutton $5; Routledge 7s 6d) and the "Dickens dictionary" by G. A. Pierce (Chapman 7s 6d)

Eliot, George, pseud.
Mudge, I. G. and Sears, M. E. George Eliot dictionary. 1924 Wilson, H. W. o.p. 1933 823D
24-20006
Originally published in England by Routledge
"Includes information regarding the names of all characters and places, historical and fictitious, which appear in the novels, stories and poems of George Eliot, as well as data about originals of characters and other miscellaneous references. Also gives synopses of her works with date of first publication. A valuable reference book." Bkl.

Eliot, George, pseud.—Continued

"The synopses of the novels are clear and good . . . the characters are also skilfully summed up in very few words, and the whole book is marked by good sense and sense of proportion." Times (London) lit. sup.

Scott, Sir Walter, bart.

Husband, M. F. A. Dictionary of the characters in the Waverly novels of Sir Walter Scott. 1910 Routledge o.p. 1933 823D

10-30446

Formerly carried also by Dutton

"Gives the characters and scenes of all the novels in one alphabetical list, but contains no outlines of plots... Refers only to the title of the story in which a character appears, not to specific chapters." Mudge

Thackeray, William Makepeace

Mudge, I. G. and Sears, M. E. Thackeray dictionary. 1910 Routledge o.p. 1933 823D

10-36089

Formerly carried also by Dutton

"The main part of the book consists of 'The characters and scenes of the novels and short stories alphabetically arranged'. . . The 'Synopses' of the various stories give a competent idea of their plots; there are two family trees which will help towards a realization of the complicated relationships in 'The Newcomes' and 'The Virginians'; and there is a 'List of authorities cited' which should be useful... Altogether, the book is a full and capable record." Athenaeum

Bacon, Francis, viscount St Albans

* Essays; ed by M. A. Scott. (Modern student's lib.) 1918 Scribner $1 824

18-21656

This edition contains a long biographical and critical introduction of nearly 100 pages

"His best known book is the 'Essays,' in which he has compressed all that there is to say on fifty subjects, a hundred subjects. He seems to have read all the wisdom in the world and boiled every idea down to its essence... His style is epigrammatic, fluent, rich in analogies, and informed by a kind of plain common sense that distinguishes it from much of the too fantastic prose of the period." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Essays, and Colours of good and evil. (Golden treasury ser.) Macmillan $1.40; 3s 6d 824

7-18923

This collection, edited by W. A. Wright with notes and a glossarial index, was first published 1862

The essays may be obtained also in Everyman's library (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s) and the Modern readers' series (Macmillan 80c)

Bagehot, Walter

Literary studies. (Everyman's lib.) 2v 1911 Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s 824

1 English literature—Addresses, essays, lectures A12-644

Contents: v 1 First Edinburgh reviewers; Hartley Coleridge; Percy Bysshe Shelley; Shakespeare—the man; John Milton; Lady Mary Wortley Montagu; William Cowper; Appendices: Letters on the French Coup d'Etat of 1851; Caesareanism as it now exists; Memoir of the Right Hon. James Wilson; v2 Edward Gibbon; Bishop Butler; Sterne and Thackeray; Waverley novels; Charles Dickens; Thomas Babington Macaulay; Béranger; Mr. Clough's poems; Henry Crabb Robinson; Wordsworth, Tennyson, and Browning; Appendix: Ignorance of man

A third volume, formerly carried by Longmans in the Silver library is out of print, 1933, but obtainable in his "Works" (9v Longmans 75s). It contains twelve essays of a more miscellaneous character, three of which are given in the appendix to v 1, and three in v2, of the Everyman's edition

Baring, Maurice

Lost lectures; or, The fruits of experience. 1932 Knopf $3; Davies 10s 6d 824

32-21830

"In these delightfully reminiscent and discursive essays we have the full flavor of the man and the writer: an urbane and cultured man of the world, in whom humor and a sturdy common sense are wedded to a sensitive awareness of beauty in every form." N.Y. Times

Beerbohm, Max

And even now. 1921 Dutton $2.50; Heinemann 7s 6d 824

21-18410

"Impressions of books and writers . . . form the subjects of these essays and whimsies. Humor and satire and lightness of touch characterize them, with some fantastic exaggerations and now and then a suspicion of deeper sentiment. A visit to Swinburne in his childish old age is described in 'No. 2. The pines.' Other essays are: Books within books; A point to be remembered by very eminent men; Quia imperfectum; The crime; William and Mary; Laughter; Servants." Book rev. digest

"Hardly a sentence of his can be read without inward pleasure at its craft; there is hardly a page without its luminous crystallisation of thought or experience. Yet perhaps his greatest achievement is his power of imposing on us his personality." Saturday rev.

Yet again. 1923 Knopf $2.50; Heinemann 3s 6d 824

24-26072

Whimsical, entertaining skits on a variety of subjects from the manners of young women to journalistic cant, from the president of the Swiss Republic to the naming of streets. A final group gives word pictures of paintings

Belloc, Hilaire

* On nothing and kindred subjects. Dutton $2; Methuen 3s 6d 824

[9-8424]

First published 1908

Light, clever essays in which "with unfailing zest the writer finds delight in thousands of . . . things from conversation in trains to coming to an end." Viewpoints in essays

If other volumes by Belloc are needed "On" (1913 Methuen 6s); "On anything" (1926 Methuen 3s 6d); and "On everything" (1926 Methuen 3s 6d) are recommended

Benson, Arthur Christopher

* From a college window. 1906 Putnam $2; Murray, J. 5s 824

1 Conduct of life 6-17648

"As a member of Cambridge University, Mr. Benson had 'the priceless boon of leisure, set in a framework of small duties,' and his essays show his ardent enthusiasm for English university life. He writes quietly on many phases of this life, easily introducing himself in autobiographical illustrations of such subjects as 'Habits,' 'Religion,' 'Egotism,' 'The Point of View,' and 'On Growing Older.' As the titles suggest, the essays are neither formal nor familiar, but are rather a pleasing, subdued blending of the two styles." English and Pope's What to read

Another volume of leisurely and reflective essays is his "At large" (1908 Putnam) unfortunately out of print, 1933

Birrell, Augustine

More Obiter dicta. (Travellers' lib.) 1924 Heinemann 3s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 24-26923

Formerly carried also by Scribner

"The essays in this volume cover a wide range of time and subject. Newman—a personality which has always fascinated Mr Birrell—Byron, Nollekens, Chateaubriand, Francis Place, Fielding, Susan Ferrier, Law reform, Reading—on all of these Mr Birrell has something new, and something exciting to say in papers which were written between 1890 and 1922." New statesman

* Obiter dicta. (Reader's lib.) 1923 Duckworth 3s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures [17-21084]

"The publication of 'Obiter dicta' (1884) showed him to be a literary critic of unusually clever style and an original vein of wit. . . His originality, satire and ripeness put him at the head of English men of letters on the critical side." Encyclopaedia Britannica

A collection of his work is published with the title "Collected essays & addresses, 1880-1920" (3v 1922 Dent 31s 6d). This contains all of Birrell's essays and addresses previously published and five hitherto unpublished

Carlyle, Thomas

* Critical and miscellaneous essays. centenary ed 5v Scribner ea $2.50; Chapman ea 5s 824

[31-24834]

This collection, edited by H. D. Trail, comprises v26-30 of the "Works of Thomas Carlyle"

In these miscellaneous essays is found the essence of Carlyle's philosophy and the reasons for his influence on English letters

On heroes, hero-worship and the heroic in history. (World's classics) Oxford 80c; 2s 824

33-27222

First published, 1841; in this edition, 1904

By means of sketches on Mahomet, Dante, Shakespeare, Luther, Samuel Johnson, Cromwell, Napoleon and others, Carlyle aims to prove the importance of the great man in history and to show that the essential heroic qualities have been the same in all great men

Past and present. (Everyman's lib.) Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

1 Social problems. 2 Gt. Brit.—Soc. condit. A13-542

Contrasting England of the Middle 19th century with England of the 12th century

The same collection of essays may also be had in the Modern readers' series (1927 Macmillan 80c; 5s) and in the Modern student's library (1918 Scribner $1)

Carlyle, Thomas—Continued

* Sartor resartus; On heroes, hero-worship and the heroic in history. (Everyman's lib.) 1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A10-8

"Sartor resartus" contains the germ of Carlyle's philosophy. It purports to be an interpretation of the work of an erudite German professor, but is really the story of Carlyle's own fierce spiritual conflict between doubt and faith. It presents a philosophy of clothes, or the outward forms of things

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith

Come to think of it. 1931 Dodd $2.50; Methuen 6s 824

31-4422

"A collection of short, informal essays by Mr Chesterton upon a great variety of subjects. Here one may read what G. K. C. thinks about literary censorship, psychoanalysis, loneliness, encyclopaedias, vulgarity, dictatorships, Abraham Lincoln, prohibition, and other subjects of contemporary interest." Book rev. digest

"These witty little essays are a delight to read. They have a quality of detachment often wanting in his work. The spirit of controversy is hardly to be traced in them. Their geniality is not clouded nor their persuasive power weakened by the thirst to score. They sparkle; they do not scorch." Spectator

* Heretics. 1905 Dodd $2.50; Lane 5s, week-end lib. 3s 6d 824

5-28365

"In the main sincere, though with perhaps too many 'preliminary shouts to attract the attention.' 'Orthodox,' clever and paradoxical, he attacks the 'heretics,' Kipling, Shaw, Wells, etc." Trinity college list

Orthodoxy. 1908 Dodd $2.50; Lane 5s, week-end lib. 3s 6d 824

8-28073

A companion volume to his "Heretics" in which the author attempts "in a vague and personal way, in a set of mental pictures rather than in a series of deductions, to state the philosophy" in which he has come to believe

"You may be startled, even shocked, by this novel book; but you must admit that the heart of this witty Philistine is in the right place." Nation

Sidelights on new London and newer York, and other essays. 1932 Dodd $2.50; Sheed 6s 824

32-23259

"In his usual paradoxical manner, the essayist turns to the fashions, morals, literature, and problems of today in a reactionary spirit." Pittsburgh

The author's "Uses of diversity" (1920 Methuen 6s) and his "Varied types" (1903 Dodd o.p. 1933) are other volumes of essays written in his light and witty style

Clutton-Brock, Arthur

Essays on literature & life. 1926 Dutton $2; Methuen 6s 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Literature [27-26367]

"The book contains some fifteen essays on various literary subjects; all of them are saturated with ideas; with novel points of view and with stimulating observation." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Another book of brief critical commentaries is his "Essays on books" (1921 Dutton $2; Methuen 6s)

Coleridge, Samuel Taylor

* Biographia literaria; or, Biographical sketches of my literary life and opinions; ed by J. C. Metcalf. (Modern readers' ser.) 1926 Macmillan 80c 824

26-26544

Brief essays on various subjects, literary and autobiographical, by a poet, highly gifted as a conversationalist and writer of informal criticism

There is also an Everyman's library edition, "Biographia literaria; with an introduction by Arthur Symons" (1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Conrad, Joseph

Last essays. 1926 Doubleday, Doran $2; Dent 7s 6d 824

26-26614

"Here are reminiscent essays in Conrad's best manner, some prefaces and miscellaneous shorts reverently gathered from newspapers and periodicals by Richard Curle. All these are rich in interest for the general reader as well as for Conrad fans." Bookman

"The misgivings that usually fill us when we take up the posthumous collection of an author's papers are not justified in the reading of Conrad's last essays." Herbert Read in Nation and Athenaeum

* Notes on life and letters. 1921 Doubleday, Doran $2; Dent 9s 824

[21-6888]

"A volume, says Conrad, made from taking the broom and tidying up the 'small (but unbroken) bits' of the author's own choice. They include essays on Henry James, Stephen Crane, Alphonse Daudet, Anatole France, Maupassant, Turgenev, on books, sea stories, war events and many other topics revealing the writer in a ruminating, easy minded mood For all special lovers of Conrad." Bkl.

"Some of these ephemeral pages have lasted already twenty-three years [1921] and why should they not last as many more, since they have about them the gravity, the finality, of literature?" Times (London) lit. sup.

De Quincey, Thomas

* Confessions of an English opium-eater. (Everyman's lib.) 1907 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A10-21

First published 1822, revised and enlarged 1856

One of the notable books of English literature written in brilliant, imaginative prose. Contains reminiscences of the author's life as well as reflections on his experiences as a drug addict

Dobson, Austin

* Eighteenth century vignettes, first-third series. (World's classics) 3v 1923 Oxford ea 80c; ea 2s 824

1 Gt. Brit.—Intellectual life 2 English literature—Hist. & crit. 25-3261

First published, 1892-96. Charming small sketches of old London by one who not only knew the period but also had at his command a vivid style and imagination

Ellis, Havelock

Fountain of life. 1930 Houghton $4 824

31-26045

Brings together in one volume the three series of "Impressions and comments" separately published. They consist of "personal, fragmentary notes, never insignificant or trivial, which touch a diversity of subjects with unusual depth and originality. They reflect, in direct, vigorous expression, wide sympathies and logical thought." Wis. bul.

Ellis, Havelock—Continued

Views and reviews; a selection of uncollected articles, 1884-1932, first-second series. 2v in 1 1932 Houghton $5 824

(32-9875)

Published in England by Harmsworth in a 2 volume edition at 10s 6d each

"A selection of essays and reviews from among the author's writings of forty-eight years, reprinted from various journals and covering a wide variety of subjects. The order in which they here appear is chronological." Book rev. digest

"Several essays are of the first importance and all are vital and authentic, carefully selected as having some kind of interest either in relation to the time when they were written or in relation to to-day." Times (London) lit. sup.

Froude, James Anthony

Short studies on great subjects. (Everyman's lib.) 2v Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s 824

1 English literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 2 History—Addresses, essays, lectures A15-2657

First published 1877-82. Volume one originally issued in this series with title "Essays in literature and history"

Partial contents: v 1, Arnold's poems; England's forgotten worthies; Book of Job; Dissolution of the monasteries; Spinoza; Reynard the fox; v2, Science of history; Times of Erasmus and Luther; Homer; Representative men; Sir Hugh de Avalon; Compensation

Galsworthy, John

Candelabra. 1933 Scribner $2; Heinemann 3s 6d 824

33-3199

Contents: Some platitudes concerning drama; Vague thoughts on art; Meditation on finality; Diagnosis of the Englishman; France, 1916-1917; Speculations; Castles in Spain; A note on sentiment; Six novelists in profile; International thought; On expression; Reminiscences of Conrad; Books as ambassadors; Time, tides, and taste; Faith of a novelist; Four more novelists in profile; Literature and life; Creation of character in literature

"As a rule the essays here brought together have an infusion of quiet, peculiarly urbane rationalism that makes them very persuasive. They are never more interesting, I may add, than when they bring the reader into contact with the novelist's mystery, disclosing his tastes and convictions. . . This book is full of art, of a technician's love for his medium. Incidentally, it is full of a singularly gracious modesty." Royal Cortissoz in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Castles in Spain and other screeds. 1927 Scribner $2; Heinemann 3s 6d 824

27-22191

Contents: Castles in Spain; Where we stand; International thought; On expression; Reminiscences of Conrad; Time, tides, and taste; Foreword to "Green Mansions"; Note on sentiment; Preface to Conrad's plays; Burning leaves; After seeing a play in 1003; Six novelists in profile; Books as ambassadors; Faith of a novelist

"It is the clear-eyed conviction that dedication to the service of beauty and truth sharpens a man's perceptions, humanizes his judgments, makes him tolerant of error while not diminishing his abhorrence of falsehood, that renders each and every one of these essays something to be cherished for its individual importance." N.Y Times

* Inn of tranquility. 1912 Scribner $2; Heinemann 3s 6d 824

12-24514

"A collection of sketches and essays which have appeared . . . in various periodicals on both sides of the Atlantic. . . [It] divides itself in two parts, the first of which is entitled 'Concerning life,' being composed of episodes or vignets, and the second 'Concerning letters, being composed of eight essays or sketches on literary topics." Springfield Republican

These essays show "the two distinguishing features of this author, his master craftsmanship —for he is a veritable jeweler in words—and his highly socialized conscience." North American review

A sheaf. 1916 Scribner $2; Heinemann 5s 824

16-19830

"According to Mr Galsworthy, this is 'a garnering of non-creative writings, mostly pleas of some sort or other—wild oats of a novelist,' but there is a quality about these little essays or sketches that will commend them to the thoughtful reader everywhere. . . One section concerns the treatment of animals, one laws, one prisons and punishment, one the position of women, and—the longest—the war." Wis. bul.

A companion volume is "Another sheaf" (1919 Scribner $2) containing twelve essays in which he discusses means of dealing with post war political problems

Gissing, George Robert

Private papers of Henry Ryecroft. (Everyman's lib.) 1927 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1 824

A28-507

First published 1903

Under pretense of editing the musings of one Henry Ryecroft, Gissing collected these observations upon life, literature, art, philosophy and religion, and divided them into four chapters, named after the seasons. These essays, if they may be called by any such formal term, reveal with quiet charm and sincerity Gissing's own struggle toward successful authorship

There is also an edition at $2 (Dutton). An English edition is published by Constable at 3s 6d

Gosse, Edmund William

Aspects and impressions. 1922 Scribner $3; Cassell 3s 6d 824

1 Literature—Hist. & crit. A22-1376

Contents: George Eliot; Henry James; Samuel Butler; Note on Congreve; First draft of Swinburne's 'Anactoria'; Hôtel de Rambouillet; Malherbe and the classical reaction; Foundation of the French Academy; Rousseau in England in the nineteenth century; Centenary of Leconte de Lisle; Two French critics; Emile Faguet—Remy de Gourmont; Writings of M. Clemenceau; Visit to the friends of Ibsen; Fairyland and a Belgian Ariosto; Some recollections of Lord Wolseley

"In his particular genre he is unsurpassed by any writer of our day. He is a master of the art of easy and familiar discourse. Talk flows from him—reminiscence, anecdote, incidental criticism—with a copious facility that never degenerates into garrulity. This new volume contains notable things, perfect in their several kinds." New statesman

Selected essays. (Travellers' lib.) 2v 1928 Heinemann ea 3s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 29-7542

Contents: v 1 On fluctuations of taste; Walter Pater; Charm of Sterne; Wine and Mr Saintsbury; Christina Rossetti; First sight of Tennyson; Last of the pagans; A nun's love letters; Fairy in the garden; Oxford sausage; Burlesque; "Orion" Horne; Edgar Poe and his detractors; Lyrical poetry of Thomas Hardy; v2 Carpet and the clock; Poet in prison; Wycherley; Dog with a bad name; Gallantry of France; Challenge of the Brontës; Matchless Orinda; Lord Cromer as a man of letters; How to read the Bible; Cats; An election at the English academy; Mademoiselle Aïssé

Grey, Edward Grey, 1st viscount

[27-19013]

Contents: Pleasure of reading; Pleasure in outdoor nature; Recreation; Some thoughts on public life; Waterfowl at Fallodon; Fly-fisherman; Wordsworth's 'Prelude'

"The genial amplitude of his experience breathes through all... These addresses, both by their substance and by the graciousness with which it is presented, are the very food of which the great public has most need." Times (London) lit. sup.

Two other volumes of essays, chiefly non-political, by English statesmen are Stanley Baldwin's "On England and other addresses" (1926 Allan, P. 12s 6d, cheaper ed 5s) and Ramsay MacDonald's "Wanderings and excursions" (1926 Cape, J. 8s 6d)

Guedalla, Philip

A gallery. 1924 Hodder 10s 6d 824

1 Authors, English 2 Statesmen, British

[24-25104]

Formerly carried also by Putnam

"In the present volume are many literary and political figures: M. Anatole France, Mr. H. G. Wells, Mr. Thomas Hardy, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Mr. Arnold Bennett, Mr. Joseph Conrad, Mr. John Galsworthy, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. Bonar Law, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Lord Curzon, Lord Rosebery, Lord Morley, Lord Haldane, Mr. Asquith, Mr. Lloyd George, and many others. There are twenty-nine essays in less than two hundred and ninety pages so that detailed discussion is not to be expected. The idea is evidently to illuminate by flash-light." Saturday rev.

Harrison, Frederic

* Choice of books, and other literary pieces. 1886 Macmillan $3.40; 8s 6d 824

1 Books and reading 2 Literature—Addresses, essays, lectures 3-19891

Essays and lectures dealing with books, art and history, attempting to popularize a few matured judgments as to typical books, men, and epochs. The title essay deals with poetry only, but notes on other branches of reading will be found elsewhere in the volume. Condensed from Preface

Two other interesting collections of papers are his "Novissima verba; last words, 1920" (1921 Holt o.p. 1933) and "De senectute; more last words" (1923 Appleton-Century $3)

Hazlitt, William

Best of Hazlitt; comp. by P. P. Howe. 1923 Methuen 3s 6d 824

23-26885

Formerly carried also by Doran. Many small libraries will find this collection sufficient for their needs

"Carefully selected essays chosen by the authoritative biographer of Hazlitt with the view of illustrating the character and genius of the great essayist. Prepared for general reading but excellently adapted for the student of English literature." Bkl.

There are several well chosen collections of Hazlitt's essays in inexpensive editions. Two of these are "Essays; ed by P. Van D. Shelly" in the Modern student's library (1924 Scribner $1) and "Essays; ed by C. H. Gray" in the Modern readers' series (1926 Macmillan 80c; 6s)

Selected essays; ed by Geoffrey Keynes. 1930 Random house $3.50; Nonesuch press 8s 6d 824

31-9222

"Dr. Keynes's volume presents Hazlitt in a richness and a variety that could not be bettered unless he had given us a little more from the strangely moving 'Liber Amoris.' Here are over fifty essays and excerpts from the larger books arranged on a plan which helps a reader, comparatively unacquainted with Hazlitt, to form an idea of his preferences in art, in philosophy and in life." New statesman

* Table talk. (Everyman's lib.) 1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A10-2166

Miscellaneous essays first published 1821-22. Also available in the World's classics series (1925 Oxford 80c; 2s)

Considered by many the author's best work, these miscellaneous essays on a variety of subjects are written in what Hazlitt himself called "the genuine master spirit of the prose writer, viz. the tone of lively sensible conversation."

Hudson, William Henry

‡ Traveller in little things. 1921 Dutton $2.50; Dent 6s 824

21-19489

"Miscellaneous essays on nature and human nature. Among them are several delightful sketches of little girls the author has known." Wis. bul.

"This is one of those excellent books about which there is little to say critically, because its quality is like the charm of upland pasture or the odor of an April wind, better described than analyzed. It is decidedly not a book with which to begin an acquaintance with Mr Hudson's calm, rich prose, but it is a good book for lovers of Hudson, precisely because it is fragmentary and various, a note-book, really, of a personality long since matured, and now beginning to settle accounts with literature." H. S. Canby in Nation

Hunt, Leigh

Essays. (Everyman's lib.) 1929 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A30-61

A selection with a critical introduction by J. B. Priestley

"Leigh Hunt's essays do seem actual talk captured in print. They really are 'causeries,' ranging from light chatter to an occasional strain of grave monologue. . . As an essayist, pure and simple, Leigh Hunt is undoubtedly not in the first rank. But as a miscellaneous writer, talking in print on an extraordinary variety of subjects, a greater variety than you will find in either Lamb or Hazlitt, he has few serious rivals." Introduction

Another recommended edition is "Essays and sketches" in the World's classics (1912 Oxford 80c; 2s)

Huxley, Aldous Leonard

Along the road, notes and essays of a tourist. 1925 Chatto 7s 6d, Phoenix lib. 3s 6d 824

1 Voyages and travels [25-17845]

Formerly carried also by Doran

"Light essays on travel, chiefly in Italy. They show insight into the life and art of different places and are written in a witty, ironic style." Pratt quarterly

"The amusing, pointed, classically phrased intellectually adorned and slightly rueful periods of this tourist have all that particular but elusive quality which endears the young men of his fiction to us, whom their actions or inactions frequently irritate." Times (London) lit. sup.

His "Proper studies" (1928 Chatto 7s 6d, phoenix lib. 3s 6d) is a book of essays on various aspects of social and individual life

Music at night, and other essays. 1931 Doubleday, Doran $2.50; Chatto 7s 6d 824

31-29774

Partial contents: Art and the obvious; Music at night; Meditation on El Greco; Meditation on the moon; On grace; Beliefs and actions:

Huxley, Aldous L.—Continued

Notes on liberty and the boundaries of the promised land; On the charms of history and the future of the past; To the puritan all things are impure; Ethics in Andalusia; New romanticism; Selected snobberies; Beauty industry; Sermons in cats; Vulgarity in literature

Because Mr. Huxley has here expressed truths more obvious than heretofore, this book may "help at least to clarify his point of view to those who have not understood it as it has been expounded in the pages of his novels. It may serve, too, as a further correction of a common misconception of Mr. Huxley, who has been for too long celebrated as a satirist to the detriment of his reputation as a 'wholly-truthful' writer." Sat. rev. of lit.

Huxley, Thomas Henry

* Lectures and lay sermons. (Everyman's lib.) 1910 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A11-2041

Miscellaneous essays written at various times chiefly during the sixties of the last century

Contents: On a piece of chalk; Geological contemporaneity and persistent types of life; On the advisableness of improving natural knowledge; Liberal education, and where to find it; On the methods and results of ethnology; Criticisms on "The origin of species"; Emancipation—black and white; Lectures on the structure of the skull

Inge, William Ralph

Lay thoughts of a dean. (Star ser.) Garden City pub. co. $1 824

26-13153

Popular cheap reprint of a book first published by Putnam in 1926. A cheap reprint is available in England (Putnam 3s 6d)

"A collection of pungent, provocative essays in which the Dean of Saint Paul's wit, wisdom, and information illumine a variety of literary, political, social, and religious topics." Bkl.

"Though he always talks in character, it is impossible to foretell what he is going to say, but whatever it is it is always something highly entertaining. This book is often wise, always witty and the best possible fun." Spectator

More lay thoughts of a dean. 1932 Putnam $2.75; 7s 6d 824

32-9661

Contents: Right or wrong? Some vexed questions; Conduct of life; Time out of joint; Here, there, and everywhere; Three lectures: English religious poetry, Scientific ethics, Democracy

Jacks, Lawrence Pearsall

Realities and shams. 1924 Harper $1.50; Williams & Norgate 6s 824

24-8811

"A series of essays 'prompted by reflexion on the course of events during the last nine years' by the founder and editor of the Hibbert Journal. . . They will appeal to the reader who enjoys Carlyle, Ruskin and Arnold as literature and to any thoughtful student of world problems." Chicago

Jefferies, Richard

Field and hedgerow. 1889 Longmans $2.25; 6s 824

1 Natural history—Outdoor books 2 England —Descr. & trav. 8-1220

"He is an enchanter who at will transports you into the midst of a green English landscape, where the swallows skim the cornfields and the butterflies flutter among the wildflowers, where the chaffinch chirps from the expanding oak leaves, and the water sparkles to the sunshine." Art journal

Johnson, Samuel

Selections from Dr Johnson's "Rambler"; ed by W. H. White. 1907 Oxford $1.25; 3s 6d 824

33-27216

The purpose of this small volume is not to give examples of felicitous expression, but rather to show what Johnson thought as a moralist and critic of life. Condensed from Preface

Lamb, Charles

Collected essays. 2v 1929 Dutton $6 824

29-27459

Contents: v 1 Essays of Elia and the Last essays of Elia; v2 Miscellaneous essays and sketches

This edition is illustrated with drawings by C. E. Brock, contemporary portraits in photogravure, and maps of London and its vicinity on end papers. Some of the same illustrations may be found in "Essays of Elia; with an introduction by Augustine Birrell and il. by C. E. Brock" (Scribner $2) and "Last essays of Elia; with an introduction by Augustine Birrell and il. by C. E. Brock" (Scribner $2)

‡ Essays of Elia. (Everyman's lib.) Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A10-28

Includes "Essays of Elia" and "Last essays of Elia." For other editions see above

"Written for the most part on trivial subjects, with no purpose but to please, they bring us close to the lovable nature of the man, full, indeed, of sadness, but full, too, of a refined and kindly humour, ready to flash out in a pun, or to light up with a warm and gentle glow the cloud that overhangs him." H. S. Pancoast's Introduction to English literature

Everybody's Lamb. 1933 Harcourt $3.75; Bell, G. 10s 6d 824

34-2184

"No author is less in need of collecting, selecting, or editing than Lamb, but the present volume with its pleasant format—excellent binding, paper, type, and the perfection of suitable illustrations—cannot but satisfy the most ardent admirers of the essayist or the period." Cincinnati

Lang, Andrew

Letters to dead authors. Scribner o.p. 1933 824

1 Authors 2 Literature 4-13981

First published 1886

These letters are in fact charming and good-humored critical essays addressed to Thackeray, Dickens, Ronsard, Herodotus, Pope, Lucian, Rabelais, Jane Austen, Isaak Walton, Chapelain, Sir John Manndeville, Dumas, Theocritus, Poe, Scott, Eusebius, Shelley, Molière, Burns, Byron, Omar Khayyam and Horace

Lucas, Edward Verrall

Wanderings and diversions. 1926 Putnam o.p. 1933 824

1 France—Descr. & trav. 26-3449

"The first group of essays, 'Zigzags in France,' is made up of short sketches describing French cities and villages and the peculiarities of the people. The second and longer group, as its general title, 'Varieties,' indicates, concerns all sorts of subjects." Pittsburgh

"It is a collection of short essays and sketches few of which cover more than three pages. Yet into each Mr. Lucas has packed some grain of thought or kernel of feeling that takes deep root in the reader's imagination." Bookman

Two other entertaining volumes are his "A rover I would be" (1928 Dutton $2.50; Methuen 6s) in which he tells of leisurely journeys in England and France and his "Adventures and enthusiasms" (1920 Doran o.p. 1933)

Lynd, Robert

Art of letters. 1921 Scribner $3.75 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Criticism 23-26547

A cheaper edition is available in England (Duckworth 3s 6d)

Contains appreciations of authors, among whom are Mr Pepys; John Bunyan; Thomas Campion; Cowper; Gray and Collins; Shelley; Coleridge; Tennyson; Meredith and others, and a number of miscellaneous essays as: A note on Elizabethan plays; The office of the poets; Georgians; Labour of authorship; The theory of poetry; The critic as destroyer; Book reviewing

"Mr Lynd has wide sympathy. He loves books and he enjoys talking about them; indeed, he talks about them with so much gusto that he makes the reader share his enjoyment. He has a pretty wit and he delights in displaying it. He is independent and he has the courage of his opinions." Brander Matthews in N.Y. Times

The author's "Cockleshell" (1933 Methuen 5s) is another interesting volume of essays on everyday subjects

Macaulay, Thomas Babington Macaulay, 1st baron

* Critical and historical essays. Cambridge ed 3v 1925 Houghton $6 824

26-26957

"His essays are as good as a library. They make an incomparable manual and vade mecum for a busy, uneducated man who has curiosity and enlightenment enough to wish to know a little about the great lives and great thoughts, the shining words and many-colored complexities of action that have marked the journey of man through the ages. Whatever his special subject, he contrives to pour into it with singular dexterity a stream of rich, graphic and telling illustrations from widely diversified sources." Fortnightly rev.

Selections from Macaulay's prose; ed by E. Jackson. (College lib.) 1925 Harper $1 824

25-22130

"A good inexpensive collection, attractive in appearance, and with clear print. It gives over 100 pages from the 'History of England,' including the famous chapter 'The state of England in 1685'; three essays, those on Milton, Bunyan and History; and about 20p of miscellaneous sketches. Introduction and notes." Standard catalog for high school libraries

McFee, William

Harbours of memory. 1921 Doubleday, Doran $2.50 824

21-26979

"With his vivid and memory-haunting narratives and pictures of Mediterranean ports and people, McFee has included some reflective essays on literary matters, which show a new side of his interesting personality." N.Y. state lib.

"It is a volume to pick up at intervals and enjoy in leisurely fashion. It is full of swift, revealing phrases, touches which illuminate character." N.Y. Times

Machen, Arthur

Dog and duck. 1924 Cape, J. 3s 6d 824

1 Gt. Brit.—Soc. life & cust. 2 Holidays 3 Folklore—Gt. Brit. [24-4724]

Formerly carried also by Knopf

"Essays on a variety of subjects. The title essay deals with an old English game, 'dog and duck'; others treat of holidays, of valentines, of Christmas mumming, of the vice of collecting, of London fogs." Pittsburgh

"These essays . . . are nearly all in the wistful note which is characteristic of this author." Times (London) lit. sup.

Meredith, George

* Essay on comedy, and the uses of the comic spirit. Scribner $1; Constable 3s 6d 824

1 Comedy 1-18781

"No writer of the nineteenth century stands more alone than he, and none is more difficult to deal with. . . But he has supplied the key to his own mind in his Essay on comedy (1877), which had been delivered as a lecture twenty years before it was published as a book. It shows him to be one of the profoundest of all students of comedy." H. Walker's Literature of the Victorian era

Meynell, Mrs Alice Christiana (Thompson)

* Essays. 1914 Scribner $3.50; Burns 7s 6d 824

14-30868

"A selection largely from her previous volumes, The rhythm of life, The colour of life, The spirit of place, The children, and Ceres' runaway. The essays chosen represent the author at her best, with her own charm and delicacy, which appeal to a limited but devoted group of readers." Bkl.

Milne, Alan Alexander

Not that it matters. 1925 Dutton $2.50; Methuen 3s 6d 824

20-13982

"Charming little essays by the former assistant editor of Punch, on such subjects as goldfish, games, books, thermometers, snobbery, and weekend visits." Viewpoints in essays

Moore, George

Conversations in Ebury street. 1924 Liveright $2.50; Heinemann 10s 6d 824

24-30885

"A collection of papers on literary subjects and on art, many of them in the form of dialogs between the writer and the visitors to his house in Ebury street. The French writers, Balzac, Verlaine and others are favorite subjects, while Shakespeare, George Eliot, Hardy and a few English contemporaries receive briefer notice." Bkl.

"It is one of those rare books which, coming to the end of it, one feels it would be a pleasure to begin over again. . . This book shows us Mr. Moore in his old age, without any flagging of his powers of imagination, still conscientiously perfecting his prose style, for much of the prose in Conversations in Ebury Street is the most perfect he has written." Spectator

Murray, Gilbert

Tradition and progress. 1922 Houghton $3; Allen, G. 10s 6d 824

22-26327

Published in England with title: Essays and addresses

Contents: Religio grammatici: the religion of a "man of letters"; Aristophanes and the war party; Bacchae of Euripides; Stoic philosophy; Poesis and mimesis; Literature as revelation; Soul as it is and how to deal with it; National ideals: conscious and unconscious; Orbis terrestris; Satanism and the world order

"No one with more acute discrimination, or with livelier appreciation of life as well as of letters, has described the working of literature through its twin processes of mimesis and poesis—its creative, reality-producing function. None has more successfully increased our wisdom and sympathy by showing the essential likeness between our sense of life and that of the ancient Greeks, between the Peloponnesian War and the World War. And finally there is hardly another in our time who has maintained with so much firmness and moderation, and with so little dogmatism, the worth and potency of the individual human soul in its lonely stand against apparent wrong and injustice." North American review

Countries of the mind; essays in literary criticism, first-second series. 2v 1931 Oxford ea $3; ea 7s 6d 824

1 Literature—Hist. & crit.

Essays on English and French writers and on literary criticism in general. The first series was published by Dutton in 1922 and has now been slightly revised, and an essay on Charles Doughty's poetry and a later essay on Amiel has been added

"Mr. Murry is no mere preacher. Often he preaches, and sometimes narrowly and wrongly, as all sincere people must do. His sensitiveness to beauty hovers like flame over his words, informing his prose style, and enlarging his sympathies, so that he is ready to welcome with eagerness any comer, famous or obscure, who will offer him fuel to feed this sacred fire." Spectator

The author has written a number of volumes of literary essays in addition to the volume listed here. Among these is "Things to come" (1928 Macmillan $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d) in which he discusses philosophy and religion in relation to literature

Pater, Walter Horatio

* Appreciations, with an essay on style. Macmillan $3, Caravan lib. $1.40; 7s 6d, Caravan lib. 3s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Style, literary 12-16183

First published 1889

Contents: Style; Wordsworth; Coleridge; Charles Lamb; Sir Thomas Browne; "Love's labours lost"; "Measure for measure"; Shakespeare's English kings; Dante Gabriel Rossetti; Feuillet's "La Morte"

"Pater was the last word in refinement of style. He wrote little, and he wrote very carefully, and almost everything he wrote is worth reading. His Appreciations is a collection of beautiful essays, notably those on Lamb, Wordsworth and Coleridge." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Greek studies. Macmillan $3, Caravan lib. $1.40; 7s 6d, Caravan lib. 3s 6d 824

1 Art, Greek 2 Mythology, Greek 3 Greek drama—Hist. & crit. 12-16186

First published 1895

Contents: Study of Dionysus, the spiritual form of fire and dew; Bacchanals of Euripides; Myth of Demeter and Persephone; Hippolytus veiled, a study from Euripides; Beginnings of Greek sculpture; Marbles of Aegina; Age of athletic prizemen, a chapter in Greek art

Powys, John Cowper

* Meaning of culture. 1929 Norton $3 824

1 Culture 29-20875

"Culture is defined and placed in relationship to philosophy, religion, the arts, and human relations. Mr Powys attempts to isolate culture in his definition from other achievements of the human mind. The first part of the book is devoted to an analysis of what we call culture; the latter part to the application of culture to the struggle for existence." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Powys has written a book which itself enhances one's apprehension of the happiness simply of being alive, and which as one reads evokes new beauty in all one's surroundings. No one in reading it can doubt that Mr. Powys himself has lived his creed." Times (London) lit. sup.

Priestley, John Boynton

Self-selected essays. 1933 Harper $2.50; Heinemann 5s 824

33-27167

"There is something very companionable and smiling about these short essays, more than half of which have not appeared before in any volume. Drollery, imagination and the flick of ironic truth are present in excursions abroad, to public dinners and musical parties and in those more subtle excursions into temperament and character." N.Y. libraries

Too many people, and other reflections. 1928 Harper $2.50 824

28-22246

"Essays and reflections upon an overcrowded London. The author discourses in a mildly urban way on circuses, musical comedies, flower shows in a little town, the first fall of snow, hats, notebooks and many other well-known English characteristics." Ontario library review

The author's "Balconinny, and other essays" (1931 Harper $2.50; Methuen 5s) is a good recent collection

Quiller-Couch, Sir Arthur Thomas

* On the art of reading. 1920 Putnam $3; Cambridge univ. press 15s 824

1 Books and reading 20-16869

"These lectures were delivered at Cambridge university and several of them are quite scholarly in character. Others, including two on Children's reading and On reading the Bible, are of more widely popular appeal. They are the deeply-felt expressions of a man who loves literature and whose mind is richly stored with its treasures." Wis. bul.

Raleigh, Sir Walter Alexander

On writing and writers. 1926 Longmans $2; Arnold, E. & co. 6s 824

1 Authorship 2 English literature—Hist. & crit. [27-26251]

Extracts from his scholastic notebooks, selected and edited by G. Gordon. They include essays on composition, on letters and letter-writers, on Chaucer, Lamb, Peacock, and other English writers, on the decline of romanticism in 19th century poetry, and on criticism

"He is at his best in treating of individuals, saying truly that 'I am never quite at ease when I get away from the live men,' and the most valuable as well as the most readable pages of this collection are those dealing with Chaucer, Lamb, Hazlitt, Landor, and Macaulay." Saturday rev.

Ruskin, John

Crown of wild olive, and The cestus of Aglaia. (Everyman's lib.) 1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 824

A10-2220

The "Crown of wild olive" contains three notable lectures on "Work," "Traffic" and "War." They are thoughtful and eloquent, and not lacking in wit and fancy

* Sesame and lilies; The ethics of the dust. (World's classics) Oxford 85c; 2s 824

33-27218

First published separately 1865-66

"Sesame and lilies" consists of a lecture on books and their uses and one on the education and influence of women. "Ethics of the dust" is an essay on crystallization, written in dialogue

The Everyman's library edition contains "Sesame & lilies, The two paths, & The king of the golden river" (1909 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Saintsbury, George Edward Bateman

Prefaces and essays; ed by Oliver Elton. 1933 Macmillan $3.40; 8s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 French literature—Hist. & crit. 34-27017

"We have, in this volume, Saintsbury's prefatory essays on Fielding, Smollet, Sterne, Jane Austen, Peacock, Donne's Poems, Seventeenth-Century Lyrics, Lord Derby's Translation of the Iliad, Edgar Allan Poe, Longfellow's Poems, Walter Pater, Margaret of Navarre, Marmontel, Balzac, Tales from Flaubert—excursions in the criticism of English, American and French writers. These essays are all essentially sound, sympathetic and illuminating." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Scrap book. 1922 Macmillan $2.50; 7s 6d 824

23-6372

This is what the author calls it, "a collection of scraps. There are some eighty of them: jottings down of his loves and hates, his learning, his experiences, his literary and political and personal opinions. Here are four little 'necrologies,' as he calls them on Lang and Traill and Henley and Dobson." Times (London) lit. sup.

"A book both literary people and men of the world will enjoy. He carries his great learning very lightly." New statesman

Two similar collections are his "Second scrap book" (1923 Macmillan $2.50; 7s 6d) and his "Last scrap book" (1925 Macmillan $3; 7s 6d)

Santayana, George

Interpretations of poetry and religion. 1900 Scribner $2; Constable 12s 824

1 Poetry 2 Religion 3 Esthetics 0-1648

In these ten studies this well-known modern philosopher discusses the problems and ideals of religion and poetry with wisdom and sympathy

Soliloquies in England, and later soliloquies. 1922 Scribner $3.50; Constable 12s 824

22-26764

"Soliloquies of a spirit ranging freely and tolerantly over a variety of themes, but philosophic and literary interests are the strongest. The author's critical faculty is shown at its best in the essay on Dickens." Book rev. digest

"As a philosophic commentator on human life as a whole Mr. Santayana need not be taken too seriously. As a writer of prose and a fashioner of aphorisms he can scarcely be taken seriously enough." Nation

Smith, Logan Pearsall

All Trivia. 1934 Harcourt $2; Constable 5s 824

33-32265

Contents: Trivia; More Trivia; Afterthoughts; Last words

Brief paragraphs, some in the nature of prose poems, others in the form of a "somewhat expanded pensée. The flavor of the whole is that of an epicurean observer of the ways of the world, rather cynical when not poetical." Nation

"Trivia" is also available separately (1917 Doubleday, Doran $1.50; Constable 6s)

Steele, Sir Richard

* Selections from the Tatler, Spectator and Guardian; with introd. and notes by Austin Dobson. new and rev ed 1896 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 824

A14-1255

Steele's Spectator essays are also to be found in the Spectator, listed in this Catalog under Addison, Steele and others in class 824

Contents: Foreigner at home; Some college memories; Old mortality; College magazine; Old Scotch gardener; Pastoral; Manse; Memoirs of an islet; Thomas Stevenson; Talk and talkers; Character of dogs; "Penny plain and twopence coloured"; Gossip on a novel of Dumas's; Gossip on romance; Humble remonstrance

* Virginibus puerisque, and other papers. Biographical ed Scribner $1.50 824

6-18295

One of the most delightful collections of Stevenson's essays, and probably the best known. First published 1893

Contents: Virginibus puerisque; Crabbed age [illegible]; Walking tours; Pan's pipes; Plea for gas lamps

A representative selection of Stevenson's essays may be found in "Essays; with an introduction by W. L. Phelps" (1918 Scribner $1; 3s 6d) in the Modern student's library. It contains many of the most familiar essays, as Walking tours, Virginibus puerisque, Apology for idlers, and Æs triplex

Strachey, Giles Lytton

* Books and characters, French and English. 1922 Harcourt $3.50; Chatto 12s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 French literature—Hist. & crit. 3 Authors, English 4 Authors, French 22-12340

Contents: Racine; Sir Thomas Browne; Shakespeare's final period; Lives of the poets; Madame du Deffand; Voltaire and England; A dialogue; Voltaire's tragedies; Voltaire and Frederick the Great; Rousseau affair; Poetry of Blake; Last Elizabethan; Henri Beyle; Lady Hester Stanhope; Mr Creevey

"Mr. Strachey as a discoverer and appreciator of aesthetic qualities is beguiling and sensitive and distinguished, and he writes with point, with wit, with beauty. He is clairvoyant, eloquent, delightful, when he writes of poets and prosemen." North American review

Another collection of the author's essays and reviews is contained in his "Characters and commentaries" (1933 Harcourt $3; Chatto 10s 6d) chiefly on literary and historical subjects

"Very readable critical essays . . . Author is above all an interpreter of the arts, revealing hidden beauties and subtleties by penetrating analysis and illuminating phrase." Bkl.

Tomlinson, Henry Major

* Old junk. 1920 Knopf $2.50; Cape, J. 3s 6d 824

23-17336

"Stories of travel and chance" published in various periodicals between 1907 and 1918

"Several of his papers deal with the war. He does not describe the fighting, but its effect on those who come back from it—how it disgusts them with life, how it works in them a change, not outwardly perceptible, which makes them strangers to their own kith and kin. All this is admirably thought and said, and so is a tribute to 'the nobodies' who restore the balance of the world when it has been upset by the highly placed." Times (London) lit. sup.

Out of soundings. 1931 Harper $4; Heinemann 6s 824

31-26705

"A volume of essays, aptly described by the title, a phrase used by mariners to describe a ship which has more depth of water beneath her keel than can be plumbed. In whatever he writes—it may be about a brown owl or the talking pictures, a travel sketch or the quality of Thomas Hardy—Mr Tomlinson penetrates to something beyond the reach of the ordinary scale or measuring rod." Book rev. digest

Waiting for daylight. pocket book ed 1922 Knopf $1; Cassell 3s 6d 824

22-11695

"Notes from a diary these sketches—some short, some long—appear to be. All are tinged by war and the impress of war memories upon the spirit of the author. There is a description of Ypres at night and in ruins, of a night raid on a London suburb, of the peace celebration, reflections on books and authors, and on the war change in all things." Book rev. digest

"His essays are discursive, intelligent, and presented in a pure and distinguished style. Written as they were during the War the tone of some of them is a little gloomy." Spectator

Trevelyan, George Macaulay

Clio, a muse, and other essays. 1930 Longmans $2; 7s 6d 824

30-23073

Contents: Walking; Middle marches; John Woolman, the Quaker; John Bunyan; Poor Mugleton and the classics; Poetry and rebellion; History and fiction; Englishmen and Italians; If Napoleon had won the battle of Waterloo; News of Ramillies; Clio, a muse; Present position of history (Inaugural lecture, 1927)

Most of these pieces have appeared in book form; in "Clio, a muse," 1913, and in "Recreations of an historian," 1919. The essays are now issued with a few omissions and with the addition of three pieces. Adapted from Preface

Ulrich, Mrs Mabel (Simis)

(ed.) The more I see of men—. 1932 Harper $2.50; Hamilton, H. 7s 6d 824

1 Men 32-25456

Published in England with title: Man, proud man

"For many generations men have been writing books about women; now in this book a group of brilliant and witty women have retaliated, G. B. Stern, Mary Borden, Margaret Culkin Banning, Rebecca West, Sylvia Townsend Warner, Susan Ertz, E. M. Delafield, Storm Jameson, and Isabel Patterson taking part in the discussion." Wis. bul.

West, Rebecca

Ending in earnest; a literary log. 1931 Doubleday, Doran $3 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 American literature—Hist. & crit. 31-26393

"Collection of literary and personal essays which Miss West contributed to the Bookman during 1929 and 1930. The last essay is directed against the humanists. Partial contents: Concerning the censorship; Feminist revolt, old and new; Journey's end; Prizes and handicaps; Gosse; Mr Smithers; Gide; Autumn and Virginia Woolf; Evelyn Waugh; The Pitoeffs; Valentine Tessier; French life and the French stage; Regretfully." Book rev. digest

Strange necessity. 1928 Doubleday, Doran $3; Cape, J. 10s 6d, life and letters ser 4s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 American literature—Hist. & crit. 28-28884

"The long title essay is a consideration of the esthetic principle as applied to novel writing. Following this is a critical article entitled 'Uncle Bennett,' in which Wells, Galsworthy, Shaw, and Bennett are treated as kindly, loquacious, generous, altogether magnificent male relatives of this younger generation of writers. The remaining essays deal with the work of Sinclair Lewis, Sherwood Anderson, and other present-day British and American writers." Bkl.

"Her new book shows that we were not wrong in regarding Miss West as a writer of importance. . . .'The Strange Necessity' is a beautiful and invigorating piece of criticism. I have read nowhere remarks so sound or so illuminating as Miss West's on those two stumbling-blocks of twentieth-century literature, Marcel Proust and Mr. James Joyce." Saturday rev.

Wolfe, Humbert

Dialogues & monologues. 1929 Knopf $2.50; Gollancz 7s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 2 English poetry—Hist. & crit. 29-1221

"Seven essays, several of them in the form of dialogues, in which an English poet speculates upon the following subjects: George Moore; The craft of verse; English bards and French reviewers; The difficulties of the poet; Public servants in fiction; Modernism in verse; 'Drum,' memories of Bradford and Oxford." Book rev. digest

"Written with the greatest good humor, but at the same time with great emphasis, 'Dialogues and Monologues' is an arresting piece of work." Boston Transcript

* Room of one's own. 1929 Harcourt $2; Hogarth 5s 824

1 Women as authors 2 Woman—History and condition of women 3 Women in England 4 English fiction—Hist. & crit. 5 Women in literature and art A30-1

"With sparkling raillery, originality and wit, with an understanding that is both broad and deep, Mrs. Woolf considers the past and future of woman as a creator of fiction, her need 'of a room of her own and five hundred (pounds) a year,' symbols of the power to think for oneself and of the power to contemplate. A book to rejoice the heart of every intelligent woman." N.Y. state lib.

"Feminist dissertation is so often harsh and hectoring. Mrs. Woolf's feminism has none whatever of that rawness of temper, none of the nagging note, and it has been the cause of an exquisite piece of writing." Saturday rev.

‡ Second common reader. 1932 Harcourt $3; Hogarth 10s 6d 824

1 English literature—Hist. & crit. 32-31590

Published in England under title: Common reader; second series

"In each of these essays Mrs. Woolf recreates the age about which she writes and the people who lived in it, dealing with them . . . with a vividness and a conviction of their reality and humanity that is always delightful." Forum

Contents: The strange Elizabethans; Donne after three centuries; "The Countess of Pembroke's Arcadia"; "Robinson Crusoe"; Dorothy Osborne's "Letters"; Swift's "Journal to Stella"; The "Sentimental journey"; Lord Chesterfield's letters to his son; Two parsons—James Woodforde, John Skinner; Dr Burney's evening party; Jack Mytton; De Quincey's autobiography; Four figures—Cowper and Lady Austen, Beau Brummell, Mary Wollstonecroft, Dorothy Wordsworth; William Hazlitt; Geraldine and Jane; "Aurora Leigh"; Niece of an earl; George Gissing; Novels of George Meredith; "I am Christina Rossetti"; Novels of Thomas Hardy; How should one read a book?

19-26446

Contents: Recollections of Samuel Butler; Back to the home; Why the Englishman is happy; Synge and the Irish; Modern woman; Watts and the method of art

"The value of these essays of Mr Yeats's lies not in their originality, or their fine phrases, or even in the witty malice that marks (them) . . . but in their first-hand notes upon life." Athenaeum

Yeats, William Butler

* Essays. 1924 Macmillan $2.50; 10s 6d 824

Marvin, Francis Sydney
(ed.) New world-order. (Unity ser. no.9) 1932 Oxford $2.75; 8s 6d 824.08

32-25299

"Since momentous events have happened in science in the last few years, two scientific essays by Prof. Dingle hold pride of place in this collection. They are entitled 'The Atom' and 'The Universe,' and are written with Prof. Dingle's accustomed skill and lucidity; their infusion with the author's philosophical views is just sufficient to add zest to the themes without deflecting attention from the facts. All [the essays] are provocative of thought, and if the reviewer found Prof. Marvin's essay on contemporary education the most stimulating and attractive, the general level is so uniformly high that, among a dozen readers, there would doubtless be a dozen different orders of preference." "History of the development of the English essay from Bacon to 'Some essayists of yesterday'—Lang, Gissing, Thompson, etc. A scholarly, authoritative book for the student yet interesting to any educated reader who finds or makes time for Bacon, Carlyle, Hazlitt, Hunt, Johnson, Lamb and Macaulay." Wis. bul.

"There can be no question as to the wide range of reading, the catholic taste, and the almost unfailing sympathy displayed in this volume . . . A most enjoyable book." Spectator

826 ENGLISH LETTERS

Some famous letters such as those of Horace Walpole, and Lady Mary Wortley Montague will be found listed with biography in class 92

Birkenhead, Frederick Edwin Smith, 1st earl of

(ed.) Five hundred best English letters. 1931 Cassell 18s 6d 826

1 English letters 31-14531

"All the more famous letter writers are represented in some sort, and as each batch of letters is prefaced by a brief biographical note, the book should send many new readers to the memoirs from which the quotations are derived." New statesman and Nation

"It was Lord Birkenhead's aim that these letters should reveal personalities and illustrate times and manners by recording events. In this he succeeded perfectly." Times (London) lit. sup.

Chesterfield, Philip Dormer Stanhope, 4th earl of Letters, sentences and maxims. (Home lib.) Burt $1 826

33-27213

With a prefatory note by Charles Sayle and a critical essay by C. A. Sainte-Beuve

"Selections from the famous letters of this man of fashion admonishing his son in the art and graces of the finished gentleman according to the standards of the times of George III." Pratt alcove

Lucas, Edward Verrall

* (ed.) Gentlest art. 1907 Methuen 6s 6d 826

1 Letter writing 2 English letters [7-32334]

Formerly carried also by Macmillan

"This anthology of letters is varied in content and includes a wide range of letter-writers, many of them well-known eighteenth and nineteenth century English people. There are eighteen headings under which letters are grouped, some of them being Children and grandfathers, News bearers, The grand style, The little friends, Urbanity and nonsense, Literature and art, Humorists and oddities, The pen reflective, Rural recluses, and Shadows." Book rev. digest

"A more charming volume it would not be easy to find." Spectator

(ed.) Second post. 1910 Methuen 6s 826

1 Letter writing 2 English letters [10-24211]

Formerly carried also by Macmillan

"A supplement and companion to the anthology of letters called 'The gentlest art' . . . It includes reprints of carefully chosen letters ranging in time from Pliny to Lincoln and R. L. S.; and from persons ranging in importance from a farmer's daughter and a Quaker boy to a commander of the Japanese navy and Bishop Warburton." Book rev. digest

"An excellent guide and model to the would-be graceful and witty and friendly letter-writer." Dial

The editor's "Post-bag diversions" (1934 Harper $2.75; Methuen 7s 6d) is an attractive book of excerpts from letters written to Mr Lucas during the last thirty years

Saintsbury, George Edward Bateman

(ed.) Letter book. 1922 Bell, G. o.p. 1933 826

1 English letters 2 Letter writing 22-11392

"A collection of letters with an introduction on the history and art of letter writing. Except for a few Greek and Latin letters, the book is made up entirely of English letters, ranging from the Paston letters of the fifteenth century to Robert Louis Stevenson. Each letter-writer is introduced by a short prefatory note." Book rev. digest

"He has gone on the principle of using the best letter-writers but not their most famous letters, as a rule preferring those of great merit and interest but less well known. His book is not to be improved upon. Another would have done it differently: no one else alive could have done it so well, with such an abundance of knowledge, with so fine a judgment." Saturday rev.

Taintor, Sarah Augusta, and Monro, Kate Margaret

(comps.) Book of modern letters; il. by W. M. Berger. (New pocket classics) 1933 Macmillan 60c 826

1 American letters 2 English letters

33-32890

"It is a fascinating book, and one wanders along through the various categories, dipping in here and there into those of greeting and congratulation, of condolence, of apology, of introduction, of thanks for hospitality, of description, of literary comment, of humor and wit. . . The compilers have made their selections with discrimination, for every letter has some quality or content that makes it worth while." N.Y. Times

827 ENGLISH SATIRE AND HUMOR

Beerbohm, Max

Christmas garland. 1912 Dutton $2.50; Heinemann 7s 6d 827

1 Parodies A13-199

"These 'take-offs' on some contemporary English writers are not caricatures but genuine imitations. The peculiarities of diction, the affectations and mannerisms are so cleverly copied that the illusion is well-nigh perfect." Pittsburgh

"This little book is, like all his works, a fine study in the medium which he has set himself to use. It is very light, but it is not trivial, nor does it leave behind it that rather disagreeable emptiness which a collection of parodies usually leaves . . . The substance of most of these parodies would in itself be worth reading, in whatever style it had been expressed." Saturday rev.

Carroll, Lewis, pseud.

Hunting of the snark; an agony in eight fits; il. by Henry Holiday. Macmillan $1; 5s 827

27-27813

One of the masterpieces of nonsense. It is a story in verse wherein the Bellman, the Butcher, the Beaver, the Barrister, the Banker, and the Baker seek the snark with thimbles and care, and pursue it with forks and hope

A more attractive edition, "Hunting of the snark, and other poems and verses; il. by Peter Newell" (1903 Harper) is no longer in print, 1933

Cazamian, Louis François

Development of English humour. pt 1 1930 Macmillan $2; 10s 827

1 English wit and humor 2 English literature—Hist. & crit. (30-27958)

This first volume of a projected three volume work deals with English humor from the early times to the renascence

"A popular subject which Professor Cazamian redeems for scholarship by a treatment altogether profound. He does not offer us the usual perfunctory remarks followed by a list of side-splitting illustrations. Readers will be disappointed if they come to laugh, though they may remain to reflect." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Gilbert, Sir William Schwenck

* Bab ballads, with which are included Songs of a Savoyard. Macmillan $3; 8s 6d 827

A13-2271

Includes the original "Bab ballads," first published 1869, "More Bab ballads" and "Songs of

a Savoyard." This collection with additional illustrations by the author was first published 1898

"Very clever, humorous, and satirical verses with accompanying grotesque sketches by the man who wrote the librettos of the 'Savoy' comic operas." Pratt alcove

Lost Bab ballads; coll. and ed. by Townley Searle. 1932 Putnam $2; 5s 827

32-33525

"When Sir William Gilbert collected his Bab Ballads from the pages of various humorous periodicals, Fun, Punch, etc. he did not include them all, saying, in excuse 'the book is already too big.' But a later generation has demanded more and the editor of this volume has, with Lady Gilbert's permission, here reprinted the so-called 'lost' poems." Book rev. digest

Hazlitt, William

Lectures on English comic writers; with miscellaneous essays. (Everyman's lib.) 1910 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 827

1 English literature 2 English wit and humor A10-2165

First published in 1819, these essays illustrate the subtle and penetrating writing of a great English critic

Contents: Lectures on the English comic writers: Introductory—On wit and humour; On Shakespeare and Ben Jonson; On Cowley, Butler, Suckling, Etherege, etc; On Wycherley, Congreve, Vanbrugh, and Farquhar; On the periodical essayists; On the English novelists; On the works of Hogarth, on the grand and familiar style of painting; On the comic writers of the last century; Fugitive writings (contributions to the New monthly magazine): The fight; Merry England; Of persons one would wish to have seen; On a sun-dial; Why the heroes of romance are insipid; Shyness of scholars; Main-chance; Self-love and benevolence; Same subject continued; Free admission; Sick chamber; Footmen; Fugitive writings (contributions to the Monthly magazine): On the want of money; On the feeling of immortality in youth; On reading new books; On disagreeable people

Jerome, Jerome Klapka

‡ Three men in a boat (to say nothing of the dog). (Home lib.) Burt $1; Arrowsmith 3s 6d 827

4-22823

"Humourous account of a summer voyage on the Thames." Pittsburgh

Jerrold, Walter Copeland, and Leonard, Robert Maynard

(eds.) Century of parody and imitation. 1913 Oxford $1.50; 6s 827

1 Parodies 2 English poetry—Collections A15-312

"Includes poems parodying some 92 authors; excludes the work of living parodists. The table of contents gives an alphabetical list of authors of parodies and there is an index of authors parodied and an index of first lines." Mudge

"This collection of parodies and imitations in verse begins fittingly with the 'Rejected addresses,' here printed in their entirety. The editors own, in their preface, to a somewhat vague use of the word 'century,' and as a matter of fact they go back as far as Canning and George Ellis . . . The volume is well equipped with notes, and certainly provides a good variety of entertaining reading." Athenaeum

Lear, Edward

Complete nonsense book; ed by Lady Strachey, introd. by the Earl of Cromer. 1912 Duffield $4 827

12-3630

"Nonsense rhymes and limericks and still more nonsensical drawings by an English artist and versifier. They commend themselves by their simple and genial absurdities." Pratt alcove

Lear is available also in cheaper and less complete editions. Two of these are "Book of nonsense, to which is added More nonsense; with all the original pictures and verses" (1918 Crowell 75c) and "Book of nonsense, More nonsense" (1930 Warne $1; 2s 6d) in the series, Chandos classics. Other editions and titles will be found in the Children's catalog

Priestley, John Boynton

* English comic characters. 1925 Dodd $2.50; Lane 7s 6d, week-end lib. 3s 6d 827

1 English wit and humor 2 Shakespeare, William—Characters 3 Dickens, Charles [25-10689]

"Essays on a group of comic characters of English literature from Touchstone to Sam Weller. Beside Shakespeare and Dickens the other writers represented are Fielding, Sterne, Jane Austen, and Peacock." Pratt

"He is more appreciative than critical; he takes no great pains to erect standards for his own judgments, but writes in easy, competent style in praise of great writers. So he makes excellent casual reading." Spectator

English humour. (English heritage ser.) 1929 Longmans $1.25; 3s 6d 827

1 English wit and humor 29-20682

"Mr. Priestley has an unfailing instinct for what is genuinely humorous and not merely witty or spiteful. . . [His] essays on the real humourists of literature—Lamb, Peacock, Dickens, Shakespeare—showing through these writers what humour is, positively, (as against what it is not) are succinct and subtle, giving true balance to what is altogether a most stimulating book." Spectator

(comp.) Fools and philosophers. 1925 Dodd $2; Lane 6s 827

1 English wit and humor [26-26411]

"In extracts from familiar English novels, plays and essays Mr Priestley presents a gallery of comic figures from the pages of Shakespeare, Dickens, Sterne, Fielding, Goldsmith, Jane Austen, and others. The passages have been carefully chosen to show the characters in their comic perfection." Book rev. digest

Sellar, Walter Carruthers, and Yeatman, Robert Julian

* 1066 and all that. 1931 Dutton $1.75; Methuen 5s 827

1 Gt. Brit.—History, Comic, satirical, etc. 31-7678

"A memorable history of England, comprising, all the parts you can remember including one hundred and three good things, five bad kings, and two genuine dates." Subtitle

"A bold attempt and on the whole extremely successful. It is the sort of hotch-potch of ideas about the past which is all the knowledge of history many quite literate people possess, touched up and twisted about, so that hit after hit is achieved and the book is packed with laughter. The wit is abundant and memorable, and the work breathes an atmosphere of high spirits." Times (London) lit. sup.

Squire, John Collings

(comp.) Apes and parrots; an anthology of parodies. 1929 Washburn & Thomas $1; Jenkins 3s 6d 827

1 Parodies [29-10402]

"Includes parodies in prose and verse from the 17th century to the present." Pittsburgh

"Parodies are apt to be distressingly dull when topical interest has vanished; this is a fault which Mr. Squire's selection entirely escapes. Many of the most famous parodies are here; but the scope of the volume is enlarged to include a few prose parodies and several parodies of writers of our own generation." Spectator

The "Collected parodies" of J. C. Squire (1921 Hodder o.p. 1933) which combines criticism with parody, includes almost the whole of his three books: "Imaginary speeches," "Steps to Parnassus," and "Tricks of the trade"

Swift, Jonathan

* Gulliver's travels, The tale of a tub, Battle of the books, etc. (Oxford standard authors) Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 827

20-22604

Also available in the Oxford standard edition (Oxford 95c)

"Gulliver's travels," the coldly savage satire on the human race which children read with such delight, is published here in an edition more suitable for adults. The volume contains also his "Tale of a tub," a satire on the weaknesses of the three branches of the Church—the Roman, the English and the Calvinistic; the "Battle of the books," a good-natured contribution to the controversy as to the comparative merits of ancient and modern literature; and "A discourse concerning the mechanical operation of the spirit, etc." an essay on religious fanaticism

"Satires and personal writings; ed by W. A. Eddy" (school ed 1933 Oxford 95c; 3s 6d) in the series Oxford standard editions, is a generous selection of Swift's best prose and verse to supplement the above. Partial contents: Ironical essays; Satirical diversions, including the Partridge-Bickerstaff papers, and A compleat collection of genteel and ingenious conversation; and the Journal to Stella

"Gulliver's travels; illus. by Herbert Cole" (1931 Dodd $1.50; Lane 7s 6d) is an attractive edition with interesting illustrations. Other editions of "Gulliver's travels," including several attractively illustrated ones, are listed in the Children's catalog

Tale of a tub, The battle of the books, and other satires. (Everyman's lib.) 1909 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 827

A10-2223

First published 1704

Contents: Tale of a tub; History of Martin; Project for the universal benefit of mankind; Battle of the books; Discourse concerning the mechanical operation of the spirit; Meditation upon a broomstick; Tritical essay upon the faculties of the mind; Bickerstaff papers; Hints toward an essay on conversation; Complete collection of genteel and ingenious conversation—in three dialogues

Thackeray, William Makepeace

"Semi-imaginative, semi-historical portraits of a group of famous women as they might have been drawn by themselves. Among those depicted are Mrs. Elizabeth Pepys, Stella and Vanessa, Lady Mary Montague, Fanny Burney, and others." Pratt quarterly

Burton, Robert

Anatomy of melancholy; ed by A. R. Shilleto. (Bohn's popular lib.) 3v Harcourt ea 85c; Bell, G. ea 2s 828

1 Melancholy [24-31987]

"One of the most remarkable books published in England in the years before the Civil War was Robert Burton's 'Anatomy of Melancholy'... which is... a discussion of its causes, and suggested cures... As he proceeds, melancholy comes to mean to Burton every imaginable ill... He illustrates his points with quotations from scores of ancient and modern authors, and it has often been suggested that a large number of the quotations were invented by Burton himself. Dr. Johnson and Laurence Sterne were fervent admirers of the 'Anatomy,' and it was one of Charles Lamb's enthusiasms." J. Drinkwater's Outline of literature

Burton, Robert—Continued

The "Anatomy of melancholy; with an introduction by Holbrook Jackson" is available in Everyman's library (1932 3v Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s)

Butler, Samuel

Note-books; selections arranged and ed by H. F. Jones. 1917 Dutton $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d 828

1 Satire, English A17-1079

First published 1912 by Kennerly

"Butler, snapshotting at life, is perpetually delightful. He is a vigorously intellectual man whose mind is so logically ordered that what to him is most obvious is for his hearers an agreeable succession of surprises." Saturday rev.

Coleridge, Samuel Taylor

* Table talk and Omniana; with a note on Coleridge by Coventry Patmore. Oxford $1.50; 3s 6d 828

25-205

"Coleridge's prose, less unique than his verse, is more uniformly excellent, and has an almost unparalleled range of application to subjects grave and gay, easy and abstruse." G. E. B. Saintsbury

The "Omniana" is a series of miscellaneous essays written chiefly by the poet Southey but to which Coleridge also made contributions

De La Mare, Walter John

Ding dong bell. 1924 Knopf $1.75; Faber 5s 828

24-21049

"A little collection of epitaphs presumably from the poet's own pen, though presented as if they had been deciphered from old gravestones." Pratt quarterly

"It is a slender but intensely characteristic morsel, and in the literature of epitaphs there can hardly be a subtler or sweeter one." Times (London) lit. sup.

Dunsany, Edward John Moreton Drax Plunkett, 18th baron

Book of wonder. 1913 Luce, J. W. $1.75; Mathews 7s 6d 828

A14-1686

"Fourteen imaginative little tales reminiscent of both Oriental and Celtic folk and fairy lore. Published in England in 1912, the contents mostly reprinted from the Sketch and the Saturday Review. The illustrations by S. H. Sime suggest the work of Maxfield Parrish." Cleveland

The author's "Fifty-one tales" (1917 Mathews o.p. 1933) is a similar collection made up of fables, dreams, allegories, satires

Landor, Walter Savage

* Imaginary conversations; a selection with an introd. by Ernest de Selincourt. (World's classics) Oxford 80c; 2s 828

1 Imaginary conversations 34-37

"His imaginary portraits of men and women of all ages are touched with a knowledge and sympathy which show him to have been always at home with great thoughts and great men." Ernest de Sélincourt in Introduction

Two other good selections from the author's works are "Selections; ed by Sir Sidney Colvin" (Macmillan $1.40; 3s 6d) in the Golden treasury series, and "Imaginary conversations and poems; a selection" (1933 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s) in Everyman's library

Maugham, William Somerset

Gentleman in the parlour. 1930 Doubleday, Doran $1; Heinemann 5s 828

30-13445

"Description of a leisurely trip by canoe and rickshaw from Rangoon to Halphong by the well-known English novelist. Contains delightful character sketches and details of the lives and customs of the people but a limited amount of scenery and facts." Pratt quarterly

Milton, John

* Areopagitica, and other prose writings. (Modern readers' ser.) 1927 Macmillan 80c; 2s 828

27-12404

The greater part of Milton's prose is available in "Student's Milton" edited by F. A. Patterson (rev ed 1933 Crofts $5) A collection of both prose and poetry

Nichols, Beverley

Thatched roof. 1933 Doubleday, Doran $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d 828

33-27488

"The author's keen pleasure in his thatched cottage is communicated to the reader as he describes restorations and reveals the sincerity and depth of his sentiment for the place. Jocular delineations of the foibles of his housekeeper, and those of a few neighbors make their contributions also to a refreshing and amusing book." N.Y. libraries

Williamson, Henry

As the sun shines. 1933 Dutton $2.95; Cape, J. 7s 6d 828

33-4943

Published in England with title: Labouring life

"Life in an English village—the scenes, the people, the happenings—is here described by Mr. Williamson in his admirable, finished prose. The book shows humor, observation and affectionate understanding, and will be liked by those who enjoy quiet reading with a chuckle in it." Cincinnati

The author's "Village book" (1930 Dutton $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d) contains more essays on English rural life

829 ANGLO-SAXON LITERATURE

830-899 FOREIGN LITERATURE

The books listed here in the classes from 830 to 899, foreign literature, are all in English, with the exception of the Oxford books of verse in the original languages and books in the Loeb classical library, which include both translation and original text. If the library has a need for books for the foreign population or reader, the pamphlets of the A. L. A. Committee on work with the foreign born will be found useful. These are available, 1933, for the following languages: German, Greek, Italian, Polish and Swedish. For French books there is "French books for American libraries" compiled by Charles Cestre and others (1931 A. L. A. pa 65c)

830 GERMAN LITERATURE

The monumental collection of later German literature in translation is "German classics of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries," edited by Kuno Francke and W. G. Howard (20v 1913-14 Stechert $37.50) Of course the price is prohibitive for the average library, but the selection is comprehensive, and the illustrations and general make-up are very attractive

Eloesser, Arthur

* Modern German literature; tr. from the German by C. A. Phillips. 1933 Knopf $3.50; Hamilton, H. 15s 830.9

1 German literature—Hist. & crit. 33-3481

"Here is a serious work which gives a historical outline and critical study of German literature from 1870 to the present. It will be of value especially to the reader who already has some acquaintance with the subject." Cincinnati

"The book is for the most part so sober, so weighted with thought, so determined to come to grips with the ultimate realities, that reading it straight through is something of a task, but it is the sort of book which should be read straight through." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Francke, Kuno

History of German literature as determined by social forces. 1901 Holt $3.50 830.9

1 German literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Germany—Civilization 1-31295

One of the best of the histories of German literature. This is the 4th edition of his "Social forces in German literature." Francke shows excellent judgment and discrimination in his estimations of German writers, and the book is especially valuable for drama of the latter part of the 19th century

In the past few years there have been few new books on German literature, and many of the standard works have been allowed to go out of print. In addition to Francke, there are three other desirable histories of German literature which have been dropped from publishers' lists:

Coar, J. F. Studies in German literature in the nineteenth century. 1903 Macmillan o.p. 1933 Endeavors to correlate German literature and German political ideals from the standpoint of American democracy, as shown in characteristic forms of 19th century literature

Lessing, O. E. Masters in modern German literature. 1922 Stechert o.p. 1933 Highly recommended for its critical studies of von Liliencron, Dehmel, Hauptmann, Holz, Heinrich Mann and Thomas Mann

Lewisohn, Ludwig. Spirit of modern German literature. 1916 Viking press o.p. 1933 Originally a series of lectures before the University of Wisconsin, discusses appreciatively the work of German and Austrian poets, novelists and speculative thinkers

Klenze, Camillo von

From Goethe to Hauptmann. 1926 Viking press $2.50 830.9

1 German literature—Hist. & crit. 2 German drama—Hist. & crit. 3 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von. Italienische reise 4 Hauptmann, Gerhart Johann Robert 26-9209

Essays on various aspects of German literature. Contents: Renaissance vision: Goethe's Italy; Romantic view of art: German predecessors of Ruskin; Realism and romanticism in two great narrators: Keller and Meyer; Naturalism in German drama from Schiller to Hauptmann; Hauptmann's treatment of the lower classes: a twentieth-century vision

"On the whole, Professor von Klenze has succeeded in producing a valuable and excellent work, one infinitely enriched by the author's own wide knowledge and native originality. The book is written in clear, concise and beautiful English." International book review

1 German literature—Hist. & crit. 9-28542

"Based on Gotthold Klee's 'Grundzüge der deutschen literaturgeschichte.'" Subtitle

"A study of German literature from the earliest times down to the present day [1909] which is essentially the embodiment of 'an attempt to reproduce Professor Klee's manual for the benefit of English readers.' At the same time the author has aimed to prepare a book suited to the needs of the English reader rather than to offer a faithful translation of the German work." Book rev. digest

"A model of comprehensiveness for its size." Independent

Publishers announce a new edition in preparation, 1933

"An abridgment of his earlier 'History of German literature' to which have been added chronological tables covering important events from the consecration of Bishop Wulfilas to the death of Nietzsche." Pratt quarterly

Adequate for the library which has no great demand for material on the subject and does not need the fuller work above

The same author's "Literature of Germany" (1913 Holt $1.25, student's ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d) a volume in the Home university library, is a well balanced short history that confines itself largely to movements and tendencies

Standard and authoritative work by a great critic. It covers the literature of Germany from the earliest days to the death of Goethe. Scherer is brilliant, stimulating and original

Thomas, Calvin

‡ History of German literature. (Appleton dollar lib.) 1928 Appleton-Century $1; Heinemann 6s 830.9

1 German literature—Hist. & crit. 9-7328

Originally published 1909

Into a volume of about 400 pages the author has compressed more than a thousand years of literary history, without giving any impression of sketchiness. Scholars, philosophers and scientists have been omitted in favor of the properly literary figures of Germany. The result is a readable, coherent and well-balanced survey

Willoughby, Leonard Ashley

Romantic movement in Germany. 1930 Oxford $2; 6s 830.9

1 Romanticism 2 German literature—Hist. & crit. 31-8195

"Contains a great deal of good criticism and information in a small compass. For the most part his attention is devoted to literature and the drama; music and the arts are considered, though briefly. A particularly interesting chapter sketches the relations of German romanticism with the movement in other countries." Nation and Athenaeum

831 GERMAN POETRY

Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von

Poems and aphorisms; ed. by Friedrich Bruns. (Oxford library of German texts) 1932 Oxford $1.50 831

A small but representative selection chosen and arranged to reveal the phases of development of Goethe both as a literary master and a thinker. Prepared for the Goethe society as a centenary memorial volume. The German and the English translation are given on opposite pages

"Selections, by A. Hayward" in the series, Foreign classics for English readers (Lippincott $1.50) is a well chosen but limited selection in excellent translations

Heine, Heinrich

‡ Poems; tr. by Louis Untermeyer. rev ed 1923 Harcourt $2 831

23-12227

The editor has selected and translated 325 of the poems of Heine, not only the well known "Lieder," but also selections from "Die Nord see" and "Die Harz reise" series. It is difficult for any translation to convey adequately the charm of Heine, but this is better than most

"The book will give to those who do not read German a real knowledge of a great poet; it will please those who do read German because it is a true and faithful rendering; and it will take its place as something more than a translation, because, thanks to the introduction and the choice and arrangement of the poems it is an interpretative and critical essay." Independent

Another translation is "Book of songs; rendered into English verse by John Todhunter" in the Oxford library of translations (1907 Oxford $1.70; 5s)

Nibelungenlied

Nibelungenlied; tr. into rhymed English verse in the metre of the original, by G. H. Needler. 1904 Holt $2 831

4-32378

"A German epic poem based on legends of great antiquity. Its present written form dates back to the early part of the thirteenth century. Siegfried is the hero and Brunhild the heroine of the romance. It is the chief monument of early German literature." Pratt alcove

"What distinguishes this translation of the great German epic from all previous attempts is, in the first place, the faithful and happy reproduction of its metrical form. Professor Needler has added a succinct but adequate introduction." Nation

831.08 German poetry—Collections

Of limited scope but fairly comprehensive in its field is F. C. Nicholson's "Old German love songs" (1907 Univ. of Chicago press o.p. 1933) a collection of songs from the Minnesingers of the 12th to the 14th centuries. The small library may not need a collection of this sort

"The poems included belong approximately to the last four decades. They are chosen for their aesthetic worth and are intended to mirror the trend of culture and the temper of the period covered. The book falls into two parts: Masters and The younger group; the first containing authors of definite artistic achievement and the second the younger poets whose 'fevered experimentation and passionate subjectivity' are expressive of times which are out of joint. There is a critical introduction by the translators and compilers, a Who's who in German poetry and an index of authors." Book rev. digest

832 GERMAN DRAMA

Frank, Leonhard
Karl and Anna; a drama in three acts; tr. by Ruth Langner. (Theatre guild plays) 1929 Brentano's o.p. 1933 832

29-22699

"Richard, held three years in a Russian prison-camp on the steppes, tells his comrade Karl about his wife Anna and their life together, in such intimate detail that Karl is obsessed with the idea that the beloved woman belongs to him. Escaping, Karl flies to Anna and beats down her resistance by his ardent love and knowledge of things that only Richard could have known. Tragedy comes with Richard's return. A Theater guild play of frankness, simplicity and strength." Cleveland

A14-1629

Contents: Gyges and his ring, and Herod and Mariamne, tr. by L. H. Allen; Maria Magdalena, tr. by Barber Fairley

"This is the most available selection in English. Hebbel chose classic subjects, and treated them with great power in a naturalistic style." Trinity college list

Hofmannsthal, Hugo Hofmann, edler von

Electra; a tragedy in one act; tr. by Arthur Symons. 1908 Coward-McCann $1 832

8-13706

"The old Greek theme has been developed in tragedies by Aeschylus, by Sophocles, and by Euripides, yet in this modern interpretation—its author's masterpiece—we find something original and distinctly worthy of our respect and admiration." A. D. Dickinson

Written in verse, and well adapted for stage presentation as well as for reading. It has been set to music by Richard Strauss

Lessing, Gotthold Ephraim

Dramatic works; tr. from the German; ed by Ernest Bell, with a short memoir by Helen Zimmern. (Bohn's standard lib.) 2v Bell, G. o.p. 1933 832

CA17-1626

Contents: v 1 includes the three tragedies and the dramatic poem "Nathan the Wise" prefaced by a biographical sketch of the author; v2 contains translations of eight plays

"Lessing possessed a clearness of insight and a vigor of mind bordering on genius, but his plays though dramatically well constructed lack the qualities which might make them great." Pratt alcove

Everyman's library has one volume of Lessing: "Laocöon, Nathan the Wise & Minna von Barnhelm; tr. by W. A. Steel" (1930 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s). The first title is his famous treatise on esthetics, the second a long dramatic poem, and the third, one of his best known plays

Dramas; tr. by R. D. Boylan and others. (Bohn's lib.) 1901 Bell, G. o.p. 1933 832

4-18032

Don Carlos is tr. by R. D. Boylan; Mary Stuart, by J. Mellish; Maid of Orleans, by A. Swanwick; Bride of Messina, by A. Lodge. To this edition has been added Schiller's "Essay on the use of the chorus in tragedy"

"The plays of Schiller, which still hold a place on the German stage, deal with historical subjects. Like his poems they are characterized by lofty thought and ideal aspiration. The four plays of this collection are among the best known, though the two, Wilhelm Tell and the Wallenstein trilogy not here included would rank with them in literary distinction." Pratt alcove

Dramatic works; tr. by S. T. Coleridge, Janus Churchill and Sir Theodore Martin. (Bohn's standard lib.) 1903 Bell, G. o.p. 1933 832

4-18033

Contents: Ask no questions and you'll hear no stories; Christmas present; Episode; Keepsakes; Farewell supper; Dying pangs; Wedding morning

"Anatol is a Viennese bachelor of evident wealth and social position. He is a philanderer who takes himself rather seriously, whose excursions into the regions of sentiment are numerous and brief-lived. Schnitzler knows the type, and deals with it in a vein of good-natured satire." N.Y. Times

The author's "Reigen, The affairs of Anatol and other plays, tr. by Marya Mannes and G. I. Colbron" (1933 Modern lib. 95c) contains Living hours and The green cockatoo in addition to the title plays

Sudermann, Hermann

Joy of living (Es leben das leben); a play in five acts; tr. by Edith Wharton. 1902 Scribner $2 832

2-25765

A drama of the political aristocracy of Berlin before the war, involving a struggle between "soul affinity" and marital obligation

* Magda; a play in four acts; tr. by C. E. A. Winslow. French pa 75c 832

[14-4006]

First published, 1895

"Finely constructed German drama with fascinating study in character. Magda claims the moral right to develop her individuality and this brings about a well-defined struggle between the old and the new, the conservative and the radical, the conventional idea of home, parental authority, moral standards, even provincialism and the modern idea of the rights of children, personal freedom, and cosmopolitanism. Its unity, clearness, and force make it technically an almost perfect play. Title in the original: Heimat." Viewpoints in modern drama

His "Roses, four one-act plays; tr. by Grace Frank" (1909 Scribner $2) contains 3 rather morbid psychological studies—Streaks of light, Last visit, Margot—and one very charming romantic comedy, Far-away princess

Zweig, Stefan

Jeremiah; tr. by Eden and Cedar Paul. 1922 Viking press $2.50; Allen, G. 10s 6d 832

1 Jeremiah, the prophet—Drama 29-8729

"The drama depicts the fall of Jerusalem, foreseen by Jeremiah, whose prophecies are unheeded. The reactions of the multitudes to the visions of Jeremiah and to the war rumors are the counterpart of our own war experiences." Book rev. digest

"A drama of authentic grandeur and beauty. One feature remarkable in a play conceived upon

Zweig, Stefan—Continued

Contents: Wayward lover, and Fellow-culprit, tr. by E. A. Bowring; Goetz von Berlichingen, tr. by Sir Walter Scott; Clavigo; Egmont, Torquato Tasso, and Iphigenia in Tauris, tr. by A. Swanwick

* Faust; a tragedy; tr. by Bayard Taylor. 2v in 1 Houghton $4 832.62

17-19787

"An able metrical translation by a distinguished American man of letters." Pratt alcove

The same text may be obtained in the Modern readers' series: "Faust; tr. by Bayard Taylor" (1930 Macmillan 80c; 5s) with an introduction by R. H. Fife, and without the copious notes of the Houghton edition

One of the latest translations is "Faust; tr. by Alice Raphael" (1930 Ballou, R. O. $2.50). It is in simple, flowing English, the result of twelve years' work, with the critical aid of the late William A. Speck, who was curator of the Goethe collection at Yale. This edition has an introduction by Mark Van Doren and woodcuts by Lynd Ward. Another modern translation is "Faust, parts one and two; tr. by G. M. Priest" (1932 Covici $2.75)

Formerly carried also by Harcourt
"Professor Spingarn calls his selection the first attempt to include in a single volume the whole range of Goethe's critical and esthetic studies, and Viscount Haldane in his foreword to the book says: 'Goethe's gifts as a critic fell within a large whole of knowledge which was his in a degree for which we must look back over two thousand years to Aristotle if we wish to find a rival.' The translations are from various sources and some of the essays included have never before appeared in English. The essays are grouped under the headings: The theory of art; The theory of literature; On Shakespeare; On other writers; Extracts from the conversations with Eckermann. There is a chronology of Goethe's critical studies and an index." Book rev. digest

23-16414

Publisher announces a new edition in preparation. Probable price $3

"The book is the bible of Northern mythology, morality, and literature. Its leading mythological poem, 'Voluspo,' a sort of Genesis and Apocalypse combined, is an imaginative conception of the creation and ultimate destruction of the world. The 'Hovamol' a collection of shrewd saws, gives a picture of the ethical conceptions of the Vikings. The Lady of Thrym is a ballad. In the poems of Sigurd and Brynhild we get the Norse version of the Lay of the Nibelungs." Springfield Republican

"The book is a variorum edition as valuable to the scholar as to the general reader." P. A. Hutchison in N.Y. Times

This volume contains a collection of lectures originally delivered at the Lowell Institute, Boston, in 1930 and thoroughly revised for publication. Contents: Art of the sagas; Origin of the saga; Earliest written sagas; Icelandic family sagas; Master of the saga: Snorri Sturluson; Historical value of the sagas; Fiction sagas; End of the saga. Bibliography and index

"One must be thankful to Professor Koht for his brief but comprehensive survey of the saga and its history, and for his analysis of the forces that give it its enduring worth. Though it be true that the actual reading of sagas is the best study of the saga, Professor Koht's work will be found interesting by way of introduction and valuable for the background which it provides." Cover title: Modern Swedish poetry

"A translated selection from the works of the following modern Swedish poets: Verner von Heidenstam, awarded the Nobel prize in 1916; Oscar Levertin; E. A. Karlfeldt, secretary of the Swedish academy and pioneer of the back-to-the-land movement in Swedish poetry; Anders Osterling, a translator of Wordsworth and Shelley; Bo Bergman; Harriet Löwenhjelm; Dan Andersson; and others." Book rev. digest

"There are here a number of good poems well translated. . . Mr Locock has, on the whole, triumphed over his difficulties in a remarkable fashion. Several of his versions, which none the less appear to be quite faithful, do not read like versions at all." New statesman

(comp. and tr.) Anthology of Swedish lyrics from 1750 to 1925. (Scandinavian classics) 1930 Am.-Scandinavian foundation $2.50; Allen, G. 14s 839.71

1 Swedish poetry 30-13381

First edition covered the period 1750-1915. In this new edition, 13 poems, the work of 10 poets, have been added to bring the collection to 1925, and to the introductory essay has been added a page on poetry during the decade of 1915-25

This anthology emphasizes later poets, and nine in particular—Bellman, Tegnér, Runeberg, Rydberg, Snoilsky, Fröding, Levertin, Heidenstam and Karlfeldt. An introductory sketch outlines the history of Swedish lyric poetry. There are brief biographical notes about the poets who are represented

Metrical translations of two long poems by one of Sweden's greatest poets. "Children of the Lord's supper" is given here in the Longfellow translation, which is also included in that poet's "Complete poetical works" (see class 811). It is a beautiful idyl of life in a Swedish village.

"Frithiof's saga," translated by Blackley, tells the ancient love story of the humbly born Frithiof for the noble Ingeborg. It is in 24 cantos, each in a different meter. Tho it is a narrative poem, the tone is distinctly lyrical, and remarkable for its emotional intensity and vividness

Plays, first-fourth series; tr. by Edwin Björkman. 4v 1912-16 Scribner ea $2.50; Duckworth ea 7s 6d 839.72

Contents: 1st ser Dream play, Link, Dance of death, part 1, Dance of death, part 2; 2d ser Creditors, Pariah, Miss Julia, Stronger, There are crimes and crimes; 3d ser Advent, Simoon, Swanwhite, Debit and credit, Thunderstorm, After the fire; 4th ser Bridal crown, Spook sonata, First warning, Gustavus Vasa

"An eccentric genius of immense power . . . a woman-hater, violently hostile to the feminist movement. . . Strindberg's work is very uneven, at its lowest coarse and crude, at its best rising to the highest poetic beauty. One virtue prevails through it all, its unflinching honesty, the will to see things as they are and to record them without fear." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Another translation is "Plays; tr. by Edith and Wärner Oland" (3v 1912-14 Luce, J. W. ea $1.50). In the series, Anglo-Swedish literary foundation, is published "Easter, and other plays" (1929 Cape, J. 7s 6d) containing Easter, Dance of death, Ghost sonata, Dream play; and "Lucky Peter's travels, and other plays" (1932 Smith, P. $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d) containing Lucky Peter's travels, The father, Lady Julie, Playing with fire, The bond. There are also separate editions of two of Strindberg's well known plays—"Lucky Pehr" (1912 Appleton-Century $2.50) and "Master Olof" (Smith, P. $2.50; Cape, J. 7s 6d) also a publication of the Anglo-Swedish literary foundation

Contents: 1st ser Gauntlet, Beyond our power, New system; 2d ser Love and geography, Beyond human might, Laboremus

"The gauntlet," his best known play, has for its theme the double standard. "Beyond our power" is concerned with psycho-pathological phenomena. "New system" is a social satire. "Love and geography" is a play of domestic relations, "Beyond human might" of capital and labor, and "Laboremus" is a psychological study of individualism

"They rank among the greatest dramas of the nineteenth century, differing from those of Ibsen in that they are always human and always optimistic." Pratt alcove

Plays by an 18th century Danish dramatist

Contents: Jeppe of the hill; Political tinker; Erasmus Montanus

"The first is another version of the ancient fable which furnished Shakespeare with a motive for his 'Taming of the shrew,' but Jeppe, the drunken peasant, becomes a protagonist, instead of a mere spectator like Sly. . . 'The political tinker' satirizes the working folk who are for ever criticising the conduct of their political superiors. Holberg was a fine old, crusted Tory. . . 'Erasmus Montanus' is amusing, and more nearly akin to our notions of comedy than either of the others but it is hopelessly out of date. . . But the piece is worth reading for the sake of its character studies." Nation

First edition, 1922, had title "History of French literature from the earliest times to the great war." The revised edition includes some corrections and additions in the first part of the book, a rewriting of the section on the last part of the 19th century, and additional material in the Epilogue. The bibliography, p771-800 has been completely revised

"A comprehensive history covering the whole period of French literature and a wide array of names, and intended for the general reader as well as for the student. It is divided into three parts: medieval, renaissance and modern, the last division taking up half the book. The plan is to emphasize the chief literary movements and writers and to pass over minor tendencies and figures. Bibliography. Index." Book rev. digest

First published in 1892. Many slight revisions have been made in each successive edition, but the only completely remodelled work was the fifth edition (1897). The present revision is likely to be the last. Adapted from Preface

Brilliant and scholarly, this is a standard work on the subject, by one of England's greatest critics and one of the best known authorities on French literature. The book covers the period from the earliest texts to the close of the 19th century with both brevity and completeness

1 French literature—Hist. & crit. 25-5784

First edition 1912. The last chapter, which has been rewritten for this edition, is a biographical dictionary of contemporary authors. The bibliography has been enlarged and revised since the first edition

"A work that will be very useful because of its comprehensiveness, being practically a literary history of France from the Middle ages to the present time, its historical accuracy and its data on recent writers. It will not, however, displace . . . Saintsbury . . . as criticism, nor is it so successful in style. A reading knowledge of French is made necessary by frequent quotations which are not interpolated but so introduced as to be inseparable from the text. The very full bibliography [62p], given by chapters, is made up largely of French works." Bkl.

841 FRENCH POETRY

Baudelaire, Charles Pierre

* Baudelaire: his prose and poetry; ed by T. R. Smith. 1919 Modern lib. 95c 841

20-7680

Introductory material includes "Ave atque vale," A. C. Swinburne's poem in memory of Baudelaire, a preface by T. R. Smith, and an introduction by F. P. Sturm. The translations are: Poems in prose, tr. by Arthur Symons; Poems in prose, tr. by J. T. Shipley; Little poems in prose, tr. by F. P. Sturm; Flowers of evil, tr. by F. P. Sturm; Flowers of evil, tr. by W. J. Robertson; Three poems from Baudelaire, tr. by R. H. Shepherd; Intimate papers from the unpublished works of Baudelaire, tr. by J. T. Shipley

"It is Baudelaire's great distinction that he was able to combine the hideous and devastating conceptions of complete pessimism with the passion, the imagination, and the formal beauty that only live in magnificent verse." G. L. Strachey's Landmarks in French literature

His "Poems and prose poems; tr. by F. P. Sturm" (1919 Brentano's o.p. 1933) is valuable for its 50-page preface by James Huneker

Chanson de Roland

* Song of Roland; done into English by C. Scott-Moncrieff. 1919 Chapman o.p. 1933 841

20-6312

"Here, line for line and almost word for word, the old French epic poem has been made into English. So far as the English language will allow, the original verse form has been kept with its endings of assonance and its short, sharp iambic stresses. The story emerges entire, with its mediaeval spirit unbroken, a fit song for Normans going into battle. The book is also worthy of note for its introduction by Mr G. K. Chesterton, its preface by Mr Saintsbury, and for the three fine, sombre-spirited poems dedicated by Mr Moncrieff to warrior friends of his own whose death has put him in the mood for Charlemagne's grief over Roland and Oliver." Dial

"Song of Roland; tr. into English verse by Leonard Bacon" (1914 Yale univ. press o.p. 1933) is imbued with the spirit of the time, but is perhaps not so fine a translation as the above

Hugo, Victor Marie, comte

Poems; tr. by Sir George Young. 1901 Macmillan o.p. 1933 841

2-9230

Sympathetic and scholarly, Young's translations are among the best

"The prince of poets was Victor Hugo, who held his throne for fifty years. The variety and abundance of his work is past belief, and the disposition of later criticism to reduce his stature is in part a protest against his very bulk." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

La Fontaine, Jean de

* Hundred fables; with pictures by P. J. Billinghurst. Dodd $2.50; Lane 6s 841

0-1394

An attractive edition with full-page illustrations in black and white. The translations are in verse form

"Forty-two fables; tr. by Edward Marsh" (1925 Harper o.p. 1933) includes some of the less familiar fables. The translations are amusing, sometimes modified to allude to present day foibles, and each is dedicated to some celebrity of today. This edition of La Fontaine will therefore be found popular at the present time, but perhaps not of permanent value to the library

Maeterlinck, Maurice

Poems; done into English verse by Bernard Miall. 1915 Dodd $2.50; Methuen 5s 841

15-7577

"Poems of 'unrelieved introspection' in which the poet's soul, an exotic of many hues, is represented as flourishing within hothouses, under crystal domes and bell glasses and in deep caverns. Mr Miall, who is regarded as the most successful translator of the work of M. Maeterlinck's early symbolic period, manages to reproduce the atmosphere of the poems, but is less fortunate in his attempt at a literal rendering of the original meters." Cleveland

Roman de la Rose

Romance of the Rose, by W. Lorris and Jean de Meung; tr. by F. S. Ellis. (Temple classics) 3v 1900 Dutton ea 80c; Dent ea 2s 841

[1-25146]

A modern translation of the famous allegorical poem of 13th century France. The first part, by Lorris, is a fanciful dream tale of the trials and triumphs of love. The latter part, continued by Meung, is an elaborate satirical treatise on the science and politics of the day. The poem is valuable as a vivid and colorful picture of medieval everyday life. Each volume in this edition is prefaced by a summary of the chapters in that volume

Verhaeren, Émile

Villon, François
* Poems; tr. by John Payne. 1918 Modern lib. 95c 841
A19-412

Contents: Introduction; Lesser testament; Greater testament; Divers poems; Poems attributed to Villon; Translations by Rossetti; Translations by Swinburne

Payne's translations were made in 1878 for the Villon society in London. It was the first time the poems had been done into English verse in the original forms. The themes are love and death, tinged with irony and a passionate love of life

H. D. Stacpoole's "François Villon, his life and times, 1431-1463" (1916 Putnam o.p. 1933) is both interesting and heplful to the study of the poet. The latter half of the book analyses the two "Testaments" and the "Ballads," and includes many poems in 15th century French and in English translation

1 French poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Verhaeren, Émile 3 Samain, Albert Victor 4 Gourmount, Rémy de 5 Régnier, Henri François Joseph de 6 Jammes, Francis 7 Fort, Paul, 15-25731

Contents: Émile Verhaeren; Albert Samain; Remy de Gourmont; Henri de Régnier; Francis Jammes; Paul Fort

In these critical and personal studies, originally delivered as lectures, Miss Lowell traces the history and development of each individual genius, in the attempt to give the reader the effect of having known the man and read his books as they were published. This she does by eschewing pedantry and giving an enthusiastic free play to her sympathies and appreciations. She quotes freely from their poems in the original, and gives prose and verse translations in an appendix. Condensed from Boston Transcript

842 FRENCH DRAMA

Beaumarchais, Pierre Augustin Caron de
Barber of Seville; or, The useless precaution; tr. by A. B. Myrick; lyrics tr. by G. A. England. (Temple dramatists) 1905 Dutton 65c; Dent 1s 6d 842
[A13-375]

"Originated from the comic-opera plots of its own time and finds today its natural complement in the music of Rossini. . . It is simply a question of conspiracies and disguises, of a jealous guardian, a pretty ward, a romantic lover and a helpful barber. . . Beaumarchais' style is original, diversified and witty in the extreme. Above all, he created a new and immortal character in Figaro, who has been called the 'légataire universel of all the valets of comedy.'" Nitze and Dargan's History of French literature

Brieux, Eugène

Three plays; with preface by Bernard Shaw; English versions by Mrs Bernard Shaw, St John Hankin and John Pollock. 1911 Coward-McCann $2.50 842

11-15330

Contents: Maternity, tr. by Mrs B. Shaw; Three daughters of M. Dupont, tr. by St J. Hankin; Damaged goods, tr. by J. Pollock; Maternity (new version) tr. by J. Pollock

"Three plays 'which deal with some of the least pleasant and most serious consequences of ignorance and thoughtlessness.' They present phases of conjugal and other sex relations from the standpoint of an author, 'a physician of the body politic who describes and exemplifies on the stage the ailments from which modern humanity is suffering—alcoholism, sex-disorders, unhappy marriages, and the stupidities of so-called justice.'" Athenaeum

"Three plays" (Cape, J. 7s 6d) contains the same plays but not the Pollock translation of "Maternity"

Corneille, Pierre

Cid; tr. by Roscoe Mongan. (Handy literal translations) 1896 McKay 75c 842

12-31614

"A tragi-comedy. He took the career of a half-legendary Spanish hero . . . and turned it into a concentrated French play. . . What captivated the public was not only the romantic spirit from Spain, but the author's vast improvements in style: the play abounds in brilliant epic passages, in tender lyric utterances, in sonorous rhetoric." C. H. C. Wright's History of French literature

Many libraries will probably find that the play as included in Matthews's "Chief European dramatists" (class 808.82) is sufficient for their needs

Corneille, Pierre, and Racine, Jean Baptiste

* Six plays by Corneille and Racine; tr. by Paul Landis and Robert Henderson. 1931 Modern lib. 95c 842

32-997

Plays by Corneille: The Cid, Cinna. Plays by Racine: Andromache, Britannicus, Phaedra, Athaliah

France, Anatole

Man who married a dumb wife; a comedy in two acts; tr. by C. H. Page. 1915 Dodd $1.50; Lane 2s 842

15-8253

"A clever satire based on an incident in Rabelais, worked out in the broad medieval manner, but with many ultra-modern applications—a wife cured of her dumbness at her husband's request, proves so talkative that he is driven to submit to an operation to secure his own deafness." Cleveland

Guitry, Sacha

Deburau; a comedy; in an English version by Harley Granville Barker. 1921 Putnam o.p. 1933 842

1 Deburau, Jean Gaspard—Drama 21-2539

"Romantic French tragi-comedy of elevated and serious quality. Delightfully fables the life of the famous French pantomimist of the early 19th century, his love affair with Camille, his successes and failures, and his final retirement in favor of his son." Viewpoints in modern drama

Hugo, Victor Marie, comte

Dramatic works. 3v Little o.p. 1933 842

[9-3535]

Contents: v 1 Hernani, Marion de Lorme, King's amusement, Lucrezia Borgia, Twins; v2 Angelo, tyrant of Padua, Ruy Blas, Burgraves, Torquemada, Amy Robsart; v3 Cromwell, Mary Tudor, Esmeralda

"Hugo's plays are melodramas without much truth to character or plausibility of plot. But the story goes and the lines are charged with superb rhetoric which sometimes mounts to a very high poetic plane." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Ruy Blas; modernized in English verse by Brian Hooker. 1931 Holt $2 842

31-3796

"Mr. Hooker has translated Hugo's 'Ruy Blas' for the American stage, and consequently his version does not follow the original, and much of the text has been entirely rewritten. Walter Hampden who has played Hooker's translation of 'Cyrano de Bergerac' has also chosen to do 'Ruy Blas.'" Wis. bul.

Maeterlinck, Maurice

Betrothal; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. 1918 Dodd $2.50; Methuen 6s 842

18-21760

"A fairy play in five acts, sequel to 'The blue bird.' Here Tyltyl, seven years older, goes seeking a sweetheart under the guidance of Fairy Berylune and meets with odd adventures. Delightful in its symbolism and play of delicate fancy." N.Y. state. lib.

‡ Blue bird; a fairy play in six acts; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. 1911 Dodd $2.50; Methuen 6s 842

11-1744

"Maeterlinck's best-known production. Bread, sugar, water, milk, and fire come to life in its allegorical pages. And two children seek the bluebird symbol of happiness, through the past and future, the land of night and the unborn." A. D. Dickinson

Mary Magdalene; a play in three acts; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos. 1910 Dodd $2.50; Allen, G. 2s 842

10-20397

"If this interpretation of the gospel story deprives it of much that is specifically Christian in the usual sense, it makes of it a wonderful symbol for the imaginative expression of a broader and more purely spiritual faith." Bookman

Monna Vanna; tr. by A. I. Du P. Coleman. 1903 Harper $2; Allen, G. 5s 842

3-22530

"Notable Belgian drama. Tells the heroic sacrifice of a woman for her city during a siege and thus presents interesting questions of honor, duty, and love. Strong in literary quality and imagination." Viewpoints in modern drama

* Pélléas and Mélisande, Alladine and Palomides, Home; tr. by Richard Hovey. 1924 Dodd $2.50 842

32-10434

"Pélléas and Mélisande" is a beautiful poetical tragedy on a theme similar to Paolo and Francesca. It forms the libretto of Debussy's opera. "Alladine and Palomides" is a highly romantic play based on the Arthurian legends but imbued with characteristic fatalism and un-

place entirely

emotions of the audience as they see an old man hesitate to dispel with tragic news the happiness inside his lighted home

One of his most characteristic collections of plays is "Intruder, and other plays; tr. by Richard Hovey" (1918 Dodd o.p. 1933). It contains The intruder, The blind, Seven princesses and Death of Tintagiles, four short symbolical and mystical plays dealing with the fear of death

Sister Beatrice, and Ardiane & Barbe Bleue; tr. by Bernard Miall. 1901 Dodd $2.50; Allen, G. 5s 842

2-11128

"Sister Beatrice," based on John Davidson's "Ballad of a nun," is a modern miracle play illustrating the mercy of the Virgin. In "Ardiane & Barbe Bleue," the fairy tale of Blue Beard is retold in modern version. It has been set to music by Dukas

His "Miracle of Saint Anthony; tr. by Alexander Teixeira de Mattos" (1918 Dodd $2.50; Methuen 3s 6d) is a robust satirical one-act play not at all like his later mystical dramas

Molière, Jean Baptiste Poquelin

* Molière; tr. by K. P. Wormeley. 6v Little o.p. 1933 842

12-11645

"This is usually regarded as the most illustrious name in all French literature. There can be no doubt that Molière is France's greatest dramatist even though he produced no tragedies. His greatest plays are 'Tartuffe' (his masterpiece, in which he scored hypocrisy), 'The Doctor in Spite of Himself' (Médecin Malgré Lui), 'The Miser' (L'Avare), 'The Bourgeois Gentleman,' and 'The Hypochondriac' (Le Malade Imaginaire)." A. D. Dickinson

His "Plays; introduction by Waldo Frank" (1924 Modern lib. 95c) contains six of the best known dramas, in translation—Précieuses ridicules, L'école des femmes, Tartuffe, Misanthrope, Médecin malgré lui, and L'avare. "Three Molière plays" translated and edited by T. A. Guthrie (F. Anstey, pseud.) (1933 Oxford $2.75; 7s 6d) includes Tartuffe, Scapin the trickster, and The school for wives, translated and somewhat shortened for the English stage

Many libraries find that separate editions of Molière circulate better than collected editions. The following are good translations of the plays which have proved most popular:

Bourgeois gentilhomme (Tradesman turned gentleman); tr. by C. H. Page. 1908 Putnam 6s 6d)

Femmes savantes (Learned ladies); tr. by C. H. Page. 1908 Putnam 6s 6d

Misanthrope; tr. by C. H. Page. 1908 Putnam 6s 6d)

Précieuses ridicules (Affected misses) and Médecin malgré lui (Doctor by compulsion); tr. by C. H. Page. 1908 Putnam 6s 6d

Pathelin

Farce of the worthy Master Pierre Pathelin; tr. from the medieval French by Moritz Jagendorf. (Appleton modern plays) 1925 Appleton-Century 50c; 2s 842

25-6875

"A quaint medieval farce in the version used by the Washington Square Players. It was published in Poet Lore under the translator's pseudonym, Maurice Relonde." Chicago

"This celebrated farce stands out amongst all others, not only because of the excellence of its composition and execution, the firm drawing of character, the drollery of situations and style, but because it is much longer and contains a real action, or rather an extremely skilful fusion of two actions in one." G. Paris's Mediaeval French literature

Racine, Jean Baptiste

Six plays by Corneille and Racine. See entry under Corneille, P. and Racine, J. B.

Rolland, Romain

Game of love and death; tr. from the French by E. S. Brooks. 1926 Holt o.p. 1933 842

1 France—Hist.—Revolution—Drama 26-9333

"A tragic play of the French Revolution—one of a series written to reflect the appalling spectacle of a nation in the grip of elemental passion." Chicago

The series on the French revolution includes also "Palm Sunday; tr. by Eugene Löhrke" (1928 Holt o.p. 1933) which serves as a prologue, and "Les léonides; tr. by Eugene Löhrke" (1929 Holt o.p. 1933) the last in the sequence of dramas on the subject

Rostand, Edmond

L'aiglon; a play in six acts; tr. by L. N. Parker. 1900 Harper $2.50 842

13-4514

A moving tragedy of the Eaglet, Napoleon's son, the little King of Rome, who was held captive among his enemies

Another version is "L'Aiglon; tr. by Basil Davenport" (1927 Yale univ. press $3; Oxford 14s). It is a beautiful translation, faithful to the original

His "Plays; tr. by H. D. Norman" (2v 1921 Macmillan $10.50) contains adequate translations of all his dramas except the posthumous "Don Juan." Contents: v 1 Romantics, Princess far away, Woman of Samaria, Cyrano of Bergerac; v2 Eaglet, Chanticleer

* Chantecler; tr. by Gertrude Hall. 1910 Duffield o.p. 1933 842

10-19179

"Prose translation of the brilliant French poetic drama, which presents through symbolical barnyard scenes a satire on modern life. Faithful to original in spirit, but losing in lyrical intensity and the rendering of colloquial witticisms." N.Y. state lib.

* Cyrano de Bergerac; an heroic comedy in five acts; a new version in English verse by Brian Hooker. 1923 Holt $2; Heinemann 3s 6d 842

1 Cyrano de Bergerac, Savinien—Drama 23-17560

Prepared for the Walter Hampden revival, with a "prefatory gesture" by Clayton Hamilton

A romantic comedy of sword-play and word-play. The hero is the gallant Gascon swashbuckler and poet, possessed of an incredibly long nose and a keen wit. The play has a wide appeal

Hooker's translation is published also by Modern library at 95c

Far princess (La princesse lointaine); a drama in four acts; tr. by John Heard, jr. 1925 Humphries $1.50 842

25-8502

"A play written for Sarah Bernhardt and presented in Paris in 1895, two years earlier than the far more famous 'Cyrano de Bergerac.' Among all the works of Rostand, this play is considered second only to 'Cyrano' by many critics." Providence

"Nothing in modern times, it is probable, has so completely mirrored the mood and the age of the troubadours as this beautiful play." Boston Transcript

Chatfield-Taylor, Hobart Chatfield

Molière, a biography. 1906 Duffield $4 842.09

1 Molière, Jean Baptiste Poquelin 6-34857

Some libraries may prefer to class in 842 and shelve after his works

Chatfield-Taylor, Hobart C.—Continued

An interesting and scholarly biography which gives a vivid picture of Molière as man, as actor and as dramatist, against a background of Paris in the time of Louis XIV. The author maintains a nice balance in his presentation of material, quoting authorities frequently, but with no air of pedantry. Long translated passages from the plays are used in the text, while the French originals may be found in the appendix. There is a bibliography of editions, sources, and biographical and critical material on Molière, p419-34

Studies of the Théatre Libre and the work of the more important French dramatists of the 'nineties and later, including Carel, Brieux, Porto-Riche, Hervieu, Lavedan, Donnay, Rostand, Bataille, Bernstein, Capus, Flers and Caillavet

"Mr Clark's method of analyzing the work of the playwrights he has selected to represent the modern French drama is simple and helpful. He merely gives a brief sketch of the dramatist's life and a compact outline, with quotations, of his representative plays. As a manual for reference or story, 'Contemporary French dramatists,' with its added bibliographical material, will serve well its purpose." Boston Transcript

"To provide the general reader with a reliable and attractive version of Montaigne's essays has been this translator's effort, and he has done it in a readable and accurate manner. The author of the introduction has commented in an interesting, and sometimes acute, manner on certain points in regard to Montaigne and his works." Providence

"Mr Trechmann's translation is extremely good in a conscientious way. It is written in good, if slightly heavy, English, and though it does not entirely reproduce the suppleness and tang in Montaigne's style, it does give his meaning clearly and accurately." Leonard Woolf in Nation and Athenaeum

The notable Tudor translation by Florio which was familiar to Shakespeare and Ben Jonson is available in the Everyman's library as "Essayes; tr. by John Florio" (3v 1910 Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s) and also in the Modern library giants (Modern lib. $1) Another well known translation is that by Charles Cotton, available in Burt's mammoth series (Burt $1)

Voltaire, famous in his own day for his poetry and dramas, is now better known for a few sparkling tales and his ironic comments upon human nature and civilization

847 FRENCH SATIRE

Rabelais, François
Lives, heroic deeds & sayings of Gargantua and his son Pantagruel; tr. by Sir Thomas Urquhart and Peter Le Motteux. 1928 Simon & Schuster $3.50; Chatto 7s 6d 847

29-8423

Books I, II and III were translated by Sir Thomas Urquhart. The translation of books I and II was first published in 1653; that of book III in 1693. The version of books IV and V is by Peter Le Motteux, and was first published in 1694

The Everyman's library edition of the same translation is "Heroic deeds of Gargantua & Pantagruel" (2v 1929 Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding; $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s). If any library prefers an abridged edition, there is the excellent "Rabelais; ed. by C. H. Page" in the series, French classics for English readers (1905 Putnam o.p. 1933). It follows the standard translation and aims to keep all essential parts of the story

848 FRENCH MISCELLANY

Aucassin et Nicolette
Aucassin & Nicolette, and other mediaeval romances and legends; tr. from the French by E. Mason. (Everyman's lib.) 1910 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 848
A11-1438

The romance of Aucassin and Nicolette, by an unknown author who lived about 1130, belongs to the beginning of French literature. It is a narrative told in alternate prose and verse

Contents: 'Tis of Aucassin and of Nicolette; Story of King Constant, the emperor; Our lady's tumbler; Lay of the little bird; Divided horsecloth; Sir Hugh of Tabarie; Story of King Florus and of the fair Jehane; Of the covetous man and of the envious man; Of a Jew who took as surety the image of Our Lady; Lay of Graelent; Three thieves; Friendship of Amis and Amile; Of the knight who prayed whilst Our Lady tourneyed in his stead; Priest and the mulberries; Story of Asenath; Palfrey

The most delightful translation is "Aucassin et Nicolette; done into English by A. Lang" (Stechert $2) but this edition is not entirely suitable for library use. Tho sturdily bound, it is in white. Another delightful and notable version is Laurence Housman's, long out of print but now available in an attractive edition (1930 Dial press $2.50; Chatto 5s)

Maurois, André
Captains and kings. 1925 Appleton-Century $1.50; Lane 5s 848
25-12183

Translated by J. L. May. "Thought-provoking, spirited, and distinguished, though not notably profound, are these imaginary dialogs between a young lieutenant of the dragoons and a philosopher. The protagonists discuss the 'nature and scope of leadership in war and peace.' By the author of 'Ariel.' Of limited appeal. A translation of Dialogues sur le commandment." Bkl.

Lacy Collison-Morley's "Modern Italian literature" (1912 Little o.p. 1933) covers briefly the period from 1600 to 1800. Valuable for reference

Garnett, Richard
* History of Italian literature. (Appleton dollar lib.) 1928 Appleton-Century $1; 3s 6d 850.9
1 Italian literature—Hist. & crit. 4-14030

First published in 1898 in the series, Short histories of the literatures of the world

Generally conceded to be the best history of Italian literature in English. It covers in eminently readable style the period from the beginnings of Italian literature in Sicilian and Tuscan writings, to Carducci and D'Annunzio

Phelps, Ruth Shepard
Italian silhouettes. 1924 Knopf o.p. 1933 850.9
1 Italian literature—Hist. & crit. 24-27357

"Included in these sympathetic sketches of Italian writers are men of wide reputation, as well as those little known to Americans: Carducci, Pascoli, Papini, Ada Negri, Pirandello and others, all essentially modern, either in spirit, or in actual time. After some biographical detail, the writing of each is analyzed with insight, while frequent quotations, competently translated, lend artistic charm." N.Y. state lib.

J. S. Kennard's "Italian romance writers" (1906 Brentano's o.p. 1933) has charming and informative chapters on Manzoni, De Amicis, Fogazzaro, Verga, D'Annunzio and others. While it does not pretend to be a profound or final treatise, it is worth inclusion in any library, if it can be obtained

Sanctis, Francesco de
History of Italian literature; tr. by Joan Redfern. 2v 1931 Harcourt $7.50; Oxford 42s 850.9
1 Italian literature—Hist. & crit. 31-24165

First English translation of a classic Italian work first published in 1870-71. "An intimate history of the Italian people. It begins with the thirteenth and the fourteenth centuries when Italy was profoundly religious, and was alive with the political fervour that arose from the struggles of the free communes . . . and it ends with the revival of spiritual life in Italy accompanied by the rise of the new science and philosophy and the progress of civil reform which resulted in the renewal of Italian nationality that reached its culminating point in the nineteenth century." Introduction

"Of this beautifully translated and impeccably edited version . . . there is only one thing to say: that it is a precious gift to American literature and American culture. . . De Sanctis is not only the greatest of Italian critics. He is one of the great critics of the world." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Symonds, John Addington
Renaissance in Italy: Italian literature. 2d ed 2v 1898 Scribner ea $3.75; Murray, J. ea 12s 850.9
1 Italian literature—Hist. & crit. 4-14031
First edition 1888. A detailed history covering the period from 1300 to the end of the renaissance, composing two out of Symonds's seven volumes on that period
"The scholar may read it with profit, the general reader with enjoyment." A. D. Dickinson
J. B. Fletcher's "Literature of the Italian renaissance" (1934 Macmillan $3) is a well-considered briefer interpretation of the spirit and culture of the renaissance as revealed in its literature

851 ITALIAN POETRY

Ariosto, Lodovico
Orlando furioso; tr. by W. S. Rose. (Bohn's illustrated lib.) new ed 2v Bell, G. o.p. 1933 851
15-10449
"The purest and most perfect example of renaissance poetry." J. A. Symonds
"A very beautiful combination of a tale of chivalry and something like a classic mode of narrative... We have to take its merits somewhat on trust, for there is no translation of it that has permanently endeared it to English readers... Orlando is of course the Roland of French story, the chief peer of Charlemagne." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Petrarch, Francesco
Sonnets; tr. by Joseph Auslander. 1931 Longmans $2.50 851
31-28480
"A great Italian lyric poet of the fourteenth century. His work is marked by perfection of material form and the choicest and purest language. Beside being a great poet Petrarch was the first true reviver of learning in medieval Europe." Pratt alcove
"Mr. Auslander has verily made his own the spirit of the poet. As we read his lines, then we follow close upon the varied turns of Petrarch's emotional course. That the English sonnets tell the same tale as the Italian ones can be said without reservation." C. H. Grandgent in Sat. rev. of lit.
Two other collections from Petrarch, both unfortunately out of print, 1933, are: "Sonnets, triumphs, and other poems; tr. into English verse by various hands, with a life of the poet by Thomas Campbell" (1912 Bell, G.) formerly published in Bohn's library and a very desirable edition; and "Some love songs" translated by W. D. Foulke (1915 Oxford) arranged by subject and with an index

Tasso, Torquato
Jerusalem delivered; tr. into English Spenserian verse by J. H. Wiffen. (Bohn's lib.) 1913 Bell, G. o.p. 1933 851
17-21272
The last of the four great Italian poets. The story of his heroic poem is the liberation of Jerusalem under Godfrey of Bouillon in the crusade of the 11th century. It is religious in tone, marked by beautiful romantic episodes, vivid characterizations, and fine poetic quality. Wiffen's translation is standard

Oxford book of Italian verse, XIIIth century-XIXth century; comp. by St John Lucas. 1910 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 851.08
1 Italian poetry—Collections 24-5072
Altho in general this catalog contains only books in English, an exception has been made in the case of the Oxford anthologies of verse in the original languages. This collection contains 345 lyrics by about 100 poets, with an introduction and useful notes

851.09 Italian poetry—History and criticism

Everett, William
Italian poets since Dante. 1904 Scribner o.p. 1933 851.09
1 Italian poetry—Hist. & crit. 4-32197
"Petrarca, Pulci, Boliardo, Berni, Ariosto, Vittoria Colonna, Michelangelo, Tasso, Marina, and the dramatists Goldoni and Alfieri are among the writers concerning whom Dr Everett discourses with fine academic appreciation and a charming disregard of modern criticism." N.Y. Times
The text is interspersed with excellent translations by the author to illustrate his points

Kuhns, Levi Oscar
* Great poets of Italy, together with a brief connecting sketch of Italian literature. 1903 Houghton $2.50 851.09
1 Italian poetry—Hist. & crit. 3-28120
Contents: Origins of Italian literature; Dante, his life and minor works; Divine comedy; Petrarch and Boccaccio; Renaissance; Ariosto; Tasso; Period of decadence and the revival; Nineteenth century
Contains metrical translations of many extracts from longer works and a number of complete short poems

851.15 Dante

If more material than we have listed on Dante is needed, the following will be found useful:
Eliot, T. S. Dante. (Poets on the poets) 1929 Faber 3s 6d Inspiring both as an appreciation and as an incentive to learn to read Dante in the original
Ragg, Lonsdale. Dante and his Italy. 1907 Methuen o.p. 1933 Interesting and helpful
Additional material on Dante may be found in class 92

Dante Alighieri
La divina commedia; The Divine comedy; a line-for-line translation in the rime-form of the original, by M. B. Anderson. 1921 World bk. $4 851.15
22-2333
A good verse translation, the work of twenty years. The same translation is available in the World's classics (3v Oxford ea 80c; ea 2s, 3v in 1 8s 6d)

Dante, Alighieri—Continued

Another modern rhymed translation is "Divine comedy; tr. by J. B. Fletcher" (1933 Macmillan $2.50) which uses rimed first and third lines and an unrimed second line, reviewed by C. H. Grandgent as the best translation. This translation was first issued in 1931 by Macmillan in a $5 edition with illustrations from drawings by Botticelli. The illustrations are not included in the cheaper edition

* Divine comedy; the Carlyle-Wicksteed translation, introd. by C. H. Grandgent. 1932 Modern lib. 95c 851.15

32-35908

The translation of The Inferno is by John Arthur Carlyle; of the Purgatorio by Thomas Okey and of the Paradiso by Philip Henry Wicksteed. Published in 1899-1901 as the English part of the Temple classics edition and heretofore available only in the 3v edition

"All the translators employ prose, of a more or less rhythmic strength; and no less a judge than T. S. Eliot has recently declared that 'for any one who can follow the Italian even grop-ingly the Temple translation is the best' available in English." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Divine comedy; Cary's translation, rev. with an introduction by M.-L. E. Castle. (Bohn's popular lib.) 1909 Harcourt 85c; Bell, G. 2s 851.15

[26-14942]

A beautiful rendering, distinguished by exalted passages. Cary was a friend of Coleridge and Lamb, who regarded his translation highly. In this edition there is a brief biographical sketch by Marie-Louise Egerton Castle, followed by a chronological view of the age of Dante. The text is accompanied by numerous footnotes

The same translation may be obtained also in Everyman's library (1908 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Dante, by J. J. Chapman. 1927 Houghton $2.50 851.15

27-9466

A rendering, rather as paraphrase than as translation, of favorite passages of the Divine comedy, with notes and memoranda, followed by essays on Dante as a human character. Condensed from Preface

‡ Divine comedy; tr. by H. W. Longfellow. 1895 Houghton $4 851.15

16-3553

This edition has copious notes in an appendix, quotations from critical essays and illustrations, and an index to proper names

Longfellow, a gifted translator, made this translation in blank verse which resembles the original in meter and spirit. In addition, his version is notable for its smoothness and ease

Divine comedy; tr. by C. E. Norton. complete ed 3v in 1 1920 Houghton $3 851.15

2-7632

"The thought is perhaps best revealed in Norton's prose translation." Trinity college list

Minor poems; tr. into English verse by Lorna de' Lucchi. 1926 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 851.15

27-16856

"A translation of all of Dante's minor works, in which there is 'poetical merit aplenty,' a 'plastic and lyrical quality.' The sonnets have been cast into the English form for aesthetic reasons, but the translator has otherwise kept the original metres." Providence

* New life; tr. by C. E. Norton. 3d ed 1895 Houghton $2.50 851.15

3-13747

An excellent version of this earliest of Dante's writings. The translator includes three essays, On the new life, The Convito and The Vita nuova, and On the structure of the Vita nuova. There are explanatory notes to the translation

D. G. Rossetti's translation of the "Vita nuova" is included in his "Poems" listed in class 821. Separate editions of the Rossetti translation were formerly published by Mosher (1896) and Brentano's (1914) but these are both out of print, 1933

Curtayne, Alice

Recall to Dante. 1932 Macmillan $1.75; Sheed 6s 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri 32-25010

"These essays on Dante put emphasis on the background of his Catholic faith and in his appeal to Catholic readers, but any cultured person will find them readable. For the student they will provide an approach to the poet, with an important chapter on Dante in English." Wis. bul.

Dinsmore, Charles Allen

(comp.) Aids to the study of Dante. 1903 Houghton $3 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri 3-22092

A compilation of biographical, critical and documentary matter grouped under the heads Times of Dante, Sources of our knowledge of Dante, Dante's personal appearance, Vita nuova, Minor works, Divina commedia, and Interpretations. The selections include Boccaccio's Vita di Dante, the letter to Can Grande, and excerpts from Thomas Aquinas, Bruni, C. E. Norton, Witte, Dean Church, and other scholars

The same author's "Teachings of Dante" (1901 Houghton o.p. 1933) is an earnest and enthusiastic attempt to set forth the spiritual truths of the Divine comedy

Grandgent, Charles Hall

Dante. (Master spirits of literature) 1916 Duffield $2.50 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri 16-23422

Dante is here considered not as an independent figure but as the mouthpiece of his age. Translated passages are cited to illustrate how completely he mirrored the social, political, and theological temper of the day

Power of Dante. 1918 Jones, Marshall $2 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri 18-23386

"No better book can be put into the hands of students who are for the first time to take up the reading of Dante either in the original or in translation. Prof. Grandgent's enthusiasm is contagious. He is sincere in his admiration and conviction and he adds definitely to the vast literature of Dante." Boston Transcript

"Among the pleasantest features of the book are the many graceful and scholarly translations by Mr Grandgent in Dante's own meter." Dial

Symonds, John Addington

* Introduction to the study of Dante. 4th ed 1899 Macmillan $3; Black, A. & C. 7s 6d 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri W10-54

First edition, 1872. The 3d edition, published in 1893, was corrected, and its preface was the last thing written by Symonds. This 4th edition differs from the 3d only by the addition of a short preface by H. F. Brown. In his delightful style the author summarizes the historical background, the main events of Dante's life, the subject and scheme of the "Divine comedy," the qualities of Dante's genius, and the poetry of chivalrous love

Toynbee, Paget Jackson

Concise dictionary of proper names and notable matters in the works of Dante. 1914 Oxford $3.50; 10s 6d 851.15

1 Dante Alighieri 14-12662

"Based upon his larger work, 1898, but not a mere abridgment, as it includes some names and material not included in the earlier work, omits names in one poem now known not to have been written by Dante and brings other matter in line with more recent information. Conciseness is attained by judicious condensation rather than by omission of anything vital." Mudge

852 ITALIAN DRAMA

Annunzio, Gabriele d'

* Francesca da Rimini; tr. by Arthur Symons. 1902 Stokes $1.25 852

2-25299

An impressive re-telling of the old story of Paola and Francesca. Here Francesca considers herself tricked into marriage, and glories in her intrigue with her husband's younger brother, Paola

Gioconda; tr. by Arthur Symons. Heinemann o.p. 1933 852

[3-17216]

Presents the problem of the relation between the artist and society, in a drama which is moving because of the author's intense feeling for individualism in the creative artist. The principal characters are Lucio, a sculptor, his intelligent and devoted wife, Sylvia, and his beautiful model, La Gioconda. Lucio's wife is necessary to him for material well-being, but La Gioconda, who fills a spiritual need, is even more important to him, and in spite of Sylvia's sacrifice for him, he chooses the latter

His "Dead city; tr. by G. E. F. Mantellini" (1902 Laidlaw) is unfortunately also out of print, 1933. It is in tone and method a Greek tragedy in modern idiom, with the scene laid in Sicily

Giacosa, Giuseppe

Stronger, Like falling leaves, Sacred ground; tr. by Edith and Allan Updegraff. (Modern drama ser.) 1913 Little o.p. 1933 852

13-25735

"Stronger" is a drama of idealism in conflict with materialism. "Like falling leaves" portrays the effects of a reversal of family fortunes. "Sacred ground" is a plea for feminism

"It was Giacosa who, more than any other, infused a true Italian element into his best plays; he did much to free the stage of his country from French adaptations and pseudo-French 'triangle' plays." B. H. Clark's Study of the modern drama

Goldoni, Carlo

Coffee-house; a comedy in three acts; tr. by H. B. Fuller. (World's best plays by celebrated European authors) 1925 French pa 50c 852

26-2285

This dramatist of the 18th century substituted comedy drawn from life for the old commedia dell 'arte, and thus became the father of modern Italian comedy. The survival of his plays is due to his comic situations, amusing dialog, and convincing if not profound characterization

Another of his comedies which is amusing both for reading and for stage presentation is "Curious mishap; a comedy in three acts; ed. by R. D. T. Hallister" (1924 Wahr $1). It is published in the series called Play production plays

Machiavelli, Niccolò

Mandragola; tr. by Stark Young. 1927 Macaulay o.p. 1933 852

27-23942

"Macaulay's very fluent and enlightening essay on Machiavelli, an Italian statesman and writer whose name awakens a feeling of interest, if not admiration, is followed by this brilliant comedy, which, the author of the preface states, 'marks the renaissance of the modern Italian drama'. . . So far as is known, this is the first translation into English of 'Mandragola,' a translation that apparently reproduces well the light and witty, at times satiric, yet not superficial, atmosphere and dialogue of the original." Providence

Pirandello, Luigi

One-act plays; ed. by Arthur Livingston; tr. by Elisabeth Abbott, Arthur Livingston and B. V. Mitchell. 1928 Dutton $2.50 852

28-8379

Contents: Imbecile; By judgment of court; Our lord of the ship; Doctor's duty; Chee-Chee; Man with the flower in his mouth; At the gate; Vise; House with the column; Sicilian limes; Jar

"With a few exceptions, tragedy and mystical psychology are the keynotes of these eleven plays. 'Chee-Chee' and 'The jar' are humorous and might be used by amateurs." Cleveland

‡ Three plays. 1922 Dutton $2.50; Dent 6s 852

22-23819

"The three plays of Pirandello, here offered in translations, are famous specimens of the 'new' theatre in Italy. Pirandello and his associates have broken the bounds set to the old fashioned 'sentimental' Latin play. 'Six characters in search of an author' has won a distinguished place in the dramatic literature of the Western world, attracting audiences and engaging intellects far removed from the particular influences which made of it a season's sensation in Italy. 'Henry IV,' strong and original variation of the insanity motive, is the first of two plays by Pirandello dealing with a special aspect of the problem of reality and unreality. 'Right you are' is typical of Pirandello for its rapidity, its harshness and its violence—the skill with which the tense tableau is drawn out of pure dialectic, pure 'conversation.'" Arthur Livingston in Prefatory note

"Pirandello is an evasive and subtle writer for translation. Both Edward Storer in 'Six characters' and in 'Henry IV,' and Arthur Livingston in 'Right you are!' have brought the understanding which comes from real appreciation to their translations of Pirandello." N.Y. Times

Two other plays by this author are "As you desire me (Come tu mi vuoi)" (1931 Dutton $2.50) on the identity of a young bride lost for ten years; and "Tonight we improvise" (1932 Dutton $2.50) a satiric tragedy in which the puppet characters insist on changing their roles and directing their own actions. Both are translated by Samuel Putnam

MacClintock, Lander
Contemporary drama of Italy. (Contemporary drama ser.) 1920 Little o.p. 1933 852.09

1 Italian drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Theater—Italy 20-1987

Beginning with the forerunners of present day Italian drama—Goldoni in comedy, Alfieri in tragedy, and Manzoni, the first modern dramatist—the book discusses Giacosa, the realists, D'Annunzio, Bracco, actors and acting, the younger generation, futurism and other isms

"His book is excellent in every way, a model for the other contributors to the Contemporary drama series. It is founded upon indefatigable investigation, at once broad and deep. It is informed with a fine critical spirit. It is logically planned and proportioned. It is written in clear English. And it is as unfailingly interesting as it is unhesitatingly instructive." "The plan of this outline has been 'to relate Spanish literature to the geographic, ethnic, social, and historic facts which have determined it,' and to stress the evolution and development of the great schools of writing as they have appeared. The book thus sketches the history of Spanish literature from its beginnings to modern writers of note, furnishing biographical data concerning the writers, and a sketch of their important works, and wherever possible grouping authors in the schools to which they belong." Book rev. digest

"The great merit of his new history of Spanish literature is that it gives due recognition to the work of living Spanish scholars." Times (London) lit. sup.

861 SPANISH POETRY

Cid Campeador

Lay of the Cid; tr. into English verse by R. S. Rose and Leonard Bacon. 1919 Univ. of Calif. $1.25 861

A19-388

This ancient epic celebrates the patriotism and achievements of the hero of the chivalrous age of Spain, Rodrigo Diaz, who vanquished five Moorish kings and received from them the title El Seid, or My Lord. By the Spaniards he was called El Cid Campeador, or the Lord Champion.

Another translation, less readable, but valuable, is "Poem of the Cid" (3v 1921 Hispanic soc. o.p. 1933) in the series, Hispanic notes & monographs. Contents: v 1 Text, reprinted from the unique manuscript at Madrid; v2 Translation, by A. M. Huntington; v3 Notes, by A. M. Huntington

Tale of the warrior lord; El Cantar de mio Cid; tr. by Merriam Sherwood. 1930 Longmans $2.50 861

30-26902

"A new edition of the story of the Cid, for the translation of which the author has gone back to the original Spanish sources. The story begins at the time of the banishment of the Cid from the dominions of King Alfonso, and deals chiefly with Moorish campaigns, culminating in the conquest of Valencia." Book rev. digest

"'The Tale of the Warrior Lord' has certain outstanding assets in its favor; first of all, a happily chosen title, and secondly, a format worthy of the subject. This version would seem to belong to boys and girls of high school age rather than to younger children. For them it has a value both as a reproduction of a famous medieval poem and as an illustration of the manners and customs and the ideas of morality of the time of its origin." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Blackwell, Alice Stone

(tr.) Some Spanish-American poets. 1929 Appleton-Century $3; 12s 6d 861.08

1 Spanish American poetry—Collections 29-16314

Anthology of over 200 poems, the work of 89 poets representing 19 Spanish-American countries. Spanish originals and English translations appear on opposite pages, and the introduction by Isaac Goldberg is in both languages as well. Among the famous poets included are Rubén Darío of Nicaragua, José Santos Chocano of Peru, Amado Nervo of Mexico and Gabriela Mistral of Chile

"There is but one regret about Miss Blackwell's volume: the failure to include longer pieces leads to the misleading impression that Spanish-American poets are incapable of sustained work, an impression contrary to fact. The volume remains the only available one in which Spanish text and English translation appear together." Boston Transcript

Oxford book of Spanish verse. XIIIth century-XXth century; chosen by James Fitzmaurice-Kelly. 1913 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 861.08

1 Spanish poetry—Collections 14-8971

Books in foreign languages are not included in this catalog, but because of the well rounded selection in the Oxford anthologies, these books have been made an exception to the rule. This collection has an introduction and notes in English

"The ancient poems, beginning with 'Razon de amor,' are given without modernization; but from the time of Cervantes, with whom modern Spanish literature may be said to begin, the system of spelling and accentuation authorized by the Royal Spanish academy has been adopted." Outlook

Underwood, Mrs Edna (Worthley)

(tr.) Anthology of Mexican poets from the earliest times to the present day. 1932 Mosher $5 861.08

1 Mexican poetry 2 Poets, Mexican 32-34922

"We have here not only the material for an acquaintance with Mexican poetry, but excellent material for comparative study of modern Mexican and modern American poetry. . . . Both the older and the younger poets are skillful technicians, profoundly aware of tradition in literature, influenced, it seems very likely, by the French and English schools of writing as well as by their own Spanish writers." Álvarez Quintero, Serafín, and Álvarez Quintero, Joaquín

Four comedies; tr. by Helen and Harley Granville-Barker. 1932 French $2.50; Sidgwick 10s 6d 862

32-24258

Contents: Love passes by; Don Abel wrote a tragedy; Peace and quiet; Doña Clarines

Four plays; in English versions by Helen and Harley Granville-Barker. 1928 Little $2.50; Sidgwick 10s 6d 862

[28-1424]

The brothers Quintero are leading playwrights in Spain, with a hundred and fifty plays to their credit during many years of collaboration. The four plays here presented are Andalusian idylls, comedies of small-town life in Spain, sunny and light-hearted. Contents: Women have their way; Hundred years old; Fortunato; Lady from Alfaqueque

"'The women have their way' tells how a young man, coming from Madrid to an Andalusian town, is edged into a betrothal by the gossip of the women. It is 'the tragedy of El Gran Galeoto turned to laughter.' In 'A hundred years old' Papa Juan celebrates his hundredth birthday. 'Fortunato' portrays the plight of a deserving man who cannot earn a living for himself and his children. 'The lady from Alfaqueque' is a satire on provincial clannishness." Cleveland

Benavente y Martínez, Jacinto

Plays, first-fourth series; tr. by J. G. Underhill. 4v 1917-24 Scribner v 1, 3-4 ea $2.50; ea 10s 6d, v2 o.p. 1933 862

(17-14010)

While the whole series is not starred here, it is recommended that one or more volumes be considered for first purchase

Contents: ser 1 His widow's husband, Bonds of interest, Evil doers of good, La malquerida; ser 2 Benaventiana, No smoking, Princess Bebé, Governor's wife, Autumnal roses; ser 3 Theory and criticism, Prince who learned everything out of books, Saturday night, In the clouds, Truth; ser 4 On the theatre and anti-theatre, School of princesses, Lady, Magic of an hour, Field of ermine

"Plays that read easily in translation. Of interest to study clubs and others who enjoy reading plays with good dialog and underlying thought." Wis. bul.

Calderón de la Barca, Pedro

Eight dramas; tr. by Edward Fitzgerald. 1906 Macmillan o.p. 1933 862

7-15535

Contents: Painter of his own dishonour; Keep your own secret; Gil Perez, the Gallician; Three judgments at a blow; Mayor of Zalamea; Beware of smooth water; Mighty magician; Such stuff as dreams are made of

This prolific dramatist of the 17th century is typical of his age, and much given to borrowing from other writers In spite of his limitations as a creator of real characters, he is one of Spain's greatest dramatists, because of the perfection, grace, and lyric splendor of his work

All but the last two plays in this volume are to be found also in the Everyman's library edition of "Rubaiyat & six plays of Calderon, tr. by Edward Fitzgerald" (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s)

Echegaray y Eizaguirre, José

Great Galeoto; a drama in three acts and a prologue; tr. by J. S. Fassett, jr. (Contemporary dramatists ser.) 1914 Humphries $1.25 862

14-14369

Publisher reports temporarily out of stock, 1933

"The 'great Galeoto' of this play, translated from the Spanish, is Everybody. He is the They of 'They say.' He acts 'without passion, without guile, often for mere distraction's sake.' And so it is that he acts in this drama in which a happy home and three happy lives are wrecked thru the influence of curious eyes and thoughtless, chattering tongues." Book rev. digest

Another good translation is "Great Galeoto; tr. by Hannah Lynch" (1914 Doubleday, Page o.p. 1933). This was issued in the Drama league series of plays

Martínez Sierra, Gregorio

* Cradle song, and other plays; tr. by J. G. Underhill. 1929 Dutton $2 862

29-26481

Formerly published as v 1 of "Plays of G. Martinez Sierra"

Contents: Introduction; Cradle song (Canción de cuna); Lover (El enamorado); Love magic (Hechizo de amor); Poor John (El pobrecito Juan); Madame Pepita, tr. in collaboration with May Heywood Broun

"Tender sentiment and the gentle vagaries of simple hearts mark these three one-act comedies and two longer plays. The title play had a large success on the New York stage." Pittsburgh

Kingdom of God, and other plays; tr. by Helen and Harley Granville-Barker. 1922 Dutton $2; Sidgwick 3s 6d 862

29-26482

Formerly published as v2 of "Plays of G. Martinez Sierra"

Contents: Introduction; Kingdom of God (El reino de Dios); Two shepherds (Los pastores); Wife to a famous man (La mujer del héroe); Romantic young lady (Sueño de una noche de agosto)

The first two plays are simple, direct and realistic dramas of religious life. The last two are comedies, one concerned with the working classes and the other a witty but sentimental popular play

862.08 Spanish drama—Collections

Clark, Barrett Harper

‡ (ed.) Masterpieces of modern Spanish drama. new ed 1922 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 862.08

22-2068

Contents: Great Galeoto, by José Echegaray y Eizaguirre, tr. by Eleanor Bontecou; Duchess of San Quentin, by Benita Pérez-Galdós, tr. by P. M. Hayden; Daniela, by Angel Guimerá, tr. by J. G. Underhill

"Despite their differences Echegaray, Galdós and Guimerá are all essentially Spanish. The first exemplifies nationalism and internationalism, nationalism in subject matter and internationalism in manner of presentation; the second the tendency to depict soberly, skillfully, deeply, the life of the Spaniard of today; the third, nationalism of a particular section." Preface

C. A. Turrell's "Contemporary Spanish dramatists; tr. into English" (1919 Badger o.p. 1933) is a representative collection of plays by Pérez Galdós, Linares Rivas, Álvarez Quintero, Marquina, Zamacois and Dicenta. It is well worth

864 SPANISH ESSAYS

Unamuno y Jugo, Miguel de
Essays and soliloquies; tr. by J. E. C. Flitch. 1925 Knopf $3 864

25-9001

Selections from the writings of a Spanish novelist and philosopher, now exiled to an island off the coast of Spain, because of his political views

"As a revelation of an eager, inquiring and warm-hearted spirit, this book is uncommonly readable, and it gains in interest from the light which it throws upon a distinguished and representative Spaniard's hostility towards 'Europeanization.'" Nation and Athenaeum

869 PORTUGUESE LITERATURE

Bell, Aubrey Fitz Gerald
Portuguese literature. 1922 Oxford $7; 21s 869

1 Portuguese literature 22-12776

"The historian rather than primarily the appraiser of Portuguese letters. The book bears the stamp of quiet, soundly supported scholarship and will appeal chiefly to students in quest of a solid background for the more amenable fields of aesthetic appreciation." I. Goldberg in Literary rev.

Goldberg, Isaac
Brazilian literature. 1922 Knopf o.p. 1933 869

1 Brazilian literature 22-21940

"The book is a contribution to the centenary commemoration of Brazilian independence. Part one is an outline history of Brazilian literature, giving its racial and traditional background and its various phases from 1500 to the present. Part two is a series of critical essays on representative literary personalities: Castro Alves, Machado de Assis, José Verissimo, Olavo Bilac, Euclydes da Cunha, Oliveira Lima, Graça Aranha, Coelho Netto, Francisca Julia, and Monteiro Lobato. Selective bibliography, index." Book rev. digest

Oxford book of Portuguese verse, XIIth century-XXth century; chosen by Aubrey F. G. Bell. 1925 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 869

1 Portuguese poetry 26-1856

Altho in general this catalog contains only books in English, an exception has been made in the case of the Oxford anthologies of verse in the original languages

"An anthology of the best in Portuguese poetry—old love songs, lyrics, ballads, as well as modern examples—ranging from the twelfth to the twentieth century. The original text is used. No translations." Bkl.

Young, Sir George, bart.
(ed. and tr.) Portugal, an anthology. 1916 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 869

1 Portuguese poetry 16-15113

"Aims at presenting only such poetry of Portugal as is really racy of the soil. Consequently several well-known writers are not included." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The authors chiefly represented are Gil Vicente, Camoens, João de Deus Ramos, Anthero de Quental, and Guerro Junqueiro, and a number of old and modern ballads and hymns of the revolution and the republic are given (three with music). The translations are on the pages facing the originals, and there are brief introductions, footnotes, and an index." Library association record

870 LATIN LITERATURE

The Loeb classical library edited by E. Capps, T. E. Page and W. H. D. Rouse (Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s) formerly carried by Putnam, is a series of several hundred volumes of Greek and Latin texts with English translations on opposite pages. This library, founded by James Loeb, is to include "everything of real importance from Homer to the fall of Constantinople." Most of the familiar Latin masterpieces have already appeared, and more are being added every year, many freshly translated for this series. Any library where there is a demand for classical authors not included in the Standard catalog will be safe in buying the Loeb edition. Each volume contains a brief biography and bibliography

Large libraries or others especially interested in the classics will find useful F. S. Smith's "Classics in translation; an annotated guide to the best translations of the Greek and Latin classics into English" (1930 Scribner $3; 12s 6d)

870.8 Latin literature—Collections

Bailey, Cyril
(ed.) Mind of Rome. 1926 Oxford $3.50; 8s 6d 870.8

1 Latin literature—Collections 27-6676

Contents: Introduction, by Cyril Bailey; Verse: Epic, by A. N. Bryan-Brown; Lyrics and occasional verse, by J. Bell; Didactic poetry, by C. Bailey; Elegiac, by A. N. Bryan-Brown; Drama, by J. G. Barrington-Ward; Bucolic, by M. Platnauer; Verse and prose: Story-telling and the novel, by T. F. Higham; Satire, by T. F. Higham; Letter-writing, by J. Bell; Literary criticism, by J. G. Barrington-Ward; Prose: History, by M. Platnauer; Oratory, by C. Bailey; Philosophy, by C. Bailey; Science, by H. E. Butler and Charles Singer

"The 'Mind of Rome' is an anthology culled from the writings, in poetry and prose, of Roman authors down to Apuleius, arranged according to subject and strung together by brief outlines of the history of each branch of literature, in the composition of which a group of scholars of the younger generation have had a hand. As it is intended for those who have no Latin, the extracts are given in English versions, generally taken from well-known translations." Times (London) lit. sup.

This book is a companion to R. W. Livingstone's "Pageant of Greece" (class 880.8)

Howe, George, and Harrer, Gustave Adolphus
* (eds.) Roman literature in translation. (Spirit of the classics) 1924 Harper $3.50 870.8

1 Latin literature—Collections 24-28253

A fairly comprehensive anthology containing over 600 pages of standard translations, designed to trace the course of national life and development as well as literary history. The selections are less fragmentary than those in the collection of Dora Pym, and the book contains good historical, biographical and critical notes, and an index of authors and titles (in English)

Pym, Dora
(ed.) Readings from the literature of ancient Rome; in English translations. textbook ed 1923 Harcourt $1.60; Harrap 5s 870.8

1 Latin literature—Collections 23-27447

"Well chosen collection of readings for those who must read in translation. Might be used with high school students but is better adapted to the adult who realizes he has missed the culture of the classics." Wis. bul.

Contains many well known translations, but is not very inclusive for the authors represented

870.9 Latin literature—History and criticism

Duff, John Wight
Literary history of Rome, from the origins to the close of the golden age. (Lib. of literary history) 2d ed 1910 Scribner $2.75; Benn 21s 870.9

1 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. [15-7470]

The second edition has a few slight corrections. Gives biography, criticism and appreciations of authors to the end of the Augustan age. Quotations are in English, with the Latin text in footnotes

"Occasionally Duff gets involved in an enumeration of minor authors which may be largely skipped. But the work is an excellent orientation over all Latin literature." Trinity college list

His "Writers of Rome" in the series of World's manuals (1923 Oxford $1; 2s 6d) is a small, inexpensive account that some small libraries might find suffucient. It covers the period from 240 B.C. to 117 A.D., including Cicero, Caesar, Ovid, Cato, Virgil, Tacitus, and others

Fowler, Harold North
History of Roman literature. 2d ed 1923 Macmillan $2.50; 12s 6d 870.9

1 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. 23-5781

"This is little more than a reprint of the first edition [1903] the chief change being in the Bibliography which has, I hope, been in some measure brought up to date. In the text only a few minor corrections have been made." Preface to the second edition

A standard history, useful for reference because it contains dates and details about both those writers whose works are extant and also those whose writings are lost. There are numerous extracts, for the most part in translation. The book covers the period from the 3d century B.C. to Boëthius in the 6th century A.D.

Frank, Tenney
Life and literature in the Roman republic. (Sather classical lectures) 1930 Univ. of Calif. $3.50; Cambridge univ. press 15s 870.9

1 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. 30-30200

"In this book of eight chapters, which were originally lectures, one of the foremost classical scholars of America . . . invites us to consider some of the earlier Latin authors, not as subjects for verbal or aesthetic criticism, but as products of a social environment to the needs and demands of which they are expressions of a response." Times (London) lit. sup.

Contents: Introduction: social forces; Early tragedy and epic; Greek comedy on the Roman stage; Terence and his successors; Prose of the Roman statesmen; Republican historiography and Livy; Cicero's response to experience; Lucretius and his readers

Hamilton, Edith
* Roman way. 1932 Norton $3; Dent 8s 6d 870.9

1 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Rome—Civilization 32-28015

An interpretation of Roman life from the descriptions in the works of great writers from Plautus and Terence to Virgil and Juvenal

"Few books in this field can be read with more ease and pleasure. It was written apparently with enthusiasm and a sufficiently competent mastery of the material." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Mackail, John William
Classical studies. 1925 Macmillan $2.50; Murray, J. 7s 6d 870.9

1 Classical philology 2 Classical literature—Hist. & crit. 3 Classical education [26-4390]

"These scholarly studies are 'not a defence of the classics,' says the author, 'but an attempt to set forth what the classics are, and in what their value lies.' In a pleasing style he brings out their vitality, discusses the character of Penelope, Virgil's Italy, and Horace's Odes and the relation of patriotism to the classics." Cleveland

* Latin literature. (University ser.) 1895 Scribner $1.75; Murray, J. 5s 870.9

1 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. 4-14040

A history, in three parts; the Republic, the Augustan age and the Empire. Under each there are chapters on prose, poetry, the drama, with separate chapters for leading writers. The final chapter is on the beginnings of the middle ages. Index of authors

871 LATIN POETRY

Lucretius
De rerum natura; with an English tr. by W. H. D. Rouse. (Loeb classical lib.) 2d ed rev 1928 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 871

25-4961

Latin original and English prose translation on opposite pages. Short index to proper names

"Revises somewhat the older translation in Munro's famous edition. This poem, 'On the nature of things,' combines the most sublime of Latin poetry with an atomic theory and scientific attitude that seem modern." Trinity college list

Ovid
* Metamorphoses; with an English tr. by F. J. Miller. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1916 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 871

16-14341

This edition gives the original side by side with a literal translation in prose, also a short biographical introduction and an excellent index. The Latin text is based on that of Ehwald

"Professional men of letters have always liked Ovid for his sincerity, his vivacity, his imagination. His imagination is at its best in the 'Metamorphoses' in which he put together many of the Greek and Graeco-Roman myths... Perhaps Ovid never wrote a stunningly great line... but he was a born story-teller and a poet of really extraordinary facility. His work as a whole had an incalculable influence on the literature of modern countries, unsurpassed even by the influence of Virgil." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

"Ovid; with an English translation by A. L. Wheeler" (1924 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s), another volume of the Loeb classical library, contains books I-V of "Trista" and I-IV of "Ex Ponto"

Rand, Edward Kennard
Ovid and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1925 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 871

1 Ovid 26-754

"The volume does perfectly what it is supposed to do. In the first place it tells most readably who Ovid was and what kind of poetry he wrote, and, in the second place, it traces the steps of his great influence through European literature down as far as today—ending with a statement of what he might mean to any contemporary so fortunate as to take him up." Nation

871.09 Latin poetry—History and criticism

Sellar, William Young

* Roman poets of the Republic. 3d ed 1889 Oxford $3.50; 10s 6d 871.09

1 Latin poetry—Hist. & crit. 4-14043

There are excellent chapters on the character of Roman poetry, followed by more detailed criticism of Ennius, Plautus, Terence, Lucilius, Lucretius, Catullus, and some lesser known poets

"Will appeal to students who know a little Latin, and is of high value as literary criticism." Trinity college list

The same author has two other equally good volumes, "Roman poets of the Augustan age: Horace and the elegiac poets" (2d ed 1899 Oxford $3.50; 10s 6d) and "Roman poets of the Augustan age: Virgil" (3d ed 1897 Oxford $3.50; 10s 6d)

Sikes, Edward Ernest

Roman poetry. 1923 Dutton $2.75; Methuen 8s 6d 871.09

1 Latin poetry—Hist. & crit. [23-18649]

"The book is not a history of Latin poetry but rather a group of essays on the theory of Latin poetry as revealed by its critics and the place of the poet as an interpreter of Roman life. The essays discuss also the influence of nature and of philosophy on Roman poetry, language and style in Latin verse and its ornaments—repetition, alliteration and assonance." Book rev. digest

"A very charming feature is a series of the author's own versions, in fluent verse, of many of the more familiar poems of Virgil, Horace and Lucretius, as well as the work of some of the later and less known writers." N.Y. Times

872 Latin drama

Plautus

Three plays; tr. by F. A. Wright and H. L. Rogers. (Broadway translations) 1925 Dutton $2.50; Routledge 7s 6d 872

25-17657

Contents: Slip-knot (Rudens), tr. by F. A. Wright; Crock of gold (Aulularia), tr. by H. L. Rogers; Trickster (Pseudolus), tr. by H. L. Rogers

Three of the best known out of 20 surviving plays by the Roman comedy writer. This edition has 47p of introduction on Plautus and the Plautine theater

An excellent complete edition of Plautus is being published in the Loeb classical library: "Plautus; with an English translation by Paul Nixon" (v 1-4 1916-32 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s). To be complete in 5v. This edition has the Latin and the translation on opposite pages for comparison

Terence

Terence; with an English tr. by John Sargeaunt. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1912 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 872

13-5588

Contents: v 1 Lady of Andros, Self-tormentor, Eunuch; v2 Phormio, Mother-in-law, Brothers

These six plays are all that Terence wrote. A slave in the house of a Roman senator, he led a quieter life than Plautus, and his comedies are more refined in taste and elegant in language. They are in spirit derived from Greek literature rather than from life itself

872.09 Latin drama—History and criticism

Norwood, Gilbert

Plautus and Terence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1932 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 872.09

1 Plautus 2 Terence 3 Latin drama—Hist. & crit. 32-16028

A readable and enlightening discussion of Plautus and Terence as dramatists. An appendix lists English plays influenced by the plays of Plautus and Terence

873 Latin epic poetry: Virgil

Virgil

Aeneid; tr. by H. H. Ballard. 3d ed 1930 Scribner $1 873

[11-24096]

This edition is identical with that of 1911, with the exception of 6 lines. The notes were prepared primarily for students of the 8th and 9th grades

"A successful rendering in hexameters... Lacking something of the grandeur of the classic translations, it yet combines faithfulness and ease... Its great merit is in its 'readableness.'" F. S. Smith's Classics in translation

Aeneid; tr. by T. C. Williams. (Riverside literature ser.) 1910 Houghton $1.08 873

10-8062

This is a verse translation, praised for both accuracy and poetic quality. The introduction gives a sketch of Virgil's life and position, while the appendix contains questions and suggestions for the student, and a very useful pronouncing dictionary of proper names

"The idea and plan of the Aeneid are derived from Homer... The arrival of Aeneas in Italy after the destruction of Troy, the obstacles that opposed him through the intervention of Juno, and the adventures and the victories of the hero form the subject of the poem... Though the poem of Virgil is in many passages an imitation from the Iliad and the Odyssey, the Roman element predominates in it and the Aeneid is the true national poem of Rome." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature

Eclogues and Georgics; tr. by J. W. Mackail. new ed 1915 Longmans $1.40 873

A16-508

"Prose translation of the 'Eclogues' sometimes called the 'Bucolics' taking the form of pastoral dialogues between Greek shepherds; also of the 'Georgics' which treats in succession of crops, orchards and vineyards, herds and flocks, and lastly bees. The 'Eclogues' were doubtless modeled by Virgil upon the Idyls of Theocritus. These pastorals are the survivals of the earliest written poems of Virgil." Pratt alcove

"In this re-issue, the translation has been modified so far as was necessary to bring it into accordance with what at present may be regarded as the standard text of Virgil." Translator's note

* Virgil; with an English tr. by H. R. Fairclough. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1916-18 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 873

(24-18341)

Contents: v 1 Eclogues, Georgics, Aeneid I-VI; v2 Aeneid VII-XII, Minor poems: Culex, Ciris, Copa, Moretum, Dirae, Lydia, Priapea, Catalepton

Virgil—Continued

Prose translations, with the English facing the Latin text. The translations are more literal than literary, but accurate. Index to proper

Works; tr. by John Dryden. (World's classics) Oxford 80c; 2s 873

Glover, Terrot Reaveley

Virgil. 6th ed 1930 Macmillan $4; Methuen 10s 6d 873

1 Virgil [A13-2684]

First published in 1904 with title: "Studies in Virgil." Successive editions have apparently included few changes beyond new prefaces

"Studies which are the direct result of years of teaching, shaped by two aims: to direct students' attention to the human value of Virgil's work both for the Roman world in which he was 'the great voice of hope and gladness,' and for the world of today; to develop taste and feeling for Virgil's 'Aeneid' as literature whose vitality has made it a classic. In scholarly but interesting fashion with many footnotes the author discusses the various Aeneas myths, Roman life in the Augustan age and Virgil's place in it, Rome and the Roman Empire, and Virgil's interpretation of life. His conclusions are in the orthodox tradition of Sellar, Nettleship and Sainte-Beuve." Cleveland

Mackail, John William

‡ Virgil and his meaning to the world of today. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1922 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 873

1 Virgil 23-26135

"Mr Mackail appears to have far outshone all previous interpreters and appreciators of Virgil. His style is beautifully clear, piquant, epigrammatic; his devotion to Virgil makes every word and every sentence glow with a white heat of enthusiasm; in short, he appears as a man of intense poetical feeling interpreting to the world this greatest of Roman poets." Literary rev.

874 LATIN LYRIC POETRY

Catullus

Catullus, Tibullus and Pervigilium Veneris. (Loeb classical lib.) 1924 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 874

19-6668

Each selection has the Latin original with an English prose translation opposite. Catullus and Tibullus are separately indexed. The translation of Catullus was made by F. W. Cornish, Tibullus by J. P. Postgate, and the "Pervigilium Veneris" by J. W. Mackail

"It was Catullus who taught Europe and America how to sing tender songs of love, to phrase bitter words of hate; who pointed the way to a more exact prosody and a richer versification." K. P. Harrington's Catullus and his influence

"Tibullus was the father of the Roman elegy. . . The style of his poems and their tone of thought are like his character, deficient in vigor and manliness, but sweet, smooth, polished, tender, and never disfigured by bad taste." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature

Frank, Tenney

Catullus and Horace; two poets in their environment. 1928 Holt $3; Blackwell 10s 6d 874

1 Catullus 2 Horace 28-7872

"All that is known of the lives of these two Latin poets, born nineteen years apart, is summed up by the author, the stories of their lives being joined by a chapter describing the social life and literary changes during the years separating their activities." Book rev. digest

"This is an enchanting book. Mr. Frank's work is a book for the general reader." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Harrington, Karl Pomeroy

Catullus and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1923 Longmans $2; Harrap 5s 874

1 Catullus 2 Literature, Comparative 24-2570

"To interpret Catullus, the 'poet's poet,' is a difficult undertaking. But Professor Harrington succeeds in showing his fundamental humanness, and in explaining something of his consummate art." Bookman

Horace

* Odes and Epodes; with an English tr. by C. E. Bennett. (Loeb classical lib.) rev ed 1927 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 874

[19-10172]

These are good literal prose translations of the Odes, Epodes and Carmen saeculare, opposite the original Latin. There is a short introductory chapter on the life and works of Horace, followed by a chapter on the metres he used. An index of proper names refers to the Latin originals by number and line

"In Latin poetry Horace ranks second only to Virgil. The grace, beauty, sanity, and geniality in the verse of this Roman of the Augustan age have long made it a favourite with men of letters, many of whom have delighted to translate and imitate him. So modern is his spirit that even today he is brought to the attention of tired commuters by the 'Colyumists' of the evening newspapers." A. D. Dickinson

Satires, Epistles and Ars poetica; with an English tr. by H. R. Fairclough. (Loeb classical lib.) 1926 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 874

27-1557

"The professor of classical literature in Stanford University [1933] has succeeded in reproducing much of the idiomatic forcefulness and skilful turn of the thought, in the Latin original. His introduction supplies some useful bibliographical help." Providence

Horace's Satires sketch boldly but good-humoredly the social life of his day. The Epistles are simple friendly correspondence, in which we find the man Horace, without a trace of the moral teacher or censor. His "Art of poetry," a brief and apparently casual letter, has had great influence on modern literature

Showerman, Grant

‡ Horace and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1922 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 874

1 Horace 22-20301

"An appreciation of Horace by a professor in the University of Wisconsin [1933]. Delightful in style and especially pleasing to those who would renew their acquaintance with the Latin poet." Wis. bul.

Oxford book of Latin verse, from the earliest fragments to the end of the Vth century; chosen by H. W. Garrod. 1912 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 874

1 Latin poetry—Collections W13-8

For the most part, no books without English translations have been included in this catalog, but the Oxford anthologies in the original languages are too valuable to omit

"Begins with the Salian hymns and ends with Phocas, excluding epic, drama, satire, all poetry of a definitely Christian character, and with a few exceptions all excerpts. Has indexes of authors, passages and first lines and a glossary of Old Latin." Cleveland

875 LATIN ORATORY

Cicero, Marcus Tullius

De officiis; with an English tr. by Walter Miller. (Loeb classical lib.) 1913 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 875

14-5345

"The offices," or "Duties," is a stoical treatise on moral obligations, in the form of a letter addressed to his son Marcus, who was a student in Athens. Cicero himself looked upon it as his masterpiece. This edition presents the Latin text with a literal translation opposite. The three parts of the essay are headed Moral goodness, Expediency, and Conflict between the right and the expedient. Well indexed

"Cicero's unique and imperishable glory is . . . that he created a language which remained for sixteen centuries that of the civilised world, and used that language to create a style which nineteen centuries have not replaced, and in some respects have scarcely altered." J. W. Mackail's Latin literature

* De senectute, De amicitia, De divinatione; with an English tr. by W. A. Falconer. (Loeb classical lib.) 1923 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 875

23-12099

These three essays are cast in the form of discourses after the manner of Aristotle. "Cato the Elder on old age" and "Laelius on friendship" are famed for beauty of style and delicacy of feeling. "On divination," which purports to be a conversation between Cicero and his brother, is directed against belief in the auspices and superstition in general. The English translation faces the Latin original on opposite pages. Each essay has a separate index to proper names

Philippics; with an English tr. by W. C. A. Ker. (Loeb classical lib.) 1926 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 875

27-2023

The most famous of Cicero's orations, his indignant and eloquent speeches against Antonius after the assassination of Caesar. Each speech is preceded by a critical and explanatory introduction, and Latin and English texts are given on opposite pages. Index

Two essays: On old age & Friendship; tr. by E. S. Shuckburgh. (Golden treasury ser.) 1900 Macmillan $1.40; 3s 6d 875

33-27223

Excellent readable translations of De senectute and De amicitia, with an introduction in somewhat the same vein as Cicero's two essays

Two other works are available in the Loeb classical library "De natura deorum; Academica; tr. by H. Rackham" (1933 Putnam $2.50; Heinemann 10s) Philosophical works which draw freely on older Greek and Latin writers and are valuable as a source for their views since many of the original works have been lost

Rolfe, John Carew

‡ Cicero and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1923 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 875

1 Cicero, Marcus Tullius 23-10413

"An essay on the career, influence and meaning of the great mediator, his inspiration to such movements as Christianity, the Renaissance and the French revolution, and the value of this insight and wisdom to the modern world. Notes and bibliography." Bkl.

876 LATIN LETTERS

Cicero, Marcus Tullius

Letters of a Roman gentleman; selected from the correspondence of Cicero and tr. by A. P. McKinlay. 1926 Houghton $4 876

26-18501

"From the 916 letters left by Cicero, Mr McKinlay has made a selection 'which includes the portions of his correspondence most significant for their humor, literary excellence, and pertinency to present-day problems.' These are arranged chronologically, with introductory notes and running comment." Book rev. digest

A larger collection of Cicero's correspondence may be found in "Letters to his friends; with an English tr. by W. G. Williams" (3v 1927-29 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s). This edition is in the Loeb classical library, and like the other titles in the series has the original and the English texts on opposite pages

Horace

Letters of Horace presented to modern readers; ed. by C. L. Dana and J. C. Dana. 1931 Elm tree press $3.50 876

11-28885

Binder's title: Letters of Horace for modern readers

Selection from his letters, with notes regarding the people to whom they are addressed, the time and occasion of writing and the historical and mythological references

Pliny

Letters; with an English tr. by William Melmoth, rev. by W. M. L. Hutchinson. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 876

16-654

"Translations with accompanying Latin text of the 'Epistolae' of Pliny the Younger. These letters are models of refined thought and elegant expression. They reveal the occupations and interests of a cultured Roman gentleman of wealth, leisure, and influence during the first century. This translation by Melmoth, himself a talented letter-writer, first published in 1746, ranks as a lesser English classic because of its own literary merit and its accurate reflection of the spirit of the original." Pratt alcove

877 LATIN SATIRE AND HUMOR

Apuleius

Golden ass; being the Metamorphoses, with an English tr. by W. Adlington (1566) rev. by S. Gaselee. (Loeb classical lib.) 1915 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 12s 6d 877

16-655

This edition has parallel Latin and English versions. The translation was made in 1566 but has been revised for this series. Contains a brief three-page life of Apuleius. Index

The "Metamorphoses" or "Golden ass" was founded on an older work, which Apuleius made the groundwork of an elaborate romance, interspersed with numerous episodes, of which the beautiful story of Cupid and Psyche is the most celebrated

Juvenal

Juvenal and Persius; with an English tr. by G. G. Ramsay. (Loeb classical lib.) 1918 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 877

18-21762

Juvenal's sixteen satires and Persius's six with parallel Latin and English prose versions. The introduction presents biographical material, criticisms, comparisons and summaries of the satires, and bibliographies of mss of the two poets. Brief index for each. The texts are based on Bucheler's edition

"Juvenal is the most savage—one might almost say the most brutal—of the Roman satirists." J. W. Mackail's Latin literature

Persius died young, and left only six satires, which show keen observation, dramatic power and charm, in spite of his youth and comparatively narrow experience

Nixon, Paul

Martial and the modern epigram. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1927 Longmans $2; Harrap 5s 877

1 Epigrams 2 Martial 27-7987

"Perhaps one of the best things in this book is the opening chapter, which defines the epigram. Also, the author deals very effectively with the various periods. . . Over three hundred of Martial's epigrams are included, most of them very happily translated by the author. It is a good reference work, made preeminently so by its index which enables one to find easily in Martial the original of each translation." Providence

Because of the large number of translations included, this volume can take the place of a collection of Martial's work in the smaller libraries. If a more complete edition is desired, one of the best collections is his "Epigrams; with an English tr. by W. C. A. Ker" in the Loeb classical library (2v 1919-20 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s)

Persius Flaccus, Aulus

Juvenal and Persius. See entry under Juvenal

878 LATIN MISCELLANY

Caesar, Caius Julius

* Gallic war; with an English tr. by H. J. Edwards. (Loeb classical lib.) 1917 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 878

17-28110

Latin text with parallel English translation, literal and scholarly. The introduction outlines Caesar's life and work and furnishes a brief analysis of the seven books. The appendixes contain chapters on the Roman army and Britain. Nine maps and plans are interspersed thru the text. There are four indexes—Persons, Tribes, Geography and Subjects

"It has probably been more widely read (if that school-room grind can be called reading) than any other Latin book. Many of us learned to hate it in our youth. . . But the mature reader who turns to Caesar's works . . . will find them immensely interesting, swift, vigorous stories. The 'Gallic war' is the basis of half our knowledge of the northern provinces of Rome, which have since become great modern nations." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Caesar's "Civil wars; with an English tr. by A. G. Peskett," also in the Loeb classical library (1914 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s) is a good edition of his later "Commentaries"

Sallust

Sallust; with an English tr. by J. C. Rolfe. (Loeb classical lib.) 1921 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 878

21-6979

The orations and letters of Sallust and the pseudo-Sallustian works. There is an introduction on the life of Sallust, the pseudo-Sallustian works, and the manuscripts. Contains a bibliography and index. The original text and translation are on opposite pages

"His histories have not only the charm of the historical romance, but are also valuable political studies. His characters are vigorously and naturally drawn, and the more his histories are read, the more obvious it is that he always writes with an object, and uses his facts as the means of enforcing a great political lesson." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature

Seneca, Lucius Annaeus

* Moral essays; with an English tr. by J. W. Basore. (Loeb classical lib.) v 1-2 1928-32 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 878

(28-16432)

The original Latin and the English translation are given on opposite pages. To be complete in 3 volumes

"As a moral writer, Seneca stands deservedly high. Though infected with the rhetorical vices of the age, his treatises are full of striking and often gorgeous eloquence, and in their combination of high thought with deep feeling, have rarely, if at all, been surpassed." J. W. Mackail's Latin literature

Gummere, Richard Mott

Seneca the philosopher, and his modern message. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1922 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 878

1 Seneca, Lucius Annaeus 2 Literature, Comparative 22-14144

"An interesting essay, with bibliography and notes, written with keen historical sense, using the past to interpret the present, succeeding amazingly in giving life to the descriptions of the times, ideas and people of the early Roman empire, pointing out the influence of the philosophy of Seneca upon modern European and American civilization." Bkl.

Suetonius

Suetonius; with an English tr. by J. C. Rolfe. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1914 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 878

14-4948

Contents: Lives of the Caesars; Lives of illustrious men; Grammarians and rhetoricians; Poets

"The use which he makes of historical documents proves that he was a man of diligent research, and, as a biographer, industrious and careful. He indulges neither in ornament of style nor in romantic exaggeration. The pictures which he draws of some of the Caesars are indeed terrible, but they are fully supported by the contemporary authority of Juvenal and Tacitus." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature

Text with parallel English translation. Contains biographical, bibliographical and critical notes, and a very good index

Tacitus, Cornelius

Dialogus, Agricola, Germania. (Loeb classical lib.) 1914 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 878

32-16143

Latin and English on opposite pages. The "Dialogus" is translated by William Peterson,

the "Agricola" and "Germania" by Maurice Hutton. The first is a dialog on oratory. The second is a brief biography of his father-in-law, Agricola, who was governor of Roman Britain. "Germania," perhaps his best known work, records his observations of the barbarous inhabitants of Germany

If any library wishes a more complete edition of Tacitus, there is the Everyman's library edition, "Historical works; tr. by Arthur Murphy" (2v 1907 Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s). The Annals, which compose v 1, record the history of Rome from the founding of the city to the fall of the republic. In v2 are the History, which covers the reigns of the 12 Caesars, 31 B.C. to 96 A.D., and Germania and Agricola

879 MEDIEVAL LATIN

Gesta Romanorum

Gesta Romanorum; tr. by Charles Swan. (Broadway translations) 1924 Dutton $4; Routledge 12s 6d 879

24-18459

One of the most popular collections of tales in the later middle ages, probably told by the monks and used as examples in their sermons. These brief stories, which were supposedly based on Roman history (hence the title, "Deeds of the Romans") furnished plot and inspiration for many of the greatest poets—Chaucer, Gower, Shakespeare, Schiller, etc.

Oxford book of medieval Latin verse; chosen by Stephen Gaselee. 1928 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 879

1 Latin poetry, Medieval and modern

28-23350

In general, only works in English have been included in this catalog, but an exception has been made in the case of the Oxford anthologies

"Carefully selected examples of Latin poetry belonging to the period from the fourth to the first year of the sixteenth century." Pratt quarterly

Waddell, Helen Jane

Wandering scholars. 1927 Houghton $5; Constable 21s 879

1 Goliards 2 Latin poetry, Medieval and modern 27-11936

"Begun as an introduction to a volume of translations from medieval Latin lyrics, this book has grown to be a fairly full account of the classic tradition that 'came to its wild flowering' in the rhyming Latin lyric of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries." Saturday rev.

"A fascinating book most readers will find this, for with all its sophistication it has grace and charm as well, and its nimble wit and happy renderings of Latin verse draw the unfamiliar reader into some real touch with medieval life." Amer. hist. rev.

Latin originals of lyrics translated in the text are given, p222-35

Wright, Frederick Adam and Sinclair, Thomas Alan

History of the later Latin literature. 1931 Macmillan $4.75; Routledge 18s 879

1 Latin literature, Medieval and modern

31-6304

The authors "have undertaken and accomplished a rather overpowering task: to outline the development of Latin literature from the time when it ceased to be 'classical' till it died a natural death with the death of Latin as a universal language. Their field covers from the fourth to the seventeenth century. . . On the earlier periods the book is admirably clear and detailed. A better introduction could hardly be required by anyone. . . There is an excellent bibliography and an index." New statesman and Nation

1 Civilization, Greek 2 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 30-13749

An interpretation of the Greek mind and spirit and an application of the Greek ideal to the civilization of today

"The book is delightful reading throughout—and good sense, too. Of the greater writers, who have discussed the Greek way of life and thought, none has expressed himself in a manner more likely to appeal to the common reader. The atmosphere of ponderous erudition which hangs over the usual work of scholarship on the Greek period, is absent from Edith Hamilton's book." Outlook

1 Greek literature—Collections 24-30793

Anthology of prose and poetry from the 10th century B.C. to the 2d century A.D. The translations are for the most part the best known for each selection, except that Gilbert Murray is not represented. Complete selections rather than fragments have been given whenever possible, including the whole of Agamemnon, Oedipus the king, Medea and Alcestis. Biographical and critical notes accompany the translations. The authors represented include Homer, Hesiod, Sappho, Anacreon, Pindar, Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes, Plato, Aristotle, and Theocritus

Livingstone, Richard Winn
(ed.) Pageant of Greece. 1923 Oxford $3, school ed $1; 6s 6d 880.8

1 Greek literature—Collections 23-17680

Extracts from the Greek classics from Homer through the sixth century A.D. It is perhaps less an anthology with notes on authors than a fairly connected history of literature with lengthy and copious examples. A companion to Bailey's "Mind of Rome" (class 870.8)

"An as invitation to that noble banquet which Greek literature, Greek philosophy and Greek art provide for those worthy to partake thereof we can imagine nothing more alluring. With sympathy, with true understanding, and always with perfect taste, Mr Livingstone tells of the delights which the man who loves learning, beauty, and the satisfaction of the soul, can draw from the Greeks." 880.9 Greek literature -History and criticism

Capps, Edward
From Homer to Theocritus. 1901 Scribner $2 880.9

1 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 1-26428

"Aims to present a concise but complete survey of the Greek literature of the classical period, extended so as to include the two branches of poetry, the new comedy and the idyll, which were brought to perfection after the overthrow of Greek liberty by Alexander." Preface

Fairclough, Henry Rushton
Love of nature among the Greeks and Romans. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1930 Longmans $2.25; Harrap 5s 880.9

1 Nature (Esthetics) 2 Nature in literature 3 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 4 Latin literature—Hist. & crit. 30-5744

"A discussion on the subject of the feeling for nature among the ancient Greeks and Romans, as expressed in their literature, mythology, religion and art. The book refutes the argument that the ancients had no feeling for nature, which idea was first brought into prominence by Schiller's essay on Naive and sentimental poetry, written in 1795." Book rev. digest

Fowler, Harold North
* History of ancient Greek literature. new and rev ed 1923 Macmillan $2.50; 12s 6d 880.9

1 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 23-7097

First edition 1902. The revision in this edition is slight

Covers the literature of Greece between about 900 B.C. (Homeric poems) and the 9th century A.D., with brief excerpts from some of the shorter poems. Excellent for its analyses, and more useful for reference than for straight reading. Bibliography, p468-86

Jebb, Sir Richard Claverhouse
Greek literature. (Literature primers) Am. bk. 56c; Macmillan 1s 9d 880.9

1 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 1-2322

First published 1877. So brief as to be little more than an annotated outline; but the author, a great Greek scholar and translator, displays in these 163 pages so wise a sense of proportion and so just a valuation of the literature that the book will be found very useful

Murray, Gilbert
* History of ancient Greek literature. (Appleton dollar lib.) Appleton-Century $1; 3s 6d 880.9

1 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 3-2394

First published 1897

A comprehensive history in spite of its small size. Murray has the gift of writing for both scholars and the general public. His knowledge of the subject is profound, but the book makes lively reading for any one who has the slightest interest in Greek literature

Norwood, Gilbert
Writers of Greece. (World's manuals) 1925 Oxford $1; 2s 6d 880.9

1 Greek literature—Hist. & crit. 25-27455

Short, authoritative and readable. There is an introductory outline of Greek literature from Homer to the death of Theocritus about 270 A.D. The rest of the book is composed of separate chapters about Homer, Sappho, Pindar, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes, Plato, Aristotle, Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, Demosthenes and Theocritus

881 GREEK POETRY

[3-15069]
Contents: Hippolytus; Bacchae; Frogs of Aristophanes. Besides an excellent introductory essay and notes on these three plays, there is a valuable appendix on the lost plays of Euripides
"Though perhaps not the greatest, yet Euripides must be considered the most important of the classical dramatists, because of his influence upon later poets. . . He was a true poet, full of interest and charm." M. F. Bellinger's Short history of the drama
Medea, Trojan women, Electra; tr. into English rhyming verse by Gilbert Murray. 3v in 1 Oxford $1.75 882
23-26551
The three plays are also obtainable in separate volumes (Oxford ea 90c; Allen, G. ea 3s)
For a complete collection, the Loeb classical library edition is one of the best: "Euripides; with an English tr. by A. S. Way" (4v 1912-16 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s)

Sophocles
Seven plays in English verse, by Lewis Campbell. (World's classics) new ed rev 1925 Oxford 80c; Cambridge univ. press 2s 882

Ten Greek plays—Continued
Euripides, tr. by G. Murray; The frogs, by Aristophanes, tr. by J. H. Frere; Plutus, the god of riches, by Aristophanes, tr. by D. K. Sandford

Has "a clear and simple introduction, which brings out the main facts about the writing and production of these plays and a few items of criticism. The translations are highly poetic and follow closely the form and spirit of the original." Providence

882.09 Greek drama—History and criticism

Haigh, Arthur Elam
Tragic drama of the Grecks. 1896 Oxford $4.75; 14s 882.09

1 Greek drama—Hist. & crit. 4-14070

A scholarly treatment of the subject. The book is valuable for analyses of individual dramas of Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides. Appendix I contains an alphabetical list of all the tragic poets of ancient Greece, with page references for all included in this book, and brief information and bibliographical references for the others. Appendix II lists by authors the Greek titles of all known Greek tragedies and satyric dramas

R. G. Moulton's "Ancient classical drama" (2d ed 1898 Oxford $2.50) another interesting work on the subject, considers the classical writers our true literary ancestors, and urges more study of the ancient drama as literature. The second edition is a reprint of the first (1890) except for some small corrections

Aristophanes; a study. 1933 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 882.09

1 Aristophanes 33-14979

"The book is, as one should expect any book of Professor Murray's to be, scholarly and suggestive, lucid and lively. Some of the most provocative passages in this book are those which, however indirectly, draw analogies between fifth century Athens and twentieth century Europe (and America). . . . Again and again he indicates, with a clarity of which only such a scholar as he is capable, how much we have still to learn from the civilization of Greece, how far the frankest of us are from the hearty candor of Aristophanes." Babbette Deutsch in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Euripides and his age. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 1913 Holt $1.25, student's ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d 882.09

1 Euripides 14-260

"An original, fresh and sympathetic study of the age, tradition and atmosphere of the fifth century Athens in which Euripides lived; of his methods and genius in adopting the prevailing art form—tragic drama—of the period." Wis. bul.

"Excellent piece of work by a specialist on his special subject. . . . The biography of Euripides is here made a piece of genuinely historical reconstruction." Saturday rev.

Norwood, Gilbert
* Greek tragedy. 1920 Luce, J. W. $5; Methuen 12s 6d 882.09

1 Greek drama—Hist. & crit. 32-6944

"The summaries and criticisms of the extant plays constitute the main body of the book, forty-eight pages being given to Aeschylus, fifty-four to Sophocles, a hundred and forty-one to Euripides. The book, as the author says, 'aims to cover the whole field of the Greek drama, both for the student and the general reader.'" N.Y. Evening post

The author's "Greek comedy" (1931 Luce, J. W. $5; Methuen 12s 6d) a companion volume is equally useful

Sheppard, John Tresidder

1 Aeschylus 2 Sophocles 3 Literature, Comparative 27-2690

"He summarizes the plays of Aeschylus and Sophocles tersely and with good purpose, and when he comes to reckon up their influence both in Greece and in later Europe he manages to keep the two dramatists distinct from each other, though this is sometimes difficult, and from Euripides." Times (London) lit. sup.

883 GREEK EPIC POETRY: HOMER

Adaptations of Homer suitable for children will be found in the Children's catalog

T. D. Seymour's "Life in the Homeric age" (1907 Smith, P. $5) is a study based on the epics themselves. Tho bulky, it has been found quite as suitable for general readers as for scholars

Homer
Iliad; tr. into English blank verse by W. C. Bryant. Roslyn ed 2v in 1 Houghton $4 883

4-14077

Bryant's version reads less like a translation than one would expect of a metrical version. It is in the same meter as his own "Thanatopsis," and is particularly happy in descriptive passages

The Riverside literature series edition (2v in 1 Houghton $1.08) is abridged according to college entrance requirements. It omits books 11, 13, 14, 15, 17 and 21, and all unimportant passages in the other books

‡ Iliad; done into English prose by Andrew Lang, Walter Leaf and Ernest Myers. rev ed 1892 Macmillan $1.40; 4s 6d 883

4-14075

The best prose translation, both scholarly and readable

The same translation is obtainable with an introduction by Louise Pound in the Modern readers' series with the title "Iliad; tr. by Lang, Leaf and Myers" (1930 Macmillan 80c; 5s)

Iliad; with an English tr. by A. T. Murray. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1924-25 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 883

(25-4962)

Prose translation, smooth and readable. The editor has attempted not to include controversial matters in the notes, but he is convinced of the single authorship of the poem. Index of names in the Greek

‡ Odyssey; newly tr. into English prose. 1932 Oxford $3.50 883

32-28146

Translated by T. E. Shaw (i.e. T. E. Lawrence)

"It seems to me that even if the translator's name had never been heard before this volume would be destined to rank among the half-dozen most eminent translations of the Odyssey in English." Henry Hazlitt in Nation

Another good tho expensive translation is "The Odyssey; tr. by J. W. Mackail" (1932 Oxford $5.50; 18s) in rhymed quatrains

Homer—Continued

Odyssey; tr. into English blank verse by W. C. Bryant. Roslyn ed 2v in 1 1899 Houghton $4 883

99-3026

Like his "Iliad," Bryant's translation of the "Odyssey" is in rhymeless iambic pentameter. As a translation it is equally good

The Riverside literature edition (2v in 1 Houghton $1.08) is apparently printed from the same plates as the Roslyn, but the book is smaller and inferior in paper, binding and general appearance

‡ Odyssey; done into English prose by S. H. Butcher and A. Lang. school ed 1921 Macmillan $1.40; 5s 883

24-21029

"Companion to the prose translation of the 'Iliad,' and characterized by the same satisfactory and able rendering." Pratt alcove

The same translation can be procured in the Modern readers' series: "Odyssey; with an introd. by J. A. Scott; tr. by Butcher and Lang" (1930 Macmillan 80c) and with 20 illustrations in color by W. R. Flint (Hale $5; 25s)

Odyssey; with an English tr. by A. T. Murray. (Loeb classical lib.) 2v 1919 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 883

19-16044

Contains both Greek and English, the latter a literal prose translation, with the two texts on opposite pages for easy comparison. Brief index of proper names in Greek

* Odyssey; tr. by G. H. Palmer. 1912 Houghton $2.50 883

13-24614

An excellent prose translation. There is a fairly short introduction, but there are no notes or indexes. The Riverside literature edition has been slightly revised (1921 Houghton $1.08) but the trade edition of 1912 remains unchanged

"We are happiest in point of accuracy, facility and sheer enjoyment if we read a prose translation, that of George Herbert Palmer." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

Another attractive edition of this translation is illustrated by N. C. Wyeth (holiday ed 1929 Houghton $5)

Murray, Gilbert

Rise of the Greek epic. 3d ed rev and enl 1924 Oxford $4.75; 14s 883

1 Epic poetry, Greek 2 Greek poetry—Hist. & crit. 3 Homer 12-8409

Lectures delivered at Harvard university. The first edition was published in 1907, and successive editions have been revised in accordance with new research and archeological discoveries relating to the historic background of Homeric myths. Murray presents arguments to support the theory of the composite origin of the origin of the "Iliad" and the "Odyssey"

Scott, John Adams

Homer and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1925 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 883

1 Homer 25-10991

"In successive chapters, Dr Scott examines briefly the story and structure of the Iliad and of the Odyssey; the vast scope of the genius of Homer; the transformation of Homeric mythology into the literature of all succeeding ages; the influence of Homer upon Roman Italy and upon Roman literature during the Middle ages; the Homeric origin of the Renaissance in Europe, and the abiding Homeric influence upon mankind." 884 GREEK LYRIC POETRY

Bion, of Smyrna

Theocritus, Bion and Moschus. See entry under Theocritus

Moschus

Theocritus, Bion and Moschus. See entry under Theocritus

Pindar

Odes, including the principal fragments; with an introd. and an English tr. by Sir John Sandys. (Loeb classical lib.) 1915 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 884

16-653

The odes celebrated victories in the great national games, and were accompanied by music, which is lost to us. The fragments represent almost every kind of lyric poem. The Greek and the English are on opposite pages in this edition

"We possess in their entirety only the 'Hymns of victory' ('Epinicia') of this greatest of Greek lyric poets. But we have enough of his work to recognize in it a 'grand style, sublimity and swiftness of thought, wealth of imagery and metaphor, and superb diction.'" A. D. Dickinson

Sappho

Memoir, text, selected renderings and a literal tr. by H. T. Wharton; with paraphrases in verse by Anne Bunner. 1920 Coward-McCann $2 884

20-18950

Gives an account of the life of the Greek poetess, with quotations from commentators. Then follow the fragments of her poems, each in the original according to Bergh's text, then in a literal prose translation, and in several English metrical translations. A note for each tells how and by what ancient writer the poem or fragment was preserved. A special chapter presents Anne Bunner's paraphrases in verse. The bibliography of 16 pages includes books and a few magazine references, in many languages, from the 16th century to the present

Robinson, David Moore

Sappho and her influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1924 Longmans $2.25; Harrap 5s 884

1 Sappho 2 Literature, Comparative 25-1867

Contains many illustrative examples of her poems. "The historical estimate of Sappho in different literatures of the world given by Dr Robinson is almost encyclopedic. It includes the literature of Greece and Rome, of the Middle ages and the Renaissance, as well as Italian, Spanish, German, French, English and American literature, with a reference also to the Russian . . . One of the finest things in the book is the critical dealing with Sappho in art and music." Modern philology

Theocritus

Theocritus, Bion and Moschus; rendered into English prose with an introductory essay by A. Lang. (Golden treasury ser.) 1889 Macmillan $1.40; Cambridge univ. press 7s 6d 884

2-15397

Charming prose translation of the "idyls" of a noted Greek bucolic poet of the third century B.C., including also the writings of two less known Greek pastoral poets, Bion of Smyrna, and Moschus of Sicily. The 31 page introduction on Theocritus and his age is valuable

"Theocritus is perhaps the most universally attractive of all Greek poets. . . One might almost say that there is hardly anything beautiful in the pastoral poetry of the world that does not come from Theocritus. His first idyll, the 'Dirge on Daphnis,' has perhaps had a greater number of celebrated imitations than any poem of its length in existence—from Bion's 'Adonis,' Moschus's 'Bion,' Vergil's 'Daphnis,' to our own 'Lycidas,' 'Adonais,' and 'Thyrsis.'" G. Murray's Hist. of ancient Greek literature

885 GREEK ORATORY

Demosthenes

Crown, the Philippics, and ten other orations; tr. by C. Rann-Kennedy. (Everyman's lib.) 1911 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 885

1 Greek orations A12-504

"A collection of the best known speeches of the greatest orator of ancient times. His speech on the 'Crown' reviewing his own statesmanship is regarded as the supreme masterpiece of oratory. The 'Philippics' are powerful patriotic addresses directed against Philip of Macedon who was menacing the liberties of the Greeks." Pratt alcove

Olynthiacs; Philippics, minor public speeches, speech against Leptines; with an English tr. by J. H. Vince. (Loeb classical lib.) 1930 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 885

31-26353

Has the Greek original and the English translation on opposite pages

Adams, Charles Darwin

Demosthenes and his influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1927 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 885

1 Demosthenes 27-11098

"Demosthenes' life is sketched in one chapter followed by a consideration of his oratory and his influence on his own and later times. The chapter on The influence of Demosthenes on English and American oratory is of particular interest." Wis. bul.

"Professor Adams has written an interesting book on Demosthenes, and while he has no room to touch on some disputed points in his writings, he is evidently well equipped to trace his influence on later ages." Sat. rev. of lit.

Lysias

Lysias; tr. by W. R. M. Lamb. (Loeb classical lib.) 1930 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 885

31-26354

The original and the English translation are printed on opposite pages

"In his private humours, at least, as well as in his artistic handling of common affairs, we may fairly claim for Lysias some kinship with his great contemporary, Aristophanes." Introduction

888 GREEK MISCELLANY

Aesop

Fables of Aesop; selected, told anew and their history traced by Joseph Jacobs; done in pictures by Richard Heighway. (Modern readers' ser.) 1926 Macmillan 80c; 6s 888

1 Fables [24-26091]

Of the hundreds of Aesop's fables that have come down to us, Joseph Jacobs has chosen 82 of the most effective and most familiar. Fairly large print and illustrations in black and white make this edition attractive and readable

Other editions of Aesop are listed in the Children's catalog. Some are definitely intended for young children, but other editions are quite as suitable for adults, as:

Fables. (Everyman's lib.) Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. bindings 3s

Fables; il. by Louis Rhead. Harper o.p. 1933

Fables; new tr. by V. S. V. Jones; il. by Arthur Rackham. Doubleday, Doran $3.50

Aristotle

On the art of poetry; tr. by Ingram Bywater. 1920 Oxford pa 85c; pa 2s 6d 888

A21-874

Contains a preface by Gilbert Murray. A pleasing translation for English readers

"After all the centuries that intervene, including the brilliant critical thought of the nineteenth century, Aristotle's Poetics stands solid and essential; whoever knows that book cannot go far wrong in his literary judgments—even of the latest novel." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

The same translation of this treatise may be bought in the Modern readers' series: "Aristotle's Poetics, Longinus on the sublime; ed. with an introduction by C. S. Baldwin" (1930 Macmillan 80c; 6s). The essay "On the sublime" is translated by W. R. Roberts

Aristotle: The poetics; "Longinus": On the sublime; Demetrius: On style. (Loeb classical lib.) 1927 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s 888

27-26687

Aristotle and Longinus, tr. by W. Hamilton Fyfe; Demetrius, tr. by W. Rhys Roberts

The Fyfe translation of the "Poetics" is perhaps more literal and a little less readable than Bywater's. Here the Greek originals and the translations face each other on opposite pages. Each selection has an index

Cooper, Lane

Poetics of Aristotle, its meaning and influence. (Our debt to Greece and Rome) 1923 Longmans $1.75; Harrap 5s 888

1 Aristotle 23-16317

"Mr Cooper has done two difficult things in small space: he has summarized and commented upon the 'Poetics,' and he has written a history of its influence on criticism in Europe." Nation

Demetrius, of Phaleron

On style. See entry under Aristotle. The poetics

Herodotus

Herodotus; with an English tr. by A. D. Godley. (Loeb classical lib.) 4v 1920-24 Harvard univ. press ea $2.50; Heinemann ea 10s 888

21-6980

Complete works of Herodotus, according to the text of Stein, with parallel Greek and English versions, introductions and maps. First two volumes have short indexes of proper names, and v4 has a long, full index to v 1-4

"The history falls into two chief parts. The first five books are an introduction, tracing the rise and growth of the Persian power. The last four books relate the Persian invasions of Greece under Darius and Xerxes... As a historian, he fails chiefly by inattention or insensibility to political cause and effect... And he tells us little or nothing about constitutional change. His charm of style is all the greater for his almost child-like simplicity, and he is one of the most delightful story-tellers." R. C. Jebb's Greek literature

Longinus, Cassius

On the sublime. See entry under Aristotle. The poetics

Plato

Dialogues; selections from the tr. of Benjamin Jowett; ed by W. C. Greene. (Black and gold lib.) 1927 Liveright $2 888

27-14313

"From eighteen of the dialogues have been chosen passages, comprising nearly one-third of the whole text of Plato, which give a fair conception of the philosopher's persuasive charm and of his many-sided interests, as well as of the essential unity of his thought. The general introduction attempts a survey of certain elements in Plato's philosophy, with some indication of its importance for the modern world." Preface

Republic; tr. by Benjamin Jowett. (Oxford translation ser.) 3d ed 2v 1908 Oxford $2.85; 8s 6d 888

1 Utopias W9-119

In this section of the celebrated Dialogues in which Socrates is represented as interlocutor, Plato develops his views of the ideal state. "Political thought in Europe has been more or less consciously influenced by the Republic for twenty-three centuries." A. D. Dickinson

Jowett's translation is "the supreme translation of Plato into English; whoever intelligently reads that with the admirable introductions will know all that it is essential to know about Plato." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

A new edition in the Loeb classical library is being issued with the original text parallel with a translation by Paul Shorey (v 1 1930 Harvard univ. press $2.50; Heinemann 10s)

"Aristotle's 'Art of poetry' has been treated by Professor Lane Cooper, in another volume of this series. The present work is, therefore, more immediately concerned with the art of prose 'as viewed, critically and constructively, by the Greeks.'" Preface

Thucydides

Thucydides; tr. by Benjamin Jowett; to which is prefixed an essay on inscriptions and a note on the geography of Thucydides. 2d ed rev 2v 1900 Oxford $6; 18s 888

1 Greece—Hist. 2 Inscriptions, Greek 9-25600

First edition, 1881

"Thucydides, the second great Greek historian, wrote an account of the conflict which took place in his own time between Athens and Sparta and their allies, the Peloponnesian war. He was the first great war correspondent and reporter with an immediate sense of fact. . . All modern historians, even the most critically analytical, respect him. And thanks to that master translator from the Greek, Benjamin Jowett, Thucydides is an English classic." J. Macy's Story of the world's literature

890 LITERATURE OF MINOR LANGUAGES

Oriental literature

Holliday, Carl

Dawn of literature. 1931 Crowell $3.50 890

1 Oriental literature 2 Literature, Ancient 31-22122

A survey of Oriental literature in Egypt, Babylon and Assyria, India, Persia, China, and Palestine. Tho emphasis has been placed upon earliest sources, literature of more recent date has also been included. Bibliography and index. Illustrations are mostly photographs of inscriptions

"For a rapid introduction to early writings in half a dozen of the foremost world literatures, this study is excellently designed. The author has pared down the formidable bulk of expert knowledge, and retained just enough to give the reader a compact framework of information within which to fit the various quotations." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Tietjens, Eunice

‡ (ed.) Poetry of the Orient; an anthology of the classic secular poetry of the major eastern nations. 1928 Knopf $5; Allen, G. 21s 890

1 Oriental poetry—Collections 28-27861

"Mrs Tietjens, with perhaps a surplus of apparatus, has admirably represented the secular poetries of China, Japan, India, Arabia, and Persia in so far as they are accessible in the translations of Arthur Waley, Florence Ayscough, R. A. Nicholson, Gertrude Bell, Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, and many others. There was need for such an anthology, and the need has been met." Nation

"One of the most useful features of the collection will undoubtedly prove to be the brief historical and biographical notes prefixed, respectively, to the different national periods and the various poets. The bibliography will prove helpful to those who may be inspired to read further in the literatures of Oriental lands." Springfield Republican

"From the earliest times down to the arrival of Vasco da Gama in 1498, the intellectual life of India is discussed. Since the material is included in brief compass, (273 pages), it is necessarily presented rather sketchily in some cases; literature is given the most space. Nevertheless, for anyone who wishes to gain a general acquaintance with what is finest in Indian civilization, this book will make good reading, and it should help to dispel some of the doubts that the controversy about Hindu religion and customs have aroused." Providence

"We commend the book most warmly. It is not light reading, but it is material which will most generously repay the time and care which must be devoted to it." Spectator

Mahābhārata. Bhagavadgītā
Bhagavad-gita; tr. from the Sanskrit by A. W. Ryder. 1929 Univ. of Chicago press $2; Cambridge univ. press 9s 891.2
29-24224

"As the utterances of Jesus are to Christians so is the 'Song of the Blessèd One' to Hindus. Although of special importance to the sectaries of the god Vishnu, its verses are on the lips of others, so truly does it voice common Hindu ideas. The theme of the Bhagavad-Gita is man's relation to God; the teacher is God himself incarnate as Krishna. . . The translation, being in verse, is of necessity free, yet does not depart objectionably from exactness." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)
"Though it is the third new version to appear within a year, Mr Ryder's verse translation is welcome as the first really popular poetic rendering to be based on accurate scholarship, and the insight which is born of sympathy." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Song of God; tr. of the Bhagavad-gitā, by Dhan Gopal Mukerji" (1931 Dutton $3.50; Dent 7s 6d) is a prose version by a Hindu scholar and author of many popular books in English. A good translation is also available in the Wisdom of the East series "Song of the Lord; tr. with introduction and notes by E. J. Thomas" (1931 Murray, J. 3s 6d)

Pañchatantra
Panchatantra; tr. from the Sanskrit by A. W. Ryder. 1925 Univ. of Chicago press $4 891.2
25-21523

"In these 'five books,' the wise conduct of life is revealed with wit and wisdom through animal actors. A readable narrative, fresh in spite of its great antiquity, having been told in India over 2000 years ago. Each book has a framing tale, with many inserted stories and epigrammatic verses. First complete English collection. Translation is excellent." N.Y. state lib.

"Gold's gloom; tales from the Panchatantra tr. by A. W. Ryder" (1925 Univ. of Chicago press $2) contains 24 tales from the Panchatantra. This may be sufficient for many libraries that do not need the complete edition above

Vālmīki
Ramayana, and the Maha-bharata; condensed into English verse by R. C. Dutt. (Everyman's lib.) 1910 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 891.2
A10-2381

"The Ramayana and the Mahabharata are the most important and sublime creations of Hindu literature, and the most colossal epic poems to be found in the literature of the world." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature
The Ramayana, written by Valmiki, a poet of unknown antiquity, describes the exploits of Rama, an incarnation of Vishnu, and the son of Dasaratha, king of Oude

Contents: Rabindra Nath Tagore; Muhammad Iqbal; Puran Singh; Sarojini Naidu; Harindra Nath Chattopadhyaya

"These short essays on five modern poets of the 'new' India were originally delivered as lectures or published in magazine form as introductions to the poets. The author is chiefly interested in the messages contained in the works of these poets, and not in their technique, for reasons which he makes clear in his introductory chapter on the nature of Indian poetry in general." Book rev. digest

Sarojinī Nāyadu
Sceptred flute; songs of India. 1928 Dodd $3 891.4
28-30699

Distinguished songs of love, life and death by the Indian poetess who is prominent in the national affairs of India as well as in letters. They are not translations, for she writes in English

Tagore, Sir Rabindranath
* Crescent moon; tr. from the original Bengali by the author. 1913 Macmillan $2; 5s 891.4
13-26171

"Poems of child thought and child life translated by the author into simple, rhythmic prose, without loss of the naive, sympathetic quality or deep underlying feeling and significance." Cleveland

Gardener; tr. by the author from the original Bengali. 1913 Macmillan $2; 5s, Caravan lib. 3s 6d 891.4
13-23431

A group of poems translated into rhythmic English prose from the Bengali in which they were written. The author says, "The translations are not always literal—the originals being sometimes abridged and sometimes paraphrased." He calls them "Lyrics of love and life"
"Beautiful as many of the lyrics are, his prose style has, we think, something in it not quite appropriate to these slender and more familiar themes." Athenaeum

Gitanjali (Song offerings); with an introduction by W. B. Yeats. 1913 Macmillan $2; 5s 891.4
13-11970

Prose translations by the author from the original Bengali
"Mr Tagore's translations are of trance-like beauty; their negation of movement and colour, and the deliberate flavourlessness of their simplicity are appropriate to the vein of essentially Oriental mysticism which supplies throughout the poet's inspiration." Athenaeum
Tagore's "Fruit-gathering" (1916 Macmillan $2; 5s) is a companion volume to "Gitanjali." This too is a volume of religious poems, but it does not rank with the earlier work

891.5 Persian literature

"Epic of kings; hero tales of ancient Persia, retold from Firdusi's Shah nameh by Helen Zimmern; il. by Wilfred Jones" (1926 Macmillan $2.50) an edition of Firdausi, the great Persian epic poet, is written for young people. Other editions of this classic will be found listed in the Children's catalog

Browne, Edward Granville

(tr.) Persian anthology; ed by E. D. Ross. 1927 Dutton $1.90; Methuen 5s 891.5

1 Persian poetry—Collections [27-22204]

"A brief selection made from the translations of the late English scholar of Persian literature and author of 'A year amongst the Persians.' The poems are grouped under mystic, lyric, moral, and narrative, and have been chosen from the works of the most important Persian poets. There is an introductory memoir on Browne by John B. Atkins, a note on Persian poetry by Sir Edward Denison Ross, an alphabetical list of poets represented, and an index of first lines." Bkl.

Jackson, Abraham Valentine Williams

Early Persian poetry, from the beginnings down to the time of Firdausi. 1920 Macmillan $2.25 891.5

1 Persian poetry—Hist. & crit. 2 Persian poetry—Collections 20-7452

An account of Persian poetry from the ancient psalms and ballads of before 600 B.C. to the 11th century, when Firdausi wrote his "Shah-namah." The book has many foot-notes, but not the heavy tone usually associated with such scholarliness. There are many translations by the author, including fine passages from Sohrab and Rustum

Levy, Reuben

Persian literature. (Language & literature ser.) 1923 Oxford $1; 2s 6d 891.5

1 Persian literature—Hist. & crit. 23-11818

A short history from the time of Cyrus the Great to modern times. Many translations are quoted, but they are necessarily incomplete in most cases. There is a bibliography of modern general works, Persian texts, and translations published mainly in Europe

Omar Khayyam

‡ Rubáiyát; rendered into English verse by Edward Fitzgerald. complete ed 1921 Crowell $2.50 891.5

21-18124

Comparative edition of the five original Fitzgerald versions. Contains a bibliography of original editions, notes, biographical sketch of Fitzgerald from the memorial edition of 1887, and a life of Omar Khayyam by Fitzgerald from the second and third editions

"'The Rubáiyát' (Quatrains) of Omar the Tentmaker, of Persia, is composed of a series of stanzas forming 'a medley of love and tavern songs, tinged with Sufi mysticism, and with the melancholy of Eastern fatalism.' . . . Fitzgerald's version is at least as much Fitzgerald as it is Omar." A. D. Dickinson

The Everyman's library edition is "Rubaiyat (first & second editions) & six plays of Calderon; tr. by Edward Fitzgerald" (Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s). An attractive edition with illustrations by Dulac is also available (Doubleday, Doran $1.50)

891.6 Celtic literature

Arnold, Matthew

On the study of Celtic literature, and other essays. (Everyman's lib.) 1910 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 891.6

1 Celtic literature A11-1615

Gives the substance of four lectures first delivered at Oxford. Their purpose was to point out the many directions in which the study of Celtic literature offers matter of general interest and to insist on the benefit to be derived from knowing the Celt and things Celtic more thoroughly. Condensed from Introduction

Blácam, Aodh Sandrach de

Gaelic literature surveyed. 2d and rev ed 1933 Irish bk. shop $5; Talbot 12s 6d 891.6

1 Irish literature—Hist. & crit. [30-9552]

First edition 1929, now corrected thruout. The book has no index, hence is difficult to use for reference

"Mr. Aodh de Blácam has written a study of Gaelic literature that is unique in plan, as exciting as an adventure story, indispensable to students, and a thing for poets to cherish and wonder. . . For a time, this should be the authoritative work in its field; scholars, must have it—poets, if they are wise, will study it well." N.Y. Evening post

"Nowhere else will the general reader find so comprehensive a survey of literary production in Gaelic speech. The specialist will have his quarrel with Mr de Blácam here and there, but it is a considerable service to have made this matter accessible at all." Times (London) lit. sup.

Cuchulain

Cuchulain of Muirthemne: the story of the men of the Red Branch of Ulster; arranged and put into English by Lady Gregory. 1902 Scribner $2.75; Murray, J. 7s 6d 891.6

1 Folklore, Irish [3-2086]

W. B. Yeats has written a preface to this edition. Lady Gregory here retells the old Irish tales, and her version is a blend of scholarship and imaginative reconstruction. The stories are coordinated and compressed into a homogeneous narrative that should be called a folk-version of the old saga, adapted to literature, rather than a translation

Gregory, Isabella Augusta (Persse) lady

(tr.) Kiltartan poetry book. 1919 Putnam $1.25 891.6

1 Irish literature—Collections 19-3401

"Prose translations of thirty-seven Irish poems, a few narrating ancient legends, but most of them songs of lament expressing 'the keening of women for the brave and those who are left lonely after the young.' Most of these selections are to be found in other books of translation and adaptation by Lady Gregory." Cleveland

Hyde, Douglas

Story of early Gaelic literature. 1920 Talbot 3s 6d 891.6

1 Irish literature—Hist. & crit. 21-1464

First published 1894. Authoritative and readable brief work which has proved popular. The scope is rather limited, and make-up and type are not good. But it is valuable for early Irish literature to the 18th century, and contains translated extracts of both prose and poetry

His more extensive work, a volume in the series, Library of literary history, is no longer in print, 1933: "Literary history of Ireland" (1899 Scribner). This covered the field of the literature of the Irish-speaking Irish, with many examples

Mabinogion

Mabinogion; tr. by Lady Charlotte Guest. (Everyman's lib.) 1906 Dutton 70c, lib. binding $1; Dent 2s, lib. binding 3s 891.6

A10-2213

A translation from the Welsh, of 11 tales from the "Red book of Hergest," a 14th century manuscript, and one tale of Taliesin from a much later manuscript. Lady Charlotte Guest, the first and best translator of this bardic literature, assigned to her collection the title "Mabinogion," meaning roughly the traditional lore acquired by aspiring bards. Some of the stories are pre-Christian and pre-historic, some reflect the Roman administration of Britain, and some center about Arthur

A recent translation is "Mabinogion; tr. by T. P. Ellis & John Lloyd" (2v 1929 Oxford $3.50; 10s). In this new version the translators have used archaic English appropriate to the subject

Sharp, Elizabeth Amelia (Sharp), and Matthay, J.

(eds.) Lyra celtica; an anthology of representative Celtic poetry; with introduction and notes by William Sharp. (Celtic lib.) 2d ed rev and enl 1924 Grant, J. 6s 891.6

1 Celtic poetry—Collections A32-2505

An anthology of ancient Irish, Alban Gaelic, Breton, Cymric, and modern Scottish and Irish Celtic poetry, with an introduction on the Celtic renascence and notes by William Sharp (Fiona Macleod). The contents include selections from A. E., Katherine Tynan, Yeats, Dunsany, Ledwidge and others whose names are equally familiar

891.7 Russian literature

Baring, Maurice

* Outline of Russian literature. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 1915 Holt $1.25, student's ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d 891.7

1 Russian literature—Hist. & crit. 15-5688

"A well written, discriminating survey which will serve admirably the need of small libraries, and will be of value in those which have the more extensive histories." Wis. bul.

M. T. Olgin's "Guide to Russian literature" (1920 Harcourt o.p. 1933) is a complete account of the more important authors from Pushkin to 1917, particularly valuable for its many translations from Russian critics

Freeman, Joseph; Kunitz, Joshua, and Lozowick, Louis

Voices of October; art and literature in soviet Russia. 1930 Vanguard press $4 891.7

1 Russian literature—Hist. & crit. 2 Art—Russia 3 Theater—Russia 4 Music—Russia 30-13369

"A descriptive study of the leading tendencies in soviet literature, drama, movies, painting, and music. The book is an appreciation rather than a criticism, and more than half of it is devoted to literature, with many excerpts from Russian writings. The chapters on the theater record the government activities in establishing theaters for peasants and workers. Illustrated with reproductions of paintings and stage scenes." Bkl.

An index would have made the book more useful

Mirsky, Dmitry Svyatopolk-, prince

History of Russian literature, from the earliest times to the death of Dostoyevsky (1881). 1927 Knopf $1; Routledge 12s 6d 891.7

1 Russian literature—Hist. & crit. 27-9271

"Masterly summaries of the work of Pushkin, Gogol, and Dostoevsky. The bibliography, particularizing the best English translations of Russian authors and critical studies of their work, with occasional brief estimates of the value of such studies, is especially valuable to the student." Dial

"Prince Mirsky's book should at once become the standard work of reference of its kind. There is nothing else in English approaching it for completeness or for accuracy." Times (London) lit. sup.

The author's "Contemporary Russian literature, 1881-1925" (1926 Knopf $1; Routledge 12s 6d) continues the account, forming with the other what is in effect a two-volume history

Modern Russian literature. (World's manuals) 1925 Oxford $1; 2s 6d 891.7

1 Russian literature—Hist. & crit. 25-20320

"A book which is admirable in every way; it is readable, intelligent, short, useful, and full of that rare thing—real criticism." Nation and Athenaeum

Reavey, George, and Slonim, Mark L'vovich

(eds.) Soviet literature, an anthology. 1934 Covici $2.50; Wishart 8s 6d 891.7

1 Russian literature—Collections 2 Russian literature—Hist. & crit. 34-1185

"This businesslike work offers samples from Soviet literature of the last fifteen years, with historical introduction, prefaces, and biographical data. It is an anthology of typical writing rather than good writing." N.Y. Times

"A mixture of literary revolution and reaction can be seen in the collection of pieces made by Mr. George Reavey and Mr. Marc Slonim in Soviet Literature. Bourgeois emotions are, of course, taboo; and their absence makes rather a big hole in story and poem. Some good photography, much exclamation—these are not the only new qualities, but there is a great deal of them." New statesman and Nation

Wiener, Leo

(comp. and tr.) Anthology of Russian literature. 2v 1902-03 Putnam o.p. 1933 891.7

1 Russian literature—Collections 2-16768

Contents: v 1 From the tenth century to the close of the eighteenth century; v2 Nineteenth century

Each volume is prefaced by a sketch of the literature of the period covered, and for each author there is a biographical and critical note, with references to English translations of his works. The anthology is comprehensive and quite valuable

891.71 Russian poetry

Nadine Jarintzov's "Russian poets and poems, 'classics' and 'moderns'" (v 1 1917 Longmans o.p. 1933) is valuable for material on the older Russian poets. The second volume was to have covered the moderns, but was never published

Chadwick, Mrs Nora (Kershaw)

(tr.) Russian heroic poetry. 1932 Macmillan $4; Cambridge univ. press 15s 891.71

1 Byliny 2 Russian poetry—Collections 33-3723

"These anonymous poems, purely oral in character, celebrate events and personalities in Russian history over a period of a thousand years; and their long history, as Mrs. Chadwick observes in an introduction of wide learning and excellent judgment, is the history of oral tradition. . . Even their occasional complete lack of historicity is in itself illuminating for the social historian; while it is, as a rule, precisely those poems which are least reliable from a strictly historical point of view that are of the greatest artistic value." Times (London) lit. sup.

Deutsch, Babette, and Yarmolinsky, Avrahm

* (eds. and trs.) Russian poetry; an anthology. rev ed 1927 Int. pub. $2.25; Lawrence 6s 891.71

1 Russian poetry—Collections 27-18731

The first edition appeared in 1921 as "Modern Russian poetry"

"The compilers are also the translators of this anthology chosen from Russian poetry produced in the period from the early nineteenth century to today. The collection is divided into two unequal parts. The first and larger division is devoted to the poets from Pushkin on, who flourished in imperial Russia. The second section contains poems on the Bolshevik revolution by writers of the older generation and verse written by the younger poets of the Soviet regime." Book rev. digest

Krylov, Ivan Andreevich

Fables; tr. into English verse with a preface by Bernard Pares. 1927 Cape, J. 7s 6d 891.71

[28-370]

Formerly carried also by Harcourt

"What La Fontaine is in French, Ivan Krylov is in Russian and much in his fables has passed into proverb. The full text of all the fables is here translated into English verse adhering as closely as possible to the original metres." Book rev. digest

"The complete translation which Sir Bernard Pares has given us is very interesting. It presents in as intense a form as can be imagined the problem of attempting equivalent idioms of language. . . . It is careful and sprightly at the same time." Times (London) lit. sup.

Oxford book of Russian verse; chosen by Maurice Baring; with notes by D. S. Mirsky. 1924 Oxford $3.75; 8s 6d 891.71

1 Russian poetry—Collections 25-10082

Altho in general this Catalog contains only books in English, an exception has been made in the case of the Oxford anthologies of verse in the original languages

"A representative selection of Russian poetry particularly of the nineteenth-century poets. The poems are all given in the original." Pratt quarterly

891.72 Russian drama

Andreev, Leonid Nikolaevich

Plays; tr. by C. L. Meader and F. N. Scott. 1915 Scribner o.p. 1933 891.72

15-5036

Contents: Black maskers; Life of man; Sabine women

"Two symbolic dramas and an amusing satire on present day Russian politics based on the story of the rape of the Sabines. The introduction by the Russian critic, V. V. Brusyanin, authoritatively expounds Andreev's theory that modern drama to truly mirror modern life should depict psychological struggles rather than those involving action. 'Not love, nor hunger, nor ambition, but thought in its sufferings, joys and struggles is the true hero of the life of today, and to it therefore is due the first place in the drama.' " Cleveland

Probably his best known play is "He who gets slapped; a play in four acts; tr. by Gregory Zilboorg" (1922 Brentano's o.p. 1933) a brilliant satire, the scene of which is laid in a circus. It may be found in a number of collections of plays. "Anathema; a tragedy in seven scenes; tr. by Herman Bernstein" (1910 Macmillan) is also o.p. 1933

Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich

Plays; tr. by Constance Garnett. (St Martin's lib.) 2v 1923 Chatto ea 3s 6d 891.72

Contents: v 1 Cherry orchard and other plays: Uncle Vanya, Sea-gull, Bear, Proposal; v2 Three sisters and other plays: Ivanov, Swan-song, Unwilling martyr, Anniversary, On the high road, Wedding

"In contrast with the more or less loosely constructed plays of his contemporaries, the best plays of Chekhov are tightly woven of the finest fabric. 'Three sisters,' 'The cherry orchard' and 'The seagull' are replete with the apparently aimless confusion of daily existence, but this seeming aimlessness is the result of the most delicate art. Chekhov was first a teller of tales, and to the drama he brought the same gifts that made him a great story-teller; his is an art of revolt because he deliberately avoids the prepared climaxes, the obvious struggles and superficial characterization of the ordinary play, and in their place he puts simply the men and women he knows." B. H. Clark's Study of the modern drama

Plays; tr. by Constance Garnett; preface by Eva Le Gallienne. 1930 Modern lib. 95c 891.72

30-26613

Contents: Sea-gull; Cherry orchard; Three sisters; Uncle Vanya; Anniversary; On the high road; Wedding

Gogol, Nikolai Vasilievich

Government inspector, and other plays; tr. by Constance Garnett. 1927 Knopf $2; Chatto 3s 6d 891.72

27-5644

Contents: Government inspector; Marriage; Gamblers; Dramatic sketches & fragments: Official's morning; Lawsuit; Servants' hall; Fragment

"Comic situations, and side-splittingly funny reactions to them are the rule in this group of plays by a Russian dramatist of the early 19th century . . . Under it all there is satire, not only on human nature, but on the Russian government and officialdom. For instance, 'The government inspector' satirizes the political conditions in a small Russian town." Providence

The title play is also available in an acting version by John Anderson "Inspector general" (1931 French $1.50)

Moscow art theatre series of Russian plays; ‡ tr. by Jennie Covan and others; ed by O. M. Sayler, 1st-2d ser 2v 1923 Coward-McCann v 1 $3, v2 o.p. 1933 891.72

Contents: ser 1 Tsar Fyodor Ivanovitch, by Tolstoy; Lower depths, by Gorky; Cherry orchard, by Tchekhoff; Three sisters, by Tchekhoff; Uncle Vanya, by Tchekhoff; ser 2 Brothers Karamazoff, by Dostoievsky; Mistress of the inn, by Goldoni; Ivanoff, by Tchekhoff; Enemy of the people, by Ibsen; Enough stupidity in every wise man, by Ostrovsky

Translations of plays from the repertoire of the Moscow art theater which toured the United States several years ago. Preceding each play is a brief characterization and stage history, and the book is illustrated by stage photographs. Separate paging for each play

Noyes, George Rapall
(ed.) Masterpieces of the Russian drama. 1933 Appleton-Century $7.50; 30s 891.72

1 Russian drama 33-3798

Contents: Young hopeful, by Fonvízin; Wit works woe, by Griboyédov; Inspector, by Gogol; Month in the country, by Turgénev; Poor bride, by Ostróvskĭĭ; A bitter fate, by Písemsky; Death of Ivan the Terrible, by A. K. Tólstoy; Power of darkness, by L. N. Tólstoĭ; Down and out, by Gorky; Cherry orchard, by Chekhov; Professor Storitsyn, by Andreev; Mystery-bouffe, by Mayakóvsky; Biographical notes and reading list

"The volume is one of the most important play collections recently published, valuable not only to students of drama but to all who have delighted in the contribution that Russia has made to the modern theatre. . . A comprehensive and scholarly introduction serves to make enlightening comment on the line of literary progress which the plays illustrate. It forms an admirable background for the reading, and indeed for the production, of the dramas that follow." Theatre arts monthly

Ostrovskiĭ, Aleksandr Nikolaevich
Plays; ed by G. R. Noyes. 1917 Scribner $2.50 891.72

A20-1305

Contents: Protégée of the mistress; Poverty is no crime; Sin and sorrow are common to all; It's a family affair—we'll settle it ourselves

"Ostrovskĭĭ was a dramatist of the great realistic period of Russian literature, who devoted himself to the portrayal of the merchant class. 'It's a family affair' is a keen-edged portrayal of the low standard of Russian commercial morals in the 50's. 'A protégée of the mistress' shows how the serfs were subject to the caprices of irresponsible owners and, like Turgenieff's 'Sportsman's sketches,' helped to forward the movement for emancipation. 'Poverty is no crime,' 1854, shows the influence of the Slavophile movement; 'Sin and sorrow are common to all' is a tragic incident resulting from the conflict of the petty tradesmen and the nobility." Cleveland

Pushkin, Aleksandr Sergĭeevich
Boris Godunóv; a drama in verse; tr. by Alfred Hayes. 1918 Dutton $1; Oxford 2s 6d 891.72

20-26195

"An excellent translation into English verse of Pushkin's most masterful work. An historical drama of the first decade of the seventeenth century dealing with a succession of pretenders to the throne." Cleveland

The play has been used as the libretto of Musorgskĭĭ's opera

Tolstoĭ, Lev Nikolaevich, graf
* Dramatic works; tr. by N. H. Dole. 1923 Crowell $1.75 891.72

23-8261

Contents: Power of darkness; First distiller; Fruits of enlightenment; Live corpse; Light shines in the darkness; Root of all evil; Wisdom of children

There is an introduction by the translator and a glossary of Russian proper names and common words used in the text

Turgenev, Ivan Sergĭeevich
* Plays; tr. by M. S. Mandell, with an introduction by W. L. Phelps. 2v 1924 Macmillan $4; Heinemann 12s 6d 891.72

Contents: Carelessness; Broke; Where it is thin, there it breaks; Family charge; Bachelor; Amicable settlement; Month in the country; Country woman; Conversation on the highway; Evening in Sorrento

"The publication of his plays in English translation shows beyond doubt that he was essentially foreign to the dramatic form. If their dramatic value be questionable, however, their importance as documents on racial psychology can hardly be overestimated." E. Björkman in Outlook

Contemporary drama of Russia. (Contemporary drama ser.) 1924 Little o.p. 1933 891.72

1 Russian drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Theater—Russia 24-27618

"Critical survey... The successes of the Moscow art theater are rated somewhat less high than in the popular foreign estimation. He bases his conclusions on evidence drawn from Russian theatrical annals and periodicals and from contemporary letters. From these sources he has traced the evolution of the Russian drama and the relation of the dramatists to the stage production of their plays. Playwrights and plays not otherwise accessible have been dealt with and there is a bibliographical appendix of authors and plays [p191-260]." Book rev. digest

891.85 Polish literature

Dyboski, Roman
Modern Polish literature. 1924 Oxford $2; 6s 891.85

1 Polish literature—Hist. & crit. 24-13479

A course of lectures delivered in the School of Slavonic studies, King's college, University of London. The novel, dramatic literature and lyrical poetry are successively discussed. Even in so short a history, the author succeeds in showing the influence of the writers of other nations, and gives space to the great translators of his own country

His "Periods of Polish literary history" (1923 Oxford $2; 6s) based on the Ilchester lectures delivered by the author at the University of Oxford, is a comprehensive treatment with a background of political and social history. It contains few living authors, and is therefore an admirable complement to "Modern Polish literature"

Chudoba, František
Short survey of Czech literature. 1924 Routledge o.p. 1933 891.86
1 Bohemian literature 25-40
"A primer to a literature which tho nearly a thousand years old is hardly known in western Europe. The history is divided almost equally between the period up to the time of the national revival and the subsequent period to the new political independence. Nearly one hundred pages of extracts and a bibliography are included." Book rev. digest

Selver, Paul
(comp. and tr.) Anthology of Czechoslovak literature. 1929 Routledge 7s 6d 891.86
1 Bohemian literature 29-7525
"English renderings from the works of Czech and Slovak authors in prose and verse, mostly modern and many of them contemporary. The translator has selected his material mostly for its artistic qualities, but occasionally because of its documentary interest. All the extracts, with the exception of one or two of the earliest prose specimens, are complete in themselves." Preface
A 32 page introduction gives a résumé of the history of Czechoslovak literature

892 SEMITIC LITERATURE

892.4 Hebrew literature

Fleg, Edmond
(comp. and tr.) Jewish anthology; tr. by Maurice Samuel. 1925 Harcourt o.p. 1933 892.4
25-18587
Published originally in French, with title "Anthologie juive." The compilation aims to present by means of brief extracts a rapid picture of Jewish spiritual experience from the beginnings to modern times. The selections were originally written in Hebrew, Aramaic, Greek, Latin, Arabic, French, English, German, Italian and Yiddish, and were freely translated and adapted by M Fleg for his anthology. The selections are classed in four epochs—the Hellenistic, the Talmudic, the Rabbinic and the modern

1 Hebrew literature—Hist. & crit. 16-14907
Cover title: Modern Hebrew literature
"'Hebrew literature did not end with the close of the canon of the Old Testament,' says the author, 'but has continued its existence through all the devious paths of Jewish history down to our own time, always expressing the spirit, the influences, the material and spiritual condition of the Jewish people during the long ages of its struggle and suffering.' He has chosen for study the period between the fifties of the last century and our own time and he is concerned mainly with belles-lettres. There is an introduction dealing with Post-Biblical Hebrew literature and The evolution of post-Biblical Hebrew." Book rev. digest
Shalom Spiegel's "Hebrew reborn" (1930 Macmillan $3) is another study of the significant figures of modern Hebrew literature

Nadir; Bebele, and Lone worlds! by P. Hirschbein; After the funeral, by I. L. Peretz; Brothers, by A. Raisen; "Liars!" by F. Bimko [S. Rabinowitz]; Of an early morning, and Sisters, by I. L. Peretz

"Each an excellent example of the one-act form and presenting a different picture of Yiddish life. Good for amateur production, as they require few characters and only the simplest staging." Book rev. digest

Goldberg, Isaac

* (ed. and tr.) Six plays of the Yiddish theatre, first-second series. 2v 1916-18 Luce, J. W. ea $1.50 892.42

1 Yiddish drama—Collections (17-3462)

Ser. 1. "The first two plays, 'Abigail,' a Biblical drama, and 'Forgotten souls,' a play of the Russian pale, are by David Pinski, whose longer drama, 'Treasure,' was published last year [1915]. The third play, 'She must marry a doctor' is by Solomon J. Rabinowitsch, known as 'the Yiddish Mark Twain.' Then follow two plays by Sholom Ash, 'Winter' and 'The sinner,' and one by Perez Hirschbein, 'In the dark.'" Book rev. digest

Ser. 2. "Two plays by Pinski, 'Little heroes,' a kindly ironical study of childish boastfulness and 'Stranger,' based upon a legend of the coming of the Messiah; Hirschbein's 'On the threshold,' a well drawn portrait of a domestic tyrant and miser; Levin's 'Poetry and prose,' the disillusionment which comes to a married woman who fixes her errant affections on a self-centered genius; Korbin's 'Black sheep,' a pathetic and powerful play on the hold of early evil associations on the son of a family of the slums raised to wealth and position, and his 'Secret of life,' a fantasy of youth on a quest to solve the eternal riddle." Cleveland

Pinsky, David

Ten plays; tr. by Isaac Goldberg. 1920 Viking press o.p. 1933 892.42

1 Yiddish drama—Collections 20-9850

Contents: Phonograph; God of the newly rich wool merchant; Dollar; Cripples; Inventor and the king's daughter; Diplomacy; Little heroes; Beautiful nun; Poland—1919; Stranger

"These ten one-act plays . . . depict the various weaknesses and passions of men: greed, selfishness, war hysteria, lust, war's devastation, with at the end a dramatization of the Midrash legend." Book rev. digest

Rappoport, Solomon

Dybbuk; a play in four acts, by S. Ansky, pseud; tr. by H. G. Alsberg and Winifred Katzin. 1926 Liveright o.p. 1933 892.42

26-11435

Introduction by G. W. Gabriel, and a note on Chassidism by Chaim Zhitlowsky. "The 'Dybbuk' deals with the struggle of a rabbinical student to possess the love of a girl in defiance of all the sanctions of family authority, of religion, and of reality itself." Survey

"A reading of the text confirms the stage impression of a translation sufficiently colloquial without sacrifice of dignity, and of a drama which quite marvelously makes thrilling scenes out of the folk lore of mysticism, out of the supernatural, yet leaves always the possibility of a rationalistic explanation." W. P. Eaton in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

892.7 Arabic literature

Arabian nights

The thousand and one nights; tr. by E. W. Lane. 1930 Scribner $5; Chatto 15s 892.7

30-26609

Many editions intended for children will be found listed and described in the Children's Catalog

The complete Lane translation in one volume with illustrations by William Harvey. An attractive edition. The Lane translation is also available in Bohn's popular library (4v Harcourt ea 85c; Bell, G. ea 2s)

A selection from the famous translation by R. F. Burton is available entitled "Arabian nights" (1932 Blue ribbon bks. $1) The stories are chosen and arranged by B. A. Cerf and printed complete with an introduction by B. R. Redman. The same material is available from Modern library at 95c, but in a format that is less satisfactory for library use

"Sung to Shahryar; ed by E. P. Mathers" (1925 Boni o.p. 1933) is a small selection of verses from the Arabian nights from the literal version of Dr J. C. Mardrus. The poems are arranged by subject, as Birds, Death, Flowers, Wisdom and conduct, and Ways of love

Gibb, Hamilton Alexander Rosskeen

* Arabic literature; an introduction. (World's manuals) 1926 Oxford $1; 2s 6d 892.7

1 Arabic literature—Hist. & crit. 27-12707

Brief history of a literature that flourished mostly between 750 and 1258 A.D. Arabic literature was produced by people of the most varied ethnic origins, who lost their nationalism under the influence of their Arab conquerors. This concise summary closes with a section on the period from 1258 to 1800 and a few paragraphs on western influence

C. I. Huart's "History of Arabic literature; tr. by Lady M. S. H. Loyd" (1903 Appleton o.p. 1933) is a useful volume in the Short histories of the literatures of the world series. It is more comprehensive than Gibb, covering more completely the literature from its origins thru the 19th century

893 Egyptian literature

Budge, Sir Ernest Alfred Thompson Wallis

* Literature of the ancient Egyptians. 1914 Dutton $1.50; Dent 5s 893

1 Egyptian literature—Hist. & crit. 14-30982

Introduction to the study of Egyptian literature of all the great periods under the Pharaohs. The book is largely an anthology of translations, some never before done in English. With few exceptions, each specimen is complete. The collection includes pyramid texts, the Book of the Dead, legends, historical and autobiographical literature, adventure tales, philosophy, hymns and so on

Maspero, Sir Gaston Camille Charles
Popular stories of ancient Egypt; tr. by Mrs C. H. W. Johns. 1915 Putnam o.p. 1933 893

1 Egyptian literature—Collections 2 Folklore, Egyptian 15-19222

"A very scholarly work, presenting a series of stories that were supposedly popular in their day in ancient Egypt. . . They are provided with a long general introduction, special introductions for each story and a plethora of footnotes. The stories are interesting to Egyptologists for their faithful reflection of the habits and customs of the times. They have an added interest in the comparisons which they invite with stories from other literatures—the first of them, 'The two brothers,' for instance, suggesting the Old Testament story of Potiphar's wife. . . This work has been translated from the fourth French edition, the author having read and revised the translation." Book rev. digest

Sir W. M. F. Petrie, also an authority on Egypt, has edited "Egyptian tales translated from the papyri" (first-second series 2v 1918 Methuen v 1 6s, v2 5s). The editor assigns each tale to a definite historical period, and adds valuable notes

Sharpley, C. Elissa
(comp.) Anthology of ancient Egyptian poems. (Wisdom of the East ser.) 1925 Dutton $1.20; Murray, J. 3s 6d 893

1 Egyptian poetry—Collections [25-25774]

Cover title: Ancient Egyptian poems

"The poems in this anthology are taken from the Pyramids, from ancient papyri and the hieroglyphics engraved on walls of tombs and temples. Included among them are hymns to the gods, triumphal poems in honor of victorious Pharaohs, some extracts from ancient love songs and a few philosophical poems." Book rev. digest

"Miss Sharpley's book, with its selection from the great hymns to the Egyptian gods, gives us a fair chance of making some judgment for ourselves without the interposition of biased comment." Spectator

Finnish

Kalevala
Kalevala, the land of heroes; tr. by W. F. Kirby. (Everyman's lib.) 2v 1907 Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s 894

A10-39

Unrhymed verse translation in the same meter as the original. Notes and a glossary of Finnish names

"The great monument of Finnish literature. . . A kind of epic poem, which was arranged in a systematic collection, and given to the world in 1833, by Elias Lönnrot. . . The poem, which strongly resembles 'Hiawatha,' takes its name from the heroes of Kaleva, the land of happiness and plenty, who struggle with three others from the cold north and the land of death. It begins with the creation, and ends in the triumph of the heroes of Kaleva." A. C. L. Botta's Handbook of universal literature

Hungarian

A small volume of English translations from modern Hungarian poets by a talented linguist and poet

Kirkconnell, Watson
(ed.) Magyar muse, an anthology of Hungarian poetry, 1400-1932. 1933 Vajna 12s 6d 894

1 Hungarian poetry—Collections 2 Poets, Hungarian 3 Folk-songs 33-17381

An anthology translated by the editor, with a historical and critical introduction to Hungarian poetry, and brief biographical sketches

"Magyar poetry to judge from this anthology —seems most often to fall into patriotic strains. Although the selections are well translated, one feels that the originals possessed greater beauty and fire." Cincinnati

Madách, Imre
Tragedy of man; tr. by C. H. Meltzer and Paul Vajda. 1933 Stechert $2.50; Hogarth 6s 894

34-5505

Written in 1862. A dramatic poem in fifteen scenes

"Madach has an originality all his own, resting upon high imaginative and reflective gifts, tempered by keen national feeling and expressing itself through an instrument peculiarly well adapted for poetic expression." Foreword

Molnár, Ferenc
Plays. 1929 Vanguard press $3.50 894

29-16490

"This volume contains all of the plays of Ferenc Molnar [1928]. It is published simultaneously, in the languages of their countries, in Budapest, Berlin, Rome, London and New York. The following twelve plays are listed in the order of their production in America: 'The devil,' 1908; 'The tale of the wolf,' first produced in America as 'The phantom rival,' 1914; 'Liliom,' 1921; 'Fashions for men,' 1922; 'The swan,' 1923; 'Heavenly and earthly love,' 1923; 'The guardsmen,' 1924; 'Carnival,' 1924; 'The glass slipper,' 1925; 'The play's the thing,' 1926; 'Olympia,' 1928; 'Mima,' adapted from 'The Red Mill,' 1928." Cleveland

Although the plays vary considerably in merit, the best of them, such as "Liliom," have already taken their places as masterpieces of contemporary drama. Even at his worst, Molnar's plays are well-built and witty, tho perhaps a little sophisticated for average American readers and audiences

Some small libraries may consider one or two representative plays sufficient. The following are obtainable in separate editions: "Guardsman; tr. by G. I. Colbron and Hans Bartsch" (1924 Liveright $2; Am. bk. supply 10s); "Liliom; English text by B. F. Glazer" (1921 Liveright $2; Am. bk. supply 10s); and "The good fairy; by Jane Hinton" (1932 Smith, R.R. $2)

895 CHINESE AND JAPANESE LITERATURE

Chinese

Ayscough, Mrs Florence, and Lowell, Amy (trs.) Fir-flower tablets; poems tr. from the Chinese. 1921 Houghton $2.50; Constable 14s 895

1 Chinese poetry—Collections 22-3648

"A collection of poems from the Chinese, translated into English by Mrs Ayscough whose version was painstakingly rendered into free verse by Miss Amy Lowell." Pratt quarterly

It is claimed by some Chinese scholars that Amy Lowell, like Cranmer-Byng, has written such free English versions that they are more her own than they are Chinese. What the poems may have lost in their oriental quality, however, they have gained in appeal to the average reader. Miss Ayscough has appended valuable notes explaining the allusions in the poems

Buss, Kate Studies in the Chinese drama. 1930 Smith, P. $2.50 895

1 Chinese drama—Hist. & crit. 2 Theater—China 30-10366

"A survey of the Chinese theatre—its repertory, music, actors, decoration, costume, symbolic design, etc. Illustrated with several stage photographs of Mei Lan-Fang, the famous Chinese actor. Formerly published by the Four Seas company." Book rev. digest

A. E. Zucker's "Chinese theater" (1925 Little o.p. 1933) is a beautiful and scholarly book, more complete than Buss. Unfortunately the edition was limited on account of four original paintings on silk which were used as illustrations

Giles, Herbert Allen ‡ History of Chinese literature. (Short histories of the literatures of the world) 1901 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 895

1 Chinese literature—Hist. & crit. 1-29917

This, the first history of Chinese literature in any language, still has the unqualified approval of Chinese scholars. It can only serve as an introduction to a literature which has flourished since six or more centuries before the Christian era, but as an introduction it is more than adequate. A large part of the book is devoted to translations made by the author, and remarks by native critics, so that the reader may form some idea of the Chinese point of view. The translations include many poems, extracts from prose works, and synopses of dramas

Jade mountain; a Chinese anthology, being three hundred poems of the T'ang dynasty, 618-906; tr. by Witter Bynner from the texts of Kiang Kang-hu. 1929 Knopf $4; Allen, G. 12s 6d 895

1 Chinese poetry—Collections 29-25006

"A selection, made by an unknown Chinese scholar of the 18th century, of 311 poems from the best loved poets of the T'ang dynasty 618-906. Mr Bynner's masterful translations retain the nobility and charm of the original Chinese." Pittsburg

"Chinese poems in English rhyme" edited and translated by Ts'ai T'ing-kan (1932 Univ. of Chicago press $3.50; Cambridge univ. press 20s) is an attractive volume of 122 poems of the T'ang period, the seventh and eighth centuries. Both the Chinese and the English versions are given

She king Classics of Confucius: Book of odes (Shi-king); tr. by L. Cranmer-Byng. (Wisdom of the East ser.) Dutton 90c; Murray, J. 2s 6d 895

[12-26270]

The earliest collection of Chinese poetry, compiled by Confucius about 500 B.C. They "are for the most part by unknown authors, and have at their best a sweep and a sincerity, often combined with a rugged folk-humor which is found in the best primitive poetry everywhere." Eunice Tietjens's Poetry of the Orient

Waley, Arthur (tr.) Hundred and seventy Chinese poems. 1919 Knopf $2.50; Constable 3s 6d 895

1 Chinese poetry—Collections 19-8167

Introductory material includes a comparison of Chinese and occidental poetry, a discussion of Chinese versification and a brief history of Chinese poetry. The anthology omits Li Po, Tu Fu and the odes collected by Confucius, and devotes a great deal of space to Po Chü-i

Japanese

Aston, William George ‡ History of Japanese literature. (Short histories of the literatures of the world) 1899 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 895

1 Japanese literature—Hist. & crit. 99-763

The first adequate treatment of Japanese literature, and one of the best. It touches upon archaic literature before the 8th century, and then discusses vividly and accurately the literature of Japan from 700 A.D. to the end of the 19th century. The text is further enlivened by translations of both prose and poetry

Bryan, John Thomas Ingram Literature of Japan. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 1930 Holt $1.25, student's ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d 895

1 Japanese literature—Hist. & crit. 30-7317

"This book will be a revelation to many, for it deals with a subject with which comparatively few are conversant. We learn, for one thing, that the Japanese language is unique; that is, it resembles no other language that is extant, in fundamental principles. Brief and judicious descriptions of the language, literary influences and outstanding literary works are included in this very informing little book." Providence

Iwasaki, Yozan T., and Hughes, Glenn (trs.) New plays from Japan. 1930 Appleton-Century $3; Benn 8s 6d 895

1 Japanese drama 2 Japanese literature 30-16410

Three plays representative of modern Japanese drama, showing the influence of western dramatists. Contents: Death, by Takeo Arishima; A family affair, by Saneatsu Mushakoji; Burning her alive, by Senzaburo Sudzuki

Lombard, Frank Alanson Outline history of the Japanese drama; with an introduction by G. P. Baker. 1929 Houghton $5; Allen, G. 16s 895

1 Japanese drama—Hist. & crit. [29-12003]

"This book is an anthology rather than a history, a fact for which the reader may well be grateful. Mr Lombard includes seven No plays, five farces, one puppet-play, and one 'popular' play (kabuki). Nearly a hundred pages are devoted to the early dance-songs. It is, therefore, inevitable that not much room is left for a connected account of the Japanese stage. The various sections of the book are strung together by a few pages of explanation." Times (London) lit. sup.

Lombard, Frank A.—Continued

Noguchi, Yone
Spirit of Japanese poetry. (Wisdom of the East ser.) 1914 Dutton $1.20; Murray, J. 3s 6d 895

1 Japanese poetry—Hist. & crit. [14-12863]

"English poetry, to the Japanese mind, is governed too much by history and tradition. Mr Noguchi thinks that the poetry of the East may bring a fresh spirit and a new medium of expression to western poets. His book is most delightful reading; he inverts nearly all of our preconceived ideas as to what constitutes poetry." Review of reviews

Waley, Arthur
(tr.) Japanese poetry, the 'uta.' 1919 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d, pa 6s 895

1 Japanese poetry—Collections 20-14302

"I have given this book the perhaps too comprehensive title 'Japanese poetry,' but have excluded from it both the 'hokku' and the poetry of the No plays... The 'uta' of the sub-title means... the verse of thirty-one syllables." Introduction

"The poems here translated are from the Manyo Shu anthology (Ten-thousand leaves collection) compiled by Otomo no Yakamochi, who died in 785, and are considered as the beginnings of Japanese poetry as an art. 'The translations in this book,' says Mr Waley, 'are chiefly intended to facilitate the study of the Japanese text; for Japanese poetry can only be rightly enjoyed in the original.' The original texts of the poems accompany the translations, and notes on grammar are given to facilitate the student who wishes to master the originals." Boston Transcript

Nō plays of Japan. 1920 Allen, G. 18s 895

1 Japanese drama—Collections 21-13239

Formerly carried also by Knopf

"This book contains translations of twenty No plays and summaries of seventeen more. There are some two hundred and fifty of these plays extant, written between the fourteenth and sixteenth centuries... Mr Waley provides an introduction describing stage settings, costumes and properties and tracing the origins of the plays. The illustrations include a plan of a fifteenth century theater in Kyoto and of a modern stage." Book rev. digest

"They constitute an important contribution to the art of the drama and to scholarship." N.Y. Times

Mrs B. L. Suzuki's "Nogaku; Japanese no plays" (1932 Dutton $1.25; Murray, J. 3s 6d) in the Wisdom of the East series, contains an introduction on the no plays; the texts of six plays: Aridoshi, Ebira, Ninin Shizuka, Kashiwazaki, Tsuchigumo, and Yuki; and summaries of seven more

See class 811 for Mary Austin's "American rhythm," a collection of "studies and reëxpressions of Amerindian songs"

Barnes, Nellie
(comp.) American Indian love lyrics and other verse, from the songs of the North American Indians. 1925 Macmillan $1.75; 9s 897

1 Indians of North America—Poetry 25-24985

Anthology of translations from the Indian languages, done by authorities and grouped here under such subjects as Songs of love and friendship, Songs of grief, Songs of deities and holy places. The poems may be too different from our poetry for the average reader to enjoy, but they are interesting and valuable as an approach to a better understanding of the Indian. Mary Austin, herself an authority, has written an introduction, and Miss Barnes has contributed a chapter on poetic thought forms and rhythm

The first real anthology of American Indian poetry, edited by G. W. Cronyn, was "Path on the rainbow" (1918 Boni & Liveright o.p. 1933). This book too had an introduction by Mary Austin, and included songs from the eastern tribes, the plains Indians, the pueblo tribes, the Navajos, the Zuñis, the Hopis, and the Indians of the west coast, in translations by such well known authorities as Natalie Curtis Burlin, Constance Lindsay Skinner, Boas and Mrs Austin

"M. Berdyaev, one of the leading 'Neo-Christians' of modern Russia, prophesies in his book the breakdown of modern civilisation, because he can find no meaning in any life in which the central principle is not a mystic communion with God. He loathes alike the acquisitiveness of capitalist society and the diabolism of Communist Russia." New statesman and Nation

"The thought Berdyaev expounds with extraordinary effectiveness and conviction; and a wealth of deeply Catholic sentiment. The least satisfying element in his doctrine is his unqualified denunciation of democracy." America

Buckle, Henry Thomas

Introduction to the history of civilization in England; ed. by J. M. Robertson. new and rev ed 1904 Dutton $4.25; Routledge 10s 6d 901

1 Civilization—Hist. 5-15107

Appleton-Century publishes a 2 volume edition at $5 under the title: "History of civilization in England"

"A reprint of Buckle's work, with a new index. The two volumes in which it originally appeared (1857-61) bore the title 'History of Civilization in England,' their subject-matter, however, being simply the uncompleted 'General Introduction' to the projected work so entitled." Preface

"Buckle never got further than his introduction concerning the background of civilization. He needs to be read critically, but after many years there is still no introduction to history or sociology which so sweeps the reader away by its cleverness, its readableness, and its enthusiasm." Trinity college list

Burns, Cecil Delisle

Modern civilization on trial. 1931 Macmillan $2.50; Allen, G. 10s 6d 901

1 Civilization 31-17153

"In this book modern civilization is taken to mean the whole complex of social customs, beliefs, and emotional attitudes, which make the people of New York, London, Paris, and Berlin different from those of Tientsin or Timbuctoo, and different also from what Western peoples were even twenty years ago." Preface

"It is not a large book. Nor is it an immensely scholarly book . . . Dr. Burns has the rare and saving knack of presenting cold figures so that they do not appall, while his facts are expressed in language that appeases." Outlook

Short history of international intercourse. 1924 Oxford $1.75; Allen, G. 5s 901

1 Civilization—Hist. 2 Peace [24-13875]

"The author here indicates the lines along which he holds historical study in schools and research should develop in order that history may become less local. He points out that the main current of civilized life has never run for long through one people and in one locality; taken as a whole civilization is international. This stimulating book is concerned with the history of the interchange of ideas between the races and the growth of international intercourse, whether by means of art, commerce, printing, or science." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The book is written for the general reader and the undergraduate rather than for scholars, but even scholars may find in it a reminder of forgotten facts as well as a valuable statement of a point of view which ought to correct some of the follies of present-day nationalism." Nation

De Burgh, William George

Legacy of the ancient world. 1924 Macmillan $6; Macdonald & Evans 15s 901

1 Civilization—Hist. 24-12630

"An introduction to the study of ancient civilization, for the general reader whose demand for a history of Greece, Rome, and Israel is not satisfied by elementary manuals." Pittsburgh

"Professor De Burgh has produced a book that is sound in its essentials. In general it is readable and lucid, although some sentences are too packed with facts and hence lacking in clearness. As might be expected the writer is most at home in the discussion of philosophical topics. The inclusion of a chapter on the Legacy in the Middle Age is to be commended." Amer. hist. rev.

* Thunder and dawn; the outlook for western civilization, with special reference to the United States. 1932 Macmillan $3.50; 18s 901

1 Civilization 2 Social problems 3 U.S.—Civilization 32-8918

"After examining the thesis of those who despair and of those who hope, a leading educator concludes that a renaissance of western civilization is possible, if we have the will, the wisdom, and the genius to recognize, coördinate, and utilize the raw materials of spiritual, cultural, and economic rebirth." Pittsburgh

"There is little that is novel in President Frank's book. As far as substance goes, it is hardly more than a summary of criticisms and proposals that have been made many times during the past two or three years. Its interest lies in the directness and fairness with which criticisms are stated, the forcible way in which its constructive suggestions are offered, the pungency of its style and its pervading note of hope. The reader who still believes in America but needs some strengthening of his faith will find the book very much to his taste." N.Y. Times

European heritage; a synopsis of European cultural achievement. 1930 Coward-McCann $2; Dent 6s 901
1 Europe—Civilization 31-9731
"This little book endeavors to set down something of the achievements of each of the European peoples in the hope that it may work, even though in a very small way, for inter-racial respect and admiration." Preface
"The author is a Canadian scholar and poet whose keen interest in language and literature has given him a working knowledge of fifty languages and dialects and a wide acquaintance with the history of literature and the arts. He has applied all this varied knowledge and this eager interest in human achievement to the making of this brief but excellent synopsis of European culture." N.Y. Times

Marshall, Leon Carroll
Story of human progress. new ed 1928 Macmillan $3.50; 7s 6d 901
1 Civilization 28-14217
A textbook which, although intended for the high school student will be useful in a general collection. Its purpose is to give the background and present state of our economic, social and political life. This it does by considering man under five heads: Man in early groups or societies; Man, the harnesser of nature: Multiplication of man's powers; Man, the communicator; Man, the teamworker and co-operator; Man, the idealist and aspirer. This new edition has been revised so that it is less juvenile in text and make-up than the earlier one, published 1925, and parts have been rewritten. The content is practically the same, however. The text is carefully illustrated with drawings, charts and maps
Accompanied by "Readings in the story of human progress" (1926 Macmillan $1.80) compiled by the same author

Martin, Everett Dean
Civilizing ourselves. 1932 Norton $3 901

From tribe to empire; social organization among primitives and in the ancient East. (History of civilization) 1926 Knopf $5; Routledge 16s 901
1 Society, Primitive 2 Totemism 3 Egypt—History, Ancient 4 Man, Prehistoric 26-13484
Translated by V. Gordon Childe
"MM. Moret and Davy, the one a sociologist and the other an historian, combine in 'From Tribe to Empire' to trace how individual practices gradually harden into tribal institutions, out of which grow formulated law and finally the complex structure of society, much as we know it to-day. Illustrations of the process are drawn from the history of the ancient Egyptians and Babylonians, and from such still primitive peoples as the Aruntas of Central Australia." Spectator
"History of civilization series" to which this volume belongs, is an important series which is to cover eventually all sides of human culture. 1 Civilization 2 Europe—Civilization 3 Proletariate 32-26885
"This famous Spanish intellectual sees the control of government by the masses as a menace to civilization, drowning out the voice of the cultured few who are a country's 'saving grace.' The book was written before the recent change in Spain's government." Pittsburgh
"This particular analysis of the modern world's predicament is complex, brilliant, original, and anything but easy to follow. It will probably be attacked from all sides, and especially from the Marxist camp. . . The Revolt of the Masses is an extraordinary stimulating book, even if one completely disagrees with its thesis." Forum

moral ideals, of economic and political and artistic thought and institutions, continue to survive in a world where the machine has created for us a new environment and science a new universe?'" Book rev. digest

"Much of the material in this book is a popularized version of the author's more scholarly 'Making of the Modern Mind,' and it need therefore scarcely be said that it is a philosophical, sociological essay on the evolution of Western society since the Renaissance, and very delightful reading." A cheaper edition of a work published 1926-28 in two volumes and still obtainable in that form from G. Allen at 21s. Translated from the German by C. F. Atkinson

Volume one, "Form and actuality" . . . presents a philosophy of history and applies it to past civilizations and especially to the present civilization of western Europe and America, which, the author holds, has already reached its full expression and must therefore fall into decay." Pittsburgh

"Spengler's second volume, 'Perspectives of world-history,' brings to a conclusion his massive work on the philosophy of history. The principles defined in his first volume are here applied to the various aspects of social activity—the development of cities, races, and tongues, the state, politics, money and the machine." 1 Civilization—Hist. 2 Sociology—Hist. 3 Universe 4 Philosophy—Hist. 5 History—Philosophy 6 Ideology 33-5611

"The four parts are respectively headed Sociological, Cosmological, Philosophical, and Civilization. In varying degrees the treatment of each is historical, expository, and metaphysical. Professor Whitehead attempts to sketch the development of the leading ideas which have molded civilization, to analyze the nature and implications of each, and then to evolve a comprehensive metaphysical system capable of defending and promoting certain attitudes of his own." Nation

"Let no one assume that 'Adventures of Ideas' will prove a book easy to read. Professor Whitehead not only is a constructive thinker but he is enormously erudite as well. Outline history of the world. 1928 Oxford $2.50; 7s 6d 909

1 History, Universal 28-26853

Also obtainable in two parts: pt 1, $1.25; pt 2, $1.50

"In simple form and with few digressions the author tells the story of the world's progress from prehistoric times to the present. The different branches of ancient, medieval, and modern history in Africa, Europe, Asia, and America are followed side by side, but in spite of this method the chronology is kept clear. An excellent chronological table is appended. The author is considerably interested in international relations, and makes several points in favor of world federation. The many illustrations are well chosen and unusual." Bkl.

"His work is compact and yet inclusive, solid but not heavy. Although it will make good reading for anyone interested in new interpretations of history from the point of view of world unity, it will be found particularly valuable as a text-book. General history of the world. rev ed 1929 Crowell $4; Allen, G. 18s 909

1 History, Universal 29-23742

Revised and continued to 1901 by E. A. Grosvenor, with supplemental chapters to 1929 by M. S. C. Smith and J. W. McSpadden. This standard work which has been characterized as complete, systematic and satisfactory, originally ended with the year 1848. Generously provided with maps

Elson, Henry William

Modern times and the living past. 1921 Am. bk. $2.40 909

1 History, Universal 33-1195

Frequently reprinted with slight changes to bring the material down to date

"In this volume Professor Elson has responded to the recommendations of the committee of world history in the latter years of the high school. It is the purpose of this recommended course to help the pupil to understand contemporary social, economic, and industrial conditions as an outgrowth of the historical development of mankind. . . The illustrations are very valuable, especially the colored plates. The maps are purposeful and clear. The author's style is simple and direct." Literary rev.

World history, 1815-1920; tr. by S. B. Fay. 1922 Methuen 14s 909

1 History, Modern [22-17316]

Formerly carried also by Harcourt

"Unlike the usual world histories consisting of a series of narratives of different continents and peoples, this volume surveys the history of the last one hundred years from a really universal viewpoint. Those events only are brought out which have universal significance or influence and the historical personages introduced are confined to those who have affected the course of history. The period chosen, the nineteenth century, saw the spread of European civilization and colonization over the whole world. Europe and the European nations, therefore, are given the first place in the narrative." Book rev. digest

"On the whole his book is a brave attempt to find and apply a unifying principle of interpretation. Even apart from his main thesis, there are many chapters, more especially those dealing with English, French and Italian history, which are particularly fresh and informing; and everywhere one comes upon penetrating comment and illuminating generalization." Adventure of man; a brief history of the world. 1926 Christophers 4s 6d, educ. ed. 3s 909

Formerly carried also by Harcourt

"A brief history of the world, intended for all, young or old, who want a direct, simple account . . . The style is clear and pleasant, and the emphasis is well placed on the essential points. The form of the book and the illustrations are attractive. An admirable example of condensation combined with interest and readability. Short bibliography and index." Standard catalog for high school libraries

"It may be claimed for Mr. Happold that he has done all that is humanly possible in the space at his disposal, and indeed the book makes no pretension to completeness of treatment. It will doubtless find its place in many school libraries." Saturday rev.

* World history. 1932 Macmillan $2.20; 10s 6d 909

1 History, Universal 32-12407

Also published in two parts at $1.60 each. In the two volume edition part 1 covers the period to the American revolution; part 2 starts with the Crusades

"Designed for use in secondary schools, and, as its preface states, is not a new edition of the previous works of its authors, but a new book. Beginning with an attractive brief introduction on the value and unity of history, it traces carefully in the 'topical' manner the evolution of society (including that of early America and the Far East) from the 'Beginnings of Civilization' in Part I to 'Modern Civilization on Trial' in Part XII, and concludes with an appeal for good citizenship. The simple and readable text is well reinforced with a profusion of suitable illustrations." Hist. outlook

"This otherwise brilliant survey of what must be to our generation the most interesting of all periods of history is marred here and there as a schoolbook by a distinct political bias towards the views of one party—which might perhaps best be described as that of old-fashioned Liberalism and free trade . . . Were it not for its occasional political bias this would undoubtedly be the best short history of its period yet written." Times (London) lit. sup.

World after the Peace conference. 1926 Oxford $1.75; 5s 909

1 European war, 1914-1918—Influence and results 2 World politics 25-19520

"It was designed as an introduction to the [author's] Survey; [of international affairs, 1920-1923] but . . . it is, in fact, an independent essay. Professor Toynbee shows how economic and political forces—notably Industrialism and Nationality—had mapped the world before the War, and how those forces were remapping it again six years later. His comparisons of the old age and the new, his scanning of the political horizon, are in the great tradition." New statesman

"No summary can do justice to a penetrating analysis almost every sentence of which gives food for thought." Amer. hist. rev.

The author's "Survey of international affairs" is a valuable summary for reference use. A volume covering the years 1920-23 was published 1925 (Oxford $7; 21s). Since that time annual volumes have appeared and are now obtainable from Oxford at prices varying from $6 to $8 (ea 12s 6d to 25s). Supplements to these annual volumes were published as follows: for 1925 as "Chronology of international events and treaties" (1928 $4.25; 12s 6d); for 1926 as "Conduct of British empire foreign relations since the peace settlement" (1928 $3; 7s 6d); and for 1927 (1929 $8.50; 24s). The first volume of an annual supplementary series entitled "Documents on international affairs" was issued 1928. The volume for 1932, published 1933, is priced at $6.50

Webster, Hutton

Early European civilization. 1933 Heath $2.12 909

1 History, Universal 33-6794

Based on the author's "Early European history," first published 1917. Revision makes it substantially a new work. Numerous illustrations, maps and plans

A readable textbook. "The book contains twenty-nine chapters, of which four are devoted to prehistoric times and the ancient Near East, four to Greece, four to Rome, two to early Christianity and the barbarian invasions, and ten to the Middle Ages. The remaining chapters cover the period from the dawn of modern times to approximately the end of the eighteenth century. Each chapter forms a well-defined topic." Preface

Wells, Herbert George

* Outline of history; being a plain history of life and mankind. new ed 2v in 1 1927 Macmillan $5 909

1 History, Universal 26-18288

First published 1920 in 2 volumes and later revised. The 1927 edition is the two volume new illustrated edition of 1926 issued in one volume. Available also in a cheap edition as the "New and revised outline of history," in the Star series (1931 Garden City pub. co. $1). The original illustrations have been omitted but a large number of maps, plans, and illustrations in black and white, some of them redrawings of the originals, have been substituted. Also some small parts of the text have been omitted and additions in various chapters bring the story up to 1931. Also obtainable from Cassell in England in an illustrated edition in 2 volumes at 42s, and in a cheaper edition revised to 1930 at 8s 6d

"Beginning with the position of the earth in space it covers geologic time and human history down to the present and in true Wellsian fashion takes a look into the future. Experts have questioned details here and there but the authenticity of the whole seems to withstand the test of critical opinion." Wis. bul.

"It is good to take a broad view of history, and Mr Wells has done a real service to his generation by writing this entertaining 'Outline.'" Spectator

Short history of the world. 1922 Macmillan $4 909

1 History, Universal 22-21776

Also available in a cheaper edition (Cassell 7s 6d)

Not an abstract or condensation of the author's "Outline of history," but a much more generalized history, planned and written afresh, to meet the needs of the busy reader who has not the time to study the details of the longer work. Condensed from Preface

"Traces concisely, and yet in a very readable way, the evolution of the world's history up to the Washington and Genoa conferences. Special emphasis is placed on the growth of man's mental enfranchisement, on the development of scientific knowledge, and the spread of communication. The illustrations are many and illuminating." 1 World politics 2 European war, 1914-1918 —Territorial questions 3 Boundaries 28-29089

"A very full discussion, with many maps, of the geographical problems and political changes growing out of the war. The author who is [1933] director of the American geographical society of New York, acted as chief territorial specialist of the American commission to negotiate peace." Pratt quarterly

The author states in the preface to the fourth edition that he has undertaken complete revision of this work to conform with the events of the period since 1921. To make room for many additional maps and the discussion of the latest treaty developments he has omitted the photographs that appeared in the first edition. As a guide in following many questions of general application, the regional chapters are preceded by a preliminary essay on mandates and colonies, minorities, boundaries, disarmament, and international relations. Includes annotated bibliographies for separate countries, a list of treaties mentioned in the text, 257 maps, and illustrations. Index

"In this volume are brought together sketches of travel written between 1892 and 1913. They follow the letters written between 1887 and 1889 published in 'From sea to sea.' The new volume is composed of three sections. The first, 'From tideway to tideway,' opens with a New England sketch, 'In sight of Monadnock,' and contains other papers written in the United States, in Canada and the East. 'Letters to the family,' dated 1907, is a series of letters from Canada. 'Egypt of the magicians,' the third section, is a series of seven sketches written in 1913." Book rev. digest

"What is not a little curious is that the letters of 1892 are as brisk and as brilliant, as firmly planned and as effectively phrased as the letters of 1913, written more than a score of years later. "Delightfully written reminiscences spiced with many anecdotes of the author's travels in many lands: Cuba and Central America; East Africa up to and across the lakes, to the edge of the Sudan and on to Zanzibar; Singapore, Bangkok and Cambodia; and Angkor with its famous ruins. Newbigin, Marion Isabel

Mediterranean lands; an introductory study in human and historical geography. 1924 Crofts $2.50; Christophers 7s 6d 910

1 Mediterranean sea—Historical geography 2 Anthropogeography 24-30519

"An attempt to show what is meant by human geography, and . . . to trace the development of western civilization in relation to geographical conditions. It is intended primarily for the upper forms of schools in which the teaching of geography and of history is carried on along modern lines, and for university students." Preface

"It is all interesting, well put and eminently suggestive. Her book will stimulate many a teacher of history to think twice about what he or she has taken for granted hitherto, and to account for and connect up events which scholars used to be made merely to memorize as unconditioned isolated facts. The authoress has taken great and evident pains to be up to date not only in geographical science, but in the archaeological and historical fields." Times (London) lit. sup.

The author's "Modern geography" (1911 Holt $1.25, students ed $1; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d) is a brief book with chapters on beginnings of modern geography, various aspects of physical geography, plants, animals, minerals, races of men, etc.

New regional geography of the world. 1929 Harcourt $2.75; Christophers 5s 910

1 Geography 30-7842

"Chiefly a study of surface-relief and the phenomena dependent upon it. There is a general survey of each continent followed by a study of the physical features and their relation to man, the resources, population, and political units." Ontario library review

Prioleau, John

Open road abroad. 1932 Morrow $2; Dent 6s 910

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 2 Africa, North—Descr. & trav. 33-8284

From a wealth of experience in Continental driving Mr Prioleau writes with enthusiasm and generous information of motor touring along the highroads and by-ways of Europe and northern Africa. Useful sketch-maps of roads are included

"Mr. Prioleau really does do what many writers claim to do without much warrant—get off the beaten tracks. It is true that he begins with tours constantly done by thousands of British motorists, round Normandy and Brittany, along the Loire to visit the chateaux, etc. But he then turns to far less frequented paths. His chapters on the Pyrenees are especially good." Times (London) lit. sup.

Semple, Ellen Churchill

Geography of the Mediterranean region; its relation to ancient history. 1931 Holt $4; Constable 21s 910

1 Mediterranean sea—Historical geography 2 Physical geography 3 History, Ancient 31-33866

An outstanding, scholarly treatise by an eminent authority. Contains lists of authorities at ends of chapters, a general bibliography and maps

"The American author says that the book has cost her twenty years of study and travel, and we can well believe it. Fortunately, she is not overweighted with her learning, but writes in an attractive fashion about the varied aspects of her enthralling subject . . . Students of history, modern as well as ancient, will find this solid volume full of instructive comment." Spectator

1 Geography 32-26999

Published in England under title: Home of mankind

"Van Loon's Geography, like his well-known Story of Mankind, was written for children, but in a way that grown-ups may learn a good deal from it. The simplicity of Mr. Van Loon's language is perhaps overdone, but unquestionably he has genuine humor, and for the sake of his real insight and sound knowledge one is inclined to overlook some of his artificiality. . . . He can sum up in two or three pages not only the physical features but the entire history of a country. And his drawings, of which there are one hundred and fifty, are really amusing. From dry and unimaginative maps and charts he has made a gallery of pictures, surprising in their immense variety and—emotional quality." Boston

Lippincott, J. B., company
* Complete pronouncing gazetteer or geographical dictionary of the world. 3d ed 1922 Lippincott $12; 60s 910.3
1 Geography—Dictionaries [22-6136]
Published in 1905 under title, "Lippincott's new gazetteer." The 1922 edition is the same as the one of 1905, with the inclusion of 1920 census statistics. Reissued in 1931 with the substitution at the end of the volume of the conspectus of the 1930 census of the United States in place of earlier information
"The most complete and useful of the American gazetteers. Includes in one alphabet names of cities, towns, rivers, mountains, lakes and other geographical features, and gives for each the pronunciation of its name, information about other names by which the place was known, location, altitude, etc., and, in the case of towns, population figures, and brief information about local industries, finances, history, educational and other institutions, etc. . . This work is usually sufficient for all ordinary gazetteer questions. . . 1st ed. 1855. The latest revision is the 1906 ed. described above, and is now out of date for all places affected by the European war." Mudge

Gipsy of the Horn. 1925 Houghton $4; Heath, Cranton, 10s 6d 910.4
1 Voyages and travels 2 Seamen 3 Arethusa (Barque) 26-6158
"The narrative of a voyage around the world in a windjammer. It is not difficult to follow this voyage of twenty years ago, made on the small barque 'Arethusa' sailing one January afternoon out of London into all the adventure and romance of the seas. There are word pictures on every page—battling sharks, precipitous seas, sunrise in the tropics, terror by night . . . the book is amply illustrated with photographs. [Maps]." Book rev. digest
"Not only those who enjoy a stirring tale of adventure will welcome the book; for besides that it is a valuable account of a life that is rapidly passing away told in its proper speech by one who has lived it, and who feels kinship with his forerunners in it." Times (London) lit. sup.

Connolly, James Brendan

Book of the Gloucester fishermen; il. by Henry O'Connor. new ed 1930 Day $2.50 910.4

1 Fishermen 2 Seafaring life 30-28289

First published 1927. In the 1930 edition two stories, "The seining fleet puts out" and "Running to harbor," are added

"Breath-taking yarns of the hazardous lives of the Gloucester fishermen, by an author well-known for his short stories of the fishing fleet on the Grand Banks. . . Valuable as a record of one phase of an industry which has changed with the advent of the power boat, and enthralling for the reader who delights in adventure and the sea." Cleveland

Conrad, Joseph

Mirror of the sea. 1921 Doubleday, Doran $2; Dent 10s 6d 910.4

1 Seafaring life 26-15052

"The book is more than a series of fine pictures; it is a sensitive appreciation of the whole art of seamanship, an imaginative reading of the varying moods of the sea." Academy

The 1921 edition has a new preface by the author and is condensed from 328 pages of the 1906 edition to 194 pages with no changes in the text

Dana, Richard Henry

‡ Two years before the mast; a personal narrative; il. by E. Boyd Smith. (Riverside bookshelf) Houghton $2 910.4

1 Voyages and travels 2 Seamen 11-35887

This classic of the sea is an absorbing account of life at sea in the days of the sailing vessel in the 1830's. It was written by the author from a diary he kept when he served as a common sailor on a ship sailing around the Horn

There are many editions of this work. Among the more attractive are those editions in the Children's classics (Macmillan $1) and the Luxembourg illustrated library edition (Crowell $2). A satisfactory inexpensive edition is issued in the Riverside library (Houghton $1)

Pirates of Panama; ed and il. by G. A. Williams. 1914 Stokes $2.50 910.4

1 Buccaneers 2 Pirates 3 Spanish Main 4 West Indies—Hist. 28-19180

"A true account of the famous adventures and daring deeds of Sir Henry Morgan and other notorious freebooters of the Spanish Main." Subtitle

"Master John Esquemeling, buccaneer, (1645-1707), was a downright kind of man, and there is a dry insolence in the record that he made. He flings facts in your face with a take-it-or-leave-it air, and it is to his glory that he possesses the subtle qualities of unity and vigor of narration. Nor, spite of all the blood and the death and the pillage, shall you go unpaid for the reading of his tale, seeing that there stands, well revealed, the splendor of courage and of endurance." C. J. Finger in Nation

The original English text has been used, omitting some long descriptions. A verbatim reprint of this work under the title "Buccaneers of America," edited by W. S. "A young Frenchman who sailed around the world alone in a small boat, describes his trip. From Le Havre to New York, south through the Panama Canal, across the Pacific, into the Indian Ocean, around the Cape of Good Hope, and back to France made a trip of forty thousand miles, sailed in seven hundred days." Cleveland

"M. Gerbault's narrative is fascinating. Seamen would have appreciated much more nautical detail, but no doubt M. Gerbault's publishers wanted a book for the ordinary reader. As it is, there is enough about the technique to prevent the expert reader from actually complaining." Spectator

"What [this book attempts] to do is to show what conditions, geographical and social, preceded the rise of piracy, to trace its periodical rises and declines, its forms and fortunes, to depict the more outstanding members of the profession and finally to show how national organisation, backed by the steamship and the telegraph, brought it to an end." Foreword

"The scheme demanded no little scholarly investigation and this the author has evidently given it. . . No lover of pirate literature can afford to miss Mr. Gosse's book for the sake both of its extensive and interestingly told information and its multitude of stories of pirates and their deeds. Hakluyt, Richard

Selection of the principal voyages, traffiques and discoveries of the English nation; set out with many embellishments and a preface by Laurence Irving. 1926 Knopf $2.50; Heinemann 6s 910.4

1 Voyages and travels 2 Discoveries (in geography) 26-26533

Eight of the voyages chosen for their "breathless interest and inspiring heroism." These are the tales of three voyages of Hawkins, two of Drake, two of Cavendish and the Spanish Armada. An attractive book well illustrated with woodcuts

Two other good selections from Hakluyt are: "Hakluyt's voyages, selected and arranged by A. S. Mott" (1929 Houghton $2.50; Blackwell 7s 6d) and "Heroes from Hakluyt," edited by Charles Finger and illustrated by Paul Honoré (1928 Holt o.p. 1933)

For those libraries wanting more than a selection of the voyages there are several complete editions. An inexpensive one is published in eight volumes in the Everyman's library (Dutton ea 70c, lib. binding ea $1; Dent ea 2s, lib. binding ea 3s). The larger library may prefer the ten volume edition with an introduction by John Masefield (1927-28 Dutton ea $3; Dent ea 7s 6d, set 75s)

Lockhart, John Gilbert

Mysteries of the sea; a book of strange tales. 1924 Stokes $1; Allan, P. 2s 6d 910.4

[25-14958]

"There is some element of mystery in every one of the dozen episodes or disasters at sea that Mr Lockhart describes. The stories . . . are taken from both history and myth . . . For each one of these sea mysteries Mr Lockhart examines the various explanations already offered and gives his own solution." Book rev. digest

"The 'Lost Ships of La Perouse' spell enchantment, as their name implies. So do the two chapters on the sea monster and on the great sea-serpent, which appeared off the west coast of Scotland in 1908, and chased ashore a party in a small boat. The book also contains delightful old maps and etchings. Sea lovers will find thrills herein." Boston Transcript

Ocean tramp. 1921 Doubleday, Doran $2 910.4

21-8856

"An American edition of 'Letters from an ocean tramp' published in London in 1908. It is slightly edited by the author and further enriched by a long preface. 'As originally put out, this volume purported to be the random letters of the author's dead friend. They do not pretend to tell a story; they have no definite structure or continuity; they are simply an eager, crowded, tumultuous outpouring of the motley, thronging, kaleidoscopic memories and impressions, visions and dreams, engendered and wrought out thru the endless monotony of days and nights deep down in the vitals of the throbbing, pulsing engine-room." The adventure was more precarious than the previous one and the book will appeal to all who love the sea." Wis. bul.

"There is a somber beauty in the telling of this story, just as there is a feeling of reality about it which makes it a book to rank with the few genuine classics of the sea." Boston Transcript

Falmouth for orders; the story of the last clipper ship race around Cape Horn; with an introd. by F. C. Bowen. 1929 Holt $3.50; Bles 10s 6d 910.4

1 Clipper ships 2 Herzogin Cecilie (Clipper ship) 3 Beatrice (Clipper ship) 29-7741

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint in the Star series (Garden City pub. co. $1)

"A young Australian reporter with previous experience at sea shipped as one of the crew on the four-masted schooner Herzogin Cecilie sailing from Melbourne around the Cape to England. His story of the voyage—which assumed the nature of a race with the sailing ship Beatrice—was written down from day to day during the three months at sea." Book rev. digest

"This book must be described as belonging to the highest class of marine literature. It will, in my opinion, take its place near Dana's 'Two Years Before the Mast.' By a lucky chance the author is not only an able seaman but an able writer. The combination is important because it is comparatively rare . . . Mr. Villiers' style is lean and sinewy. There is not, in a literary sense, a single ounce of fat on him. Yet he can give us eloquence, and inspire us with a great love for his subject." William McFee in New republic

Grain race. 1933 Scribner $3; Bles 25s 910.4

1 Seafaring life 2 Parma (Ship) 3 Sailing 4 Voyages and travels 33-27072

Published in England under title: Voyage of the Parma

"An exciting chronicle of 1932 voyage around Cape Horn of the four-master barque 'Parma' in a race with seventeen other sailing vessels all carrying cargoes of grain from Australia to England. One feature of the book which will be of special interest is the intimate way in which the author puts the reader into the daily life of the ship. A good story of an eventful voyage. Well illustrated with photographs." Ontario library review

910.7 GEOGRAPHY—STUDY AND TEACHING

Bowman, Isaiah
Geography in relation to the social sciences; [and] Geography in the schools of Europe, by R. B. Clark. 1934 Scribner $2.25 910.7

1 Geography—Study and teaching

"An exceptionally clear exposition of the nature and limits of geography and its place in the social science field. . . Miss Clark's detailed survey of the study and teaching of geography in European schools is prefaced by a brief general description of the European school system, Continental and English curricula, and changes in educational objectives induced by the World War. . . Includes the place of geography in the curricula, the plan of teaching, the content of the courses of study, textbooks and other equipment and training of teachers." N.Y. Times

Smith, Edward Ehrlich
Teaching geography by problems. 1921 Doubleday, Doran $1.50 910.7

1 Geography—Study and teaching 21-16424

"The author asserts that geography is the most neglected as well as the most poorly taught of school subjects. In order to vitalize it he proposes that regional rather than political geography be taught and that it be done by problems and projects rather than by the mechanical method hitherto employed. The book is based on classroom experience. Part 1 elucidates the method, Part 2 deals with illustrative problems." Book rev. digest

The standard English atlas on the Holy Land. It contains topographical and historical notes and bibliography on each of the maps and charts of ancient and modern Palestine and neighboring countries. Chronological tables

912 ATLASES

For American libraries it is highly desirable to have at least one atlas which is detailed for the United States. In English atlases the emphasis of course will be on the British empire

Two atlases which are noted for the benefit of larger libraries or other libraries needing and able to afford more expensive works are:

Hammond, C. S., and company. New world loose leaf atlas. The company $37.50 This atlas was first published 1920. "Containing new and complete historical, economic, political and physical maps of the entire world, including the new states of Europe." Kept up to date by new revised maps distributed from time to time. The yearly service for this is now $5 after the first two installments which are furnished free as a part of the atlas purchase. Good index

Rand, McNally and company. Commercial atlas of America. The company Revised and reissued annually. The yearly lease of the atlas is $36. When a new volume is issued the old edition goes back to the publisher

Bartholomew, John George

Citizen's atlas of the world. 4th ed 1924 Bartholomew 45s 912

1 Atlases Map26-8

Formerly published under title: XXth century citizens' atlas

Good maps, by one of the leading map makers, and an excellent general index

Handy reference atlas of the world. 12th ed 1933 Lauriat $5; Bartholomew 12s 6d 912

1 Atlases

A small sized atlas (7¼ x 5¼ inches) designed to be used for desk work. Contains besides the 126 maps geographical information both in tables and charts; national flags, gazetteer index, etc.

Oxford advanced atlas. 4th ed 1931 Oxford $3.50; 10s 6d 912

1 Atlases [Map29-3]

New edition of his "Advanced atlas of physical and political geography," revised by J. Bartholomew

An English atlas which is good for school use especially. Like some other English atlases, it will need to be supplemented when state and other local maps are wanted for the United States. Slight changes have been made in the 1931 edition

Another atlas by J. G. Bartholomew which is also good for school use is "Oxford economic atlas" (6th ed rev by J. Bartholomew 1925 Oxford $2; 6s) Contains 65 maps. The "Atlas of economic geography," by J. Bartholomew and L. W. Lyde (3d ed rev and enl 1928 Oxford $3; 8s 6d) contains most of the same maps, with a few different ones and has much more text

Goode, John Paul

* Goode's school atlas: physical, political, and economic. 4th ed rev and enl 1932 Rand $4 912

1 Atlases Map32-24

This edition carries 78 more pages of maps than the first edition published 1923. It includes 37 new maps presenting a study of the production and movement of 96 leading commercial commodities. The pronunciation of every geographic name has been introduced in the index

"Conveys information, both actual and comparative, about a multitude of things we are all interested in—surface, climate, vegetation, soils, economic resources, trade, means of communication, races, languages and religions. The author, himself a teacher of ripe experience, has seen to it that the symbols by which these maps express their meaning are made clear. In an admirable foreword he explains the use of color, the choice of projections, and the various scales used. A great virtue of these maps is their clearness. Detail has been subordinated to legibility." Literary rev.

Hammond, C. S., and company

Hammond's home and office atlas. 1928 Hammond o.p. 1933 912

1 Atlases [Map31-17]

"Containing a new series of political, physical, economic and historical maps together with new indexes of countries, cities, and towns giving latest official census figures and a new pictorial and descriptive gazetteer of the world." Subtitle

An inexpensive atlas which is detailed for the United States. Part 1 contains the political maps and indexes, the physical and economic maps and the gazetteer (210p). Part 2 is made up of historical maps (30p). The maps in part 1 are, in the main, identical with the maps which make up the "Modern atlas of the world" (new ed 1930 Hammond o.p. 1933). This briefer atlas does not contain the illustrated gazetteer

or the historical maps. Hammond's "Unabridged atlas and gazetteer of the world" (1924) is also out of print, 1933

Philip, George

(ed.) Philips' modern school atlas of physical, political and commercial geography. 1925 Philip 7s 6d 912

1 Atlases

Formerly carried also by Appleton
One of the best atlases of its kind. Clear maps and a good index
"A series of 112 coloured plates, containing 303 maps and diagrams, with explanatory notes and index. Comprising in one volume 'Philips' modern school atlas of comparative geography' and 'Philips' modern school commercial atlas.'" Subtitle

(ed.) Philips' new handy general atlas & gazetteer. 3d ed rev 1926 Philip 63s 912

1 Atlases [Map22-5]

Obtainable in the United States from Hammond at $35
This atlas was recommended by an expert on atlases as a substitute for the "Times survey atlas" in medium and small libraries unable to obtain the Times atlas. It has 200 pages of excellent clear maps, and a very complete index of 200 pages which includes about 100,000 names. As this is a British atlas it will need to be supplemented in American libraries when maps of the individual states are wanted

Philip, George, and McConnell, Wallace Robert

(eds.) Appleton's modern atlas. 1928 Appleton-Century $4, school ed $3.50; 15s 912

1 Atlases Map29-1

School edition has title: Appleton's modern school atlas

A good little atlas with clear maps, which is designed particularly for use in the United States. Thirty-two of the eighty colored maps are devoted to a "geographical survey of the American continent, and the regions outside North America, controlled by the United States. . . In addition to the above maps, the atlas includes a series of commercial maps which show the chief mineral, vegetable, and animal products of the United States." Preface

Philip, George, and Sheldrake, T. Swinborne

(eds.) Putnam's economic atlas; a systematic survey of the world's trade, economic resources & communications. 1929 Putnam $19.75 912

1 Geography, Commercial—Maps [Map28-8]

Issued under the auspices of the Association of British chambers of commerce. The original edition had title: Chambers of commerce atlas. The American edition has some slight changes in the preface but otherwise the two are the same. Includes a seventeen page supplement containing "the latest available statistics of production and trade, expressed in dollars and sterling, 1928"

An excellent atlas containing "good maps, with descriptive text. Includes considerable commercial information, descriptions of commodities and an appended dictionary of commodities." Mudge

Rand, McNally & co.

World atlas. Premier ed 1934 Rand $4.50 912

1 Atlases [Map30-9]

A good atlas consisting of maps in color, and a gazetteer index which lists, locates and gives the latest available population of over 90,000 places

The International edition (1931 Rand $7.50) contains the same maps and indexes as the Premier edition with the addition of descriptive matter, colored pictures and additional tables
The Universal edition (1933 Rand $6) has 174 pages of physical, political and economic maps compared to the 117 pages found in the International and Premier editions. The index gazetteer lists about 30,000 places

Times, London

Times survey atlas of the world. 1920 Times o.p. 1933 912

1 Atlases Map26-18

A very fine atlas, prepared at the Edinburgh geographical institute under the direction of J. G. Bartholomew. W. L. G. Joerg, of the American geographical society wrote in the Geographical review of 1923: "The general library that can afford but one atlas, and that can afford the price, can do no better than to purchase the Times atlas. Up to its recent publication there was no really adequate general atlas in English; we are fortunate in now having in it a work that corresponds to that description"

913 ANTIQUITIES

"How to observe in archaeology," one of the publications of the British museum (2d ed 1929 Oxford $1; 2s 6d) is a useful little book for travellers interested in archeology. Intended for travellers in the Near and Middle East who are not trained archeologists

* Life of the ancient East. 1923 Macmillan $4; Black, A. & C. 10s 6d 913

1 Archeology 2 Egypt——Antiq. 3 Babylonia—Antiq. 4 Levant—Antiq. 23-16679

"The book recounts the story of modern excavations in Egypt, Mesopotamia and Greece. The sites chosen are Abydos, Tell-el-Amarna, Thebes, the Valley of the Kings, Lagash, Babylon, Nineveh, Troy, Mycenae, Knossus and Gezer. The story of the excavation on each site is told with some detail and the work of the archeologists chiefly connected with the excavations is summarized, also the new knowledge which their discoveries have opened up to us of the life of ancient peoples." Book rev. digest
"As a popular account of excavations, the estimate which the author gives of the different results is fair and well-balanced." Times (London) lit. sup.

Childe, Vere Gordon

Most ancient East; the oriental prelude to European prehistory. 1929 Knopf $5; Routledge 15s 913

1 Oriental antiquities 2 Man, Prehistoric 3 Civilization, Ancient [29-12168]

"Professor Childe deals mainly with the prehistory (down to 3000 B.C.) of the Nile Valley and Mesopotamia, and introduces us to that of the Indus Valley—of which, as yet, we know little more than the bare existence." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Professor Childe's descriptions of these recently discovered stages in civilization are the first to be given us in a form that enables us to see them in relation to their past and future, and for that reason, though the book is deliberately popular in aim, both the student and the expert will find it of value." Nation and Athenaeum

Well illustrated with photographs

Hammerton, John Alexander

(ed.) Wonders of the past; the romance of antiquity and its splendours. 4v 1923-24 Putnam ea $5 913

1 Archeology 2 Art, Ancient 23-12917

"A four-volume work on vanished civilizations. It is mainly descriptive and only incidentally historical, while it is quite frankly more pictorial than literary. The accounts of ancient wonder cities, royal palaces and tombs, temples of the gods, master builders of antiquity, and ancient arts and crafts are written by various archeologists. The preeminent feature is the illustrations, which are excellent and very numerous, some of them being in color." Book rev. digest

Magoffin, Ralph Van Deman, and Davis, Emily Cleveland

* Magic spades. 1929 Holt $5; Bell, G. 18s 913

1 Archeology 29-30700

Published in England under title: Romance of archaeology

"Popular instructive account of recent archaeological discoveries and the information derived therefrom. Doctor Magoffin has written the chapters on the Mediterranean and Asiatic civilizations, while Miss Davis has dealt with Britain, Scandinavia and the American continent. Profusely illustrated with photographs. Lists of museums and their best archaeological objects; of important archaeological excavations and publications. Index." N.Y. libraries

Out of the past of Greece & Rome. 1932 Yale univ. press $2; Oxford 9s 913

1 Civilization, Ancient 2 Civilization, Greek 3 Cities and towns, Ancient 32-31567

"Six chapters of separate essays on the ancient world of Greece and Rome, the first of which deals with the life and culture of the Scythians and other ancient dwellers in what is now Southern Russia. Other chapters describe the Olympic games during the great age of Greece; the city of Messina as a typical Greek settlement in the West; and the city of Alexandria during the days of the Ptolemies. To represent the Roman world there is a chapter on Pompeii, and one on the caravan cities of Palmyra and Petra. Altho intended for readers of high school age, the book will be interesting to adults also. [Illustrated]" Book rev. digest

Woolley, Charles Leonard

* Digging up the past. 1931 Scribner $2; Benn 6s 913

1 Archeology 31-4214

"A fascinating little book about the methods of archaeology. The author describes the archaeologist's way of working and shows how he interprets the past from what he finds. Well illustrated." Wis. bul.

913.32 Egypt

"Ancient Egyptian materials," by Alfred Lucas (1926 Longmans $2.50; Arnold, E. & co. 7s 6d) is an excellent book for the archeologist but is somewhat special for the average smaller library. It describes the various materials used in building, clothing, the arts, etc.

A detailed and readable guide to Egyptian antiquities which describes "the chief specimens of Egyptian architecture and sculpture, pyramids, temples, colossal and smaller statuary, together with the tombs, royal and otherwise, with their reliefs and frescoes, which are to be seen on all accessible Egyptian sites." Introduction

Many illustrations

The author's "Century of excavation in the land of the Pharaohs" (1924 R. T. S. 7s 6d) tells in an entertaining way of the exploration of pyramids, temples and tombs

Carter, Howard, and Mace, Arthur Cruttenden

Tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen. 2v 1923-27 Doubleday, Doran o.p. 1933 913.32

1 Tutenkhamûn, king of Egypt (24-26022)

"Mr. Carter's popular narrative of the discovery of the tomb of Tut-ankh-amen, written in collaboration with A. C. Mace of the Metropolitan museum of art, New York . . . deals mostly with the actual finding of the tomb, the survey and clearing of the antechamber, the work in the laboratory and finally, the opening of the sealed door. The book is prefaced by a biographical sketch of Lord Carnarvon, by his sister, and an appendix contains descriptions of the treasures found. There are 104 illustrations from photographs by Harry Burton." Book rev. digest

The second volume, by Mr. Carter alone, concludes the story of the excavations. Many beautiful illustrations from photographs by Harry Burton

"Mr. Howard Carter's preliminary volume is more thrilling to read than the most exciting novel." Spectator

"An authoritative work by the professor of Assyriology in the University of Pennsylvania. Contains excellent chapters on the history, art, religion and literature of these peoples, with a historical outline of the various excavations, an account of the deciphering of the cuneiform tablets, and seventy pages of specimens of their literature. The illustrations in this handsome volume show the results of both earlier and [later] diggings in Assyria and Babylonia." Cleveland

Woolley, Charles Leonard

Sumerians. 1928 Oxford $2.50; 6s 913.35

1 Sumerians 29-26346

"Three or four years ago Mr. Woolley's discoveries in Ur were given wide newspaper publicity, and in his account of the Sumerians he has made capital use of the archaeology of this magnificent capital of Sumer. But the object he has set himself is no mere statement of local findings, however important; it is that of an ordered and non-technical account of the history and customs of lower Mesopotamia in so far as we can know it from archaeology and the cuneiform writings." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Although this little book is professedly written for the non-specialist reader, the specialist none the less will welcome it, for, apart from lectures and scattered newspaper articles, it is the first story of the Sumerian civilisation to be given us by the man who has done so much to reveal and reconstruct it." New statesman

Ur of the Chaldees. 1930 Scribner $2.50; Benn 7s 6d 913.35

1 Ur [30-26562]

"A record in popular form of the seven years of excavation at Ur, carried on by the Joint Expedition of the British Museum and the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania. It describes the finds, the painstaking methods of getting them out and caring for them, and makes many interesting deductions from these relics as to the manners and customs of the Sumerians." Cleveland

"An uncommonly attractive and informing account of his epoch-making discoveries during the last seven years. Mr. Woolley has the rare gift of making field archaeology as exciting as a detective story, and his book will stimulate interest in the remarkable work that is being done in Mesopotamia." Spectator

"The second book in a series dealing with everyday life in ancient Greece. This volume covers the period from the time of the Trojan war to the Battle of Salamis in 488. Contains map, historical chart, and index." Book rev. digest

"This is an aspect of Greek life which has perhaps been somewhat neglected in this country, and we are grateful for a book which presents in so readable a form the results of research, not readily available in textbooks, into such subjects as the furniture and dress, food and cooking of the age, and which embellishes them with attractive and informative illustrations. The authors have, however, naturally enough, included some consideration of the artistic achievement of the Greeks of this period, and here they are less successful." Times (London) lit. sup.

Davis, Emily Cleveland

* Ancient Americans; the archæological story of two continents. 1931 Holt $3.50 913.7

1 America—Antiq. 2 Indians—Antiq. 31-28516

"A popular presentation of the facts concerning ancient American civilizations which have been uncovered by archaeologists. The author is a staff writer for Science Service and has reported for the daily press many of the discoveries and theories here set forth. Some of the material also appeared in condensed form in Magic Spades." Book rev. digest

Contains illustrations, maps, and a chronology of some excavations and publications important to American archeology

Mason, Gregory

* Columbus came late. 1931 Appleton-Century $4; 18s 913.7

1 Civilization, American 2 America—Antiq. 3 Man, Prehistoric—America 31-32123

"A fascinating account of the ancient civilizations of America. That American culture at the time of the coming of the Spaniards was equal and in many respects superior to that of Europe and Asia, that 'new world' was a misnomer, and that the Americas may have been the original home of man, are some of the new viewpoints suggested. Well illustrated and should find readers." Wis. bul.

1 Mexico—Antiq. 2 Aztecs 3 Indians of Mexico—Soc. life & cust. 4 Indians of Mexico—Religion and mythology 33-8687

"Archaeology and history together have made it possible now to draw an astonishingly life-like picture of the ancient Mexican, the Aztec, who was the forebear of a big proportion of the Mexicans of today. J. Eric Thompson is well qualified to make the picture, for he has charge of the department of Central and South American archaeology of the Field Museum, Chicago. His work bears the stamp of authority and his writing is done with such skill and intimate knowledge that his pages fascinate with the vitality of his portrayal." N.Y. Times

Description and Travel

Three delightful older travel books with a literary flavor which are out of print, 1933, are: James, Henry. Portraits of places. Houghton
Includes places in England, France and Italy
James, Henry. Translantic sketches. Houghton
Sketches of many places in England and on the continent
Longfellow, H. W. Outre-mer. Houghton
Travel in France, Italy and Spain

A valuable series is the "Picturesque series" (Westermann ea $7.50). A series published in Germany under the title: Orbis terrarum. Each volume contains many illustrations which are valuable in describing the life of the country, the people and the architecture. No small library will want all the titles but any library might buy one or two volumes of special interest to the community. Volumes for the following countries are available, 1933: Austria, Ceylon and Indo-China, Dark continent (Africa), Egypt, Greece, India, Japan and Romantic America

Belloc, Hilaire
Towns of destiny; il by E. L. Warre. (McBride dollar travel bks.) McBride $1 914

1 Cities and towns—Europe 2 Cities and towns—Africa, North 27-24256

A satisfactory cheap reprint of a book first published 1927. Published in England under title: "Many cities" (Constable 21s, cheaper ed 10s 6d)

"The greater portion of the book is concerned with Spain, the Rhine March and those towns of Sicily, the Balearics and North Africa won back from the Moors which the author calls 'The Recovered Country.' In the description of the blending of three eras of the European race, the founding of Greece and Rome, the peril from Islam, the triumph of reconquest. Belloc draws his finest pictures, makes his most stirring effects." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Bercovici, Konrad

Nights abroad. 1928 Appleton-Century $4 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 28-27607

Contents: Venice; Toledo; Damascus; Monte Carlo; Amsterdam; London; Berlin; Milan; Copenhagen; Jerusalem; Athens; Havana; Constantinople; Paris; Old Madrid; Budapest; Vienna; Bucharest; When Paris was mine

"As the title suggests, this is a description of European cities by night, yet it is not an account of boisterous gaiety such as the reader might expect. Instead the author pictures the city when it has put aside its conventional daytime aspect, and unconsciously reveals to the night prowler its real character, that intangible quality that gives to every city an atmosphere of its own. This is accomplished indirectly, by introducing such characters as a night prowler like the author might naturally meet, and by narrating such adventures as might befall him." Wis. bul.

Carpenter, Frank George

Alps, the Danube and the Near East. 1924 Doubleday, Doran, to libraries $4 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 2 Balkan peninsula —Descr. & trav. 24-20629

"One of the authoritative and attractive 'World travels' series in which Mr. Carpenter writes of such old and new nations as Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Bulgaria, Rumania, Italy, Greece and Turkey. Illustrated with many excellent and well chosen photographs." Cleveland

Cohen-Portheim, Paul

Discovery of Europe. 1932 Dutton $3; Duckworth 10s 6d 914

1 Europe—Civilization 32-26988

"A philosophical, tho rather personal, discussion of the state of present-day European civilization, which the author sees threatened on one hand by the materialistic capitalism of America and on the other hand by the equally materialistic communism of Russia. The book is addressed especially to English readers and contains a flattering characterization of the English people." Book rev. digest

"In the 'Discovery of Europe' we find again that lively observation, that curious ingenuity, that wise tolerance which distinguished rthe author's] 'England' and his 'Time Stood Still.' Yet we find something more. Not only has Mr. Cohen-Portheim brought to his latest work a more serious preoccupation, but his talent for comparison has now found a more valuable outlet and a wider scope." New statesman and Nation

Dreiser, Theodore

Traveler at forty. 1913 Liveright $3.50 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 26-6924

"This is a realistic book of travels, but it is not concerned only with the ugly side of life. Glimpses of a Christmas celebration in an English country home and other sketches of Italy, Switzerland and Holland are delightful." Book rev. digest

"In his own unconventional but extremely interesting way the author makes us see the things he saw in Europe and hear the discussions with others about their meaning, national characteristics and sometimes underlying social questions." Outlook

Farson, Negley

Sailing across Europe. 1926 Appleton-Century $3.50 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 26-18250

Also available in the Travellers' library (Smith, P. $1; Cape, J. 3s 6d)

"Mr Farson tells the story of a cruise across Europe by river and canal from Rotterdam to the Black sea. The adventures of this trip, which was made by the author and his wife in a twenty-six foot yawl, are told in an informal narrative which appeared first in the columns of the 'Chicago Daily News.' " Book rev. digest

"A book which tells one more about post-War Europe than a dozen documented political volumes, and is all the while the radiant account of a most variegated adventure. . . Everything is told unpretentiously, but seen, realized, understood, and set down with swift appraisement." Spectator

Attractively illustrated with photographs taken by "the crew," the author's wife

Freeston, Charles Lincoln

Cream of Europe for the motorist. 1928 Scribner $2.75; Cassell 7s 6d 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav.—Guide-books 2 Automobiles—Touring 28-16636

"Mr. Freeston, who has already written on motoring in the Alps and France, here writes for the Automobile Association an account of a considered motor tour in Europe, in which the owner of a trustworthy car can see the greater part of what is interesting in Europe to the motorist in the space of four to eight weeks. That tour is, roughly 'from Boulogne to Budapest and back'—i.e., through France, over the French Alps to Italy, through Northern Italy, the Dolomites, Tirol, Salzburg, and the Austrian lakes to Budapest, and back through Czechoslovakia, across Bavaria, and through Switzerland and France. The route is illustrated with itineraries and notices of the places passed through, and alternative routes and extensions, other parts of Europe, such as Spain and Portugal, Scandinavia, Serbia, Greece, etc., are also included. Many illustrations and a number of maps and plans." Times (London) lit. sup.

Includes information on Mediterrancan lands and ports—Spain, Gibraltar, Algeria, the Riviera, Naples, Rome, Athens, Constantinople, Palestine, Egypt, and the Nile. There are 40 illustrations (some in color) and nine maps. Bibliography

"It is matter-of-fact in its descriptions, as a good guide-book should be; but its large type and its numerous pictures make it more suitable for preparatory reading for those who are planning a visit to the regions described. As such it is informative . . . and comprehensive." Outlook

Lyde, Lionel William

Continent of Europe. 4th ed 1930 Macmillan $4; 12s 6d 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 2 Geography [25-26341]

First edition 1913. Revised in 1924 to agree with political changes, and the large colored maps in the first edition were omitted. A few corrections and new statistics are the only changes in the 1930 edition

A work that is at once descriptive, statistical, geographical, social and political. The author "takes the natural regions of Europe, one after the other, working his way from the circumference inward, and emphasizes with considerable detail the interdependence of the groups of the control and of the political factors. Although he begins as far back as the theory of the tetrahedral deformation of the earth, he succeeds in presenting the development of both physical and political conditions with extraordinary vividness." Newton, Alfred Edward

* Tourist in spite of himself. 1930 Little $3.50 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 30-29130

"Piquant travel essays by the Philadelphia book collector, who 'cheerfully perambulated' through England, Belgium, France, Germany, Scandinavia, Egypt and Palestine at his wife's behest. Experiences and opinions, anecdotes having little or no connection with the scene at hand, a few guide book facts, and a frank discussion of standardized America, make up a wholly personal book which the reader will enjoy, even when he disagrees with some of Mr. Newton's pronouncements. Amusingly illustrated by Gluyas Williams." Cleveland

Finding the worth while in Europe. rev. and with an additional chapter by T. R. Ybarra (McBride dollar travel bks.) McBride $1 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 31-30816

A satisfactory cheap reprint of a title revised in 1923

Written primarily for tourists. It is not intended to take the place of a Baedeker, but does attempt to tell the reader where to go in each land to find the things which distinguish it from his own or other countries. Condensed from Preface

The editor of the revised edition, T. R. Ybarra, has tried to maintain the style of the original work and has made changes only where accuracy demanded. To supply a lack in earlier editions he has added a chapter on the Scandinavian countries

Parker, Mrs Cornelia (Stratton)

* Ports and happy places. 1924 Liveright $3.50 914

1 Europe—Descr. & trav. 24-11335

"Mrs Parker takes her two sons, eleven and thirteen, and little daughter aged five, to Europe. The first part of the book describes her stay in an old Kloster in Stein am Rhein while the boys were at school, but the greater part of it is devoted to descriptions of the holiday trips with them, mostly with ruck-sacks on backs, traveling in all manner of conveyances, in 'Parker style,' thru Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, ending with a trip to Spain, for once, in real tourist elegance, under the guidance of Cook's. The book also serves to illustrate some of Mrs Parker's theories on the bringing up of children. [Illustrated]" Book rev. digest

"Mrs. Parker has written a charmingly informal and very companionable travel book." Nation

In the author's "More ports, more happy places" (1926 Liveright $3.50) she continues the adventures begun in the earlier book

Batsford, Harry, and Fry, Charles
Face of Scotland. 1933 Scribner $2.75; Batsford 7s 6d 914.1

1 Scotland—Descr. & trav. 34-1107

"Provides a compact outline of Scottish topography, an exhaustive description of the many varieties of scenery found North of the Tweed, free of unbalanced enthusiasms and false sentiment, and informed by geological and geographical knowledge as a background and basis. This aim of the authors, and the conscientiousness with which they adhere to it and avoid the intrusions of historical anecdotes and padding, may limit the appeal of their work by excluding readers who only wish a superficial vicarious tour of the country. It will, however, give a more permanent value to this book as a constantly reliable book of reference—exhaustive and accurate in its detailed description." Spectator

1 Scotland—Descr. & trav. 30-3552
"Mr. Morton's route takes him through the border country to Edinburgh, on to Lochleven and Dundee, and Aberdeen to Inverness, across to Skye, then south to Glasgow and Ayr. Brings Scotland vividly before the reader in an interesting and entertaining manner. Illustrated. [and has one map]." Ontario library review
"It is particularly gratifying to note that, along with the historic glories of Scotland, he inquires into the spirit and condition of the people to-day, and is able to produce stories of yesterday as stirring and characteristic as those of yesteryear. Even when he descends to the commonplace he is entertaining. Wherever you open it you will find a good story, and plenty of information as well." Spectator
Three other recommended books which will be helpful to readers with a special interest in Scotland are: J. J. Bell's "Glory of Scotland" (1932 Harrap 7s 6d), and A. A. Thomson's "Let's see the Highlands" (1931 Jenkins 7s 6d) and "Let's see the Lowlands" (1930 Jenkins 7s 6d)

"An interpretation of the country, from the Irish as opposed to the Anglo-Irish point of view, through typical characters, through local customs and through poetry. Contains intimate portraits of Padraic Pearse, Roger Casement, Arthur Griffith and others. Illustrated by paintings of the new school of Irish painters." St Louis
"It is an odd sort of a book—a rambling, moody sort of a book, now descriptive, now lightly sketchy, now interpretative. But the moods fit perfectly the subjects and a spirit which is so definitely Irish is manifest at all times. Theme and style and mood are in complete accord." Springfield Republican

Gibbons, John
Tramping through Ireland. 1931 Dutton $2.50; Methuen 3s 6d 914.15
1 Ireland—Descr. & trav. 31-26697

"An account of a trip thru Ireland taken by an English newspaper man, who was sent out by his paper 'with no instructions at all beyond the immediate need of finding something to say likely to interest his couple of millions or so of unknown judges.' He avoided the main travelled highways, but found along the ways he chose much of interest toward the interpretation of the Irish character." Book rev. digest

"The writer's gift of spontaneity is catching. He is in Ireland for the first time, and he tells us what he saw and whom he met. . . He says little about the scenery, and he indulges in no facetious effects but he gives us an impression all the same that Ireland is a foreign country." Spectator

Gwynn, Stephen Lucius

1 Ireland—Descr. & trav. 28-26450

"This companionable travel book is one that can be read for pleasure as well as profitably used for a guide book. The author is Irish born and his conviction is that 'with all the world to pick from, it is to Ireland that I would take the companion of my choice just for the pleasure of a holiday, in the summer months.'" Book rev. digest

"Into his little guidebook, Mr. Stephen Gwynn seems to have packed the best that he has written about Ireland. He has some wonderful recipe, of which love seems to be the main ingredient, for combining scenery, history (a spoonful) and information." Nation and Athenaeum

The author's "Highways and byways in Donegal and Antrim" (1899 Macmillan $2; 7s 6d) is a charming, informal guide book to these two counties

"With a complete atlas of Ireland and 13 other maps and plans." Subtitle

"Like other volumes of the Blue Guides Series [the book] is arranged in a sequence of carefully planned routes, paying especial attention to the practical details of travel but it differs from other Blue Guides in describing the country from the point of view of the traveller by Road, for the road (as in ancient times) is still the main channel of communication throughout Ireland. At the same time, at the head of each route the corresponding railway route is outlined." Preface

"A blithe spirit pervades these notes on a leisurely trip through Ireland with a temperamental donkey. Engaging episodes with the people, while jogging along unbeaten tracks, and experiences in Dublin's literary and artistic circles, bits of history and impressions of the country offer a record whose entertaining qualities are enhanced by the author's paintings, and cartoons by 'Mac' of Dublin." Local books

The ordinary small American library will not need much English local material (that is, individual books on English towns, cities, etc.) aside from books on London. In larger libraries there will often be a demand for such books. A number of excellent works of this kind have been suggested by an English collaborator and they are noted here, as an aid when this material is needed. Other local material relating to counties, etc. will be found in the series which are listed after the books on page 951

"A poet's portrait of the changing features of the English countryside thru the seasons, with sketches of country life and character and an occasional poem." Book rev. digest

"He writes with the easy intimacy of a letter writer, and the chance happenings he describes are his vision of the essential England. 1 England—Descr. & trav. 32-27060

"Each stage of a journey through the southwest of England in the wettest and coldest of springs is recovered in this light-hearted chronicle, and in the frequent and alluring sketches by the author's wife. A clever combination of history, legend, facts about travel and hotel accomodation with excursions afoot in picturesque villages, explorations of hidden lanes and afternoon teas over anaemic fires. The map on end papers traces the journey from Dorchester around to Bath by way of the rugged coast." N.Y. libraries

"Mr. Brooks's book is devoted for the most part to a description of a bicycle trip through England and whatever it contains of the essay is only incidental and casual. He writes of his experiences in English villages and hamlets, among the hills and by the ruins of old castles. He describes all sorts of odd nooks and crannies of the English countryside, his meetings with strange and eccentric characters and he comments whimsically and amusingly on all that he observes." "An understanding interpretation of England, its scenery, people, cities, towns and villages. History and description are combined in about equal proportions. There are many colored plates by well-known landscape illustrators. [Map]" Book rev. digest

"The unqualified title, England, surely takes some living up to. But Mr. Carton has attacked his task with vigour and enterprise and, most important, individuality . . . He writes always as his occasion demands—that is to say, well, and when need be finely, sustainedly, and with the flash of personal force." New statesman and Nation

It is a delightful and tormenting substitute for real traveling." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

* England, the unknown isle; tr. by Alan Harris. 1931 Dutton $3; Duckworth 8s 6d 914.2

1 Great Britain 2 Gt. Brit.—Civilization 31-16547

"A young Austrian who was interned in England during the war years is the author of this shrewd and brilliant study of the characteristic features of the English nature in many spheres—social life in town and country, politics, education, art, literature, the theater, and the press. Mr Cohen-Portheim is a sympathetic critic, even a flattering one, in his estimate of England's significance to civilization." Book rev. digest

"We congratulate the author on his capacity to penetrate beneath the surface in all the phenomena of English life that he studies; he really understands the English point of view (while not in the least pressing it upon others); and this can very seldom be said even of the most intelligent foreigner." "With the same clarity, simplicity and scholarly throughness which made his earlier book memorable, he has investigated the social life of an English community of the sixteenth century. . . The present volume, although its results reflect less obvious credit upon the author, has been a far larger labor. Mr. Davis has given us here a cross section of a social organization infinitely more complex and more fluid than the mediæval barony. [Illustrations]" Bookman

"Written by a German scholar in an attempt to understand the people of England in national characteristics, politics, history, religion, literature and education as shown through many centuries." Pratt quarterly

"Professor Dibelius's book is extremely interesting. It is a perfect example of German thoroughness and intelligence. Merely as an account of the governmental and social and industrial system of this country at the present time it could hardly be equalled. The quantity and accuracy of his knowledge are almost alarming, and it seems a miracle that a foreigner should know so much and misunderstand so little. Indeed, it is quite a relief when one finds that Professor Dibelius does occasionally make mistakes." Nation and Athenaeum

"Articles [from 'The Times'] describing features of the English landscape which are fast passing away—wind- and water-mills, canals, pounds and round-houses, turnpikes, tithe barns and moot halls, clocks and dials, stocks and pillories, cider-presses and hop-oasts. With 31 illustrations in photogravure." Book rev. digest

"These records, though they are not without feeling for the vicissitudes of things, are so gracefully written and have such a well-balanced sense of the relation of past and present that they entirely avoid any insistence on epitaphs. . . And in all there is vivid appreciation of the beauty and fitness of the old buildings and devices, and of the civilization which produced them, but without any uncritical admiration of 'the good old times.'" 1 Gt. Brit.—Descr. & trav. 32-30252

"A sixteen months' record of excursions into almost every phase of English life. The author walked the back alleys of London, and the open roads of the green countryside in all seasons, and listened to rather than talked over the ancient ways, mediaeval customs and points of view of the English people. In addition to the leisurely charm of the book the reader will find in it much practical information about living in England, sending children to English schools, characteristic English customs, the effect of the dole, and a word or two about the English climate. Inge, William Ralph England. (Modern world) 1926 Scribner $5; Benn 10s 6d 914.2

1 Great Britain 26-18736

"Dean Inge presents as his personal point of view, with no attempt at impartiality, this survey of the country, the characteristics of its people, and its political and industrial problems and prospects. He expresses the belief that England is in great danger from the anti-social and unpatriotic sectionalism engendered by industrialism." Pittsburgh
"An interesting book. The Dean being the Dean, it could not be otherwise. But it has the inevitable defects of journalism on the large scale. It deals in a somewhat haphazard fashion with an enormous number of subjects; and Dr. Inge has not always been able to avoid the journalist's besetting sin of hurrying on without stopping to verify his statements." King, Robert Wylie

(ed.) England from Wordsworth to Dickens. (English life in English literature) 1929 Harcourt $2; Methuen 6s 914.2

1 English literature 2 England—Soc. life & cust. [29-6265]

"English life from 1784 to 1837 is seen from many angles in these selections from the literature of the times. National characteristics, politics, travel, sport, art, letters, and family life—these and other phases of life are mirrored in the selections." Book rev. digest

"With slight reservations Mr. King's anthology must be pronounced excellent for variety, vigour, and scope. His enterprising scholarship sets before us, besides the most noted authors, several of lesser rank who have perceived and presented the manners of their day with particular aptitude. Mr. King's notes combine valuable hints of general history with particular information and criticism." Times (London) lit. sup.

Laughlin, Clara Elizabeth

* So you're going to England. 1926 Houghton $3.50; Methuen 10s 6d 914.2

1 England—Descr. & trav.—Guide-books 2 London—Descr.—Guide-books 26-7597

Similar to the author's other volumes in this practical series, this "includes much information about the historical and artistic associations of the places described. The author has kept in mind several classes of travellers in planning these journeys: leisurely travellers, those who must economize in time or money or both, and motorists. A third of the book is devoted to trips in and about London." Pittsburgh

Mais, Stuart Petre Brodie

The unknown island. 1933 Putnam $3.50; 7s 6d 914.2

1 Gt. Brit.—Descr. & trav. [32-33935]

Published in England under title: This unknown island

"A popular broadcaster, and one of England's best-known critics, Mr. Mais has collected these delightful sketches of journeys of discovery made in mid-winter over England, Scotland and Wales. He describes excursions made to Haworth, Glastonbury, the Lincolnshire Fens, the Peak district, Northumberland, Cornwall, Lancashire, Norfolk, the Welsh marches, South Wales, North Wales, and the Northern Highlands. Mr. Mais's object is to show that if an ordinary man could find so much enjoyment in these short glimpses, others with more leisure and deeper knowledge would certainly derive much more pleasure. There are many anecdotes, illustrations and maps." Ontario library review

Morley, Frank Vigor

River Thames. 1926 Harper $6; Methuen 16s 914.2

1 Thames River [27-666]

"The writer and two companions followed the whole course of the Thames from source to mouth in a . . . boat. He tells about the river navigation and river sights and the literary and historical associations along the way The book is illustrated in color and has nine maps." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Morley shows an unusual gift of seizing his interest where he will, and subduing the manifold associations and suggestions of the river into a single perspective. Mr. Irving's water-colours are unusually happy both in conception and in reproduction." Times (London) lit. sup.

A well illustrated smaller book is C. F. Smith's "The Thames" (1931 Methuen 6s) in the Little guides series

A satisfactory cheap reprint of a book first published 1928. Also available in England (Methuen 7s 6d)

Companion volume to the author's earlier work "In search of England." Contains illustrations, and maps on lining-papers

"Truly a delightful journey through the towns and country districts of England! The author wants to take us through the north particularly, for he believes that it is neglected by tourists, who little realize the beauties of Yorkshire and Derbyshire." Providence

‡ In search of England. 1928 McBride $3; Methuen 7s 6d 914.2

1 England—Descr. & trav. 2 England—Soc. life & cust. 31-5145

"A charming account of a rambling motor trip through the villages and countryside of England. Some quaint historic and legendary tales are told, and the beauty of sky and bird and flower are delicately portrayed. A book fitted to rouse a latent love for England. Illustrations and map on the end-papers." Cleveland much more than a guidebook, with its engaging style and well-chosen illustrations. It should be of service to the student as well as the traveler." Bkl.

Nevinson, Henry Woodd
Natives of England. 1930 Knopf $3; Routledge 7s 6d 914.2

1 National characteristics, English 2 Gt. Brit.—Soc. condit. 31-6796

Published in England under title: Rough islanders; or, The natives of England
"A cross section of English society by a traveled Englishman which should serve as an interpretation of British life and the British spirit to those whose contact with England has been only through literature. [Illustrated]" Pratt quarterly
"This is an admirable survey, comprehensive, humorous, and wise. In a comparatively small compass, and with every appearance of ease, Mr. Nevinson has managed to touch on all the essential characteristics and activities of the English race, ['Natives of England'] is a provocative book: and, but for its one bias, an exceedingly fair one, full of wit, good sense, and a deep love of England." Nation and Athenaeum

Palmer, William Thomas
English lakes; their topographical, historical and literary landmarks. 1932 Farrar $3; Harrap 7s 6d 914.2

1 Lake district, Eng. 2 Mountaineering 32-26742

An historical and literary description of the English lake district, which contains also practical information for the traveler who plans to climb or hike there. The author, a native of the district, is a Fellow of the Royal geographical society, and was for many years editor of the Fell and rock climbing club. Well illustrated
"Mr. Palmer's district has particular merits, and he matches each one with a merit of his own. To its magnificent scenery he brings an exhaustive knowledge of mountains, lakes, and ridge walks; to its literary life a quiet sympathy and appreciation." Nation and Athenaeum
The author's "Things seen on the English lakes" (1926 Dutton $1.50; Seeley 3s 6d) is a briefer guide to the Lake country. Well illustrated

Piehler, Hermann Augustine
England for everyman. 1933 Dutton $1.50; Dent 2s 6d 914.2

1 England—Descr. & trav.—Guide-books [33-25939]

Practical and historical guide-book to England, which takes up the country section by section, and outlines twelve tours. Includes thirty-two sectional maps in color, a calendar of events, and a chapter on seaside resorts. Bibliography and index
"For the traveler who desires a guide-book of modest proportions 'England for everyman' contains a good supply of practical information." Commonweal

Enchanted ways through England and Scotland. 1933 Morrow $2.50; Dent 5s 914.2

1 England—Descr. & trav. 2 Scotland—Descr. & trav. 34-27101

Describes a series of leisurely motor trips thru rural England and Scotland planned to avoid the cities and to take advantage of the most favorable season for enjoying the beauties peculiar to the various regions of the countryside
"The author is a very practical motorist as well as a sensitive and passionate savourer of nature, and, with the help of large-scale motor maps, the many sketches in his book will carry you through England with an eye to physical comfort as well as spiritual delight." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Open road in England. 1930 Morrow $2.50; Dent 5s 914.2

1 Gt. Brit.—Descr. & trav. 30-20839

Published in England under title: Car and country
"An informal and intimate guide to the highways and by-ways of England." Subtitle
"Its format is excellent and its charming drawings are a decorative set-off to its severely practical maps. But it is not a substitute for travel. Books about places make some readers feel that there is no need for them to investigate the originals themselves; the job has been done for them. Not so with Mr. Prioleau. He is a vigorous uprooter from the fireside. All England and Wales are his province, and wherever you live he can take you into the heart of the country, and probably by ways you have never found. 1 England—Soc. life & cust. (26-7074)

Volumes 1-2, now in one volume, cover 1066 to 1799. The third volume covers 1733 to 1851
"Fascinating book describing and illustrating the life of the people at different periods. Tells about the things they used, how they passed their time, how they dressed and what sort of work they did. Methods of warfare, modes of travel, combats and tourneys, games, fairs, and miracle-plays are among the topics treated. Contains drawings and plans of castles and manor-houses, colored plates showing costumes, pictures of halls and 'solars,' of churches, ships, mills, pottery and utensils." Pittsburgh

Rann, Ernest H.
Homeland of English authors. 1927 Dutton $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d 914.2

1 Literary landmarks—Gt. Brit. 27-21329

"Starting at Bury St. Edmunds, East Anglia, one of Dicken's haunts, the author tramps through country dwelt in or frequented by English authors: The Eastern counties; With Dickens in Kent; The Sussex bookland; The Hardy country; The Eden Phillpotts country; The West Country (of Kingsley and Blackmore); The Shakespeare country; The George Eliot country; The Arnold Bennett country; The Brontë country; The Lake district. The author writes as one who has enjoyed himself thoroughly." Providence

1 England—Soc. life & cust. 2 Gt. Brit.—Civilization 3 Industrial arts—Hist. 4 Art, English [31-15216]

"This volume is a collection of facts told in current speech rather than a study or a speculation. The author is obviously an expert on some sides, such as architecture, but not necessarily so in literature. The treatment of Gibbon, the greatest English historian, and the greatest English novel, 'Tom Jones,' is insufficient in a book of Georgian glories. But elsewhere there is often real information tucked away. . . . The illustrations are copious and well chosen." Saturday rev.

"In the brief compass of 138 pages Mr. Salzman, taking his material from contemporary sources, makes a cross section of life during the sixteenth century in England. The first chapter deals fittingly with the spirit of the Tudor age, the next three take up respectively life in the country, the town, and the home, the fifth concerns the church, while the last depicts a little of that adventure on land and sea which was the most striking feature of the period. The book is profusely illustrated with odd and curious reproductions of contemporary manuscripts and engravings." Sat. rev. of lit.

"This little book contains a great deal of useful information presented in an attractive manner. To attempt to depict Tudor England in the short space of 130 pages is a formidable task, and within his limits Mr. Salzman has succeeded very happily." Times (London) lit. sup.

English life in the middle ages. 1927 Oxford $2.75; 7s 6d 914.2

1 England—Soc. life & cust. 2 Civilization, Medieval 31-14297

"Mr. Salzman . . . has not only a wide first-hand knowledge of original sources, both printed and unprinted, but a sense of humour and a pleasant style. . . The book covers all sides of social life, country, town, and home life, the church and religion, education, literature, art and science, warfare, law and order, industry, trade, and finance, women, and wayfaring, and is packed with information and entertainment. . . The book is lavishly illustrated." Nation and Athenaeum

"Life and work of the people of England," by Dorothy Hartley, and M. M. V. Elliot (Gv 1926-31 Putnam ea $2.50; Batsford ea 5s 6d) is another good series of books which depicts the social life and customs of old England. A brief text accompanies the many illustrations which are a special feature. Covers the 11th to 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th centuries. Useful in school work

Stuart, Dorothy Margaret

Men and women of Plantagenet England. 1932 Harcourt $2; Harrap 5s 914.2

1 England—Soc. life & cust. 2 Civilization, Medieval [32-20508]

"Fully illustrated with photographs and with many little pen sketches from old manuscripts, this book presents a wealth of authentic information on the England of the 13th to 15th centuries. Chapters on the craftsmen, the trade guilds and the miracle plays have a special reference value." Wis. bul.

"Readers of Miss Stuart's book, whether they be general or those who have had some experience in the treatment of historical sources, will be impressed not only by her selection of authorities, but by her adroit use of them. To have digested and compressed an immense amount of information on so many topics commands respect, but the value of her book is in its presentation of these facts in an easily readable form. The result is a fascinating book from which everybody can learn something." New statesman and Nation

1 Gt. Brit.—Soc. life & cust. 2 Gt. Brit.—Hist.—1714-1837 3 Gt. Brit.—Biog. 4 Eighteenth century 26-20277

First published 1926. In the second edition a bibliography has been added. Some minor alterations and a number of corrections have also been made

"An introduction to the eighteenth century as it is reflected in the lives of some of the principal figures of the period." Preface

"Mr. Turberville begins with a brief outline of the period to 1783, sketches Georgian society, and then deals in separate chapters with the politicians, the divines, philanthropists like Oglethorpe and Howard, Grub Street, the artists and the players and, lastly, Clive and Hastings, the soldiers and the admirals. Each chapter is lavishly and aptly illustrated with prints and caricatures, letters, newspaper cuttings and so on." Spectator

1 England—Soc. life & cust. 2 Gt. Brit.—Hist.—19th cent. 30-25260

Published in England under title: Victorian tragedy

"An urbane and impartial appraisal of Victorian values—the virtues and shortcomings of the age—that is partly criticism, but in a larger sense a vindication of the era. The author, from this point of view, comments on prevailing notions of Victorian women, morals, snobbishness, character and customs." Book rev. digest

"His book is less brilliant than Strachey's—and fairer. . . Mr. Wingfield-Stratford believes that the Victorian must first be recognized as one of the great ages of human culture. Only then can one ask intelligently, the question, why did it fail? The author is tireless, but never tiresome, in pursuit of the answer, and, better than in any recent book, the age lives again in his pages." Sat. rev. of lit.

eighties, and nineties is shown, complacent in its magnificence and imperial progress, but with clouds already beginning to appear on the horizon. A third volume, The Victorian Aftermath, is promised." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Wingfield-Stratford's illustrative stories are very amusing. . . But the design of the whole is perhaps a little obscured by this wealth of detail." Spectator

H. V. Routh's "England under Victoria" (1930 Harcourt $2; Methuen 6s) is another good book on this period which has been suggested for inclusion

Bartholomew's survey gazetteer of the British Isles. 8th ed 1932 Bartholomew 35s 914.2G

1 Gt. Brit.—Gazetteers 2 Ireland—Gazetteers 33-14317

"Including summary of 1931 census and reference atlas." Subtitle

"Gives in one alphabetical list brief accounts not only of all towns, villages and hamlets, but also of seats, shooting lodges, deer forests, fishing lochs, streams, grouse moors, etc., which have special names, but which would not be included in ordinary general gazetteers." Mudge

Although an excellent work this gazetteer will probably not be needed by all small libraries

914.2 Series

The following series, which contain some very good material, are kept together here as this is a convenient arrangement for making available the information about them. It is probable that none but large libraries will need all volumes in the series. Smaller libraries can select from each series those which will best supplement their own collections and meet the local needs

Bone, James

London perambulator. 1928 Knopf $1; Cape, J. 7s 6d 914.21

1 London—Descr. 25-20725

First published 1925. The 1928 edition is a reprint in a smaller size

"Twelve impressions of London under diverse aspects, in which the desire to offer information is subordinated with happy consequences to simple enjoyment of the various places, regions, and 'atmospheres' evoked. Mr. Muirhead Bone gives sixteen plates, showing his beauty of line and detail at their finest." Times (London) lit. sup.

Burke, Thomas

City of encounters. 1932 Little $2.50; Constable 8s 6d 914.21

1 London—Descr. 32-26953

Eleven sketches of London life and characters

"In these . . . sketches [the author] is, like London, in a variety of moods: always observant, he is in turn reminiscent, fanciful, gay, sad, irritable—almost irascible—and occasionally a little over-anxious to prove that life is stranger than fiction. His study of that 'eager Cockney,' Charles Chaplin, is shrewd and revealing, although a tendency to moralize about the cause of the great comedian's private loneliness and unhappiness adds a faint air of reproof to an otherwise balanced picture." Spectator

The author's "Nights in town" (1918 Allen, G. 2s 6d) and "London spy" (1925 Butterworth, T. 3s 6d) are two other collections of sketches on various phases of London life

Chancellor, Edwin Beresford

London of Charles Dickens. 1924 Richards press 15s 914.21

1 Dickens, Charles 2 Literary landmarks—London [24-23139]

Formerly carried also by Doran

"Taking up each of Dickens's novels separately, Mr Beresford gives an account of its topographical setting and of those places to which, as haunts of his characters, Dickens has given a human interest even for those who have never seen them. Criticism of the novels is combined with definitions of the scenes and typical illustrations have been selected." Book rev. digest

"Little as Dickens may have loved it, the actual London of his time, a time of transition, is extraordinarily interesting, and Mr. Chancellor's survey of it is very welcome, for it has been skilfully carried out and his account of it is attractively written." New statesman

London of Thackeray. 1923 Richards press 15s 914.21

1 Thackeray, William Makepeace 2 Literary landmarks—London 23-14989

Formerly carried also by Doran

"Concerns itself entirely with the topography of Thackeray's novels, and does not describe the novelist's own haunts. . . Mr. Chancellor's method is to take each novel and, setting aside the parts that fall outside the range of the metropolis—and they are really surprisingly few—to trace the topography as the story develops. Where it has been necessary he has indicated the course of the story, and in not a few places he has enriched his text with some particularly well-chosen extracts from Thackeray himself. Mr. Chancellor spares no pains to try and find originals for all the more important thoroughfares and buildings that Thackeray mentions." Spectator

Many illustrations from old prints

Dark, Sidney

London; with illustrations by Joseph Pennell. 1924 Macmillan $5; 25s 914.21

1 London—Descr. 25-26023

The fine illustrations are the notable feature of this book; the text is of secondary interest

"My plan has been to go, one after the other, to the scenes made vivid by Mr. Pennell's genius, to conjure up visions of the men and women whose lives have been associated with each place and to recall something of their past." Introduction

The author's "London town" (1934 Farrar $2; Harrap 7s 6d) first published in England 1930, is a more general guide book to London. Illustrated with photographs and drawings

"London reverie," by Joseph Pennell (1928 Macmillan $8; 25s) contains 56 beautiful drawings of London of twenty years ago, with introductory essay by J. C. Squire

Gordon, George Byron

London inns and taverns. 1924 Allen, G. o.p. 1933 914.21

1 London—Hotels, taverns, etc. 2 London—Soc. life & cust. 25-728

"Mr. Wagner has been exploring London minutely and devotedly for forty-five years. . . He traces the convivial places of London from the guesthouses at monasteries right through to the cinema tea-lounges and theatre bars, and, of course, gives space to the inns and taverns which have a tradition of great literary frequenters. There is an inexhaustible treasury of odd pieces of knowledge in the book. . . There is a good index, and almost all the inns and public houses of London which are not mere mushrooms will be found in it." Spectator

The author's "More London inns and taverns" (1925 Allen, G. 7s 6d) is supplementary to the earlier volume

1 Germany 2 Germany—Civilization 3 National characteristics, German 31-7944

"Dr Diesel's book is an attempt to lay hold upon the peculiar quality of the German nation which results from the interplay of land, people and individual. After the opening chapters on the physical geography of Germany and its effects upon the people, the author discusses the various races of which the German people are made up, German mentality, art, education and religion and the growth of a new order and spirit in Germany. [Maps]" Book rev. digest

"Dr. Diesel's study of his country and his countrymen is as candid as it is thorough; rarely, indeed, is such objectivity as he displays found in a book of this nature. It is the great merit of the book that it makes the diversity of German mentality illumine conditions in Germany both during the war and the post-war period, and explains the attitude of foreigners towards Germany, and the German attitude towards other nations." "Mrs Williamson writes of Vienna in the spirit of one of her novels, as a Cinderella among cities whose enduring charms misfortune is unable to spoil. She finds romance and beauty everywhere—in streets and parks, opera and theatre, and above all, in the Viennese people. 'She is making the very best of herself, she can offer of the best to those who come to her now.' " Book rev. digest

"She takes us into all the places of interest in and around Vienna; she tells the romantic story of many a palace, custom or memorial; and seeks to be our guide to the city, its life, customs, people, traditions, and history. If she fails to convey the charm of an undeniably charming city, it is solely because of the sentimentality of her style. . . Eight illustrations from photographs succeed in conveying an idea of the beauty of Vienna." Times (London) lit. sup.

Aurousseau, Marcel
Highway into Spain. 1931 King, A. H. $3.50; Davies 5s 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 31-9918

Account of a walking trip from Paris to Andorra. This book together with the author's "Beyond the Pyrenees" (class 914.6) is obtainable in England in one volume with the title "Highway into Spain" (Davies 21s)

"The book is full of stout tramping zest. In particular, the account of crossing over the Aston into Andorra is an exciting piece of narrative, well handled. . . After such devotion to a journey it is incredible that Mr. Aurousseau has not included a map nor a single illustration. But it is a good book written with dignity." New statesman

Carr, Philip
French at home, in the country and in town. 1930 Methuen 10s 6d 914.4

1 France—Soc. life & cust. 2 National characteristics, French 31-26378

Formerly carried also by Dial press

"Concerns itself with the national character, ways of thinking, and present-day customs of the small-town or peasant population, and supplements admirably the descriptive books of the typical sort." Pittsburgh

Carr, Philip—Continued

"Mr. Carr's book will be of absorbing interest to anyone who cares for French France, for he is not a traveller but a resident, and his book has nothing whatever to do with tourism, or beauty spots, or 'plages,' or Paris-American cocktail bars; but with the real vital life of the French themselves, so often very puzzling to English people when they come in contact with it." Spectator

Well illustrated

Another book which contains interesting material about French life is "Chateau and country life in France," by Mme. M. A. K. Waddington (1908 Murray, J. 10s 6d)

Casey, Robert Joseph

Lost kingdom of Burgundy. 1923 Appleton-Century $4 914.4

1 Burgundy 23-13817

"Legends of Old Burgundy and the present-day aspects of the surviving cities of that lost kingdom are here pleasantly intermingled by the author in a flowing narrative that will lure many a reader to wish to repeat his leisurely wanderings. The photographic illustrations are exceptionally attractive and well printed." Outlook

* Two canoe gypsies. 1932 Harcourt $3.50 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 2 Belgium—Descr. & trav. 3 Canals 4 Canoes and canoeing 32-6114

"A 16-foot Canadian canoe, fitted with a canvas shelter and a few other oddments, carried a representative of the 'National Geographic' and his wife on an 800-mile voyage through the canals of Belgium and France. The record of 'backdoors life on Bargeman's Highway' is a beguiling one with days of placid drifting through lovely scenes varied by contacts with innkeepers, fishermen and lock-keepers, and by incidents, some amusing, some startling, some truly devastating. Excellent photographs. [Maps]" N.Y. libraries

Clark, Sydney Aylmer

France on $50. 1933 McBride $1.90 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav.

"An informal guide that takes you to all worth while spots in Paris, conducts you to the chateaux, gives a choice of several trips to cathedrals, and so forth. The greatest merit of the book is that it offers you all these memorable scenes and fascinating experiences at the very low sum named." North American review

"Mr. Clark has done much 'thrift' traveling in Europe and so knows its possibilities and its rewards. He is an interesting guide and his narrative is written in an unconventional and alluring style." N.Y. Times

Cohen-Portheim, Paul

Spirit of France; tr. by Alan Harris. 1933 Dutton $3; Duckworth 8s 6d 914.4

1 France—Civilization 33-27342

"The argument involves a detailed analysis of the French contribution to European civilization from Louis XIV's time onwards, and in working it out Herr Cohen-Portheim writes as a European for Europeans." Times (London) lit. sup.

"A brilliant book, as might have been expected from the author of 'England, the Unknown Isle.' There are pages which cannot be read without a clearer understanding of what France stands for in the modern world." Christian science monitor

Elston, Roy

Off the beaten track in southern France. 1928 McBride $2.50; Bell, G. 8s 6d 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. [29-10690]

"Some of the river valleys to which the author introduces us, such as the Lot, the Dordogne, and the Drôme, with their picturesque towns, break more or less new ground; and only the hardy pedestrian has penetrated such mountain recesses as the Cirque de Troumouse and the Upper Ossau in the Pyrenees, and the less frequented paths through the Basses and Maritime Alpes. The author is excellent company in these sketches." Book rev. digest

Gibbons, Herbert Adams

Ports of France. 1926 Appleton-Century $4 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 2 Harbors 26-19860

"An account of a trip which the author, accompanied by the artist who provides the delightful illustrations, made during the past year to the seacoast towns of France 'first on the Atlantic from Dunkirk to Bayonne, and then on the Mediterranean from Port Vendres to Toulon.' The author's enthusiasm for these old towns, which the majority of travellers know only as points of arrival or departure, should provide an inspiration to those planning trips abroad." Detroit

"Mr. Gibbons has written a book with an outward air all too familiar, but one requires to read very few pages in order to discover that it is actually original enough." Times (London) lit. sup.

Gordon, Jan, and Gordon, Mrs Cora Josephine (Turner)

Two vagabonds in Languedoc. 1925 Lane 5s 914.4

1 Languedoc—Descr. & trav. 2 Janac, France 26-5136

Formerly carried also by McBride under title: Two vagabonds in a French village

"The two artists who vagabonded thru Spain and the Balkans now record a summer's holiday in a little village of northern Languedoc. Janac consists of one long street winding to the castle and but for the anachronism of its railway, might belong to the fifteenth century. Text and illustrations provide an animated and detailed picture of peasant life and types." Book rev. digest

Gordon-Barrett, Richard Regis
Motoring in France. 1926 Methuen 6s 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 2 Automobiles—Touring [26-8184]

Formerly carried also by Brentano's

"The book is far more than a mere eulogy of automobile travel. Facts are skilfully woven together with fancies, and routes, itineraries, distances, costs, equipment, technicalities, and the climate and physical aspects of France are all discussed in detail, in the introductory section. The volume contains a good map (although not a road map), charts and diagrams, excellent photographs, and a complete index. The body of the book is given up to the various French provinces which best lend themselves to an automobile tour. The Riviera section is fully covered and there are further chapters on Brittany, the Rhone valley, Provence, Savoie, the Basque country, chateaux land and the Loire." Sat. rev. of lit.

Gostling, Mrs Frances M. (Parkinson)
Lure of French châteaux. 1924 McBride $2 914.4

1 Castles—France 26-13104

A condensed edition of the author's earlier book "Rambles around French châteaux"

Contents: Saint-Germain; Marly-le-Roi, Saint-Cloud, Malmaison; Versailles; Rambouillet, Fontainebleau; Auxerre, Thiers, Ambert, La Chaise Dieu; Orange, Avignon; Les Baux; Carcassonne, Alet, La Pierre-Lys, Foix, Toulouse; Cahors, Pompadour; Chalus, Loches; Chinon, Azay le Rideau; Langeais, Luynes, Tours; Chenonceaux, Amboise, Chaumont; Blois, Chambord, Chateaudun

"Royal palaces and parks of France," by M. F. Mansfield (Francis Miltoun, pseud.) (1910 Page o.p. 1933) contains interesting material about the royal palaces in Paris and the suburban palaces and parks, such as Fontainebleau, St. Germain-en-Laye, which are near Paris

Greene, Mrs Anne (Bosworth)
Lighthearted journey. 1930 Appleton-Century $4; 15s 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 2 Automobiles—Touring 30-12624

An account of a motor trip made by the author and her daughter along the less-travelled roads from Boulogne to the Italian border. Illustrations

"This is the record of precisely the sort of tour of France which every traveler longs to make. Each chapter is like a letter from a friend, save for the absence of that note of haste with which friends are inclined to discharge their letter-writing obligations while traveling. There are plenty of books of French travel which impart more information, but few which impart more flavor." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Gwynn, Stephen Lucius
In praise of France. 1927 Houghton $3.50; Nisbet 10s 6d 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. [27-27691]

"Stephen Gwynn, whose contacts with France have been peculiarly happy, records in prose of great charm the impressions of four vacations in the side valleys of Touraine, the gorges of Burgundy, blessed spots in Normandy, the Midi, the Ain, Poitou and Périgord, and Bordeaux at vintage time. Everywhere he ate and drank and fished, choosing this last sport because it is 'a great freemasonry,' a point of natural contact with the people of each district. Along with lively and penetrating accounts of these diverse people is an exquisite painting of their background." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"This is no book for prohibitionists or anchorites; but to those who do not shun the pleasures of the French host's table no better guide than Mr. Gwynn can be recommended." New statesman

Pigs in clover. 1931 Doubleday, Doran $2.50; Heinemann 7s 6d 914.4

1 France—Descr. & trav. 2 Automobiles—Touring 31-15714

"An account of a motor trip thru France from Havre to Paris, thence to Bordeaux, the Basque country, the Pyrenees, Provence, Burgundy and back to Paris. The author and her husband started out determined to eat exactly what they wanted to eat, to drink exactly what they wanted to drink, regardless of silhouettes and doubloons, and to travel in general like luxurious gipsies instead of worthy citizens." Book rev. digest

"A vastly amusing and entertaining story, with luscious accounts of meals guaranteed to restore the most jaded appetites." Cleveland

Henderson, Helen Weston
* Cathedrals of France. 1929 Methuen 7s 6d 914.4

1 Cathedrals—France 2 France—Descr. & trav. 29-21896

Formerly carried also by Houghton

"A guidebook for the tourist, describing the chief points of architectural and historic interest of the most famous French cathedrals and several of the lesser known churches." Book rev. digest

"Her great merit is that she tells you how to get at them—uncertainty about which has done more to encourage ignorance on the subject than any other cause. In the first place Miss Henderson gives a clear map, in the form of an end-paper, showing cathedral towns only and their railway connexions." Times (London) lit. sup.

Land of pardons; tr. by F. M. Gostling. 1924 McBride $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d 914.41

1 Brittany—Descr. & trav. 2 Legends—Brittany 3 Pilgrims and pilgrimages 4 Saints 26-9779

The 1924 edition is a reprint of the edition first published 1906. It contains 12 illustrations from photographs by F. M. and W. A. Gostling. The original edition had 12 illustrations in color by T. C. Gotch and 40 other illustrations

"The appearance of Anatole Le Braz's 'Au Pays des Pardons' in 1894 was an event of considerable literary and archaeological importance in France. The book was a collection of hitherto unprinted legends of the early Breton Saints supplemented by sympathetic descriptions of the modern ceremonies in their honor (known as 'pardons') which are the last vestige of the ancient 'Feasts of the Dead'. . . The translator has performed her task well, but no translation could hope to render the strange, melancholy charm of M. Le Braz's lyric prose." Nation

Mosher, Mrs Ange (McKay)
Spell of Brittany; introd. by Anatole Le Braz. 1920 Duffield $3 914.41

1 Brittany 20-21069

The author gives a brief history of Brittany and the Bretons, following this with an account of her journeyings through that land. The book is not a dry and formal record of travel, but an account interspersed with the recital of picturesque and fascinating tales and legends, folklore stories, and Celtic songs and ballads rendered into English. Condensed from Boston Transcript

Part of the illustrations are reproductions of photographs. Map

"Bretons at home," by Mrs F. M. P. Gostling (3d ed 1925 McBride $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d) is an interesting account of a trip through Brittany which gives much the same information as Mrs Mosher's book. "Spell of Brittany," by M. F. Mansfield (Francis Miltoun, pseud.) (1927 Page $3.75) formerly published under title of "Rambles in Brittany," gives an interesting account of the people, their language, legends and customs

"Mr. Huddleston's book projects town and building against a background of history, fills in detail with some completeness, and introduces occasional comment on persons and customs." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Mr. Huddleston's book is, to all appearances accurate, and one of the most comprehensive tourists' guides yet supplied for this romantic section of France. It is for the traveler rather than the stay-at-home." N.Y. Times

"The long interval since the appearance of the last edition has necessitated a particularly thorough revision. . . The descriptions of the great collections and museums have been rewritten. . . The section dealing with the theatres has been specially revised." Preface

Maps and plans have been revised, and new ones added

Edwards, George Frederick

Old time Paris. [2d ed rev] 1925 Dutton $2.50; Methuen 5s 914.436

1 Paris—Descr.—Guide-books [26-5204]

"This little book is not a complete guide to Paris, but a tour of its ancient landmarks only. In six excursions of two hours and a half afoot the places of historic interest are pointed out and described. Interiors are not visited. [Illustrated]." Book rev. digest

"Dr. Edwards has a truly encyclopaedic knowledge of the byways of Paris and few memorials of antiquity escape his observation. The book, small enough to slip in one's pocket, may be commended to anyone who wants to save himself the trouble of digging the antiquities of Paris out of a general guide book." New statesman

Huddleston, Sisley

In and about Paris; il. by Hanslip Fletcher. 1927 Methuen 15s 914.436

1 Paris—Descr. A28-180

Formerly carried also by Doran

"Haphazard arrangement in writing is nearly always a blemish, but it only serves to strengthen the pleasant impression of Mr. Huddleston's book. He begins with a chapter of history, follows it with a description of Parisian home life, hotels and restaurants (like all wise men he keeps his best 'tips' to himself), then, vis a chapter on Fêtes, to sketches of the Grands Boulevards, the Seine, the churches, parks and gardens. There are some admirable chapters on the quartier, Montmarte old and new, Montparnasse, the Latin Quarter. His book is stored with wise advice to the visitor in such matters as eating, drinking, theatre-going." Nation and Athenaeum

Paris salons, cafés, studios. 1928 Lippincott $5; Harrap 10s 6d 914.436

1 Paris—Intellectual life 2 Salons 28-30697

Published in England under title: Bohemian, literary and social life in Paris

"It is light in tone, sometimes extremely superficial, and always colloquial. Yet it is valuable as a document, for it does give an idea of the sparkling life of Paris. Mr Huddleston, as a newspaper man, has been everywhere and met all sorts of celebrities; he has observed them with a 'news' eye; he has undoubtedly made notes about them; he has listened to tales about them; he has also read about them. The conglomeration of anecdotes, thumbnail sketches and studio gossip that has resulted from this immersion in the life of Paris is lacking in profundity but everything else is there." N.Y. Times

The author's "Back to Montparnasse, glimpses of Broadway in Bohemia" (1931 Lippincott $3.50; Harrap 15s) is an entertaining book on the authors and artists of the Montparnasse section

Laughlin, Clara Elizabeth

* So you're going to Paris! 4th ed 1929 Houghton $3.50; Methuen 10s 6d 914.436

1 Paris—Descr.—Guide-books 29-10619

In the 4th edition the main body of the text has been altered only by minor corrections. The three prefaces contained in the 3d edition have been omitted and the information transferred to an appendix

"So you're going to Paris! Mrs Laughlin exclaims and sets about to point out the things she would show you if she were with you. By departing from the conventional guidebook style, the author has made her book a chatty narrative about things worth seeing in Paris She has included in her scheme of each day's sightseeing the obscure and interesting as well as the well-known." Lucas, Edward Verrall

‡ Wanderer in Paris. 20th ed 1924 Macmillan $3; Methuen 10s 6d 914.436

1 Paris—Descr. 24-23068

Revised in 1922 to meet changes made by the War. A very usable book with good descriptions of the art treasures of the city. Interesting to read as well as to use as a guide book. Contains 15 illustrations by Walker Dexter and thirty-two reproductions from works of art. Maps on lining-papers

Two other guides which, tho out of print, 1933, are still useful are: H. W. Henderson's "Loiterer in Paris" (1921 Doran) especially for the traveller interested in churches and palaces; and A. J. C. Hare's "Walks in Paris" (1887 Macmillan)

* Paris in seven days; a guide for people in a hurry. 1928 McBride $1.50; Mills & Boon 5s 914.436

1 Paris—Descr.—Guide-books [23-10600]

The 1928 edition is a reprinting of the 1923 edition, with some changes in the information about restaurants. Contains map in pocket. Also available in his "London, Paris, Rome in seven days" (class 914.2)

"One is guided through the city with such great economy that there is not a lost moment nor a superfluous step, and not an interesting spot is passed unnoticed. It seems however that the perfect guide book has yet to make its appearance. This hasty little guide lacks the photographs by which one may visualize one's route." Bookman

Edward Acheson's "Password to Paris; advice for the thrifty" (1932 Morrow $2.50) is another useful brief guide book especially concerned with inexpensive travel

Muirhead, Findlay, and Monmarché, Marcel

(eds.) Paris and its environs. (Blue guides) 2d ed 1927 Macmillan $4.80; Benn 14s 914.436

1 Paris—Descr.—Guide-books 27-9883

In this edition several of the maps have been redrawn, and plans and sketch maps added. The appendix, which is a detachable booklet, has cover-title: "Cabs, omnibuses, tramways, underground railways & river steamers and plans of Paris with street index." Hours of admission to the sights of Paris on lining-papers. Bibliography

Newman, Edward Manuel

Seeing Paris. (Newman traveltalks) 1931 Funk $5; 21s 914.436

1 Paris—Descr. 31-30622

"An armchair guide to Paris, giving a many-sided description of both the old city and the new, and an insight into the life of the modern city." Book rev. digest

"His book will repay careful reading by anyone who is planning a visit to that city or by anyone who must make reading a substitute for traveling. The charm of the book is inherent in its subject matter rather than in its style, but it is packed with information and its illustrations are copious." Christian century

R. G. Anderson's "American family abroad" (1931 McBride $3.50) is an informal book on the experiences of an American family in Paris. Recommended as a useful book on sightseeing and French customs

914.438 Alsace-Lorraine

Hallays, André
Spell of Alsace; tr. by F. R. Fraprie. 1919 Page $3.75 914.438
1 Alsace 19-11586

"Account of the land and the character of the people of Alsace, revealing the treasures of their towns, the charm of their country, and the appeal of Alsatian character. The writer assumes the reader's knowledge of history. Any lack of familiarity is helped in the introduction, by Frank Roy Fraprie, who gives a rapid survey of the history. . . The illustrations add to the interest of the book. [Map]." Wis bul.

"Alsace Lorraine, described and pictured," by G. W. Edwards (1918 Penn o.p. 1933) is another good book which describes the region and the customs of the people. Attractive illustrations

Townroe, Bernard Stephen
Wayfarer in Alsace. 1926 Houghton $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d 914.438
1 Alsace—Descr. & trav. [26-22001]

"Literary guide-books are very much the fashion. Mr. Townroe has written a particularly good one, containing enough information to make it useful to wanderers in Alsace and enough digression to make it delightful. Very few people will finish the book without wanting to go to Strasbourg, whether they have already been or not." Spectator
Good illustrations and an end map

Land of the Rhone; Lyons and Provence. 1927 Houghton $5; Methuen 12s 6d
914.49

1 Rhone river 2 Provence 3 Lyons
[28-5435]

"An exhaustive account of that part of France penetrated by the Rhone, between Lyons and the Mediterranean. The history, scenery, manners and customs of the people, art and literature of this 'artery of civilization' are covered in this very comprehensive book. Interesting and authentic, it will also be useful as a reference book for ancient and modern history classes." Wis. bul.

"A solid book, full of interest and information. To the serious traveller who has a good while to spend in Provence it will be a godsend; at the same time, it will repay the careful study of the man who cannot go. Its defect is that it requires rather hard work to master it." Spectator

Robson, Edgar Iliff
Wayfarer in Provence. 1926 Houghton $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d
914.49

1 Provence—Descr. & trav. [26-22002]

"Mr Robson has written much more than a guide-book. He gives a comprehensive survey of Provence and in describing its chief features calls up its history and associations with the troubadours. There is much interesting archæological information and excellent chapter on Provençal customs, superstitions, legends and folklore. The illustrations are from drawings made on the spot." Book rev. digest

Wayfarer on the Rivieras. 1932 Houghton $2.50; Methuen 7s 6d
914.49

1 Riviera—Descr. & trav. 33-27035

"This informal handbook on both the French and the Italian Rivieras makes no pretence to be a regulation guide-book but contains information interestingly set forth on routes, hotels, food, history, geography, the hill villages, walks to take, art, life, manners, legends and stories of the region." Book rev. digest

"A reading of this little book will give one an idea not only of the outward appearance of the scenes visited but an insight into the history, the art, and the legends of the country, as well as the life of its people. The entire workmanship of the book is attractive, and the 'Sketch Map' of the region adds to its value, especially if it is used as a guide book." Boston Transcript

"It is a long time since we have read so good a book of the 'psychological guide-book' type. It is characteristic of the author's broad common sense that he not only refrains from the usual sneers at ordinary guide-books, but assumes that his readers will be properly equipped with them. His Italy is that of the tourists—Rome, Florence, Naples, Ravenna, Venice—but he has something new and personal to say about each of them." Saturday rev.

1 Italy—Descr. & trav.—Guide-books 2 Rome (City)—Descr.—Guide-books 30-26395

"The long interval since the appearance of the last edition, and the drastic changes that have taken place since the Great War, have necessitated a particularly thorough revision, with the result that the book has had to be completely rewritten. It now embodies the most recent information, down to the end of 1929, including the alterations due to the foundation of the Vatican City. . . The Maps and Plans have been carefully revised, and quite a number of them added or entirely redrawn. The plans of Rome itself, including that of the chief plan in three strips, together with the plan-index and the lists of tram and motor bus routes and the cab tariff, are placed in an appendix, which may if desired be separated from the rest of the volume." 1 Italy—Soc. life & cust. 2 Italy—Intellectual life 3 Italy—Hist.—1559-1789 [31-7359]

"An interesting commentary on Italy in the days of Spanish domination and baroque art. The book describes Naples, Milan, Rome, Venice, and Florence as they reflected the history, customs and daily life of the people during this post-Renaissance period. There are chapters also on English travellers in Italy, the Commedia dell'Arte and the opera, monks, priests and nuns, and the novels." Book rev. digest

"This pleasantly written and well-illustrated book collects together a good deal of scattered material to illustrate Italian manners and customs in the baroque age. The author has obviously read widely and kept a keen eye open for the picturesque detail and the amusing anecdote: he gives no footnote references and raises no points of controversy, and would be the first to admit that much of what he tells us is supported by insufficient evidence. . . The author is obviously writing not for the contentious expert but for the amateur of the picturesque." New statesman

"The travel-books of Mr. Norman Douglas. . . are among the most delightful books of their kind in our language. This sort of literature can concern itself with ordinary places and describe them in so extraordinary a manner that they are raised 'sublime, out of space, out of time.' [It is its] witty non-moral self-sufficiency which gives this book its recondite flavour and lifts it so aloof from the mischances of imitation." Saturday rev.

* Afoot in Italy. 1932 Dutton $2.50; Newnes 7s 6d 914.5

1 Italy—Descr. & trav. 32-2033

"An account of the author's travels in Italy, by third-class train from the northern border to the south, then on foot and by tram thru the southern country and north to Rome. The author avoided so far as possible the tourist routes and art galleries, but found his delight in scraping acquaintances among the simple country people even tho his Italian was of the most meager. The book is written with sympathy and particularly with admiration for the efficiency of the Mussolini regime." Book rev. digest

"It is not the 'guide-book' passages, however well done, that make a book of travel readable. What matters is the description of out-of-the-way humanity and the spirit which animates the writer. On these two counts Mr. Goldring deserves warm praise; his rebellious spirit, now mellowed a little by years, his friendly appreciation of the hospitable and the comic, and his humorous rendering of untoward incidents and unconventional gatherings have contrived between them a highly entertaining book." 914.56 Rome

In addition to the books entered below, larger libraries and other libraries desiring supplementary material on Rome will find the following books of interest:

Faure, Gabriel. Land of St Francis of Assisi; Assisi and Perugia. (Picture guides) 1924 Hale $2.50; Medici soc. 7s 6d A description, with many illustrations, of the towns of Umbria

Faure, Gabriel. Rome. (Picture guides) 1926 Hale $2.50; Medici soc. 7s 6d Like other volumes in the series, its distinguishing feature is its many fine illustrations

Maurel, André. Month in Rome; tr. by H. Gerard. 1916 Putnam $3; 15s Useful to supplement guide-books. More interesting to readers who know Rome

Bagnani, Gilbert

Roman Campagna and its treasures. 1929 Scribner $3.50; Methuen 10s 6d 914.56

1 Campagna di Roma [30-2521]

"A guide to the large plain surrounding Rome, in antiquity highly cultivated and covered with villas and palaces, then for centuries desolate and malarious and now once more cultivated and reviving. Signor Bagnani has covered this territory in a manner most practical for the tourist, arranging his book according to the great roads that lead out of Rome and describing the historical sites, buildings and ruins." Book rev. digest

"As far as we have tested his statements, they are in accordance with the latest authorities, and in his notes he refers to books which treat more fully of the history of each place. His book will be useful to all visitors to Rome who have a few days to spare." Saturday rev.

A comprehensive record of Russian conditions made by an American. "Mr. Chamberlin has lived for seven years in Russia as a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. Most of the time he has stayed in Moscow, but he has also traveled extensively in the country. . . As a result the book is filled with information. There are nineteen chapters: the first about the historical background and the last about the probable future of Russia. Between these two there are studies of every aspect of Soviet life: of the organization of the Communist Party, the rivalry of the leaders for power, the superior position of the industrial workers, the fight against the 'rich' peasants and the establishment of collective farms, the question of nationalities, the tendencies of foreign policy, etc. [Illustrations]" Boston

Eddy, George Sherwood

Challenge of Russia. 1931 Farrar $2.50; Jenkins 10s 6d 914.7

1 Russia—Economic policy—Five-year plan (1928-1932) 2 Russia—Pol. & govt. 3 Russia—Econ. condit.—1918- 31-2582

"A resumé of conditions in Russia by the well-known International Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who has an excellent understanding of commercial, political and religious trends. He marshalls frankly and fairly the aspects of the Soviet system that are a challenge as well as those which are a menace." Cleveland

Russia today; what can we learn from it? 1934 Farrar $2.50, bds $1; Allen, G. 10s 6d 914.7

1 Russia—Pol. & govt.—1917- 2 Russia—Soc. condit. 3 Russia—Economic policy—Five-year plan (1928-1932) 34-2004

"The author, who has recently returned from his tenth visit to Russia, begins his book with a warning of Russia's evils: bureaucracy and the denial of liberty; violence and compulsion; dogmatism and anti-religion. But much more space is given to a treatment of Russia's possible contributions to human welfare." Book rev. digest

"Less factual in its account of the Russian experiment than his 'Challenge of Russia,' the merit of this new book is its compact and penetrating indictment of the major social ills of the west, viewed in the light of striking successes which the soviets have attained in dealing with those very ills. . . An encyclopedic mass of quotations, from current and classic writers on every topic touched, makes it more of a handbook than an original essay." Christian century

Essad, bey

Blood and oil in the Orient; tr. from the German by Elsa Talmey. 1932 Simon & Schuster $2.50; Grayson 18s 914.7

1 Baku, Russia 2 Bolshevism 3 Petroleum 4 West Turkestan—Descr. & trav. 32-10854

"A personal narrative covering the author's early life in Baku in Azerbaijan, on the Caspian Sea, before and during the Great war and the Russian revolution. The author was the son of a wealthy oil-owner and the first part of his work describes the terrible economic and working conditions in the oil-fields. Later chapters deal with two massacres and with the author's escape from the Bolsheviks." Book rev. digest

"To some readers Essad Bey's pages will seem to deal with a world as different from the prosaic and beguide-booked West as those described in the travels of Sir John Mandeville or Lemuel Gulliver; but for those who do not mind horrors and bloodshed or the oddity of some of the customs which he mentions they will prove not only highly informative but exceedingly interesting." Times (London) lit. sup.

Graham, Stephen

Dividing line of Europe. 1925 Appleton-Century $2; Macmillan 7s 6d 914.7

1 Russia 2 Bolshevism 3 Baltic Provinces 25-18883

Published in England under the title: Russia in division

"Discusses the influences at work in Finland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland and Bessarabia, the border states which form a barrier between Russia and the rest of Europe; tells of the Russians in France and of interviews with the exiled writers, Kuprin, Bunin, Remizof and Mérejkowski; and gives an account of the Alliance of socialist soviet republics. Although the author has great admiration and sympathy for the Russian people he has only hatred for bolshevism." Pittsburgh

Griffin, Frederick

Soviet scene; a newspaperman's close-ups of new Russia. 1932 Macmillan $2.50; 10s 6d 914.7

1 Russia—Descr. & trav. 33-2758

"Mr. Griffin is an Irish-born Canadian newspaper man who writes acceptable prose, an unpretentious and careful observer, who covered the usual ground in Russia and yet manages to notice with judgment, restraint and fair-mindedness, so much of the daily life and spirit of the people that his account has both the freshness and the ripe seasoning of a really important account of the Soviet regime. . . No better book has come from the presses for a long time as an introductory volume to an interest in the Soviet Union." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Elias Tobenkin's "Stalin's ladder; war & peace in the Soviet union" (1933 Minton $2.50; Putnam 10s 6d) is an enthusiastic book on the industrial changes in Russia, by a Russian born American who recently returned to Russia for ten months of study and observation

Harper, Samuel Northrup

Civic training in soviet Russia. (Studies in the making of citizens) 1929 Univ. of Chicago press $3; Cambridge univ. press 13s 6d 914.7

1 Citizenship—Russia 2 Education—Russia 3 Political parties—Russia 4 Russia—Soc. condit. 5 Russia—Intellectual life 6 Russia—Pol. & govt. 29-10648

"An attempt to portray the methods by which the revolution, after its military and political triumphs, now hopes to win a moral conquest in the acceptance of its ideals by the people. Hence the elaborate educational system here described, involving schools, press, army, unions, etc." Chicago

"Mr. Harper's information is exceptionally rich, accurate, and reliable, and his interpretation is based upon a clear understanding of the events and of the spirit of the Russian Revolution. His book is . . . one of the most valuable contributions to the literature on Soviet Russia." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Hindus, Maurice Gerschon

* Broken earth; with an introduction by Glenn Frank. new ed 1931 Smith, H. $3 914.7

1 Peasantry—Russia 2 Russia—Soc. life & cust. 31-32434

First published 1926. The only new material in the 1931 edition is the concluding chapter which records the subsequent fortunes of some of the outstanding characters in the book. Also available in the Traveller's library (Smith, P. $1; Cape, J. 3s 6d)

"A journalist who came to America as a Russian immigrant, recently revisited his birthplace in central Russia, going from village to village and talking, working and playing with the peasants. He describes most readably the present status of the peasant, his reaction to Soviet rule, and his probable social and political progress." Cleveland

"Mr. Hindus's sympathetic and remarkably well-written book should do a good deal to create a better knowledge of the Russian peasant and his present manner of life." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The village; Russian impressions," by Ernest Poole (1918 Macmillan o.p. 1933) is another study of the Russian peasant interestingly written

‡ Great offensive. 1933 Smith, H. $3; Gollancz 5s 914.7

1 Russia—Descr. & trav. 2 Russia—Soc. condit. 3 Russia—Civilization 4 Russia—Econ. condit. 5 Communism—Russia 33-27436

"In this book, written during and immediately after his latest visit to Russia, Hindus brings up to date his narratives of Russia's great social experiment. . . The Russians have waged their fight for a new world on two fronts, the economic and the sociological. "The great offensive" describes in Part one the making of a new economic order; in Part two the creating of a new human personality." Book rev. digest

"Maintains the standard of the earlier works on Russia which the author has written. Hardly anyone else has the intimacy of contact with the Russian scene of Mr. Hindus. The skill which he possesses in describing Russian life renders his book indispensable to those who wish to keep in close contact with developments in Soviet Russia." Sat. rev. of lit.

* Humanity uprooted. 1929 Smith, H. $3.50; Cape, J. 12s 6d 914.7

1 Russia—Soc. condit. 2 Russia—Civilization 3 Bolshevism 4 Russia—For. rel. 31-13364

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint (Blue ribbon bks. $1)

"This is a commentary on the present situation—social rather than political—in Soviet Russia, by a Russian who has revisited Russia several times during the past five years. The book is in two parts, the first describing the aims of the Soviet policies and the second dealing with the reactions to these policies of the various elements that make up the Russian population." Current history

"Hardly anything better and more fascinating has been written on the Russian Family, Love, Youth, the Peasant, the Jew, and the Intelligentsia than the several chapters of this book." World tomorrow

Youth in soviet Russia; tr. from the German by Michael Davidson. 1933 Harcourt $2; Allen, G. 7s 6d 914.7
1 Youth movement 2 Russia—Intellectual life 33-23464
"The writer of this book is a young German who was born in Russia, spent most of his childhood there and returns each year for a visit. He is not a Communist, but his intimate relations with his Russian friends give interest to his statements and views about Russian youth and its beliefs and attitudes. The book was written before the Nazi era." Cincinnati

1 Russia—Descr. & trav. 2 Russia—Econ. condit. 3 Russia—Pol. & govt. 4 Moscow—Descr. 5 Electric power-plants—Russia 34-1855
"For twenty-two years Mr. Monkhouse has lived in Russia. He was one of the group of British engineers who was accused of espionage and sabotage and tried in Moscow in 1933. In spite of his experiences Mr. Monkhouse has retained an open-minded viewpoint and writes with sound judgment." Cincinnati
"A book of mixed virtues. Where the author speaks of personal experiences he is readable and illuminating. When he turns interpreter of such subjects, for example, as religion, education, agriculture, he is superficial and dull, and, what is even more serious, he is uncertain of his facts and misty in his prognostications. . . The best chapters in the book are those which deal with the Caucasus, Siberia, Archangel, Monkhouse's own work in Russian industry, his appraisal of the industrial achievements of the Five-Year Plan and the account of his arrest and trial. Here he is in a familiar field." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

‡ First to go back. 1933 Bobbs $2.75; Gollancz 12s 6d 914.7
1 Russia—Descr. & trav. 33-28372
"A member of the Russian nobility whose experiences in the revolution were given in 'A world can end' [class 92] tells here of a comprehensive tour she made through the Soviet Union with her American husband in 1932. Poignant memories cluster about familiar places, and it is the author's ability to convey the contrasts between the old and new regimes as she notes with keen interest the changes in conditions, in places and in people, that gives the book its special flavor and value." Holland; being a general survey of the Netherlands commonly called Holland. 1928 Farrar $3 914.92
1 Netherlands—Descr. & trav. 29-2557
Published in England in the Kitbag travel books (Harrap 5s)
"A guide-book which has much to recommend it to the traveller. It is a pleasant departure from the 'guide-book' in the sense in which that expression is often employed, for there is no schedule of 'sights,' followed by lists of picture-titles and curiosities which embarrass rather than instruct visitors. . . Miss Bowen has considered the provinces as a whole, and picks out the chief charactertistics of life and manners and the appearance of the country and the towns, leaving the traveller to fill in the details on the spot . . . The book is at times a little lacking in historical perspective and balance. . . Nevertheless, we commend the book unhesitatingly to all travellers to Holland. The quiet unmannered style reflects the simple dignity of the country and the people and the photographs are excellent." Times (London) lit. sup.

A detailed guidebook with numerous maps and an index
Covers the "Kingdom of the Netherlands and describes the course of the Rhine from the sea, up through the romantic gorges of its middle reaches, to the ancient city of Speyer, a few miles above the influx of the Neckar, the highest of the famous German tributary streams." Preface

Scheffler, Karl
Holland; tr. from the German by Caroline Frederick. 1932 Knopf $4 914.92
1 Netherlands—Descr. & trav. 2 Painting, Dutch 32-8170
"Picturesque aspects of Dutch life are not emphasized in this book. It is a brief, dispassionate account of the topography of the country, the national characteristics, and the chief features of the important cities, with several chapters on Dutch painting. Excellent photographic illustrations." Bkl.

Van Loon, Hendrik Willem
Indiscreet itinerary. 1933 Harcourt $1 914.92
1 Netherlands—Descr. & trav.—Guide-books 33-27187
"Hendrik Willem van Loon in his astonishing little book packs all the information one needs for a successful trip through Holland. It is compact without ever being dry. At the same time there is a warmth of feeling, an understanding which makes it much more than a simple travel guide." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Treasure house of Belgium" by Émile Cammaerts (1924 Macmillan) is a well illustrated book describing the main characteristics of Belgian life, especially the artistic side. It is now out of print, 1933

Anderson, Mrs Isabel Weld (Perkins)
Spell of Belgium. 1915 Page $3.75 914.93
1 Belgium 15-22269
New edition in preparation, 1934
"Belgium described by the wife of a former American ambassador. There are interesting chapters on Belgian politics and Belgian arts, particularly tapestry and lace making, and also on the intimate family life in the royal palace, but there is little understanding of the common people and the social forces underlying their strong national spirit which has defied in turn Spanish, Austrian, Dutch and German oppressors; and, although Belgian history is sketched, there is only one short chapter about the war. . . The legends of Antwerp, set down by the Flemish historian Sleeck are here first translated and the book is enhanced by many colored illustrations." Cleveland

1 Belgium—Descr. & trav. 2 Netherlands—Descr. & trav. 28-12638

"While intended primarily for the traveler who must count his pennies carefully, the author also gives hints for the first class travelers. Hotel tips, routes, tables of train rates, inexpensive meals and other details which trouble the traveler are all taken up. This book has a number of illustrations and several maps." Springfield Republican

Vose, Edward Neville
Spell of Flanders. 1915 Page $3.75 914.93

1 Flanders—Descr. & trav. 15-8190

"This book . . . an outline of the history, legends and art of Belgium—describes only its northern provinces as they appeared to the writer just before the breaking out of the great war. . . . The illustrations, from photographs—particularly those in color which visualize the exquisite silvery greens and greys of the Flemish countryside, and the warm browns and reds of its ancient cities—are happily chosen. Beside the keen interest of the narrative, the book contains much information useful to tourists, yet not found in guide-books." Boston Transcript

Beebe, William

Pheasant jungles. 1927 Putnam $3; 12s 6d 915

1 East (Far East)—Descr. & trav. 2 Natural history—East (Far East) 27-4404

"William Beebe's hunt for rare pheasants carried him to Ceylon, Sikhim, Burma, the Himalayas, Borneo and the Malay peninsula. The results of this scientific undertaking for the New York zoological society were first described in a long and expensive monograph. The essays which make up 'Pheasant jungles' are by-products of the monograph and are devoted to the more human and personal observations of jungle life. Illustrated with 60 most interesting photographs." Book rev. digest

"'Pheasant jungles' combines some of the most acute of the author's zoological observations with entrancing descriptions of natural phenomena, accounts of real adventure, and even frequent outcroppings of humor, which as a rule is none too common in his work." Literary rev.

1 Civilization, Oriental [28-10989]

"'A right association of spiritual, æsthetic and utilitarian activities is essential for the highest development of individual or national character.' The author points out the manifestations of these three—spirituality, æstheticism, and utilitarianism—in the national life of India, China, and Japan, incidentally contrasting East with West in point of view and achievement." Book rev. digest

"A good small book to be read on the general subject of the conflict of the East and West in its spiritual and philosophical phases." North American review

"A serious and instructive book of travel." Times (London) lit. sup.

"This inquiry into changing political conditions in those countries largely under British influence or control was undertaken by Mr Spender for the Westminster Gazette. The author visited Turkey, Egypt and India, sounding the political temper in each of these countries. His book discusses briefly the new Turkey, and the problems of the Egyptian government, and at greater length the general situation in India and the agitating question of home rule." "The 'feeling' of China pervades these pages, which so felicitously portray Chinese life and thought. Ancient beliefs and ceremonies are interwoven with the author's own experiences and her charming translations of Chinese poems. The black and white illustrations by Lucille Douglass make of the book an esthetic delight. Maps. Synopsis of Chinese history, biographical index, index." N.Y. state lib.

"Delightful book. It is in appearance a Chinese mirror; one is not disappointed either with the outside or the inside. For necessary as a good carving on the back and a bright gloss on the front may be, it is in the depths of the inside of a Chinese mirror that the virtue lies. The book is written throughout in a style full of sympathy and charm." Nation and Athenaeum

China: the pity of it. 1932 Doubleday, Doran $2.50; Heinemann 8s 6d 915.1

1 China 32-34501

"The purpose of this book is to describe and discuss the forces and tendencies which have chiefly determined the course of events in China since the Washington Conference of 1921. It is not intended to give any detailed chronological account of these events, but rather to set forth and interpret the dominant causes and results of the anarchical condition of affairs at present existing." Chapter 1

"Mr. Bland will not get his scheme for the Powers temporarily to take over China and put her straight. . . "This brilliant book, written in a truly French style, contains many sketches and impressions of China, land and people, which together make up a vivid picture. Critics have found that notwithstanding some inaccuracies in detail, the general 'feel' of China is well conveyed. The gifted young author has produced a delightful volume, beautiful in form, to which drawings by Covarrubias add distinction." Cincinnati

Portrait of a Chinese lady. 1930 Morrow $5; Hodder 21s 915.1

1 China—Soc. life & cust. 2 Women in China 30-7308

"The writer is an Englishwoman born and brought up in China and a lover of the country and its people. Her portrait of a Chinese lady is drawn from life and from intimate acquaintance with the original, Mrs Sung of Shanghai, a charming mother and representative of the new China, educated partly in America. The background of the picture of which Mrs Sung is the center, is the daily home life of modern China, revealed sympathetically and humorously, by means of dialogue, reminiscence and anecdote." Modern Chinese civilization; tr. from the French by E. M. Jones. 1929 Cape, J. 12s 6d 915.1

1 China—Civilization 29-16102

"One feels, despite the general accuracy of his facts and the cogency of his reasoning, that the learned professor's feelings have sometimes got the better of his scientific detachment and that some of his most trenchant criticisms may possibly have been provoked by too prolonged contact with the new-style student, whose indiscipline, conceit, and frivolous laziness he so roundly denounces. High Tartary. 1930 Little $4 915.16

1 East Turkestan—Descr. & trav. 30-24835

"The High Tartary thru which the author and his wife travelled in 1927 is the name he gives to the territory in Chinese Turkestan stretching from the Altai to the Pamirs. The author's chief interest in the trip—apart from the interest he feels in these strange Orientals and their customs—lies in a comparison between the trade and travel routes that are now in use and those of ancient times." Book rev. digest

" 'High Tartary' is no haphazard travel book. It brilliantly reflects scholarship, painstaking research into the histories of the nomadic inhabitants of the plains and mountains of Central Asia and a lively interest in human nature. The depth of its background is astonishing, for the narrative is constructed in the light of more than an amateur's knowledge of the history, archeology, ethnology and political economy of little-known tribes. Mr. Lattimore has travelled much, but he has also read much." Springfield Republican

Desert road to Turkestan. 1929 Little $4; Methuen 21s 915.17

1 Mongolia—Descr. & trav. [29-1315]

"The longing to explore a 1600-mile ancient desert caravan route through Mongolia to Chinese Turkestan proved, in spite of almost insuperable obstacles, irresistible to a young American who had lived over 20 years in China. His cheerful meeting of discomfort and danger, his powers of observation and description, his racy and unflagging interest in all human contacts, and his humorous appreciation of the unusual, make a fascinating record which is as well an important contribution to an understanding of Chinese psychology, superstitions and traditions. Two maps and 40 photographs." N.Y. libraries

"The author speaks Chinese and has absorbed enough of the Chinese spirit to make him, like his companions, adaptable in the strangest of circumstances. . . He found much that has never been described before, little incidents of desert life which will interest the biologist, natural historian and the general reader." Times (London) lit. sup.

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint (Blue ribbon bks. $1)

"The author, a Polish professor and scientist hunted by Bolsheviks, spent a year and a half in the wilds of Tibet and Mongolia. His pictures of peasant life in legendary demon-haunted regions, his description of meetings with many leaders of Russian, Mongolian and Chinese armies, and his record of dangerous and almost unbelievable experiences make a thrilling narrative, stranger than fiction." Korea: the old and the new. 1931 Revell $1.50 915.19

1 Korea—Soc. life & cust. 31-18020

"This small volume gives a view of Korea in the present day, with a short sketch of the historical background. The intelligent author, active in missionary work in Korea, has considerable first-hand knowledge, and for other facts depends upon works of other authors, to whom she gives full credit. This is a useful short study of Korea." Cincinnati

H. B. Drake's "Korea of the Japanese" (1930 Dodd $4; Lane 12s 6d) is also recommended as a sympathetic treatment of the country and the people

1 Japan—Civilization 2 Japan—Soc. life & cust. 30-25633

" 'Realism in Romantic Japan' is a travel book of the new order, a chronicle of that greater adventure requiring not brawn, physical prowess and a fevered imagination, but intellectual courage, tact and a thirst for knowledge; the exploration of an alive and therefore shifting contemporary civilization, which Miss Beard describes as 'a great light that requires a thousand facets for its reflection.' " Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Miriam Beard somehow contrived to see a great deal that seems to have escaped most writers of Japanese travel books. Her comments on the university life of today and social conditions in general are penetrating and in the main new to western readers." Review of reviews

"This book was written on the author's fourth visit to Japan. During one of his earlier visits Mr Carpenter lived in a Japanese house very much as the Japanese live. This volume records his observations on many phases of life in Japan—commercial, political, social and religious." Book rev. digest

"Without prejudice to preceding volumes it may be said that this proves among the most interesting of the series. And there is a rather remarkable chapter at the end on the missionary conquest of Korea by western Christians, remarkable both for the story it tells and for the fact of its being told in a book of general tourist interest." "Brief essays on the Japanese, their life and customs, by a man who has lived among the people. Illustrated from photographs." Book rev. digest

"Uncommonly delightful book of uncommon value. If one be disillusioned of various 'polite fictions' long established regarding land and people, one closes the book with a greater liking for the Japanese themselves. Which is precisely what Mr. Haring hoped. At least we like to think so. With delectable informality, and commenting genially, and often amusingly, he makes known to us various characteristic phases of Japanese life today." Boston Transcript

"The author presents a sympathetic, entertaining picture of life and customs in modern Japan, a land where old feudalistic customs are still preserved side by side with Occidentalized industry and education." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Phillips has covered the ground well, and gives the reader not only the picturesque surface of life and customs, but a glimpse into the underlying meanings which he realizes can never be completely grasped by the Occidental. Above all, he respects the Japanese culture for what it is, and does not preach westernization in the name of progress." N.Y. Times

A masterpiece of travel literature relating the author's adventures among the Mohammedans of the desert in 1876-78

"The vision is so sure, so unsentimental, the adventure itself of this one Christian in a desert of fanatical Mohammedans is so thrilling, the people themselves are so unlike what one would expect them to be and yet in their gnarled way so obviously human, that the further one reads the more certain one becomes of finishing the book." The author describes with sympathy the life and character of the Arab and the desert which is his environment, his religion, the influence of western civilization and the hope of success for Christian missions in Arabia. [Illustrations and a map]" Book rev. digest

"The book is a simple record of long years of work and travel, all modestly told, amid the people in a land made inhospitable by nature. "Mr. Thomas carries on the great tradition of Burton and Doughty, of Gertrude Bell and Lawrence, and reading his narrative, told with the vigour and economy of a master, we are so carried away by its inevitability that the great exploit stands in danger of appearing too simple. For great it is . . . Important as his geographical and other discoveries are, the narrative will appeal to most readers as a vivid and luminous account of a great adventure. For Mr. Thomas can tell a story as well as any: he can describe with the pen of an artist." Spectator

"The author, a young Englishman, went out to India to accept a position as private secretary to the Maharajah of a small native Indian state. There he found His Highness already had a secretary and hardly needed an English tutor for his two-year-old son. In reality, Mr Ackerley concludes, the Maharajah obviously felt the need of 'someone to love him,' some one to discuss with him questions of life and love, and to sympathize with his interests in good omens, dancing boys, and Greek and Roman customs." Book rev. digest

"This wholly delightful account of a stay in India is not a travel book, but a descriptive fantasia of the Indian mind. The writer has no intention of making India realizable as a geographical entity, and it will be idle to explore the map for the native state of Chhokrapur, the scene of his operations, since the name is a pure invention. The place, however, does exist, as do also the people described; the chief merit of the book is that they are described freshly, a little crazily, as in the oriental fiction of Marmaduke Pickthall, yet retain the reality of people met and things seen with the eyes." "Mr. Bonsels writes of what he saw in India in a way that makes you feel that you, too, are spending long days and hideous nights in a ramshackle bungalow. This is an unusual book on India, for Mr. Bonsels did not go to criticize or rule; he feels on his shoulders no part of the White Man's Burden. He accepted and was absorbed into the life of India as he found it; he can write of the animals and people, with rhythmic prose that is magically poetic. The reader is left feeling that he has seen India 'first hand from nature,' and that, more than many more serious tomes, this has penetrated her sacred essence." Independent

"Caste and race in India" by G. S. Ghurye (1932 Knopf $4; Routledge 10s 6d) in the History of civilization series, is a scholarly book which gives the history of caste in India

Sinclair, Gordon

* Foot-loose in India. 1933 Farrar $2.50 915.4

1 India—Descr. & trav. 33-3187

"This book offers real pictures and close-up views of an India little known to the alien, one that the American traveler never sees and the Englishman, if he knows it, does not care to write about. But it was the real India, the India behind the screens and the walls and the closed doors that Gordon Sinclair, a young Canadian journalist, wanted to see informally, and describe. You will find in his book pen snapshots of manners and customs, of scenes and people, that you will discover in no other book on India, and you will find these things frankly and vividly described." N.Y. Times

Thomas, Lowell Jackson

* India: land of the Black pagoda. 1930 Appleton-Century $4; Hutchinson 7s 6d 915.4

1 India—Descr. & trav. 30-30413

Also available in a cheap satisfactory reprint in the Star series (Garden City pub. co. $1)

"Story of the author's experiences and observations during an extended tour, related with his usual sense of the value of contrasts." Pittsburgh

"Mr. Thomas's description of India on the whole is extremely interesting; his writing is exuberant and vivid and he provides a wealth of photographs. He took for his guru Major Yeats-Brown, and he could have found none better. The result is a most attractive book on Indian sightseeing." Times (London) lit. sup.

Underwood, Alfred Clair

Contemporary thought of India. (Library of contemporary thought) 1931 Knopf $2.50; Williams & Norgate 5s 915.4

1 India—Pol. & govt. 2 India—Soc. condit. 3 India—Religion 31-7544

"A useful but not brilliant conspectus of the political, social, and religious movements among the two and a half million English literates who leaven a lump of 319 million illiterates. There are interesting chapters on Mahatma Gandhi, Dr. Tagore, and Professor Radhakrishnan: the sections on social life are necessarily superficial, for the questions involved are so vast that it would have been impossible even to mention them all within the limits of a book such as this." Spectator

Williams, Mrs Gertrude Leavenworth (Marvin)

Understanding India. 1928 Coward-McCann $3.50 915.4

1 India—Soc. condit. 2 India—Descr. & trav. 3 India—Soc. life & cust. 4 Women of India 28 24112

"A well written account of the author's travels in India and an interpretation of the country which is neither indictment nor eulogy. Mrs Williams was most of the time unattended and unannounced, gathering her impressions thru friendly encounters with Hindus and Mohammedans, high and low. She compares Indian civilization to that of the Middle ages and believes that material progress similar to that of the West since the Middle ages would take place with equal rapidity in India if she should adopt the machinery of the West." "In an effort to make clear the mental outlook of modern India in its reaction against westernization, the author discusses varying aspects of the Hindu civilization—literary, artistic, political, religious, and educational." Pittsburgh

India; a bird's-eye view. 1924 Houghton $5; Constable 7s 6d 915.4

1 India [24-25312]

"The Earl of Ronaldshay is an authority upon India, for he has traveled widely over the country, has spent many years there and was formerly Governor General of Bengal. This volume he offers to meet the needs of the general reader who wants some knowledge of the outstanding features of India, its people and its life, and wants them presented in a way that will illuminate their significance. Therefore his work is something more than what is generally understood by a 'birdseye view,' which usually is concerned chiefly with material aspects." N.Y. Times

"Lord Ronaldshay is a little irritating. There is in him a tendency to 'fine writing' and a distinct, if faint, flavour of the superior person. His book is, however, both readable and instructive." Nation and Athenaeum

Numerous excellent illustrations

The author's "Lands of the thunderbolt, Sikhim, Chumbi & Bhutan" (1923 Constable 7s 6d) is a well written and illustrated record of travel on the border land of Tibet

Zimand, Savel

Living India. 1928 Longmans $3; 10s 6d 915.4

1 India—Soc. condit. 2 India—Soc. life & cust. 3 India—Hist. 4 India—Religion 28-27791

"A sympathetic analysis of the revolution of thought now taking place in India. The author traces the historical background from the founding of the British empire in the East under Robert Clive, describes the structure of Indian society, and shows the development of the rising tide of independence and the growth of nationalism." Book rev. digest

"A book which is interesting, suggestive and therefore valuable. He may not see very deeply into any Indian subject, but he sees the superficial surface of a wide subject with remarkable clearness; he is admirably impartial; and native shrewdness renders him distrustful of extreme views, and of arguments which prove their case too completely." Times (London) lit. sup.

915.42 Himalaya Mountains

F. S. Smythe's "Kangchenjunga adventure" (1931 Gollancz 16s, cheaper ed 6s) is a vividly written account of the attempt to reach the top of Mount Kangchenjunga in the Himalayas which will interest many readers. Well illustrated

Houston-Mount Everest expedition, 1933.

First over Everest! by P. F. M. Fellowes and others. 1934 McBride $3.50; Lane 12s 6d

1 Aeronautics—Flights 2 Everest, Mount [34-2505]

"The story of the Houston-Mount Everest expedition of 1933 told by Air-Commodore Fellowes and his companions. The text which tells the story is casual and sketchy—due perhaps to an Englishman's native reticence in talking about his achievements—but the photographic illustrations are gorgeous! These pictures, together with the official nature of the report, make the book a desirable addition." Wis. bul.

Houston-Mount Everest expedition—

915.42

1 Deutsch-amerikanische Himalaya expedition, 1932 2 Nanga Parbat 3 Himalaya mountains—Descr. & trav. 4 Herron, Elbridge Rand 33-33044

"One of the world's great unconquered peaks, Nanga Parbat, the Naked Mountain, rises beyond Vale of Kashmir, and in this narrative, an unsuccessful attempt to win to the top is described by a woman who as a journalist accompanied the German American Himalaya Expedition. From the 'spadework' of assembling the tons of equipment, on through the eventful period, beset by insuperable obstacles, of the stages of the ascent, the main outline of the long expedition is filled in with incident, casual conversation, scenic description and all the varying adventure and color of such an experience. Fine photographs, sketch maps, index." N.Y. libraries

Story of Everest. 1927 Little o.p. 1933
915.42

1 Everest, Mount 2 Mount Everest expedition, 1921 3 Mount Everest expedition, 1922 4 Mount Everest expedition, 1924 27-20241

"To anyone who feels the challenge of nature and who loves adventure for its own sake, this story of the attempts to conquer Everest will prove of absorbing interest. The author, who accompanied the expedition as official photographer, writes first of the preliminary expeditions into Tibet and the final choice of a route, then of the heroic but unsuccessful attack on the mountain in 1922, and of the second attempt in 1924 with its tragic climax. Marvelous photographic illustrations." Wis. bul.

Younghusband, Sir Francis Edward

* Epic of Mount Everest. 1926 Longmans $3; Arnold, E. & co. 7s 6d 915.42

1 Everest, Mount 2 Mount Everest expedition, 1921 3 Mount Everest expedition, 1922 4 Mount Everest expedition, 1924 26-24166

"Separate descriptions of the three Mount Everest expeditions have already been written by those who took part in them, and have been published in three books, 'Mount Everest: the reconnaissance, 1921' by C. K. Howard-Bury [1922 Longmans $7.50]; 'The assault on Mount Everest, 1922' [by C. G. Bruce 1923 Longmans, o.p. 1933]; and 'The fight for Everest, 1924' [by E. F. Norton 1925 Arnold, E. & co. o.p. 1933]. The present volume purports to be a condensed description of the three expeditions. It is . . . based on the above-named publications." Preface

"The Epic of Everest is a fascinating story, not only of what the expeditions accomplished, but of the ideal which they had before them and which led them onwards and upwards." Spectator

Numerous full-page illustrations and two maps

Wonders of the Himalaya. 1924 Dutton $3.50; Murray, J. 10s 6d 915 42

1 Himalaya mountains—Descr. & trav. 24-12851

"The author, a renowned traveler, writes of his earlier hazardous journeys to mountain heights, of great glaciers traversed, and remote tribes visited. A glow of fine enthusiasm permeates every page, whether in the description of the silver radiance of some moonlit peak or in the telling of the devoted gallantry of his native guides. Photographic frontispiece and map." N.Y. state lib.

"The adventures are told so simply and lucidly that the reader is made to see the actors with his own eyes. . . The people Sir Francis had to do with are as freshly presented as the mountains." Times (London) lit. sup.

915.48 Ceylon

Still, John

Jungle tide. 1930 Houghton $3; Blackwood 7s 6d 915.48

1 Ceylon—Descr. & trav. [30-28383]

"Having lived in Ceylon for many years, Mr Still writes convincingly of the jungle life there: of cobras and leopards, strange plants, and men. An archaeologist as well as a naturalist, he describes with particular interest ancient Sinhalese cities buried in the heart of the forests. Mr Still's flexible and poetic diction is reminiscent of W. H. Hudson." Book rev. digest

"Both for the expert knowledge which it contains and the care and workmanship put into it, it is a book to be read and returned to. But it is unfortunate that a volume so full of miscellaneous information should be published without an index." Times (London) lit. sup.

915.5 Persia

Two books, both out of print, 1933, which are desirable where additional material is needed are:

Hedin, S. A. Overland to India. 2v 1910 Macmillan An account of the author's experiences crossing the salt deserts of Persia

Jackson, A. V. W. Persia past and present. 1906 Macmillan A scholarly work of interest to the student

Bell, Gertrude Lowthian

Persian pictures. 1928 Liveright $3; Benn 10s 6d 915.5

1 Persia—Descr. & trav. 28-23850

"Travel sketches which contain fresh, living impressions of country and people, colored by the warm enthusiasm of this English girl on her first visit to Persia in 1904. They were not one of her Persian pictures but contains the promise of the shrewd observation and the understanding of Oriental character which her later writings abundantly fulfilled and which equipped her in due course for her unique work in Iraq." Times (London) lit. sup.

Cooper, Merian C.

* Grass; foreword by William Beebe. 1925 Putnam $3; 7s 6d 915.5

1 Bakhtiari 25-8071

"A vivid and thrilling picture of the migration of a Persian tribe over snow covered mountains in search of grass for their livestock. Fifty to a hundred thousand men, women and children, and ten thousand animals braved treacherous rivers, dangerous mountain trails and the attacks of hostile tribes. The author, with his wife and a camera man, were the guests of the tribal chief Haidar. The account has been produced as a movie." Cleveland

With sixty-four illustrations from photographs of Ernest Beaumont Schoedsack

Dwight, Harry Griswold

Persian miniatures. 1917 Doubleday, Page o.p. 1933 915.5

1 Persia—Descr. & trav. 17-26877

"Nineteen brilliant, wholly delightful travel sketches, picturing from unexpected angles unfamiliar features of a famous land. Includes a chapter on rug books. Twenty-one illustrations from drawings." N.Y. state lib.

Ross, Sir Edward Denison

* Persians. 1931 Oxford $1.50; 5s 915.5

1 Persia 31-26872

"A small volume written to familiarize the general reader with the history and geography of Persia and to enable him to think of it as a real and living country. The author is [1931] professor of Persian in the University of London." St Louis

"This little book—so short, so brilliant and so readable—will carry even the laziest over the sticks of Persian Art without accident. For conciseness the chapters on literature and art could not be bettered, and those on the country and the people and on journeys through Persia succeed extraordinarily well in making Persia seem less of a distant and legendary land." Spectator

Contains many illustrations, a map and a three page bibliography

Sheean, Vincent

New Persia. 1927 Century o.p. 1933 915.5

1 Persia—Pol. & govt. 2 Persia—For. rel. 3 Eastern question (Central Asia) 4 Persia—Econ. condit. 27-23831

"Chapters on the political situation in Persia since 1921. A clear insight is given into the internal problems of the government and the policies of Great Britain and Russia toward them. There is also an interesting account of the American Financial Administration." Chicago

"Mr. Sheean has performed a very real service for Persia by describing present conditions without allowing himself to be forced into either the British or Russian camps and without succumbing to that hero worship of the strong man which is to-day so prevalent." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Wilson, Sir Arnold Talbot

Persia. (Modern world) 1933 Scribner $5; Benn 21s 915.5

1 Persia 33-2613

Includes chapters on geography, agriculture, industry and mining, currency and finance, the judicial and military systems, literature and education

"A comprehensive and accurate survey of modern Persia with due reference to the past. [The author] has not attempted to describe the curious and picturesque sides of Persian life, now fast disappearing before the tide of westernization which is sweeping through the country. If some chapters in the book deal with dry subjects, much of it is lit up with brilliant descriptive writing, notably in the earlier chapters describing the country together with its population and products. The keynote running throughout the book is great optimism for the future." Times (London) lit. sup.

915.6 Western Asia. Turkey in Asia

"From Berlin to Bagdad and Babylon," by J. A. Zahm (1922 Appleton-Century $5; 21s) is a book on the Near East which is scholarly and full of information about the ancient and modern civilizations and the present conditions of the countries

Forbes, Mrs Rosita (Torr)

* Conflict; Angora to Afghanistan. 1931 Stokes $3.50; Cassell 15s 915.6

1 Asia, Western—Descr. & trav. 31-12229

"An account of the author's travels in Turkey, Iraq, Syria, Palestine, Persia, and Afghanistan. Combined with travel notes and anecdotes are extensive comments on present-day social and political conditions in those countries." Book rev. digest

"Miss Forbes's present book has values which travel books, however entertaining, so often lack, and those who have to deal officially or commercially with Turk, Syrian, Arab, Persian or Afghan will find in her detailed review of their latter-day outlook much that it behooves them to know . . . Those, however, who seek only entertainment will find Miss Forbes's narrative lively and interesting, and to be read for its own sake no less than for its wider implications." Saturday rev.

Contains 93 illustrations from photographs

Franck, Harry Alverson

Fringe of the Moslem world. 1928 Appleton-Century $4; Methuen 12s 6d 915.6

1 Levant—Descr. & trav. 2 Turkey—Descr. & trav. 28-21929

"Being the tale of a random journey by land from Cairo to Constantinople, with enough of present conditions to suggest the growingly antagonistic attitude of the followers of Mohammed toward those who profess Christianity." Subtitle

"An engaging account of a trip though Egypt, Palestine, Transjordania, Syria, and Turkey which gives, through the eyes of a seasoned traveler, a good picture of the peoples and countries as they are today. It includes an interesting description of Turkey under Mustapha Kemal." Bkl.

With ninety-five illustrations from photographs by the author and a map showing his route

Hogarth, David George

Wandering scholar. 1925 Oxford $3; 8s 6d 915.6

1 Levant—Descr. & trav. 25-19302

A readable and entertaining narrative of adventures of an archeologist in central Anatolia, the upper Euphrates, Lycia, Crete, and other sections of the Near East

"Two books, published, one in 1896, the other in 1910, are combined here under the title of the first. Two chapters and some paragraphs of the original 'Wandering Scholar' are omitted, because they contain what is now stale and unprofitable; also the introductory chapter of 'Accidents of an Antiquary's Life,' because it would not be in place in this combination." Author's note

"Amurath to Amurath" by G. L. Bell (2d ed 1924 Macmillan o.p. 1933) based on five months' exploration, is an interesting book on the country and the people, and in addition an authoritative work on medieval antiquities in Mesopotamia

Kinglake, Alexander William

Eothen; with an introduction by D. G. Hogarth and notes by V. H. Collins. 1920 Oxford $1.20; 3s 6d 915.6

1 Levant—Descr. & trav. [A10-2168]

A classic among travel books. First published 1844, it describes the author's eastern tour made in 1834-35

"It shows Kinglake to be a master of a most refined style and subtle humour . . . and is a delightful record of personal impressions rather than outward facts." Dictionary of national biography

Powell, Edward Alexander

By camel and car to the peacock throne. 1923 Century o.p. 1933 915.6

1 Asia, Western—Descr. & trav. 23-9507

"Adventure and travel through Syria, Arabia and Mesopotamia to the capital of Persia. Brings in ancient and modern history, political conditions, description of people and places. Many illustrations, map and index." Wis. bul.

"There is much of color, of vivid description, of sidelights on the Great War, scattered through the pages in brisk journalistic style." Literary rev.

Wigram, William Ainger, and Wigram, Sir Edgar Thomas Ainger
Cradle of mankind, life in eastern Kurdistan. 2d ed 1922 Macmillan $4; Black, A. & C. 15s 915.6

1 Kurdistan—Descr. & trav. 2 Kurds [22-27488]

A description of Kurdistan, its people, customs, political problems, etc. "One of the authors of this book lived for ten years in Eastern Kurdistan as a member of the Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian mission: the other derived his knowledge of the country from a stay of three months. Thus they claim that they are able to combine the fresh impressions of the globe-trotter with the knowledge of the resident." Spectator

Red flag at Ararat. 1932 Womans press $2 915.66

1 Armenia—Descr. & trav. 2 Armenia—Soc. condit. 3 Communism 4 Russia—Descr. & trav. 33-2111

"What the Soviets have accomplished in Armenia is the subject of this little book. The author [of Armenian ancestry, but a citizen of the United States] describes the present state of a miniature Soviet republic which she finds to be incomparably better than anything Armenia has known in the last centuries." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Her account is marked by honesty and a determination to be fair." Christian Science Monitor
